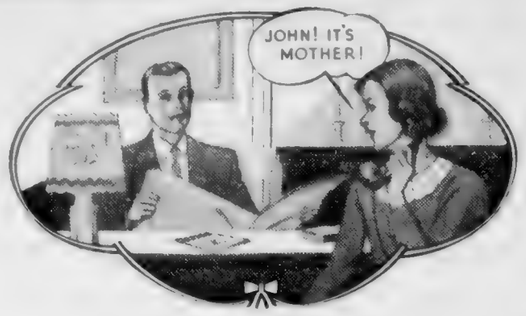
Match Union Has 100% Organization

Akron, O.—An object lesson in perseverance and successful tactics in labor organization is contained in the announcement here that Palmer Match Local Union No. 18,460 is now "100 per cent organized."

The local's charter was granted by the A. F. of L. on Sept. 19, 1933, and is said to have been the first charter granted to labor in the match industry. Then followed three years of hard struggle.

While the membership promptly grew to 90 per cent, a steady decline set in. July, 1935, saw less than ten paid-up members. A reorganization took place, with capable leaders installed. Through the supervision of the Match Council, confidence was regained and a membership drive started. By Jan. 1, 1936, the organization was able to effect many changes in the plant. During three months of enforced idleness, beginning March 4, the union's membership increased 10 per cent.

Following three weeks of negotiations, the plant was reopened the latter part of May. During this period the union was able to prevent a proposed wage cut ranging from 1 to 20 per cent. The membership drive was continued, with the result that the final goal of organization—"100 per cent"—was recently attained. According to President Don Davis, the membership can now look back with pride upon their accomplishment and face the future with confidence.



Never Before Could You Telephone "Long Distance" So Cheaply as Now

The latest long distance rate reduction, effective September 1, was the seventh reduction voluntarily made by the Company in the past ten years, and will save telephone users many millions of dollars.

You can now talk on station-to-station service a distance of 50 miles for as little as 35c or 1000 miles for $1.85 and greater or less distances at a correspondingly low cost.

Telephoning is the quick, easy, economical and personal way to keep in close touch with out-of-town relatives and friends. There is no more satisfactory and pleasing way to extend sympathy or congratulations, greetings or invitations to out-of-town friends and acquaintances, than by long distance telephone.

Isn't there someone, somewhere, father, mother, brother, sister or friend who would be made happier by hearing your voice and talking to you tonight? Ask "Long Distance" for rates.

Must Not Aid Foes.

Zaritsky deplored the lack of understanding between the two groups.

"There is grave danger of brother rising against brother in the American Federation of Labor," he said. "Our enemies of the employing class are biding their time, waiting and hoping that the organized workers of America will destroy themselves, their own organization, in fraticidal war. I sincerely hope this will not come to pass.

"We dare not give aid and comfort to our enemies. There must be unity in the ranks of organized labor at all costs. Above all, we call upon the men at the helf of the American Federation of Labor, because of the power and responsibility they possess, not to give vent to emotions and personal feelings and to use their calm and sober judgment, as we shall try to use ours, to the end that peace may be preserved in the labor movement."

"I regard the statements of Mr. Dubinsky and Mr. Zaritsky as most significant and most helpful," said William Green in Washington. "They represent the spirit of conciliation, which is precisely what is needed in this very deplorable situation."

4-Day Strike Wins Wags Boost for Dressmakers

Philadelphia. — Philadelphia's biggest dress concern, Goldstein & Levin, employing about 300 union workers, has reopened after a shut-down of four months, during which time it was rumored the firm intended to open production units outside of Philadelphia.

The Penn Garment company, employing about 200 workers, settled with the union after a four-day strike. Wage increases of 10 per cent and a closed shop are included in the new contract.

CLERKS ARE GAINING 5-DAY WEEK AND HIGHER WAGES

Seattle, Wash.—Local retail clerks are reported as making commendable progress in their fight for increased wages and the five-day work week.

According to an announcement by Leo Ledwich, business representative for the local Retail Clerks' union, a number of Seattle stores have already signed agreements, making the five-day week effective and covering wage adjustments.

Soil Erosion.

Hordes of gullies now remind us we should build our lands to stay,

And, departing, leave behind us fields that will not float away.

Then when sons assume the mortgage on the land that's had our toil,

They'll not have to ask the question: "Here's the farm, but where's the soil?"

GOP FIGHT TYPOS

Detroit at the time and caught the story. He vigorously panned Morton and the "open shoppers" in an editorial published in the Union Leader, which is read by every one of the 24,000 Chicago union street car men and their families.

It is being recalled here that it was a bunch of Missouri republican politicians who wrecked the presidential aspirations of Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, in 1920. Lowden had many friends among Illinois trade unionists at that time, and he still has them. St. Louis republicans blew Lowden's campaign sky high through their greed.

But GOP Can't Hide Open Shop "Egg Shells"

It is also being recalled that it was a Missouri politician who fathered the now famous expression: "Yeah, Ike he sucks eggs, too, but Ike he hides the shells."

Curtis and Kratky have been unable to hide the shells because International Labor News Service has a bureau in Chicago.

It has been suggested to me that a good disposition to make of Curtis and Kratky would be to place them on a train headed for St. Louis and give them a cordial invitation to do a Steve Brodie when the train reaches the middle of the Eads bridge going into the Missouri metropolis.

Col. Frank Knox, republican vice-presidential aspirant, has been shooting off his bazoo giving advice to labor, telling it to keep out of politics.

He had better heed that advice himself and come home and settle his argument with his own printers on the Chicago Daily News, of which he is the publisher.

Knox and Hearst Are Fighting Union Printers

Col. Knox, of the Chicago Daily News; Col. Robert R. McCormick, of the Chicago Daily Tribune, and Col. William Randolph Hearst, of the Chicago Herald and Examiner and Chicago Evening American, have been fighting their Chicago union printers over a new wage scale since February, 1935, or for the last twenty months.

It speaks well for the self-restraint of Chicago union printers that they have not walked out long ago. Representatives of the three colonel publishers have had the gall to tell members of the wage scale committee of the Chicago printers that they do not represent the employes.

LABOR PREPARES TO "PLOW UNDER" ALL SUNFLOWERS

HERIFF BURNS REFUSES TO ACT AS SCAB HERDER

lls Mark K. Wilson That He Will Not Interfere in Orderly Strikes at Hixson, Soddy and Red Bank.

ti-Union Contractor Said to Attempting to Form a ight-Riding Vigilante Committee—Usual "Racketeering" Charges Thrown.

Felix Hamil, a well known and respected citizen of Hixson, visited The Labor World and stated that the pickets there were in absolute order, and that charges to the contrary were vicious and untrue.

Another prominent merchant told The Labor World that citizens of Hixson sincerely hoped that imported strikebreakers would not be used, and that if such was done it might cause regrettable incidents on the part of residents of that community.

After his building crafts employes the school projects in Soddy, Hixn and Red Bank struck for satistory working conditions and closed work down, Mr. Mark K. Wilson, e prominent for his fiery antinism, is leaving no stone unturned collect armed forces to intimidate beat down the workers such as done in the Bennett-Hubbard ke by city police.

Being visited by the Landon-like up, Sheriff Burns turned down a and for a horde of deputies to and tear-gas the peaceful pickng now going on.

Rumors and open threats by a few lson beneficiaries to form a sort of lante committee to break up the kers have already been heard. perate efforts to discredit labor onists who are active go so far as charge that leaders receive ten lars per head for every laborer ning the union, and at the same e the charge is made that the lars are all relief workers.

The silliness of such is apparent, it pointed out, in that relief workers uld have not have ten dollars each contribute. On the other hand, it been proven that in the organizan so bitterly opposed by those who h to hire them for as low as 15 ls per hour numbers over 1,200 mbers, of which less than one-fifth whom have ever been on relief.

Although there has been not one t of disorder on the picket lines, usual slander is being spread that y are composed of a drunken, dicesoting mob, and that school children in danger of their lives and rals, many of whose fathers are on picket lines themselves.

NNEAPOLIS STRIKES END

Minneapolis.—Drivers in the wholee grocery strike returned to work Oct. 7.

Fourteen wholesale grocery houses d chain store warehouses, closed ce Aug. 20, reopened as more than employes went back to work. The r dispute was ended by an agreent between employers and the eral Drivers' union. The union employers agreed on most of the ues involved. All other matters l be ironed out by arbitration.

Ending of the drivers' strike folwed settlement of the month-old ike of workers in flour mils and minal elevators. The settlement afted most of the mills and elevas.

DALTON WORKERS STAY ON STRIKE IN THREAD PLANT

Approximately 500 Workers Walked Out Last Week After Wage Increase Petition Denied By Mill Management.

Another Mass Meeting To Be Staged Sunday at 3 O'Clock—Plant Well on Way for Complete Organization Soon.

The unorganized employes of the American Thread company in Dalton, Ga., struck last week after several months of fruitless requests for a wage increase. Several departments of the plant walked out in protest, quickly followed by the remaining departments.

Immediately after the walkout the employes petitioned the United Textile Workers of America to assist them in setting up an organization, which is rapidly being done, reports indicating that it will be only a few days until everyone has signed up into a union.

A few pickets have been placed about the mill, and so far no overt act has been committed by either side. Conferences with the management have been held during the last week, but nothing definite has been reached.

Next Sunday there will be a mass meeting of unionists in Dalton to be called at 3 o'clock in the Odd Fellows' hall.

REID IS ORGANIZER FOR NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE

Memphian is Selected, and Will Call Mass Meetings All Over State in Near Future.

H. V. Reid, of Memphis, has been named organizer for Labor's Non-Partisan league for the re-election of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, according to a letter received by The Labor World from William Turnblazer, of Jellico, Tenn., who is state chairman of the league.

Mr. Reid is a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and is chairman of the Tennessee Non-Partisan Labor committee, Tennessee Federation of Labor and for Transportation and Brotherhood.

Will Make State Tour.

Mr. Reid is making a tour of the state, visiting Knoxville, Chattanooga and Nashville, arranging a big mass meeting at each of these places in behalf of Labor's Non-Partisan league for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Reid will serve during the campaign until the election is over. He is widely and favorably known in labor circles and his appointment met with the approval of organized labor not only in Memphis, but all over the state.

Social Security Act Big Help to New York

Albany, N. Y.—Gov. Lehman reports that at the beginning of this week, 64,123 persons in New York state were receiving old age assistance. The minimum age of such pensions has been reduced in New York from 76 to 65 years. In regard to federal help, Lehman said:

"On the basis of the law prior to Oct. 1, we have already received from the federal government for the period ended Sept. 30, $2,733,757. Of this amount $2,665,415 has already been transmitted to the seventy-nine old age maintenance districts. For the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1936, we expect to receive from the federal government an additional $2,490,640, substantially all of which will be transmitted to the localities prior to Dec. 31.

"The foregoing shows how unfortunate it is that the legislature of 1936 took no action to make possible participation by the state of New York in the plan provided by the federal social security act for additional aid to dependent children as well as for the needy blind."

Miners of Tennessee Tell Coal Operators Mines Close Nov. 3

Every Tennessee Miner Will Lay Down Tools on Election Day to Work for Roosevelt.

The coal miners of District 19, United Mine Workers of America, have notified their employers that on election day, Nov. 3, they will not dig coal. Instead of digging coal, every miner and his family will go to their respective balloting places and vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

After they vote for Roosevelt they announce that they will scour the countryside to dig out more voters for our greatest of presidents.

On Nov. 4 there will not be a sunflower in Tennessee that will not be severely frost-bitten, according to organized labor of Tennessee.

FORD RESETTLEMENT PROJECT.

Iron Mountain, Mich.—Henry Ford is planning a $2,000,000 resettlement project of his own, on his big timber holdings in northern Michigan. He plans to settle thirty families in a village, each family to get 350 acres of partly cleared land. They will work in the woods winter and spring, and plant and harvest in the short summer of this region.

Joe Dobbs Named As Delegate to A.F.L. Convention

Elected by Acclamation to Go to Tampa, Fla., to Attend Convention Convening on Nov. 16.

Joe G. Dobbs, president Chattanooga Central Labor union, last Monday night was given a vote by acclamation to represent the local labor movement in the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor to be held in Tampa, Fla.

The sessions will convene on Nov. 16. Mr. Dobbs is in his first full term as president of Central Body, being re-elected to that office after having filled out the unexpired term of A. C. Kamin, who resigned after physicians had instructed him to do so.

Packers Face Another Charge Of Unfair Trade Practices

Washington.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace charged the Armour and Swift packing companies with engaging in "unfair trade practices" in violation of the packers and stockyards act.

Obtaining the entire meat business of steamship lines at New York because the lines hoped to "fare better in freight business of the packing companies" was one of the charges. A second charge was that some meat customers of the packers had obtained extended time in paying bills, constituting, it was alleged, a discrimination against other customers.

The campaign story of the week was relayed by Raymond Clapper. A prominent, even eminent, GOP candidate was being driven through a certain city, local bigwigs with him. There were sudden shouts for Roosevelt and instead of diminishing they swelled as the procession passed. Showing some decided annoyance, a lady politician sought to reassure the dignitary. "Don't pay any attention to them," she suggested, "they are only working people."

Organized labor of Hamilton county is in dead earnest when it says "Re-elect Roosevelt!" At the regular session of Central Body Monday night enthusiasm ran high as plans were initiated which will give Roosevelt an ovation not yet exceeded by any group in the county. A definite committee composed of T. R. Cuthbert, chairman; J. T. Cotter, C. C. Burgner, W. T. McKenna, J. G. Burkes, D. W. Boddy and J. B. Campbell have already started to work to line up prominent and able speakers who will tell the world why Hamilton county labor will sweep F. D. R. over in a big way.

Assurances are already given that George L. Googe, southern director of American Federation of Labor, will head the list.

Plans are being laid to have the presidents of every local union and railroad brotherhood on the platform to represent every labor lodge. A fine union orchestra will entertain early arrivals who appreciate good music.

The Little Theater at the Memorial auditorium may be engaged, which will seat over 2,000 people comfortably. The committee was unable to secure the large auditorium due to it being already in use that night.

Labor will have a big night for Roosevelt. Watch for further details and make your plans to be there.

Green Sees Labor Vote Strongly for Roosevelt

Washington. — President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, believes that nine labor votes out of every ten will go to Roosevelt this fall. He has told this to the president, who was a little surprised at the size of his lead with labor.

"I reported to the president," Green said in a talk with reporters, "my findings about the political situation among the workers of the country. I stated that my appraisement of the political situation showed that 90 per cent of labor is for him, including both organized and unorganized. I think that appraisal is very accurate. It is based on reports I have received and contacts I have had all over the country.

"The fact is reflected in meetings of labor. Practically all of the state federations and the national and industrial unions have adopted resolutions pledging their support to the president.

"Such unanimous action of that kind has never been taken in any campaign before, so far as I know."

Tenure Law Not Protection Against Motive

In last Tuesday's commission meeting Mayor Bass was quoted as saying that "if the tenure law was worth anything in practice, a man who is vindicated at his trial should be in the clear."

While we agree with the honorable mayor that after one is tried on a charge and is found not guilty as charged, he should be forever freed from further prosecution, we do not agree with the implied charge of weakness in principle of the tenure law in that it does not prevent a hostile motive which becomes persecution.

Prof. Hixson was charged with immorality. He was given a hearing and evidence was submitted by the department of education. The evidence did not bear out the charges and Prof. Hixson was ordered reinstated. The tenure law is solely for the purpose of preventing consummation of malicious motives. It does, however, prevent malicious desires.

As far as we know, human society has not been able to create a law that does stop persecution and slander. Laws are made, however, that affords redress against damage caused by persecution and slander, and other laws are invoked to prevent hypocritical persecution of enemies.

The tenure law cannot prevent a person from being hit by a choice gob of mud, but it can and does help scrape off the mud and repair the damage done.

We hope, unless Prof. Hixson should be found guilty of charges as provided by law, that this aged man be given redress.

The principle of tenure has been successfully operated in industry for many, many years, without friction, and if critics of this principle, even though honestly critical, would study its good effects enjoyed by hundreds of thousands of people today, we believe much of their opposition would fade away.

What Next!

P. Serge Litt, a young Tonawanda, N. Y., inventor, announces that by placing two layers of ordinary window screen in front of a metal reflector he has solved the problem of giving motion pictures depth as well as height and breadth. The motion picture industry has long sought a cheap method of producing three-dimensional movies. On Litt's screen the highlights are prominent, while the shadows fade away into the background, the effect being much the same as old-fashioned stereoscope views, popular in American homes decades ago.

48-Hour Week Bill Planned

Raleigh, N. C.—Maj. A. L. Fletcher, state commissioner of labor, announces he plans to present two bills to the general assembly of 1937 which would limit all industrial employes to 48 work-hours a week and prohibit children under 16 years of age from working in factories or textile mills.

Don't blame the girls if their voices aren't lady-like. They have to squall to be heard above the howling radio.

Supreme Court Asked to Rule On Wagner Act

Solicitor General Attacks Associated Press for Discharging Watson Because of His Membership in American Newspaper Guild.

Washington.—Stanley Reed, solicitor-general of the United States department of justice, in a brief filed with the supreme court asked that high judicial body to review the controversy of the Associated Press with the national labor relations board in the case of Morris Watson, whom the board decided was discharged by the Associated Press because of his membership in the American Newspaper Guild, in violation of the provisions of the Wagner national labor relations act.

The decision of the board, upheld by the United States circuit court of appeals for the Second judicial circuit, was appealed to the supreme court by the Associated Press on the ground that its rights under the federal constitution were denied by the measure.

Mr. Reed's brief said the constitutionality of the national labor relations act "is an important question which has not been but should be settled" by the court.

Although joining with the Associated Press for a review of the law, Mr. Reed diametrically disagreed with the press association's arguments against its constitutionality.

Declaring that Mr. Watson was dismissed because he had been active in the Newspaper Guild, the solicitor-general, referring to the Associated Press, said:

"Petitioner may not invoke the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press as a cloak for destroying the freedom of its employes thus to associate among themselves."

Turning to the claim that the labor relations act abridges the freedom of the press, Mr. Reed positively denied that such a contention can be sustained.

"The act imposes no previous or subsequent restraint or censorship whatever," he stated. "It levies no discriminatory tax. The petitioner is utterly free to 'present the news it wants to as it wants to.'

"It was not even claimed by petitioner that the employe here in question was discharged because of bias in editing news. He was discharged because of his activity as a member of an organization of petitioner's employes devoted to ameliorating their conditions of work and as a destructive blow at their right to associate for purposes of collective bargaining and other mutual aid and protection."

Young woman—If you don't leave the house immediately, I'll call the whole police department to come and put you out!

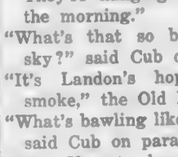
Ardent youth—My dear girl, it would take the whole fire department to put me out.

Landing on Landon

ALFY LANDON

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

"What are the newsboys shouting for?" said Cub on parade;
"To tell good news, to tell good news," the Old Reporter said.
"What brings those teachers marching there?" said Cub on parade;
"To cast their votes, to cast their votes," the Old Reporter said.
"For they're hanging it on Landon, you can hear their snare drums play;



They're hanging it on Landon 'cause he cut the teachers' pay,
He cut it till they scarcely got a dollar in a day—
They're hanging it on Landon in the morning."

"What makes those workmen look so grim?" said Cub on parade.
"They've got the right, they've got the right," the Old Reporter said.
"What makes their leader clench his fist?" said Cub on parade;
"He's thinking of the things he's seen," the Old Reporter said.
"He's seen the miners dying 'cause they couldn't get clean air;
He's seen them coughing up their lungs in sickness and despair;

He knows that Landon never stirred to get them treatment fair—
He's hanging it on Landon in the morning."

"Who are those folks in ragged clothes?" said Cub on parade.
"The unemployed of Kansas state," the Old Reporter said.
"Why are they here, why are they here?" said Cub on parade;
"To settle scores and square accounts," the Old Reporter said.
"For Landon let them hunger when they could not work for bread;
And but for Uncle Sam's relief, there'd half of them be dead;
They're out to see that Landon's sins come back upon his head—
They're hanging it on Landon in the morning."

"What's that so black against the sky?" said Cub on parade;
"It's Landon's hopes gone up in smoke," the Old Reporter said.
"What's bawling like a hungry calf?" said Cub on parade;
"It's Hearst lamenting how he lost," the Old Reporter said.

"For they've hung it tight on Landon, you can hear the broadcast say;
They've sent him back to Kansas and they're telling him to stay.
O, the people's hearts are joyful, and they need no cheer today,
For they hung it on Landon in the morning."

FOOD OR SYMPATHY?

So much has been said and printed during this time of active campaigning, about the big-heartedness of our governor and his feelings of sympathy for the laboring class of people that I feel impelled to corroborate this statement.

About a year ago, there was a break in the K. E. R. C. for about two or three weeks, during which time all the relief workers were laid off and during this time their meager checks were exhausted and families were in want, as a last resort we sent a committee to Topeka to see if some immediate relief could not be obtained. Our committee called at the K. E. R. C., but were unable to see Mr. Stutz so they called upon Gov. Landon.

He received them and listened to their appeal for help and their statement that there were little children in one town that were hungry, and had nothing to eat. And Gov. Landon merely smiled very sweetly and said, "Well, that's too bad."

So we know from experience that Gov. Landon does "sympathize" with the laboring class of people. And this committee isn't going to forget this fact.

And the two or three hundred members of this organization that sent this committee down to Topeka aren't going to forget it either.

And when the November election rolls around we're all going to remember that when we asked for help we were given "sympathy."

KANSAS CITY FILM OPERATORS FIGHT NON-UNION THEATERS

Kansas City, Mo. — The fight against seventeen non-union suburban moving picture theaters is being pushed vigorously by Moving Picture Machine Operators' Local No. 170, supported by the Central Labor union and members of organized labor in general. Labor objects to what is termed a "coolie system" of labor, which enables the non-union movie houses to "chisel" on the reliable moving picture theaters that do employ union operators.

KEEP THEIR EYES YOUNG

Provide Adequate Light with the BETTER-SIGHT LAMP

Eyestrain flourishes on poor lighting. It is a real and dangerous foe of childhood. It saps nervous energy and often causes physical upsets and defective vision. It is partly responsible for one out of five children of school age, on an average, having something wrong with their eyes. By college age two out of five are affected.

It is a simple matter to eliminate eyestrain and preserve your children's eyesight. Just follow these sight-saving rules: Have their eyes examined regularly by a competent eyesight specialist. Don't guess whether your lighting is sufficient . . . Have one of our Home Lighting Advisors check your home lighting with a Light Meter.

Be sure that the children have plenty of good light . . . light such as is provided by the Better Sight Lamp. These lamps are scientifically designed for eye safety and eye comfort, and give you full lighting value for every penny's worth of electricity.

Cordell Hull, secretary of state, is one happy man these days. After playing in hard luck for more than three years, the breaks began to come his way, and recently they have come with a rush. Hull has been negotiating reciprocal trade treaties with various powers to get rid of some of the restrictions on commerce. It was uphill work—till France, when devaluing the franc, went farther and wiped out a host of restrictions on imports.

This is more than the acceptance by a great nation of Secretary Hull's doctrine that peace as well as prosperity can be helped by getting rid of trade barriers. It is a practical and long step in the direction that Hull has been traveling.

More Labor Bodies Vote to Support President Roosevelt

Washington.—President Roosevelt has the federation indorsed any candidate for office. The Oklahoma Federation of Labor also voted indorsement.

The United Textile Workers of America in convention at New York voted 430 to 14 to indorse Roosevelt continues to get the indorsement of labor as regularly as he gets the opposition of the Liberty league.

The Illinois State Federation of Labor, meeting at Quincy, indorsed Roosevelt as "the real proponent of the real purpose of the American constitution." Not for 54 years before and help his candidacy. That is the lowest statement of his favorable vote at this convention. The latest report is that only ten voted against him.

The New Jersey State Federation of Labor voted unanimously to indorse Roosevelt, and do all in their power to secure his election. One person in the rear of the hall shouted "nay" when the vote was taken; but no one could identify him.

The International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal and Soft Drink Workers, in convention at San Francisco, added their indorsement to the rest.

EDITORIAL EMPLOYES' RIGHT TO ORGANIZE IS RECOGNIZED

PEORIA, Ill.—The Peoria Newspaper Guild has announced settlement of its dispute with the Peoria Journal-Transcript. The dispute involved discharge of four editorial employes, three of whom were Guild members.

The agreement was signed by publisher Carl P. Slane and witnessed by Guild and allied labor officials. The Journal-Transcript recognized the right of editorial employes to organize for collective bargaining, and "join any organization composed of other newsmen," without prejudicing themselves. Two of the discharged Guild members were re-employed—the third was said to have been employed elsewhere.

CHICAGO PRINTERS ALMOST UNIT IN OPPOSING LANDON AND KNOX

Hard-Boiled Attitude of Landon Newspaper Publisher Supporters Against Union Demands Big Factor in Influencing Typos Not to Vote for G.O.P. Presidential Candidates.

By JOSEPH A. WISE

Chicago.—It can be safely said that not to exceed 2 per cent of the more than 5,000 union printers of the city of Chicago will vote for Landon and Knox. This 2 per cent will be made up almost exclusively of men who are out of touch with passing events or are hard-shelled republicans.

There are several reasons for this. The biggest and most compelling motivation for this attitude is, of course, the hard-boiled refusal of Col. Frank Knox, of the Chicago Daily News; Col. Robert R. McCormick, of the Chicago Daily Tribune, and Col. William Randolph Hearst, of the Herald and Examiner and American to negotiate a new wage scale with their union printers. The controversy has been going on for the last twenty months, with the public knowing nothing at all about it, notwithstanding that there has been battle after battle waged behind closed doors between the wage scale committees of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 and the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association.

Fewer Hours Chief Demand.

The union printers want shorter hours and more pay, but principally shorter hours in order to help in taking up the unemployment slack. The three colonel publishers say that they will be damned to hell and gone if they will concede an inch. They want longer hours and less pay.

Hearst discovered Landon. Colonel Knox, a former Hearst employe, is Landon's running mate. Colonel McCormick, of the Tribune, has become hysterical in his appeals to the public to support the Landon-Knox ticket. The printers who are employed on Chicago daily newspapers say to the three colonel publishers:

"To the devil with you and your ticket! Sign our wage scale, which has been in your hands since February, 1935."

Knox Advice Stirs Derision.

A snort of derision and a hearty Bronx cheer went up from Chicago printers when Colonel Knox, while on his recent 9,000-mile barnstorming trip, gave the fatherly advice to labor to get out of politics for its own good.

Hearst, the discoverer of Landon, is simply using the campaign as a rich man's plaything. He cares nothing about the altruistic purposes some of his hirelings write about. That is just paid-for drivel. Hearst wants to be able to say, "Just see what I done!" in case Landon is elected. Six months after the election he would be calling Landon a bum—if Landon were elected.

McCormick More Practical.

Colonel McCormick, of the Tribune, is more practical. He would expect, demand and see that he got a large hunk of the swag in case his gang succeeds. That is his record in Illinois and Chicago politics. He is a hard-boiled, practical politician who never lets anything get away from him if he can prevent it. All of his high-flown rhetoric about the constitution, the freedom of the press and rally around the flag, boys, is 18-karat bunk and boloney.

As for Col. Frank Knox, publisher and editor of the Chicago Daily News, he is just nuts to be elected vice-president. He left the Cleveland republican national convention a broken-hearted man after he was turned down for the nomination for president.

Wild To Be Elected.

He perked up a lot when news reached him over his auto radio set when he was well on his way home that he had been nominated for vice-president. He would give his right eye and perhaps a few arms and legs, too, to be elected, but he will not sign a new wage scale with his printers.

Ain't it just hell what politics will do to a fellow!

Roosevelt Favored By 90% of Workers

Green Informs the President His Prediction Is Made After Survey of Sentiment Among Both Organized and Unorganized Labor—Stresses Enforcement of Government Contracts Act.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, informed President Roosevelt, at a luncheon at Hyde Park, N. Y., just before the nation's chief executive returned to Washington, D. C., that after a careful study he believed 90 per cent of the workers would vote for Mr. Roosevelt in the election on Nov. 3.

After the luncheon Mr. Green repeated to newspaper correspondents the substance of his statement.

"I reported to the president," he said, "my findings about the political situation among the workers of the country. I stated that my appraisement of the political situation showed that 90 per cent of labor is for him, including both organized and unorganized. I think that appraisal is very accurate. It is based on reports I have received and contracts I have had all over the country.

"That fact is reflected in meetings of labor. Practically all of the state federations—there are 48 of them—and the national and international unions have adopted resolutions pledging their support to the president.

"Such unanimous action of that kind has never been taken in any campaign before, so far as I know."

The labor vote was estimated by Mr. Green as ranging from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000.

He said the practically unanimous feeling of the workers in favor of Roosevelt's re-election "is based on the fact that this administration rather speaks labor's language, and the humanitarian policies inaugurated by this administration ought to be continued by those who inaugurated them. By those policies, I mean social justice and the principle of collective bargaining, things which were never done by an administration before."

Governmental Contracts Law.

The president was requested by Mr. Green to take some appropriate action with regard to the enforcement of the Walsh-Healy act requiring the 40-hour week, the prevailing wage rate, and the abolition of child labor by firms given contracts to supply goods to the government. He pointed out that although the act became effective on Sept. 28, congress had failed to appropriate funds for its enforcement.

Mr. Green said he hoped the president could fine some method of detailing existing agencies in the department of labor to administer the law, because there was increasing evidence that manufacturers were planning to evade its regulations.

Among these he cited what he claimed was the establishment of dummy wholesale companies by manufacturers, through which the latter could evade the labor restrictions as long as the secondary company complied with them, because the law applies only to those companies which deal immediately with government purchasing agencies.

A. F. of L. Reports Big Job Gain Over Last Year

Washington.—In the period between January and August this year, 2,216,000 workers found re-employment in private industry, the American Federation of Labor reports.

The primary reason for this absorption of unemployed was ascribed to an unusual summer upswing in business activity.

In a special study, the A. F. of L. found that:

"This year business started upward in April and since the uptrend has continued with only minor interruptions. 2,216,000 of the unemployed found work in the industry between January and August, 1936, or nearly twice as many as in 1935.

"Reliable business indicators show no gain in industrial activity from January to August last year, which compares with a gain of about 9 per cent this year.

"By comparing the summer dull seasons, from June to August, in the last three years, the increasing force of business recovery and the accompanying gains in employment are clearly shown," the federation said.

"Trade union unemployment records tell the same story. From January to September, 1935, three and one-tenth per cent of the membership went back to work; in 1936, six and one-tenth per cent.

"In building gains are especially striking. In 1936, 26 per cent of the building trades members found work (January to September) compared to 15 per cent last year. Gains this year have also been greater in printing and metal trades.

"In spite of these employment gains, millions are still dependent on relief or government emergency work. The latest figures show 1,670,000 cases still on relief rolls (May, 1936) and in the week ending Sept. 5, 3,364,000 had emergency jobs on the works program."

HOSIERY WORKERS STRIKE AGAINST PAY REDUCTION

Eddington, Pa.—Wage cuts ranging about 30 per cent brought a strike of the workers at the Grayline Hosiery company's plant here. The mechanical departments, including knitting, looping, seaming and examining, were closed by the strike and a picket line was promptly thrown about the plant.

A threat to move a considerable portion of the work to a branch plant at Chambersburg was accompanied with the alternative of accepting the wage cut—an old stunt—but it didn't work. The strikers are members of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

American Federation Convention Meets In Tampa, Nov. 16

Executive Council Says "Principle of Democratic Procedure and Majority Rule Within the American Federation of Labor Is at Stake."

Washington.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor issued a notification that the fifty-sixth annual convention of the federation will convene in the municipal auditorium, Tampa, Fla., at 10 o'clock, Monday morning, Nov. 16, and continue in session from day to day until the business of the convention shall have been completed.

Important Decisions Will Be Made.

"This convention will deal with questions of vital importance to the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor and to the wage-earners of the country," the council said.

"Its decisions will be fraught with deep significance.

"The principle of democratic procedure and majority rule within the American Federation of Labor is at stake.

"The abandonment of this vital principle means division, discord and confusion.

"On the other hand, its preservation and application in the disposition of questions coming before conventions and in the administrative and organization policies of the American Federation of Labor will insure solidarity, co-ordination and unity.

"For this special reason, it is of the utmost importance that all international unions, state federations of labor, city central bodies and federal labor unions be represented in the convention.

"We respectfully urge that all organizations eligible for representation send delegates to this highly important convention."

Basis for Representation.

The council said that representation in the convention will be on the following basis: "From national or international unions, for less than 4,000 members, one delegate; 4,000 or more, two delegates; 8,000 or more, three delegates; 16,000 or more, four delegates; 32,000 or more, five delegates; 64,000 or more, six delegates; 128,000 or more, seven delegates; 256,000 or more, eight delegates, and so on; and from central bodies and state federations, and from local trade unions not having a national or international union, and from federal labor unions, one delegate.

"Organizations to be entitled to representation must have obtained a certificate of affiliation (charter), at least one month prior to the convention; and no person will be recognized as a delegate who is not a member in good standing of the organization he is elected to represent.

"Only bona fide wage-workers, who are not members of, or eligible to, membership in other trade unions are eligible as delegates from federal labor unions."

Election of Delegates.

"Delegates must be elected at least two weeks previous to the convention," the call continued, "and their names forwarded to the secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor immediately after their election. Delegates are not entitled to seats in the convention unless the tax of their organization has been paid in full to Aug. 31, 1936."

"The importance to our movement, the duty of the hour and for the future," the Executive Council said, "demand that every organization entitled to representation shall send full quota of delegates to the convention, Nov. 16, 1936."

Atmosphere of Gloom Settles On Republican Chicago Headquarters

Morgue-like Quiet Pervades Labor Bureau Offices, But Activity Is Shown at "Open Shop" Division, Which Works to Line Up Non-Union Workers for Landon and Knox.

By JOSEPH A. WISE

Chicago.—The big balloon sent up by the republican national committee in Chicago in the latter part of June seems to be pretty thoroughly deflated and is slowly but surely descending to the ground. At least that is indicated by the atmosphere of gloom and inactivity around the republican national headquarters in this city.

The main offices in the Railway Exchange, 80 East Jackson Boulevard, have more the air of a morgue than that of the national headquarters of a great political party. At 11 o'clock in the morning of a recent business day the place looked dead. Employes were listlessly roaming around the halls or killing time in the many rooms of the enormous place. Activity, pep, enthusiasm which existed in June are now gone. There were not more than a dozen visitors present.

The suite of three press reception rooms which were originally opened with a great flourish have been abandoned. The desks and chairs which were provided for the accommodation of visiting firemen from the national press are covered with dust and the typewriters have been removed. The press rooms, immediately in front of the elevators on the third floor, present a dismal appearance to the visitor. No one around the headquarters seems to care a cuss.

No Life at Labor Bureau

Many important press releases are being given out at Washington. The theory that the prairie states are saving the show is out. "The fellows who put up the money" are seeing to it that statements given out are under their absolute control and on the spot at which they are given closer at hand.

The so-called labor bureau, at 310 South Michigan Boulevard, is dead. One girl stenographer was all that could be found there following a visit to the main headquarters. This "bureau" has done nothing worthwhile at any time. No labor literature of any kind has been issued, according to the statement made to me by a responsible person in the publicity department.

"Open Shop" Offices Active

There is great activity at the "open shop" bureau at 208 West Washington street. A big force is busy at the task of urging "open shop" employers throughout the United States to "vote" their employes to vote for Landon and Knox. Sterling Morton, of the Morton Salt company, is in charge of this work.

Arthur M. Curtis, republican national committeeman from Missouri, and Robert Kratky, former St. Louis stock broker and public utilities man, are supreme commanders of labor activities for the republican national committee, have abandoned hope of getting any considerable number of union unionists to vote for Landon and Knox and are now bending their efforts toward getting the "open shop" vote through having employers force employes into submission to the will of "the fellows who put up the money."

Curtis and Kratky Mulish

Curtis and Kratky have been told that they can't get away with such a crooked, screwy stunt, but one would think that as far trying to advise a couple of Missouri mules.

These two men had the bughouse idea that the split in the American Federation of Labor would greatly help Landon and Knox if they (Curtis and Kratky) were to take an active part in the argument. It was "in order," according to their viewpoint, and Curtis said as much. They got their newspaper allies to work on the job and hell and lots of it was raised over the country. Two thirds of the membership of the American Federation of Labor would join Curtis and Kratky in support of Landon and Knox, it was fondly believed.

Then the various state branches of the American Federation of Labor began to act until thirty-three of them had indorsed Franklin D. Roosevelt. That blew up Curtis and Kratky and the entire republican national committee, but it taught them nothing, not even that all of their plans in reference to labor are nuts. They are a lot of smart gazabos, so they imagine.

They have lost their heads completely and have gone entirely "open shop." They will not liberalize their policy. They can't do that because the Kansas and Missouri republican leaders have sold the republican party down the river. The bargain was made when John D. M. Hamilton visited New York for about a week immediately following adjournment of the republican national convention at Cleveland last June. Hamilton got the money for the sale of the republican party, and "the fellows who put up the money" are in command, with Hamilton and Curtis acting as their agents. The price for the sale, of course, is in the form of a huge campaign fund.

Publishing Co. Asked For Union Recognition

OTTAWA.—A delegation from the printing trades asked the annual conference of the United Church of Canada for union recognition in the United Church Publishing House at Toronto. Dr. W. B. Creighton, editor of publications, admitted the house had been non-union since 1921. Consideration of the request was promised.

The delegates also asked support for a plan to have the Bible printed in Canada. At present, according to Dr. Creighton, only three firms have publication rights for the world's best selling book: Oxford University Press, Cambridge University Press and the firm of Evre & Spottiswood. The United Church of Canada is a union of Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists.

Hutcheson Tells Why He Left AFL Council

Indianapalis, Ind. — William L. Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, made public the following letter to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tendering his resignation as tenth vice-president of the federation:

"Knowing the rules of the council, namely, that a member not attending a council meeting is bound by the action of the mapority of the council, and being unable to attend the present meetings of the council, at which time the report for the convention will be compiled, and not knowing or being familiar with what will be in the report, and not being desirous of having my name signed to something that I know nothing about, I have come to the conclusion that the reasonable and logical procedure is for me to resign from the council.

"Therefore, I hereby present my resignation as a vice-president of the American Federation of Labor."

Report of Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee Finds That the President Signed 21 Labor Laws While Governor of New York and 47 During 73rd and 74th Congresses—Quotes Excerpts from Landon's Speeches on Subjects Affecting the Workers.

Washington.—"No issue before the people is of such vital importance as the selection of a president and vice-president of the United States."

This important declaration opens the report of the American Federation of Labor National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee on the "Labor Planks in the Political Platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties and the Records of the Candidates for President and Vice-President," issued here by the Executive Council of the A. The document summarizes the non-partisan policy of the American Federation of Labor, gives the labor planks submitted by the American Federation of Labor to the platform Rally Here for Roosevelt !

Although at press time today the Central Labor Union committee that is arranging a labor rally for the re-election of President Franklin Roosevelt has nothing complete to report to the movement, all that is lacking is definite word who shall be the visiting speaker. Assurances have been given that either Governor Rivers or Senator Russell of Georgia, or Senator Bob Reynolds of North Carolina will be present on Friday, Oct. 30.

Indications are that the community hall in the Memorial Auditorium will be filled to capacity. No long-winded speeches are scheduled, but will be composed in the main of short, snappy resumes of what this great president has done for the working people.

Every working man should make plans to be present that night. Failure to render expressions of gratitude toward benefactors has always been one of the greatest faults of our people, and at this particular time Central Labor Union hopes that an old-time testimonial service will take place.

HUTCHESON RESIGNS FROM A. F. L. EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

President Browne, of Stage Employes, and President Flore, of Hotel and Restaurant Workers, Are Named Fourteenth and Fifteenth Vice-Presidents.

Washington.—William L. Hutcheson, in a letter to President Wililam Green, of the American Federation of Labor, tendered his resignation as tenth vice-president of the A. F. of L.

Mr. Hutcheson is president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. He was elected to the Executive Council by the 1934 convention, which increased the number of vice-presidents from eight to fifteen, and was re-elected by the 1935 convention. His resignation, which was accepted by the Executive Council, still leaves the Carpenters' Brotherhood represented on that body by Frank Duffy, secretary of the brotherhood and first vice-president of the A. F. of L.

The Executive Council has already accepted the resignation of David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, as eleventh vice-president. Mr. Dubinsky, like Mr. Hutcheson, was elected to the council by the 1934 convention and re-elected by the 1935 convention. He resigned last August following the decision of the Executive Council that the committee for industrial organization, of which he was a member, was a dual organization within the American Federation of Labor and endeavoring to overthrow the decision on organizational policy adopted by a majority vote of the delegates attending the 1935 convention.

To fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Mr. Hutcheson and Mr. Dubinsky, the Executive Council named George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, as fourteenth vice-president, and Edward Flore, president of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders't International League of America, as fifteenth vice-president.

As a result of these appointments, Harry C. Bates, who was twelfth vice-president, becomes tenth vice-president; Edward J. Gainor, who was thirteenth vice-president, becomes eleventh vice-president; W. D. Mahon, who was fourteenth vice-president, becomes twelfth vice-president, and Felix H. Knight, who was fifteenth vice-president, becomes thirteenth vice-president.

Roosevelt Holds Lead In Poll of Labor Editors

NEW YORK CITY.—President Roosevelt is maintaining his big lead in the nation-wide poll of editors of labor papers on their political preferences, it was announced by the American Labor party, which is conducting the survey. Latest returns show that 104 out of the 112 editors, who have replied, are in favor of his re-election. A total circulation of over 6,500,000 readers is represented in their views.

The tally to date reveals that in addition to the 104 votes for Roosevelt, 2 are in favor of Gov. Landon, 3 for Norman Thomas, 2 for Earl Browder and 1 for Representative Lemke.

The present showing covers over one-half of all the labor publications throughout the country.

LEARY GOES WITH HEARST.

Washington.—John J. Leary, Jr., labor editor of the old New York World, publicity writer for the republican party labor division in the 1932 election campaign, and who has been on the publicity staff of the WPA in Washington during the last few years, has signed a three-year contract with the Hearst publications.

Sufficient Unto the Day.

Thank heaven the future is hidden!
Thank heaven for short-seeing eyes!
For bad luck cannot be forbidden,
And good luck is such a surprise!

Chain Store Workers Strike

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Union butchers and teamsters walked out on Oct. 17 at sixty-five San Diego chain grocery stores in a strike which labor leaders said may extend to the entire Pacific coast and involve warehousemen and longshoremen. The strike was called simultaneously in San Pedro.

Headgear Workers Union Starts Move To Reunite Labor

Peace Movement Outstanding Feature of Convention Which Completes Merger of Union's Two Departments and Maps Drive to Solidly Organize Hat, Cap and Millinery Industry.

By MARX LEWIS

New York City.—In a convention replete with historic events, the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union, which completed its sessions here with the election of Max Zaritsky as president, took steps for a reunion of the forces of American labor. The move constituted the outstanding activity of the convention.

A peace proposal, adopted by a unanimous vote of the convention, following an address by Mr. Zaritsky, was immediately transmitted to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, in session in Washington, and to John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, the members of which have been suspended from the federation because of their refusal to disband the organization.

The peace movement was launched by Mr. Zaritsky at the opening of the convention of the Cap and Millinery department, which preceded the convention of the entire international union.

Dubinsky Backs Plea.

His plea that the unity of the American labor movement must be preserved at all costs, was followed by an address of David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union. Both organizations are members of the committee for industrial organization. Mr. Dubinsky's organization was among those suspended by the Executive Council, but the cap and millinery department was not suspended from the federation because only the department, not the international union, had affiliated itself with the committee.

The movement which Mr. Dubinsky launched was followed by a number of informal conferences in which William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, participated. When the convention of the international union opened several days later, President Green expressed the hope that a way would be found to end the rift which existed in the federation, and new moves were initiated for a restoration of unity.

Peace Seen Paramount Issue.

The resolution which has been advanced as a basis for peace negotiations requested the appointment of subcommittees by both the Executive Council and the committee for industrial organization, at which every means would be considered to find a formula for unity.

> Delegates to the convention regarded this as the paramount question before the convention, although numerous problems affecting the future of the organization were due to be considered.

Among them was one bringing to completion a merger of the men's hat department and the cap and millinery department, thus creating an industrial union of all workers in the headwear industry. Two years ago the United Hatters of North America, and the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union surrendered their individual charters to form an international union in which they each became a department. Last January, the international executive board recommended the elimination of the departments, and ordered a spemial convention to act upon the proposal.

Merger Unanimously Approved.

The merger was adopted unanimously, bringing to an end almost fifty years of the existence of the United Hatters of North America, and thirty-five years of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union. A new constitution making provision for the merger, and providing for a general executive board representing cap makers, men's hatters and millinery workers, was adopted by the convention.

Mr. Zaritsky, who had been president of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union, and was later the secretary-treasurer of the international union, was elected president to succeed Michael F.

PROJECTIONISTS RENDER TRIBUTE TO EMPTY SEATS

Banquet at Twenty-sixth Anniversary of Local 259 Honors Brothers Passed Beyond.

HONOR GUESTS PRAISE: POINT TO HIGHER GOALS

Young Members of Movie Operators Told to Take Interest in Their Jobs and Recognize Conditions Gained for Them.

Local Union 259, Moving Picture Machine Projectionists, met at midnight last Saturday in the Patten hotel to commemorate the twenty-sixth anniversary of the most progressive trades union in Chattanooga. An annual affair, invitations to the get-together by those who are not members are greatly valued. Present as guests was the executive board of Central Labor union; T. R. Cuthbert, editor of The Labor World; R. M. Cooke, without whom a movie operator banquet would not be legal, and H. G. B. King, labor attorney.

Members and guests were visibly impressed at the sight of a separate table laid for six, with chairs leaning against the table as if the occupants had just stepped from the room. The six empty chairs symbolized the six members of the local who have passed on in the last twenty-six years. The roll of the warriors who formerly fought shoulder-to-shoulder with those present was called by one of the charter members, "Red" Johnson, who said in his toast at the outset of the banquet that "I believe that Tom Warren, Elbert Lowry, Leo Nichols, Royal Lawson, Kyle Gillam and Chris Otto are in this room with us tonight. Hail to you, brothers, we are carrying on."

Another unusual feature of the banquet this year was the presence of new faces from former years in the presence of several youngsters recently admitted into membership. These new trades unionionists were recipients of an unusual amount of advice.

Burson Lowry, president of the local, before turning the gavel over to the toastmaster of the evening, A. C. Kamin, told the new members that the local expected them to strive to achieve perfection in performing their duties in the booths. "Only by doing this can you justify your presence here," he told them, "and you must

What Next!

By research and experiments the Pennsylvania railroad has developed the "Cab Signals" and has equipped its electric and steam locomotives with this latest step ahead in railroad signal science. These cab signals bring the indications of the wayside signals into the locomotive cab before the eyes of the engineer and fireman, so that track conditions and position lights ahead are known at all times regardless of outside visibility. So now when the train you are riding on is rushing through the fog, or sleet and snow at 70 miles per hour —you may feel perfectly safe, for the engineer has track conditions right before his eyes, though he can't possibly see 100 yards ahead.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers always been known by its present name?

A.—The union was originally called the Western Federation of Miners. It was founded in 1893. In 1916, the organization passed through what was virtually a complete reorganization and adopted the name by which it is now known.

Q.—What states still have no workmen's compensation laws?

A.—Arkansas and Mississippi.

Q.—What is the purpose of the Division of Labor Standards, United States department of labor?

A.—A major objective is to assist in harmonizing state labor laws, wherever practicable, in order that workers in one state may receive the same measure of protection and benefits as workers in another state.

Pennsylvania Boosts Milk Price to Benefit Farmers

Without very many protests, the Pennsylvania milk control board has issued an order raising the retail price of milk throughout most of the state with practically all of the increase going to the dairy farmers. The new price for Grade A milk is 15 cents a quart, and 9 cents a pint. Grade B milk sells for 12 cents a quart and 7 cents a pint.

After a thorough investigation the board found that the cost of feed for cattle had more than doubled because of crop shortage and other elements and that unless the producers obtained better prices Pennsylvania would soon have ot go outside of the state for its milk, with possible diminution in purity and quality of the supply.

It appeared that farmers had been getting only $2.50 a hundred pounds for milk which cost from $2.42 to $2.82 to produce.

A variation in the regular price of 12 cents for Grade B milk was made in the case of relief recipients, who will pay only 10 cents a quart for it.

UNEMPLOYMENT SOARS.

Edmondton, Alberta.—The provincial government's employment service reports that on Oct. 1 there were 60 per cent more unemployed in Alberta than on the same date last year, making a new all-time record. The social credit government, which promised to provide prosperity for everybody, has been in office fourteen months.

Some Samples of New Deal "Ruin"

Here are some samples of the utter "ruin" which the New Deal has wrought, according to its enemies. All are taken from a single issue of a morning paper:

Ten industrial corporations, none of the largest size, have combined income for the first nine months of this year 209 per cent greater than that of the same period last year. To give an idea of their scope, the list includes the New York Air Brake company, the Container Corporation of America, the Lehigh Portland Cement company, and the Galveston Wharf company. Every one of the ten reports income much larger than that of last year, and the average, as stated, is 209 per cent, or a little over three for one.

New life insurance written in September this year was 10.8 per cent greater than that written in September a year ago. A certain politician has said that "no insurance policy is safe," and has blathered extensively on this alarming theme. But the people who buy life insurance don't seem to be scared a bit.

Eighty-nine Class 1 railroads show September operating receipts 16.4 per cent greater than those of the same month last year. Part of this gain is in passenger fares, but the bulk of the gain is in freight. When one remembers how long the railroads let the trucks skim the cream of freight traffic without making a move to meet this new competition, such a comeback is surprising.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works booked orders in September this year totalling $2,532,734. Their bookings in the same month last year were $1,140,788.

Ruin? Ain't it awful?

The one fly in the ointment, the one menacing sign of the day, is that too much of the country's unquestionable recovery is going to capital, and too little to labor. But the enemies of the New Deal never mention that.

A Contributed Editorial

This concentration of wealth and power has been built upon other people's money, other people's business, other people's labor. Under this concentration, independent business was allowed to exist only on sufferance. It has been a menace to the social system as well as to the economic system which we call American democracy.

There is no excuse for it even in the cold terms of industrial efficiency.

The people of America have no quarrel with business. They insist only that the power of concentrated wealth shall not be abused.

—Franklin D. Roosevelt at Chicago.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

Coming to the Label league banquet Wednesday night? It's going to be more fun. I hope to get to boo all the candidates I don't like.

A word of warning to the ladies!!!! I heard that the Label league ladies are going to place a stiff fine on anybody who appears at that banquet in "dress up" clothes. So, if you are lucky enough to have a nice long dinner dress, just leave it at home this time, or pay the fine.

Personally, I think it's a swell idea. Back in the good old halcyon days, there was a party dress hanging up at my house, but after many years of faithful service it gave up. So now, this busy little seamstress is working hard to try to make a suit out of a dress discarded by the so-called "better half." So far, the sleeves refuse to fit in the armholes.

If you like parties you will enjoy planning a nice hallowe'en entertainment this year because it is so easy to have unusual refreshments that everybody likes. Grant-Patten has a big variety of fancy ice cream molds for hallowe'en. There are pumpkins, witches, ears of corn, apples and Brownies—they make such an attractive looking plate when you've added a cup of Richmond Maid coffee and a slice of Mother's Home-style cake.

Last, but very important, Friday night is Label League night. The league meets in regular session on that night, in Roosevelt hall, at 7:30.

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

PLANS FOR THE YEAR

Committees are being selected to carry out the program of the Federation for this year as adopted by the first general meeting. These include the framing and sponsorship of statewide tenure and salary laws and the formulation of a plan for reinaugurating the 20 per cent law for the city.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM REPORT

The report of the academic freedom committee adopted by the general meeting will be mailed out to all schools early next week. This report contains a comprehensive bibliography of material on the loyalty oath question. The references should be read carefully so that the next general meeting will be in a position to take some definite stand on this issue.

BOOTH AT E. T. E. A.

Federation members who are going to the East Tennessee Education association in Knoxville on Oct. 29-31 and are willing to spend some time in the federation booth are urged to call the office to get their names on the schedule.

BROTHER BURGNER HONORED

The first meeting of the Hamilton County Teachers' association paid tribute to the loyalty and devotion with which C. C. Burgner has served the interests of all the teachers by electing him president of the association. The teachers thereby rendered honor to whom honor is due. Mr. Burgner, as principal of a large county high school, could have easily taken the path of self-interest, leaving the rank and file teachers to hoe their own hard row. But he chose to identify himself with the teachers as a whole. His unanimous election shows that even non-federation teachers recognize a true champion of their rights.

LOOK FOR THE LABEL

Teachers who have not already done so should immediately take up the habit of looking for the union label in merchandise. A good start for the men would be to buy only union-made cigarettes. Remember that Raleighs, Avalons, Viceroys, Wings, Twenty-Grand, Kools and Spuds carry the union label. Then, when the supply of shirts, socks and ties runs low, remember that Henderson-Coleman, Signiago and Campbell, The Fad and Contor Bros. can replenish the wardrobe with labeled goods. Ladies should ask for Phoenix silk hose.

BUILD THE PUBLIC FORUMS

Teachers can do no greater service to the cause of education and democracy than by attending and otherwise supporting the Chattanooga-Hamilton county public forums. These meetings help to dispel much of the prejudice and intolerance so prevalent today. Let's help the good work along by regularly attending at least one forum per week. And let's present labor's side of the question a little less timidly. After all, with justice and logic on our side, we should be able to match arguments with some of the slick-tongued lawyers, who have stolen the show at a number of meetings due to our failure to challenge them.

BROOM MAKERS GET INCEASE.

Chicago.—Following a strike of about two weeks, Broom and Whisk Makers' Local Union No. 29 gained a 10 per cent restoration of an original 15 per cent pay cut which had been exacted by employers during the period of "hard times."

President Niyork, of the local union, in announcing the settlement, stated that the men returned to work when the 10 per cent increase was granted and agreed to by the union as a compromise.

Thousands of Brooklyn Garage Workers Strike

Higher Wages and Shorter Hours Demanded—Employes Paid Little as 17 Per Week.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Following a breakdown of negotiations with garage owners for higher wages and shorter hours about 4,000 garage service employes went on strike here with the probability that another 3,000 would join the movement.

Officials of Garage Workers and Polishers Union, Local No. 272, who called the walkout, explained that efforts to reach an agreement on wages and hours with the employers' organizations had failed.

The demands of the union included a 48-hour week in place of the prevailing 54-hour schedule, a minimum wage of $30 a week for floor men, day men and interior men, and $35 a week for washers. Some of the employes, according to union officials, are paid as little as $17 a week.

Representatives of the union said they were disinclined to submit to arbitration and would seek either collective or individual agreements with the owners. Dissatisfaction was expressed by them with the arbitration award recently made by Ben Golden, associate director of the Regional Labor Board, named arbitrator by Mayor La Guardia, in which 7,600 garage service employes in Manhattan and the Bronx were given wage increases of from $1 to $8 a week.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

There is the case of Al Smith. Long ago, in the presence of the du Ponts, he told us he intended to "take a walk." He has taken it. He has gone right into the company of the du Ponts to sit himself down. The du Pont empire probably is the largest empire in the United States. The du Ponts control General Motors and scores of so many other huge enterprises. The labor record of du Pont enterprises is just about uniformly anti-union. That is where Al Smith headed himself at the end of his walk.

To say that Al Smith went over to Landon is to neglect the important part of the story. It was at a du Pont Liberty league banquet, within the glitter of billions of dollars of wealth built upon exploitation, short wages and long hours, that Al tore himself from his ancient moorings and set himself to go all the way into the citadel of plutocracy. There he is today, in the house of Special Privilege. And when, in an effort at justification, he tries to recover the brown derby by saying that he grew up to it instead of down to it, he makes of his apostasy a merely pitiful and deplorable spectacle.

The Al Smith of today is too transparent for any gowning with the habiliments of public service. He has made himself too clear in his desertion. His astounding apology for himself but made his undoing the more complete and convincing. Al Smith has gone into the House of Special Privilege. He will not come out.

Labor has cause, more than others, to remember the old days of the Al Smith that was. It was Al Smith and Sam Gompers and Bob Wagner who began the battle, long years ago, for the beginnings of social legislation in New York state. First it was factory inspection, won on a battlefield seared with the memories of the Triangle fire. Then came one step after another. And Jimmy Walker joined in and contributed his part.

Today Bob Wagner stands on the highest pinnacle of his public service. He has gone on and on, true as steel. Sam Gompers labors among us no more, but no man gave more than he. Jimmy Walker is trying to come back. But of them all, only Al Smith has gone bag and baggage across the street into the castle of the barons.

He may burn the radio time as he will. He may turn upon those with whom he once worked all the sarcasm as his command. He may point out their mistakes as he will. The greatest mistake of all is his, indelibly written into his record and it cannot be erased.

Al Smith has made the one mistake for which society offers no pardon. Let the sky-piercing dome of the Empire State building take the place of the monument that once stood in the hearts of men to do honor to his name. Let the magnificence of that great structure be the tomb in which lies buried the spirit that once drove him forth to battle for human rights. And let the du Ponts range themselves in solemn rows as the pallbearers that bore that spirit to its interrment within those halls of cold magnificence.

We have witnessed an American tragedy. The redemption for us all is in the fact that everybody knows it.

The Bee That Swarmed Alone

Said a wise old bee at the close of day:
"This business doesn't pay.
I put my money in that old hive
That others may eat and live and thrive,
And I do more work in a day, by gee,
Than some of the fellows in three,
I toil and worry and save and hoard,
And all I get is room and board.
It's me for a hive I can run myself,
And me for the sweets of my hard-earned pelf."
So the old bee flew to a meadow alone
And started a business of his own.
He gave no thought to the buzzing clan,
But all intent on his selfish plan
He lived the life of a hermit free.
"Ah, this is great," said the wise old bee.
But the summer waned and the days grew drear
And the lone bee wailed as he dropped a tear;
For the varmints gobbled his little store,
And his wax played out and his heart was sore,
So he winged his way to the old home land,
And took his meals at a side-door stand.
Alone, our work is of little worth,
But together we're the lords of the earth;
So it's all for each and each for all—
United we stand, divided we fall.—Clarion.

MEMPHIS BARBERS' UNION SIGNS UP 29 NEW SHOPS

Memphis, Tenn.—Twenty-nine suburban barber shops have recently been signed up by Barbers' Local Union No. 36, according to an announcement by George B. McNamara, business representative for the local union. At one recent meeting of the local about fifty new members were taken in.

Reports indicate that perhaps thirty additional shops may be signed in the very near future and probably fifty or more additional members secured. The campaign, which is proving very successful, has the solid support of all labor organizations in this vicinity.

BREWERY WORKERS LAND AGREEMENTS IN SIX PLANTS

Cincinnati.—The International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal and Soft Drink Workers of America reports the signing of new agreements with four breweries and two yeast plants, and recording substantial gains for the workers affected.

Breweries at Clarksburg, W. Va.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Lancaster, Pa., and Port Huron, Mich., all met the terms of the local unions in these respective communities. In San Francisco, agreements were reached with the Peerless Yeast company and the Standard Brands, Inc., plant, while the plant of the Standard Brands of California, at Sumner, Wash., also signed with the local there.

The international now reports a membership of 100,000 and announces that the twenty-sixth convention will open in San Francisco on Monday, Sept. 14.

It's funny how some fellows can always be wrong and never know it.

HOPKINS REPORTS WPA BIG BENEFIT TO "LITTLE MAN"

Program Cuts Relief Load, Helps Small Taxpayers and Homeowners, Administrator Finds in Western Inspection Trip.

Washington.—Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, back from an inspection tour of ten western states, told newspaper men that he had been strongly impressed by four or five outstanding facts. These are: The drop in the relief load; the benefits WPA works have brought to the small taxpayer and small home owner; the fact that communities and taxpayers are getting 100 cents worth of value—or more—for every dollar spent; and the further fact that WPA projects contribute $120,000,000 a month to the nation's buying power in wages alone.

The relief load has dropped 20 per cent since March, despite the fact that the drought has forced the WPA to employ 200,000 farmers, and it must employ more before ending.

"Another thing that impressed me," said Hopkins, "is what bettering has done for the small taxpayer and small home owner. You can see it on all sides in the improvement of streets, sidewalks of city governments. Municipal debts are disappearing, and sewerage systems are being cleared up. In fifth and a year, more than half the defaults in cities of more than 10,000 have been cured.

Distressed Communities Aided.

"I think WPA has a fair claim to a share of responsibility for this improvement. It enabled financially distressed communities to carry on services which the local governments were too poor to continue themselves.

"One other thing that you can't miss when you get out and see the work first hand is that the communities and taxpayers are getting value for dollar value for the money spent. Sometimes they are getting a lot more than that."

Mr. Hopkins gives instances. One is the enlarging of the Wheatland reservoir for irrigation in Wyoming. Originally built by the farmers themselves, five drought seasons had exhausted it. The WPA, at an admirably small expense, measured by the acres served, enlarged the reservoir and connected it with a natural water storage basin, so that it is now full for two years, the farmers can raise crops.

Help for Flax Industry.

One project which he described seemed to give Mr. Hopkins peculiar pleasure. Oregon has actually been as many acres good for growing flax as has northern Ireland, one of the leading flax producing areas. Oregon farmers knew how to raise flax, but plants to handle it having no industry.

"Seeing a chance to help Oregon farmers and workers alike," says Hopkins, "the WPA authorized construction of three flax retting plants to process the crop. The farmers themselves contracted to plant a crop, based themselves to plant a fixed acreage for five years, and agreed to pay part of the equipment cost. The state provides managers and consultants for the plants. As a result, the flax industry in Oregon promises to prove increasingly profitable, enlarging private employment opportunities and private payrolls."

Turning to the administrative work, Mr. Hopkins is quite as emphatic.

Quality of Work High.

"In state after state," he says, "I found capable administrators and engineers spanning every step in construction with justified pride at the quality of the work that was emerging.

"I registered by the taunts of those who make a business of finding fault, with that perverse covering which occasions who rises to do a big job that requires administrative workers are plugging away at their jobs, confident that the results would speak for themselves in due time.

"Plus the workers themselves, who will come perhaps the deepest sense of satisfaction, on this trip. I have had to greater slander in many years than the false characterization of these men as lazy shovel-leaners. Get out and meet them. I have no patience with the judgment pronounced by those who rely on club lounge gossip to condemn those jobs and get their first break through the program. In man to man contact, you find them pretty much the same as other Americans. They are eager to work for what they get, and are proud of the work they are doing."

Bay State Unions Support Teachers' Oath Bill Repeal

Boston.—The Cambridge Central Labor union is supporting a campaign in Cambridge, aiming at repeal of the famous teachers' oath law of Massachusetts. An organization of Cambridge residents has been recently formed to fight for the repeal of this law, passed in 1935. Last winter an effort to repeal the law failed, the vote showing repeal lacked only a few votes of attaining a majority in the house. The Massachusetts State Federation of Labor is reported for repeal.

The new Cambridge organization is endorsing candidates for the legislature at the coming November election, the expressions of most attitude toward the teachers' oath law. The state council of the American Federation of Teachers is directing a statewide drive in behalf of repeal. It is proposed to introduce another attack at the law next winter.

TAMPA LABOR WAGES HOT FIGHT FOR UNION TERMS

Tampa, Fla.—Tampa, the city selected for the first convention of the A. F. of L., appears to be getting more "union entanglements" than ever, as a growing solidarity among local organized labor.

The city is now embroiled in a currency fight being conducted against a [illegible] open shop. This concern refused to have union labor do the [illegible] remodeling work on the building.

The result was that the Central Trades and Labor Assembly, in cooperation with the unions affiliated, stood up the aggrieved unions with a [illegible] picket line. Even a [illegible] and glowing advertisements failed to attract many patrons past the picket. Due to this fight, the city is coming to realize more and more that Tampa labor won't be taxed [illegible] with.

Building Service Workers Picketing to Enforce Pact

New York Cityt.—James J. Bambrick, president of Local 32-B of the Building Service Employes' union, on Sept. 13 began picket duty again with two of his sons, before the entrance to 885 Park avenue. Four other buildings were picketed at the same time, and Bambrick expects to put lines before a thousand buildings, if necessary.

The building service strike last spring was ended by what is known as the Silcox agreement, from the name of the man who took part in drawing it up and getting it signed. Almost from the very day the men went back to work, charges were made that building owners were violating the agreement which brought the men back. The union feels that things are getting too far, and is resorting to the picket line to compel respect for the agreement.

MONTREAL TAXI DRIVERS STRIKE FOR HIGHER PAY

Montreal, Canada. — Independent taxi drivers, 700 strong, came out on strike here, joining members of an association which had formerly stopped service, thus leaving Montreal entirely without the familiar taxis that most people use on occasion, but that few apparently think of as a means of earning a decent livelihood.

The drivers decided to maintain hospital service and to render emergency service free. Patrons of hotels and stations were said to have felt the effect of the strike very keenly.

The "association" men want the association eliminated entirely, as has been similarly demanded by taxi drivers in several cities in the United States. All drivers seek increased compensation and the appointment of a commission or a commissioner to control taxicab traffic and fix equitable rates. The strike affected about 1,200 men, including owners and hired chauffeurs.

2,300 TEXTILE WORKERS STRIKE FOR UNION SHOP

Worcester, Mass. — The "closed shop" is among the demands of about 2,300 members of the United Textile Workers of America, who are out on strike in several factories in six central Massachusetts towns.

Five Schuster-Hayward mills, with 1,500 employes, is the largest unit involved, and this firm has asked the superior court for an injunction to prevent the union from "interfering with operation at the mills."

At Webster, 700 are out at the S. Slater company cotton plant, where the company attempted to operate one shift on a "one week's trial;" the failure of which, it was indicated, might result in closing the plant indefinitely. At Rochdale, 100 workers came out on strike at the Carleton Woolen company. In each instance, the union demands a 100 per cent union shop and union officials declare that they are prepared to enforce their demands.

llowing the traditional non-par- political policy of the American ation of Labor, the report con- d no recommendations to the 110 al and international unions, 48 federations of labor, 800 cen- labor unions and 33,000 local unions to which it was sent. Those who read the report are left free to determine for themselves how to vote from the platform declarations of the two parties and the records of the candidates.

With regard to President Roosevelt the report said that during the 1911, 1912 and 1913 sessions of the New York legislature he voted for 27 labor bills which were enacted into law and for a number which failed of enactment, that as governor of New York state from 1930 to 1933 he signed 21 measures favored by labor and vetoed five disapproved by organized labor, and that as president of the United States he has signed 47 bills favorable to labor.

All of these measures are listed in the report.

The section of the report devoted to Gov. Landon's record on labor gives excerpts from his messages to the Kansas legislature since 1933 and from his speech accepting the republican nomination for the office of president. They include relief for the jobless, child labor, social legislation, social security, and the right of labor to organize "without interference from any source."

Turning to Vice-President Garner's legislative record in congress since 1908, the report stated that out of thirty-five measures in which labor was interested he was unfavorable to labor in sixteen of his votes, favorable in eleven, and paired unfavorable in two. On five labor bills he did not vote, and on one he answered present.

Elect Friends of Labor.

The report closed with the following statement:

"All organized wage-earners and their sympathetic friends owe a duty to their country to vote on election day. Those who do not vote are neglecting a most important obligation as American citizens.

"It must be remembered that the American labor movement is not partisan to a political party. It is partisan to principles—the principles of righteousness, freedom and justice.

"We must remember to

"'Stand faithfully by our friends and elect them. Oppose our enemies and defeat them; whether they be candidates for president, for congress or other offices; whether executive, legislative, or judicial.'"

The report was signed by the members of the American Federation of Labor National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee as follows: William Green, chairman; Frank Morrison, secretary; G. M. Bugniazet, Thomas A. Rickert, Matthew Woll and Felix H. Knight.

Three Strikes Are Won By Minneapolis Unions

Flour and Cereal Workers, Drivers and Food and Candy Workers Secure Favorable Settlements.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Three strikes of outstanding importance here were settled on terms favorable to the organized workers.

The Flour, Feed, Cereal and Elevator Workers Union, Local No. 19152, won their strike in all affected plants when the members voted to accept a proposal that the men return to work with the right to hold elections to select their representatives for the negotiation of hours, wages and work conditions. All the men are to be reinstated to their former positions. As a result of the strike the membership of the union was increased from approximately 200 to over 1,500.

Labor officials said the strike settlement brings unionism to one of the great key industries in Minneapolis.

Another victory for organized labor was the settlement of the strike of General Drivers and Helpers, Local No. 544, against Wholesale Grocers, which operates a chain of establishments. A truce was established under which all employes returned to work. "The union and the employers," the joint statement said, "have reached definite understanding on most of the points in controversy and those matters remaining in dispute will be settled by arbitration."

A third recognition of the beneficial results of union solidarity came with the announcement that the members of Food and Candy Workers Federal Labor Union No. 2120 had won a wage increase of from 15 to 21 per cent, seniority rights, and recognition of the union from the Ry-Krisp plant where eighty-seven employes had been on strike for six weeks. The agreement signed by the firm also includes consideration of length of service in making wage scales and establishes the forty-hour week with permission to operate forty-five hours for four weeks of the year, these being the peak production periods. In addition, the union won time and a half for overtime and double time for holidays and Sundays.

Returning Prosperity Takes 9,900,000 to National Parks

Washington.—The influence which returning prosperity has on the desire and ability of the masses in the United States to see America first is illustrated by the report of the national park service which established a new record in the 1936 travel season ended Sept. 30.

The report announced that 9,929,432 persons visited the 134 national parks and monuments, compared with 7,675,000 last year, an increase of 2,254,432.

Striking Utah Metal Miners Ask 8-Hour Day, Wage Boost

Park City, Utah.—In the neighborhood of 1,000 miners quit work here following the failure of negotiations led by the Utah state industrial commission to end a deadlock between operators and Utah officials of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

The demands of the strikers included an eight-hour day and 50 cents a day wage increase. Present wages are said to range from $5.50 down to $3.80, with "muckers" paid 50 cents a day less.

N. Y. Garage Strikers Win Increase in Wages

Rise of $1 to $8 Per Week Granted 7,600 Workers by Labor Board Mediator—Eight-Hour Day Demand Lost.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Ben Golden, associate director of the Regional Labor oBard here, appointed by Mayor La Guardia as arbitrator following the recent strike of garage workers, granted immediate wage increases varying from $1 to $5 and $8 a week.

Six thousand men who went on strike in Manhattan and 1,600 who struck in the Bronx were affected by the agreement, both sides to the controversy having already agreed to accept the arbitration award as final.

An eight-hour day and a wage scale of $30 to $35 a week were included in the original demand of the union. Mr. Golden said his investigation showed that the industry could not grant an eight-hour day, and that although the union's wage rate demands were reasonable the scale could only be reached gradually.

He fixed a weekly minimum wage rate of $23 for washers, which gave an $8 raise to some men paid as low as $15. For men other than washers the scale provided a $21 minimum, with $5 raises for those receiving $20 and under. The increases were retroactive to Sept. 22 in Manhattan and Sept. 25 in the Bronx.

The award also provided for a closed shop and for no strikes and lockouts during the life of the contracts based on the award, for no discharges without cause, and for possible further wage increases next March. No change was made in the present six-day week of nine-hour days.

Being unpopular isn't so pleasant, but it saves you a lot of money.

AFL Committee Is Ready For Parley With C. I. O.

New York.—The committee set up by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor to confer with the committee representing the organizations noluing membership in the committee for industrial organization for the purpose of exploring the possibilities of reconciliation and of terminating the split within the A. F. of L. caused by the establishment and activities of the C. I. O., notified Max Zaritsky, president of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union, that it was ready to proceed with the conferences authorized by the council.

The action of the A. L. of L. Executive Council in appointing the committee was taken in response to a request of the convention of the Hatters' union, recently held here, and transmitted to the council by Mr. Zaritsky.

The A. F. of L. committee consists of George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks; Felix Knight, president of the Railway Carmen of America, and Matthew Woll, of the International Photo-Engravers' union.

The letter of the A. F. of L. committee to Mr. Zaritsky was intended for transmission to the organizations affiliated with the C. I. O. The letter said the committee was ready to enter into conference without delay and without commitments and stipulations with any one or more or all of the organizations associated with the C. I. O. to discuss the questions at issue, "including the complete restoration of the former status of the organizations associated with the committee for industrial organization."

Mr. Zaritsky stated that he had transmitted the letter of the A. F. of L. committee to all members of the C. I. O., and that he loked forward to the prompt appointment of a committee by the C. I. O. to enter into negotiations with the committee representing the A. F. of L. Executive Council.

WANT PAY CUTS RESTORED.

Tacoma, Wash. — City officials, working on budget estimates for the new fiscal year, have been urged by several branches of organized labor to restore pay cuts inflicted during "depression" years upon employes of the city.

Delegations from the Central Labor council, the City Civil service and the International Longshoremen's association called in force at a hearing recently, where it was pointed out that opposition to the pay restoration came from "those who oppose every really practical move for the development of Tamoca," and that the taxpayers' money doesn't go out of sight, nor out of the city, when paid in wages.

G. O. P. CAMPAIGN HEADS SILENT ON ILNS CHARGES

Republican Leaders Mum on Exposure of "Open Shop" Bureau at Chicago—Party's Present Management and Policy Show It Has Sold Out to Wall Street Gang and Landon Is Puppet Candidate.

BY JOSEPH A. WISE

CHICAGO.—Now that the national political campaign is about at an end and the ballots will be cast, counted and the result known within a few days, it seems timely that the readers of the labor press be made acquainted with my impelling motives since I first began to discuss politics in the latter part of August.

I am a republican, and naturally I wanted to find something good to say about my party leadership. I found many fine, splendid men and women around the headquarters, but it did not take long to ascertain that they had little or nothing to say about major policies, and it did not take them long also to learn that fact.

A political party or any other movement cannot be fairly gauged and judged on any one single fact. Its whole make-up, aims, objects, purposes and leadership must be taken into consideration. On that basis I came to the conclusion that the republican party under its present leadership and objectives would not do, and during the last several weeks I have been endeavoring to give to the readers of the labor press my impressions gained right here at the holy of holies of the national republican party.

"Open Shop" Bureau Not Denied

The thing that stands out like a sore thumb in reference to the republican national headquarters in Chicago at this time is the big "open shop" bureau here at 208 West Washington Street. The fact that that bureau has been established by the republican national committee and that the bureau has been for weeks urging employers throughout the United States to bludgeon their employes into voting for Landon and Knox ought to be enough to convince any fair-minded person that Landon and Knox should be defeated.

ILNS exposed this "open shop" bureau Sept. 5 and the republican national committee has not dared to enter a denial. Copies of ILNS release sheets were mailed to leaders at the G. O. P. G. H. Q., in order that it might be known to them that ILNS had released such a story, but there has not been even a whisper out of any of them.

Later release sheets in which that charge and other charges have been made have been placed in the hands of all of teh important men at the republican national headquarters and of Gov. Landon, and not one of them dares to attempt to refute the charges.

Landon Wall Street Puppet

The same gang that in past campaigns has sold the party down the river is still in control. The middle states are in hock to Wall Street. Landon is not his own master. He is a puppet candidate of the plunderbund.

The Wall Street crowd and its western allies have driven from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 common folk from the republican party, but the Bourbon gang has learned nothing. There is a determination to rule or ruin. Wall Street has the upper hand in the present campaign because John Hamilton and Alf Landon needed a big campaign fund. They went to Wall Street and placed the party in hock to get that fund. Landon will have to make good to Wall Street regardless of the interests of the whole American people in the dire event Landon ever occupies the White House.

Republican Party Changed

The republican party of today is not the party that was founded by Abraham Lincoln, under whom my father served as a soldier and my mother and her mother served as army nurses. This hurts me just as it hurts thousands upon thousands of other persons similarly situated. We have been betrayed not just this one time, but many times before. It is time we did something about it in such a crushing fashion as to be a lesson for all time.

EMPLOYER IS ORDERED TO PUT STRIKERS BACK

Washington.—The national labor relations board has ordered Clifford M. DeKay, operating under the name of D. & H. Motor Freight company, of Jamestown, N. Y., to bargain collectively with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, as the exclusive representative of the drivers and helpers in his employ.

He was also directed to offer employment to those drivers who went on strike March 22, and have not since received equivalent employment elsewhere. The board found, however, that he had not discharged men for joining the union.

Some fellows insist it is only those who marry that are disappointed in love.

United Automobile Workers Make Pact With Chrysler Corporation

DETROIT.—The United Automobile Workers of America hailed an agreement with the Chrysler Motor Corporation as having averted a possible strike at the Dodge plant.

The agreement was announced by Richard T. Frankensteen, organizer in the Detroit area.

The agreement was made following a conference between union and Chrysler Corporation officials and involved a seniority problem which has arisen at the Dodge plant, where seven of eleven local U. A. W. A. unions had voted to strike if the matter was not settled.

According to union officials, the corporation had notified several employes by letter, during the seasonal lay-off, that they would not be needed when the plant started production of 1937 automobiles. The union charged that several of the workers released were union members and that the notice of dismissal violated the terms of an agreement made between the automobile company and the Automobile Labor Board.

In its agreement, announced to the union by Herman Wechler, vice president of the Chrysler Corporation, the company agreed to take all the men back as well as the possible reinstatement of three other men, whom the union declared had been discharged for organization activity.

Officials of Big Hosiery Mill Refuse to Meet Strikers

Reading Employers Snub Mediators and Gov. Earle, Who Denounces Their Attitude as Antagonizing Public.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Officials of the Berkshire Knitting mills, of Reading, Pa., the world's largest full fashioned hosiery plant, refused point blank to meet representatives of the strikers in the office of Gov. Earle.

The governor, pocketing the snub for a time, then asked them to meet the Pennsylvania secretary of labor, Ralph M. Bashore, and three mediators—and again the mill bosses refused.

"They put themselves entirely wrong," said Gov. Earle to newspaper inquirers, "by refusing to sit down with strike representatives in the governor's office.

Scores "Arbitrary Action."

"If their consciences were clear, they could afford to sit down with the governor of the state, and discuss the matter. This was a very unenlightened way to meet the situation. They certainly haven't gained my sympathy by such arbitrary action."

But Henry Janssen, a large stockholder, and Hugo Hemmerich, general manager, said: "We have nothing to discuss."

The strike has come over two grievances, which at bottom come to the same thing. The company has reduced wages, and it persists in taking on large numbers of apprentices at low rates. Federal Conciliator Michael G. Williams, who has examined the situation, reports that he found "an apparent advantage in labor costs" under the Berkshire apprentice plan. As a matter of fact, the plant is highly mechanized, and while skill is required in some jobs, much of the routine work can be learned in a week.

Apprentice System Sore Spot.

Hemmerich, general manager, admitted that the apprentice system was a sore spot.

"The essence of the situation is the refusal (of the union) to accept our system of training young persons in the industry," said Hemmerich. "This apprenticeship system of ours has been sore spot in the industry. We've been doing it for years, but the others in the industry have not."

The thing is such a "sore spot" that other mills are releasing their workers to picket the Berkshire. Other mill owners fear a price-cutting war if the apprentice system is continued, especially if along with this means of getting cheap labor, the Berkshire is able to cut wages outright.

"Outsiders" Blamed As Usual.

The managers make the usual claim that the strike is the work of "outsiders." Of the 5,000 employes in the plant, they say, all but 500 are members of the company union.

The union leaders take the ground that a successful wage cut at the Beryshire would spread through the entire industry. The mills now running in the United States have a capacity of 50,000,000 pairs of hosiery a year. The present demand is for 36,000,000. The union, like other employers, sees a price cutting war ahead if the Berkshire officials have their way.

"The situation, as I see it," said Gov. Earle, "is not merely a strike of employes, but of other mills, feeling the industry was being endangered, releasing their men to picket this mill. This is a significant point to me."

MORE ABOUT PEACE PLAN

Greene, who became the general secretary of the new organization.

Roosevelt Is Indorsed.

An unusual feature of the convention was the presence of a delegation from the John B. Stetson company, the largest men's hat firm in the country, which was organized two months ago, after operating a non-union plant for 71 years.

The convention indorsed Labor's Non-Partisan league, voted to extend moral and financial aid to the campaign for President Roosevelt's re-election, indorsed Gov. Lehman for re-election and approved the action of the officers in setting up the American labor party in New York state, on which Roosevelt and Lehman are candidates.

Resolutions were adopted favoring the 30-hour week in industry, ratification of the child labor amendment, demanding the release of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings, praising the enactment of the social security act but requesting improvements in its provisions, against fascism, urging the American Federation of Labor to establish a daily newspaper, and protesting against the imposition of loyalty oaths.

Striking Workers Aided.

Financial aid was voted striking workers of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and the Remington-Rand company. Financial aid was also voted the New Leader and various institutions and causes connected with the labor movement. The incoming board was instructed to contribute to the Roosevelt re-election campaign.

Under the new constitution of the new union, a special union label department is created for the promotion of the union label in the headwear industries. Martin Lawlor, a vice-president of the former international union, and a veteran leader in the trade union movement, was designated by the convention to be in charge of that division.

Union Drive Launched.

Most resolutions before the convention dealt with the launching of organization campaigns. The organization of the Stetson plant had given impetus to the movement for the organization of the largest men's hat plants, employing, it was stated, many thousands of workers. Under the new set-up, with the organization capable of mobilizing all of the workers already in the organization, representing all parts of the industry, it is felt that in a few months active campaigns would be in operation in various men's hat centers.

Declaring that not a discordant note had been sounded at the convention, despite the fact that among the issues considered were such upon which the labor movement as a whole is divided, and that every important recommendation was adopted unanimously, Mr. Zaritsky, upon his election to the presidency, appealed to the delegates to continue that unanimity and harmony which, he said, made this a unique convention, not only in the history of the two organizations composing the international union, but in the labor movement. He expressed the conviction that because of a combination of circumstances the organization was able to initiate moves that may be the means of reuniting and solidifying the labor movement.

constantly study to keep abreast of the modern trends in our industry."

After the usual Patten menu, not to be equaled anywhere, smokes were lot up and the banqueteers leaned back for the speeches. Joe Dobbs, president of Central Body, in his usual low-pitched voice recounted some of the trials and achievements of the labor movement in the past year.

The secretary, Erskine Mabee, expressed to the movie boys the great esteem in which they were held by the labor movement. Curtis Sims, representing Miss Virginia Munsey, board member, recounted a bit of the history of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' union, of which he is their business agent.

H. G. B. King, labor's attorney, was given a round of applause when he took a bow and pledged his continued cooperation and assistance.

R. M. Cooke, now a city commissioner, and as much a movie operator as anyone with the exception that he cannot operate a machine in the booth, for the umteenth consecutive banquet told the group how old he was becoming, and then proceeding to impress on the new members the impressions of the local of which they were privileged to be members.

T. R. Cuthbert, editor of The Labor World, recounted the untold value of a labor paper in any community, and specifically urged continued support of The Labor World.

Practically every member present brought to mind some incident of bygone years. Following the oratory several reels of films of educational nature were exhibited by Brother Ralph Root, member of the Birmingham local, who announced that next year his union would celebrate its silver anniversary.

UNION WAGES ARE PAID BY SANTA CLARA CO

San Jose, Cal. — The "prevailing rate" of wages in Santa Clara county in relation to county work is the standard union wage scales of the different crafts, following the adoption of the well-recognized principle by the board of supervisors.

The board concurred in recommendations presented by F. G. [illegible] on behalf of the building craft unions, who was supported by others interested. Among the wage scales accepted as the "prevailing rate" are: Painters, $1.14 an hour; laborers, 60 to 62½ cents; structural iron workers, $1.87½; reinforcing iron workers, $1.25, and teamsters, $1.25 to $1.50 an hour.

Come to Labor Rally Friday Night for FDR

Over 2,000 Expected To Jam Auditorium At Roosevelt's Rally

Working People All Set to Laud Franklin D. Regardless of Party Politics—North Carolina Federation President Main Speaker.

Sponsored by Labor's Non-Partisan League, Demonstration Supported by Union Republicans and Democrats Alike—Short, Snappy Talks by Local Representatives—Good Music.

Labor in Hamilton county is all set to fill the community hall at the Memorial auditorium Friday night, Oct. 30. Sponsored by Labor's Non-Partisan League for the Re-election of Roosevelt, the rally will be non-partisan in nature, to such an extent that only trades unionists will do the speaking.

Roy Lawrence, president of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, will make the principal address. Prior to the opening of the speaking, at 7:15 p.m., an excellent union orchestra will render a musical treat for early comers. The speaking will start promptly at 8:15, and the enthusiastic audience expected has been promised that the oratory will not be long-winded.

The object of the rally is not so much to talk about just electing Roosevelt, labor's candidate, but to impress on all working people that this great man should be given an overwhelming vote of confidence and gratitude on Nov. 3.

Hollis V. Reid, state rally director, will be present to speak in behalf of the league, as well as to represent the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen, of which he is legislative chairman for Tennessee.

Approximately seven or eight local unionists will deliver short, snappy talks about Roosevelt's friendship to the working people, and it is hoped that labor's pent-up steam in the presidential race will be confined to an hour and one-half.

The ladies of the Chattanooga Label league will be busy early Friday morning on the stage to make it look pretty. At the speaking in the evening they will serve as ushers.

A similar rally is being held the same night in Knoxville, and there is a bit of rivalry between the two cities as to which one will have the largest crowd to pay tribute to Mr. Roosevelt.

Memphis Union Member Gets Head Chopped Off For Failure to Agree

Memphis.—Mayor Watkins Overton and Chairman W. J. Prescott, of the city school board, confirmed reports that the city administration has withdrawn its support from J. J. Simpson, union labor member, for re-election to the board.

Joseph P. Henry, a railroad passenger conductor, has qualified with the election commission and will run as the administration's choice to succeed Simpson. Administration support usually is equivalent to election.

Simpson voted "No" several months ago when the school board ordered city teachers to disband their union labor organization. The city also fired a number of firemen for attempting to organize a union.

Business, Industry Asked to Cooperate In Getting Out Vote

Central Body Urges That Ample Time Off Be Allowed Workers So They Can Go to Polls.

Central Body, realizing that in many instances certain business houses and industries cannot close down all day election day, has called on such concerns to see to it that their employes are released for duty in ample time for them to conveniently go to their respective polling places to vote.

It is predicted that over 95 per cent of the working people in Hamilton county will vote for Roosevelt, and these people are in most instances in favor of an all-day holiday from work so they can not only go to the polls to vote, but have the remainder of the day to round up friends to vote also.

The resolution calling for such action says:

Whereas, on Tuesday, Nov. 3, there will be held in every polling place in the United States an election to name the next president of the United States; and,

Whereas, Franklin D. Roosevelt, incumbent, has been indorsed by the Tennessee Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, the non-partisan committee composed of the Tennessee Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods, and also by the Chattanooga Central Labor union; and,

Whereas, both city and county officials of Hamilton county, city of Chattanooga, have requested of merchants and manufacturers to declare a holiday in their businesses insofar as possible in order to guarantee to working people ample time and convenience to go to the polls and vote; therefore, be it

Resolved, by Chattanooga Central Labor union, in regular session, Oct. 26, 1936, that we also urge all merchants and manufacturers, wherever possible, to declare a holiday, or to at least allow ample time for all of their employes to go to the polls and vote.

CENTRAL BODY PRAISE, CHIDE CITY COMMISH

Commends City Fathers in Protecting Prof. Hixson After Vindication.

Reproves Them for Ignoring Mandates of People to Build New Hospital.

At their regular meeting last Monday evening Chattanooga Central Labor union instructed Erskine Mabee, secretary, to carry two messages to the regular session of the board of commissioners which met the next day. Through their representative organized labor told the commissioners that they commended the action taken at a special session of the board in which charges that Prof. Hixson had quit his job were turned down. Prof. Hixson was declared to be still an employe of the department of education.

On the other hand, the city board was roundly reproved in refusing to co-operate with the county in its efforts to build a brand new hospital. They were told that the voters had already voted over two to one to issue bonds for a new hospital, whereas the mayor and others are steadfastly refusing to follow orders received from the electorate. In place of the new hospital the city group is insisting that a sort of lean-to or addition shall be added to the old and antiquated Erlanger which would still leave the city and county some 250 beds shy of an absolute minimum for safety.

The resolution of praise said:

"Whereas, the board of commissioners in special session this afternoon upheld the contention of Prof. Samuel C. Hixson that he had not in fact resigned his position in the city schools; and,

"Whereas, this action comes after Prof. Hixson had been cleared by the regularly constituted body of charges of improper conduct, and is a rejection of an effort to use a technicality to get rid of Prof. Hixson; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Chattanooga Central Labor union congratulates the city commission on the courageous action, which has done much to establish on firm footing the orderly procedure in the discharge of teachers, which is the aim of the teachers' tenure law. Be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be presented to the mayor and board of commissioners at their next regular session, and that the daily press be requested to publish same."

LABEL LEAGUE GOES OVER BIG AT PATTEN HOTEL

"Political Jamboree" Party Hears Presidential Candidates Close Campaign.

Al Smith Took His Walk; Browder Was Allowed to Speak, and Election Held After Speaking Ended in Riot as Crooked Election Judge Disclosed.

The Label league dinner, on Wednesday night, was attended by more than seventy-five persons who spent a very pleasant evening listening to the take-offs on the various candidates for president.

Miss Ina Green, president of the league, placed the program into the hands of Mr. Claude Brown, who served as master of ceremonies. After a lovely dinner served by the Hotel Patten, in the grille, Toastmaster Brown introduced the candidates to the audience, and the campaign speeches got under way.

Mrs. Paul Reynolds was chairman of the committee on arrangements, and was assisted by Messrs. M. M. Beavers, Archie Underwood and R. C. Reynolds.

The following program was presented:

Norman Thomas.....Stanton Smith
Alf Landon.....Ted Wellman
William Lemke.....Joe Dobbs
Farmer-Labor Party.....Erskine Mabee
Roosevelt.....Fred Fowler

T. R. Cuthbert made a short talk and urged all working people to come to labor's rally for Roosevelt on Friday night. Mrs. Eisendrath gave a talk on the importance of the union label. Commissioner R. M. Cooke and Joe Bean also made short talks.

After a mock election, in which one of the election judges was discovered holding a pocket full of Landon ballots, the program was concluded with songs.

What Next!

Perfection of a radio-operated series of teletypewriter machines upon which weather reports can be transmitted simultaneously will be followed by installation of the machines along the Washington-Nashville airways route, the bureau of air commerce recently announced. The radio-operated machines have been in experimental use between Baltimore and Washington for one and one-half years. The typewriters can also be operated in airplanes, the announcement said.

Mr. Roosevelt's Labor Record as President

Signs Forty-seven Bills Beneficial to the Workers Enacted by 73rd and 74th Congresses.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt was inaugurated president of the United States on March 4, 1933.

One of the first official acts was to call a special session of the Seventy-third congress, which opened on March 3, 19933.

The Seventy-fourth congress adjourned on June 20, 1936.

Between these two dates—March 9, 1933, and June 20, 1936—the congress of the United States enacted and president Roosevelt signed forty-seven bills favorable to labor, according to the report of the American Federation of Labor Non-Partisan Political Campaign committee on "Labor Planks in the Political Platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties and the Records of the Candidates for President and Vice-President," published by authority and direction of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. for the information of working men and women and their friends.

Following are the bills listed by the committee which the nation's chief executive approved:

Creating the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Creating Home Owners' Loan corporation for relief of harassed home owners who could not pay the interest on their property.

Providing for the guaranteeing of bank deposits up to $2,500.

Improving conditions of rural letter carriers.

Ornburn Warns Against Spurious Union Labels

Fraudulent Posters of "Union-Made" Goods Are Also in Circulation, A. F. of L. Union Label Trades Department Official Charges.

Washington.—A warning against fake "union labels" and unauthorized posters of "union-made" goods was issued here by I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

"Several spurious labels are coming on the market and one fly-by-night group is soliciting advertising from union label manufacturers for a poster displaying union-made goods," Mr. Ornburn said, adding:

"Many inquiries are received by the official Union Label Trades Department from legitimate manufacturers asking about this fake outfit.

"Owing to the great popularity of the union label and the success of the department in the promotion of the authentic union label, shop card and button, many imitators may be expected in the union label field.

"Labor unionists and friends are hereby warned to be sure that they are buying from firms that display the authorized emblems for union label goods and union services.

"There is no guarantee of union labor standards and conditions nor assurance of quality unless the merchandise bears the adopted union labels issued by the American Federation of Labor to recognized national and international labor unions.

"The Union Label Trades Department will gladly send upon request a directory of genuine union labels, shop cards and buttons. Simply address, Union Label Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C."

Other Men

When I talk with other men I always think of you—
Your words are keener than their words, and they are gtneler, too.
When I look at other men, I wish your face were there,
With its gray eyes and dark skin and tossed black hair.
When I think of other men, dreaming alone by day,
The thought of you like a strong wind blows the dreams away.

MARK K. WILSON SIGNS CONTRACTS TO END 3 STRIKES

School Jobs Which Have Been Closed Down by Building Trades Unions Started Up After Recognition Granted.

Common Laborers Gain Point in Settlement Which Is Believed Means Complete Unionizing of All Building Crafts in County.

Last Saturday afternoon, after a lengthy conference with Mark K. Wilson, largest single building contractor in the city, the Building Trades council announced that the strikes on the three school projects at Soddy, Hixson and Red Bank were settled. Work was resumed on them Monday morning.

Joe Dobbs, president of Central Body, issued a statement that all issues at stake were satisfactorily settled, principle of which was complete recognition of the common laborers' union. The pact makes the Wilson company a union concern, and complete cooperation has been promised to Mr. Wilson in the future.

For the first time in the building history of Hamilton county Mr. Wilson's firm is completely union, and it is thought that in a short time the entire industry will be organized.

Memphis Gets U. S. Funds For Municipal Power Line

Washington.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes announced that the city of Memphis, Tenn., had been given a grant of $3,092,000 for the construction of a municipal electric distribution system. Power will be purchased from the Tennessee Valley Authority. The system will serve about 30,000 Memphis business establishments and homes. The plant will cost $6,872,000, the difference between this amount and the federal grant being furnished by Memphis.

CONSTRUCTION PAYROLLS AND HOUR RISE

Albany, N. Y.—Although the number employed in the construction industry in New York state dropped 0.1 per cent from August to September, payrolls and man-hours continued to rise. Increases were small, amounting to 1.0 per cent in payrolls and 0.1 per cent in man-hours. Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews reported that the payroll and hour increase is the seventh consecutive increase in 1936. In preceding years, August to September movements have been mostly downward.

New York Workers Aided by Roosevelt

During Four Years as Governor of Empire State He Affixed His Signature to 21 Measures Favored by Labor.

President Roosevelt had considerable experience in approving labor measures while he wah governor of New York state, which office he filled for terms beginning Jan. 1, 1928, and ending Dec. 31, 1932, two months before he took up his residence in the White House as the executive of the nation.

According to the report of the American Federation of Labor Nonpartisan Political Campaign committee, Gov. Roosevelt during this four-year period signed 21 measures of great importance to New York workers enacted by the state legislature.

The list made public by the A. F. of L. committee follows:

In 1930 Gov. Roosevelt signed the anti-injunction relief bill, the high grade crossing repair bill and the union labor bill.

In response to complaints received, Mr. Roosevelt called upon the commissioner of public works on Sept. 15, 1930, to fully enforce the citizen

HELEN KELLER'S TEACHER DIES, ENDING 50 YEARS OF FRIENDSHIP

New York City.—One of the most remarkable friendships in history has just been terminated by the death of one of the friends. Anne Sullivan Macy, teacher of Helen Keller, died of a heart attack Oct. 20 at Forest Hills. She was 70 years old; and she and Helen Keller had been inseparable companions for more than forty-nine years.

Anne Sullivan, daughter of Irish immigrants, was born at Springfield, Mass. She was almost blind, and the best work eye-surgeons could do for her gave her only sight enough to read coarse print. She attended the Laura Bridgman school for deaf and blind children; and when oly 20 years old, began to experiment with Helen Keller, then 7 years of age, and deaf, dumb and blind. Anne tried to spell out words in Helen's palm with her fingers, and the child would repeat the signals accurately, but without the least notion what they meant.

Tries Successful Experiment.

Finally, the young teacher tried an experiment. She held one of Helen's hands under the spout of a pump, and spelled "water" with her finger tips into the palm of the other hand. It worked; and it was the real beginning of Helen's education.

Helen went to school, and learned to talk, Anne Sullivan being at her side all the time. Helen went to Radcliffe college, which may be described with some approach to accuracy as the women's department of Harzard; and graduated, with honors.

Anne married a man named Macy; but the couple soon separated, and Anne came back to Helen Keller. A few years ago, Anne's eyesight failed altogether; and then Helen Keller became the teacher and the constant, unfaltering helper.

Comment on World Events

The Spanish civil war will not be ended if—or when—the fascists capture Madrid, which at the present writing they seem quite likely to do. Even Gen. Franco, leader of the fascist armies and arch traitor to the legitimate Spanish government, does not expect the capture of Madrid to be final. He knows that the loyalists can retreat on Catalonia, and hold out for a considerable time, even without help. And the chances are increasing hourly that help will come.

Russia is getting tired of a "neutrality" in regard to Spain which the fascist government of Italy and the nazi government of Germany have violated from the first. Whether she withdraws from the neutrality pact or not—and probably she will withdraw before these words are in print—she is clearly planning to send help to the republican government of Spain in its fight against dictatorship. Russian military observers have reported to Moscow that as few as 100 planes sent to the loyalists of Spain would turn the whole tide of the war; and it is stated on what seems good authority that Russia can send that many planes to Spain almost at once.

This column has commented before on the amazing virulence with which Hitler, at Nuremburg some weeks ago, denounced Russia and openly threatened her with invasion. Nazi spokesmen make no secret of their desire to seize the Ukraine—which is western and southwestern Russia—as a source of food which would enable them to defy any blockade. Apparently, Russia has made up her mind to call the nazi bluff—if it is a bluff, or to fight on her own terms—if she must fight.

Terre Haute, Ind., has made itself, for the time, at least, the capital of American fascism.

When Earl Browder, communist candidate for president, went to Terre Haute the first time to speak in his own behalf, he was arrested and held in jail till the date that he was to speak had passed. When he tried again, an organized mob packed the steps of the building in which he was to speak, and would not let him in. And when he drove away, his taxi door was wrenched open, and the interior deluged with rotten tomatoes.

How reminiscent this is of the breaking up of opposition meetings in Italy in 1922, and the pouring of castor oil down the throats of opposition speakers.

Communism never can gain headway in the United States without the advertising and sympathy engendered by such silly outrages as this at Terre Haute. Twenty people have read Browder's name since his arrest to every one who had heard him before. American fascists are not merely brutal. They are also incredible fools.

"Unless the organized workers of the world can assist themselves on the side of peace and sanity in this new international crisis, war is almost inevitable sooner or later. There is nothing more important in the world today than the rapid increase in power of the organized labor movement. Political power sufficient to correct the social injustice and prevent war can only be achieved through extending the economic organization of the working class."—John W. Edelman, research director, American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

Credit Due Six Squires

Members of organized labor should put the names of these members of the Hamilton county court down in their memory: Hays Clark, C. E. Camp, Bruce Freeman, W. F. Langley, Mack Fryar and J. W. Johnston.

These squires, a majority of the court, kicked over the traces at a special session of the court, and declared that they represented the people and not one or two reactionary individuals. They felt that since the people of the county had voted two to one for a complete new and modern hospital, no other plan for less than that should be put through.

Here's to the faithful six! Even though certain powers in the city hall have set their plodding minds over the wishes of the people, we hope you will not be deterred in your determination to give us the new hospital we need and which we can secure now cheaper than it can be had in years to come.

Union labor also has a warm spot for Hays Clark, who introduced an expression in the court that the new hospital should be constructed by union labor. His stand was concurred in by the enitre court.

Quit Hounding Hixson

Nothing can be done at this late day to repair the wounds inflicted on Prof. Hixson, but at least a fair-minded public can demand that he be left alone in the future. It is entirely proper that Prof. Hixson was tried as required by law when certain charges were brought against him. He was charged, evidence was submitted, and he was allowed his day in court. He was vindicated as provided by law. He was declared innocent.

From then on he should have been unmolested. To continue to yap at his heels in an effort to trip him on technicalities is not only un-Christian-like, but it is undemocratic. In dictatorships "Me and God" could continue to condemn a man after vindicated.

In this form of government we leave God's job to God. If justice has miscarried in the Hixson case, let God attend to him. Human characteristics demand tangible evidence when a man's character is attacked, and only God has the right to say after vindication that he is guilty just the same.

Since we do not have God's supreme wisdom, we must abide by procedure set up by human intellect, and abide by the court's verdict of innocence.

Wisdom

The world can be at peace only if its [illegible] are stable; and there can be no stability where there is not tranquility of spirit and a sense of justice, freedom and of right.—Woodrow Wilson.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The hash is all on the plate. The arguments are all in. The charges have all been made. The dirt is all dished. The volunteers are all on parade and the mercenaries are all lined up. We know where the steel trust stands and we know where the munitions makers stand. And now we can march to the polls to perform the final act. In some places it is just yanking a lever. In some places it is putting a mark on a very simple ballot. In some places it is a job of making a lot of marks on a very complicated ballot. But it all comes to the same thing. The great American vote is about to be cast. After long weeks of political campaigning.

Editors can set their headlines now. They can have them ready. They can write on a piece of paper, "Roosevelt elected" and they can scrawl on it the size of type they want—120-point, or bigger—and let it go to the composing room. They can write the decks that go underneath and they can write the lead to their story. They can even use the word "landslide" if they want to. It looks so much like a foregone conclusion. Of course some editors will hedge their bet by having two kinds of headlines written, two sets of decks and two kinds of leads ready, so that they can go with whichever layout happens to fit the returns. But the "Landon page" will never see the sidewalks. It ain't gonna be.

Of course this column is going way out on a limb, but all the evidence warrants it. All except perhaps the Literary Digest poll—and what a sick looking thing that is going to be on Nov. 4! However, even that, if you read it right, is all for Roosevelt. But the main reason Roosevelt is going to be re-elected is that the American people are just too all-fired smart to do anything else. Now and then hokum gets by. But not on such an immense scale. And not such poor, thin hokum as the republican party is spreading. If it was good, rich, thick hokum, good enough to look like something real, it might be different. But this hokum of today is so thin that it's like setting watered milk beside a farmer who knows what good, rich, cream looks like.

The labor movement has been so nearly 100 per cent united for Roosevelt that the minority hardly counts. Out of hundreds of national leaders only three or four are for Landon—and some of them not with any enthusiasm for the job.

They say labor is 90 per cent for Roosevelt. It's more like 99 per cent. And that goes for organized and unorganized.

So, editors, get the headlines ready. Put a big picture in the middle of the page. Get set. And, people, get ready for more progress. The forgotten man has found the way home and prosperity is coming down the home stretch, in full view of the grandstand and bleachers, no longer "just around the corner."

And John D. M. Hamilton had better hurry up and get his alibi statement ready.

The Liberty league is not going to hoist over the White House the black flag of industrial piracy and human enslavement.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

LABOR'S RALLY FOR ROOSEVELT

Friday night in the community hall of the Memorial auditorium the Chattanooga labor movement is putting on a gigantic rally in support of Franklin Delano Roosevelt for president of the United States. This is not a rally of the democratic party. It is sponsored by Labor's Non-Partisan league in support of a candidate who is the choice of the overwhelming majority of trades unionists of all parties all over the country and who has been indorsed by our own Labor's Political conference. The place for every union teacher to be on Friday night—unless he is out of town or otherwise unavoidably prevented—is at this meeting. This is an opportunity for labor to show its political strength, and labor should take full advantage of it.

SELL UNION CANDY IN THE SCHOOLS

This is the season when many schools put on candy selling campaigns in order to purchase athletic equipment. It should also be the time when we show our solidarity with union candy makers by seeing that all candy sold bears the union label. Candy can be bought from Carter Candy company, 534 East Ninth street, or from Kasper Candy company, North Market and Bell, at wholesale prices. Athletic equipment can be bought with the profits from the sale of this candy with as much or more economy than can be achieved through taking the "free" equipment offered by non-union firms. At the same time much help can be given to our brother unionists by purchasing the products they make. Let's not miss this opportunity to help unionize Chattanooga and Hamilton county.

NO FEDERATION PROPOSAL

The method of distribution of increases in city salaries is not that proposed by the federation.

BOARD MEETING MONDAY

The regular November meeting of the board of directors will be held at the "Y" next Monday night, Nov. 2, at 7 o'clock.

CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION MEETS MONDAY

Unionists are invited to attend a meeting of the Chattanooga Co-operative association to be held tnex Monday night at 7:30 in Judge Miller's courtroom. This organization has as its purpose the banding together of consumers in order to achieve the benefits of collective buying of consumer goods. It is to be operated on the basis of one vote per member, regardless of amount of stock, in order to insure democratic control at all times. Each member pays an initiation fee of $1 and buys at least one share of stock at $10.00. Consumer goods are sold at current prices and the profits are divided among the members on the basis of the amount of money spent through the co-operative.

Some other policies of the co-operative are: Interest on dividends on capital at not more than the average legal rate; political, religious and social neutrality; business on a cash basis, no proxy voting and no salaries to exceed ten times that of the lowest paid employe.

Officers of the Co-operative association are: Robert Campbell, president; T. B. Cowan, vice-president; Miss Beth Cunningham, secretary; T. F. Talbott, treasurer-manager, and a board of management composed of Glenn W. Ellis, Keith C. Harder and Mrs. Stanton E. Smith.

President's Interest In Labor Legislation Began in N. Y. Senate

Voted for 26 Measures of Benefit to the Workers Which Were Enacted by the State Legislature During 1911 and 1912.

The interest of President Roosevelt in labor legislation assumed importance in 1911 when he began his first term as a member of the senate of the New York state legislature. He was a member of that body until March 17, 1913, when he resigned to become assistant secretary of the navy in the administration of President Woodrow Wilson.

The American Federation of Labor National Non-partisan Political Campaign committee in its report on the records of the candidates for president gives the following list of 26 labor measures which received the support of Mr. Roosevelt in the senate during 1911 and 1912, all of them being enacted into law by the legislature and signed by the governor:

Wagner factory investigating commission law.

Providing for safe scaffolding in building construction and repair.

To prohibit voluntary associations from practicing law, enacted as a restriction on anti-boycott associations.

Regulating plastering in first-class cities.

Making it a misdemeanor for any person or corporation to mislead one in regard to any employment or to offer to secure employment without a bona fide order.

Appropriation of $5,000 to continue the work of the Wainwright employers' liability commission which was investigating the necessity for a workmen's compensation law.

Providing a three-platoon system based on an eight-hour day for all policemen in cities of the first and second class.

Giving protection to persons furnishing labor or material for the construction or repair of public buildings or public works.

Limiting the weekly working hours of drug store employes.

Requiring all bakery shops to be properly equipped with drainage, sinks and clean running water.

Establishing pension funds for the clerical and uniformed forces of the street cleaning department.

To further widen the scope of the labor law so as to include theaters, barber shops and shoe polishing establishments among the places in which employment of children is prohibited.

Providing a system of licensing and supervision for immigrant lodging houses and employment agencies conducted by them.

1912 Session.

Fifty-four hour working week bill for employed women and minors.

To submit an amendment to the state constitution to enable enactment of a compisory compensation law to overcome the decision of the courts which declared the 1910 law unconstitutional.

To improve conditions for compressed air workers in tunnels.

To increase the salaries of state hospital employes and to create pension or retirement funds for them.

Authorizing heads of departments in New York City to pay employes injured in the discharge of their duty.

To extend the life of the factory investigation commission and broadening the scope of its work.

To provide for fire drills and automatic sprinklers.

Registration of factories and regulation of unclean factories.

To prohibit the employment of women within four weeks after childbirth.

To regulate places of employment which produce excessive heat, dust, gases or fumes.

Providing medical examination of children before an employment certificate is issued.

Four amendments to strengthen the provisions of existing law with reference to immigrant lodging houses and the bureau of industries and immigration.

In addition to the above bills which became laws of New Yok state, Mr. Roosevelt during these sessions of the legislature favored a number of measures for labor which failed of enactment. They included a bill which provided for full crews on locomotives operated outside the yard limit, a full-crew bill for steam railways, which passed the senate; a bill to establish a licensing system for journeymen plumbers, and a bill to bring cannery sheds under the 54-hour law for women and minors.

His resignation to become assistant secretary of the navy prevented his participating in many roll calls on labor mensures during the 1913 session of the legislature, but before he became naval secretary he introduced a bill to establish the weekly one day of rest for wage-earners in New York state which was enacted into law.

GOP Asks Employers to Coerce Workers; Here's Proof

LANDON . . . OR ELSE

18th Ward Branch
Employers and Workers Alliance for Landon and Knox
VOTE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN

Dear Sirs:

We assume that your firm believes in the principles of the Republican Party.

You have in your employ

who resides at 454 E. Girard Ave.

and his immediate family of two persons are all registered Democrat

If our assumption is correct, will you endeavor to explain and show your employee his error.

Respectfully yours,

Anne Paulus Rank
Secretary
413 E. Girard Ave.

The letter above is one of thousands being sent by Republican campaigners to employers whose workers are registered Democratic. Below is Mrs. Anne Paulus Rank, one of the leaders of the Landon Volunteers, whose name is typed in the letter.

A new scheme to coerce workers when they go to the polls Nov. 3 has just been brought to the attention of Labor's Non-Partisan league headquarters in Washington. It's a pretty foxy thing and goes far beyond legitimate campaign efforts of trying to sell a voter on a particular candidate and his policies. A concrete example was exposed by the Philadelphia Record. Workers are urged to watch for similar efforts in other cities and to report them at once.

The political battleground of Pennsylvania, where the republicans are hollering about alleged coercion of WPA workers, brings to light a "political blackmail" system instituted by the republican organization in Philadelphia, viler than anything anybody has ever thought of yet. It works like this:

Republican committeemen gather the names of men and women in their divisions who are enrolled as democrats.

Other republican workers investigate among friends and relatives to find out where the the registered democrats work.

And then the following letter is sent to the democrat's place of employment:

"Dear Sirs:

"We assume that your firm believes in the principles of the republican party.

"You have in your employ (name of employe) who resides at (address).

"He and his immediate family of (number of persons) are all registered democrats.

"If our assumption is correct, will you endeavor to explain and show your employe his error?"

This is what the republicans have stooped to—hitting a man at his job.

Another dirty piece of [illegible] duggery has also been brought to light in Detroit. An "[illegible] ployers' association of Detroit is sending form letters to members advising them to tify employes that after Jan. money will have to be deducted from their pay to comply with the social security act. They have also gotten up a special envelope with the words "[illegible] DEDUCTION" printed in type across the front. The reading matter on the envelope goes like this:

"Effective January, 1937, we are compelled by a Roosevelt 'New Deal' law to make a 1% deduction from your wages and turn it over to the government. Finally, this may go as high as 4%. You might get this money back in future years . . . but only if congress decides to make the appropriation for that purpose. There is no guarantee. Decide before Nov. 3—election day—whether or not you wish to take these chances."

This is one of the worst "scare" attacks gotten out by any organized gang of "economic royalists" yet. They don't get to tell how much the employers' contribution will be to this great cause—over twice that of their employes.

THIS IS IMPORTANT—WHY?

My dear Committeeman:

The names of your Election Board are as follows:

Judge_____ Employed by _____

Inspector_____ Employed by _____

Inspector_____ Employed by _____

You will notice that after each name I have left a space to fill in the employer of each member of your board.

Please fill it in and return this form to Republican Headquarters in the self-addressed envelope, enclosed for that purpose.

This is important.

Very truly yours,
County Chairman

PH/AB

Here is the letter Paul W. Houck, Republican chairman of Schuylkill county, is sending his committeemen. He wants to know who employ election officers. He tells the committeemen it's important for him to know. Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence declared it isn't hard to figure why it is "important" to Houck. He charged Houck's plans to bring pressure through G. O. P. employers to force election officers to "count the vote right"—for the Republicans. Lawrence said the letter is "important" as an illustration of reactionary Republican methods in the face of defeat.

Man (as he climbed into the barber's chair)—I want a shave. No haircut, no shampoo, no bayrum, no witch hazel, hair tonic, hot towels or face massages. I don't want the manicurist to hold my hand or the [illegible] black to handle my feet. I don't want to be brushed off, and I'll put on my coat without help. I just want a plain shave, with no trimmings. Do you understand that perfectly?

Barber (quietly)—Yes, sir. Lather, sir?

committee who planned that did its work well. Don't know o comprised the committee, believe that Mrs. Beavers and ertainment committee did a lot work. I recognized the hard of the two Mrs. Reynolds in tractive, hand-painted place And Mrs. Archie Underwood ery busy, too. The Label league, my friends, has some interested workers in it now.

But don't let me get too far into this banquet talk before I mention the union-labeled suits that Town Talk Clothes (located at Ninth and Broad) is showing now. And their suits sell for as low as $15. Go down and get a new suit so you will be ready to help celebrate Roosevelt's re-election next Tuesday.

Al Smith came to the dinner last night—brown derby, sunflower and all (did you ever notice how much George Forbes looks like Al?) And at the proper moment Al took his "walk."

Some enthusiastic person hurled a couple of eggs at Norman Thomas, otherwise known as Prof. Stan Smith. Fortunately, they missed and hit the wall back of the speaker with a loud splash.

Mr. Browder (Roy Reynolds, himself) told how disappointed he was in Chattanooga—never had he been so ignored in a supposedly "red-bating" town. How was a candidate to get any publicity if he could not even get arrested? True to form, he brought in a beautiful bomb that went off with a bang!

And then, there came the election. Mr. H. V. Reid, one of the railroad brothers visiting from Memphis, got up and protested because he came from Shelby county and only received one ballot. Much crookedness was uncovered in the counting of the votes—and may the best man win.

Sure—we had a lot of fun! Next time the Label league entertains, don't miss it.

And so, dear reader, until we meet next Tuesday to cast our vote for the man who has befriended labor, I remain—with a reminder to "re-elect Roosevelt"—your Labor World correspondent.

NATION SUFFERS GREAT LOSS IN DEATH OF JAMES COUZENS

Michigan Senator, Though Man of Wealth, Was Staunch Friend of Masses, Who Labored Unceasingly to Make Rich Pay Their Just Share of Taxation and to Produce National Welfare.

Washington.—The death of James Couzens is a national loss. The senate loses one of its ablest and most fearless members; labor loses a wise counsellor and staunch supporter; and that forgotten man, the common man, loses a friend who never forgot. Only the economic royalists, the persons of big fortunes and little scruples, are the gainers for his passing.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Up to a certain point, the career of Couzens reminds one of a "success story" for boys. He was born at Chatham, Ontario, Aug. 26, 1872, of a family of hard workers. James' first job was to pump the organ at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church in Chatham. He was a sizable boy when his parents came to Detroit, and his first job after finishing his days in the public schools was that of car checker in the railroad yards. He did his job so well that he was taken into the freight house—though the yardmaster tried to hold him by insisting that James could be yardmaster in a very few years.

He did his work at the freight desk as well as in the yards. A. Y. Malcomson, coal dealer, came to the freight house to get some information, and was referred to young Couzens. It was not very long before young Couzens shifted jobs again, and was keeping books and doing almost everything else for Malcomson. The coalmaster was then financing a gawky engineer named Henry Ford, who was trying to build one of those horseless carriage things; and James was set to watch Malcomson's investment in this business.

Urged Corporation Be Formed.

Before long, Couzens recommended that the associates in this matter form a corporation. No one fought the proposal, but it took pressure to get it done promptly. Couzens supplied the pressure. The Ford Motor company was organized June 15, 1903. James Couzens had saved $400 in cash, Malcomson owed him a bonus of $500, so he borrowed $100 from his sister and planked $1,000 into the new corporation. Later, he bought more stock in the company—but not at the same price. He was vice-president and general manager of the Ford Motor company for many years, and was one of the big factors of Ford success.

Couzens was the man who originated the $5 a day wage in the Ford plant. He saw a bone-headed official of the company turn the hose on men waiting for jobs at the plant gates in winter. Nerves raw from the sight, feeling a sense of responsibility, he picked up a copy of the Metropolitan Magazine, and read an editorial which talked of mass movement, and minimized the achievements of any individual. "I'll show the fool!" declared Couzens to himself, and after his concentration on the big idea had made him cut himself twice in shaving the next morning, he laid siege to Ford for the $5 wage. Henry capitulated in two days.

Becomes Mayor of Detroit.

Couzens quit the Ford enterprise in 1915. There were many reasons, but the foremost was a fundamental

400 MEN STRIKE AT FLOUR PLANT

Minneapolis.—In protest against the laying off of 128 men by the Pillsbury Flour Mills company, more than 400 men at the Pillsbury mill here went on strike on Nov. 2.

Mill officials said the men were laid off because of the decline in flour production resulting from the shortage of this year's wheat crop in the northwest.

Two hundred pickets surrounded the plant in an orderly demonstration. Union heads demanded, in recent negotiations, that the company reduce work days to six hours a man and maintain full crews, rather than lay off the 128 and keep the remainder on eight-hour days.

Hosiery Company Signs Union Shop Agreement

Milwaukee, Wis.—The union shop seamless agreement at the Phoenix Hosiery company, here, effective for the last two years, has been renewed with the American Federation of Hosiery Workers for the coming year.

The contract covers 1,100 of this firm's 4,000 employes. Under this pact the Phoenix is permitted to use the union label on its products, which includes all types of seamless merchandise, children's, women's, misses' and men's half-hose.

The hosiery federation is conducting a national publicity campaign to promote the sales of the Phoenix product. Their plant is one of the finest in the country, and is modern in every detail affecting the health of its employes.

This is the second contract in two weeks which has been signed by the union with seamless manufacturers. The other covers a major Pennsylvania producer, one of the largest anklet manufacturers in the industry.

Rambo-Regar, Inc., of Norristown, also manufacturers of seamless hosiery, renewed their closed shop contract, which is modeled along the lines of the Phoenix pact, in September. This company also provides union label hosiery.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH RESTORES FORMER WAGE RATE NATIONALLY

Action Follows Communication from Union and Synchronizes with La Follette Committee Record of Spy Agency Operations for Western Union—Recalls Union-Made Uniform Announcement.

New York City.—Announcement of the Postal Telegraph company of restoration of wages to the 1932 level will affect operating employes throughout the United States. The restoration of wages ordered, effective Oct. 1, by Postal wipes out the final 4 per cent of a 10 per cent cut inflicted in 1932, with depression at about its worst.

There are several facts surrounding the wage restoration that have not been made known thus far.

1. The Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America recently suggested, in a formal communication to the company, that there should now be such a readjustment over the entire system. The restoration did not come as a result of conference, but it followed the union's communication and can be accepted as a response, at least to some degree. The union, in its communication, pointed out the improving state of the company's finances and the company, in announcing the raise, bases it upon that very fact.

2. The Commercial Telegraphers' union membership has been growing at a rapid rate all over the system and elections have been asked for in certain cities, with the expectation that ing and agreement, since elections have been asked only where the union membership is more than a majority of employes.

3. Almost at the hour Postal announced the wage readjustment, it was developed by the La Follette Civil Liberties committee that Western Union had been one of the clients of one of the espionage and union wrecking agencies exposed by that committee. The work for which the agency was engaged probably was espionage work, uncovering union members, or seeking to learn if any employes were union members.

The union never has declared Postal fair, but it has declared Postal more friendly than Western Union and as entitled to be so regarded by all unions and union members. As a result of that attitude on the part of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, Postal business has risen sharply in many cities.

About six months ago Postal announced that, as of that date and thenceforth, all Postal uniforms would be union made and would bear the union label. That announcement was hailed as an important step forward by union leaders.

6,000 GLASS WORKERS STRIKE IN SIX PLANTS

Pittsburgh.—Six thousand workers walked out of six plants of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company on a strike order issued by Glenn McCabe, president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers. The plants involved are located in five states: Ford City and Creighton in Pennsylvania; Mt. Vernon, O.; Henryette, Okla.; Crystal, Mo., and Clarksburg, W. Va.

The statement is being sent out that the strike was ordered because the union demanded and the company refused the closed shop. This is not correct. The union did demand the closed shop early in the negotiations for a renewal of the contract, but when this was refused, they offered a compromise, namely, preferential hiring of union men when these were available, and permission to solicit members in the plants. It was the refusal of this plan which brought the strike.

Employes of the company's plant at Milwaukee also walked out, complying with a strike order from the Paint and Varnish Makers' union in that city.

Maintenance men remained on duty to care for equipment, but John Watt, superintendent of the Mount Vernon plant, said that once the fires were out, it would take three months to resume operations.

He announces that plans are being made to start an organization drive.

DISCHARGED FOR ASKING MORE PAY, WORKERS SAY

New Orleans.—Formal charges of "discriminatory discharge" and refusal to bargain collectively with union representatives were filed with the United States regional labor board recently by six employes of the Celotex plant, of Marrero, La., across the river from New Orleans. The charges declared that the men were fired one hour after they wrote a letter to plant officials asking for a conference regarding working conditions and wages. The six men are members of Local No. 130, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. They said they were removed on orders of Moran Parsons, plant superintendent, who received the letter from a foreman to whom the union men handed it.

Wages will be as thin as the "soup boiled down from the shadow of a pigeon that starved to death" if Americans continue to buy foreign-made goods.

Supreme Court Will Rule on Wagner Act In Two Test Cases

Agrees to Hear Arguments on the Constitutionality of Labor Relations Law in Associated Press and Coach Line Suits.

Washington.—The assurance by the United States supreme court that test cases on the constitutionality of the national labor relations act would be decided at the present term was given when the court accepted the Associated Press and the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach company cases for argument at unnamed dates, but probably in December.

The court ordered that the Associated Press case be heard directly after the Virginia Railway company's challenge of the constitutionality of the railway labor act and that arguments in the coach company case immediately follow the Associated Press case.

Unfair Labor Practices Banned.

The labor relations act, which became a law in July, 1935, authorizes the labor relations board to prevent a number of unfair labor practices when they affect interstate commerce. According to the provisions of the act

Unions Sweep Him Back to Presidency In All States But 2

Working People Break Landon's Back When Pennsylvania, Kansas, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana Are Lined Up for F. D. R.

Labor's Non-Partisan League Claims Great Deal of Credit in Arousing Labor Voters to Support the Man Who Brought This Country Out of Depression and Soup Kitchens.

Citizens of the United States were electrified beyond imagination last Tuesday evening when telegraph wires and radio almost immediately after closing of the polls started telling of one state after another going over by landslide proportions for Franklin D. Roosevelt for president.

The most optimistic democratic leaders prior to election received labor's claim that they would carry Roosevelt through Pennsylvania with shaking of heads. It just did not seem possible that the state of Pennsylvania could go democratic in a presidential race—it had not been done for seventy years. However, 350,000 union miners and some 50,000 union hosiery workers, not to mention other unionists in the old rock-ribbed sunflower followers' stronghold, got busy and did the job by a 350,000 majority. To make things worse for Landon, his home state of Kansas was lost. The Kansas Federation of Labor got into the scrap, and when the smoke of battle cleared away, the use of troops against strikers by Landon and his starved school teachers was remembered by a 3,000 majority for Roosevelt.

All the so-called vote indicators, even including the infallible Literary Digest, had put Ohio, Illinois and Indiana in the very doubtful column. Labor voters in those states did not think so, and after those votes were tallied it was apparent that organized labor from now on must be considered as a powerful factor in elections.

Labor is particularly pleased over the landslide. It is expressed by many that because of the undeniable endorsement of New Deal measures of the past our supreme court may take heed to the wishes of the people. It is believed by many that in the future the nine justices will pay some attention to present needs rather than their interpretations of what our founding fathers might have intended 150 years ago for us to do today.

And here at home in Hamilton county! We did the job in good style. Voters in this county had been lambasted by lurid tales of communism under Roosevelt, termites eating at the country's structure, and other such reactionary hysteria. Union speakers had been busy going over this territory for Roosevelt. A fine rally was held by the Tennessee Labor's Non-Partisan League last Friday evening at the auditorium. Unionists predicted that Hamilton county would give Roosevelt at least 10,000 majority. Actual count showed our great leader in the majority in Hamilton county by slightly more than 10,000 votes.

LABOR CONFERENCE CALLED IN CAPITAL

Washington.—The third national conference on labor legislation, designed to promote improvements of labor standards through federal and state cooperative efforts, will be held in Washington on Nov. 9, 10 and 11, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced here.

Governors of all states have been asked to send official delegates, including labor commissioners. Private individuals who have special knowledge of labor problems have been invited to attend the conference.

Secretary Perkins initiated the meetings soon after joining the cabinet. The first session was held in the capital and the second in Asheville, N. C.

TEXTILE WORKERS' PAY RAISED

Gadsden, Ala.—Officials of the Dwight Manufacturing company, one of the largest textile mills in the nation, have announced a 5 per cent wage increase for all of its 2,100 employes.

Trenton Doll Workers' Union Wins Pay Increase Agreement

Trenton, N. J.—The strike of the employes of the Regal Doll corporation, members of Federal Labor Union No. 18247, of Trenton, was settled by an agreement providing wage increases and other union conditions, according to Lewis G. Hines, representative of the American Federation of Labor. The conference which shaped the settlement was called at the request of Mr. Hines and was attended by company officials and a large committee representing the workers.

The main issue of the strike was the union's insistence that the company sign the same type of agreement as had been signed with the union in New York City.

"Everybody seemed well pleased with the outcome, and I am happy that we were able to successfully terminate the situation," Mr. Hines said.

Let's have a new theme song entitled "Cut the Hours and Not the Pay."

"We Have Just Begun to Fight"

It appears that when President Roosevelt voiced his determination to carry on in the interests of the so-called common people he was only putting in words the fixed desire of the American electorate.

He said, "We have just begun to fight." American labor echoed back those sentiments. It rolled up its sleeves, poured in its money, combed the country, and answered reactionary challenges. Results showed that only labor was able to crack Pennsylvania and take Landon's home state, Kansas, for Roosevelt.

Labor has just begun to fight. The issues are plain. The next four years will find a majority of American labor in the union, free unions, and voting unions.

Other "doubtful" states, such as Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, were efficiently mopped up by Labor's Non-Partisan League for Re-election of Roosevelt. Labor truly supported its friends and defeated its enemies.

We hope that the supreme court has heard America's cry, "We have just begun to fight." When forty-six states out of forty-eight overwhelmingly indorse new deal legislation, it is to be hoped that in the future there will not be any more frustration of the people's wishes in the new order of society.

Credit should be given where credit is due, we say. Had it not been for the thrilling two-color ads, the columns of defense against communism, and the thousands of free papers by the Chattanooga Free Press, who knows but what Maine and Vermont might have gone to the dogs with the rest of the United States?

And the little brown derby is just a cocked hat today. Alfy's walk led him into the valley of the shadow of death.

Like Brer Rabbit, while the Literary Digest was counting the straw votes, Labor, he just sot and say nothing.

Communism certainly is rampant in Hamilton county. Earl Browder, communist candidate, rolled up fourteen votes. Save us, O save us from Moscow's menace!

Judge Will Cummings got a beautiful double-crossing in his home voting place in Wauhatchie. He must be slipping. Landon got eight votes there, while Roosevelt just nosed out with 403.

A Good Step Forward

September issue of the "Motorman, Conductor and Motor Coach Operator," official magazine of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, contains a story which has about half a dozen morals, the first of which is that unionism pays. It deals with the protection of workers who are thrown out by mergers or other changes over which they have no control, and gives an example, thus:

"This situation arose recently in Bloomington, Ill. The Illinois Power and Light Company announced that the management of the street railway system was to be changed and that bus service was to be substituted for trolleys. Realizing that this would be a severe blow to the senior members of Division 752 of the Amalgamated Association, the officers of this division insisted that some provision be made to pay a displacement allowance to those members who would be unable to qualify for bus work due to age or disability. Some of the men on this system have been employed for as long as 33 years, and 26 of them have service records of 20 years or more. Division 752 filed a petition with the Illinois Commerce Commission requesting that when an employe with 20 years service becomes disabled or cannot qualify, he be paid a dismissal allowance of $1,000 with an additional $50 for each year beyond 15.

"After extended negotiation the retiring management agreed to accept the demands of the union employes. Veteran operators who fail to qualify for bus work will receive cash sums up to $1,500; those who have been in service 30 years or more or who are 65 years or over will receive the equivalent of 10 months' pay."

Thus one more step is taken in the direction of social security. Men who work for wages should never be satisfied until all industries recognize and act on the doctrine that a long term worker has earned the right to be supported, at least in considerable part, by the industry to which he has given the best years and efforts of his life.

The High Life Cost of Cancer

Clarence C. Little, head of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, set the case for his organization before the American College of Surgeons in a dramatic way.

"A flood in which 500 people die," said Dr. Little, "is a national catastrophe.

"But when cancer kills 140,000 persons a year, the nation, up to now, has merely shrugged its shoulders."

He added that half these people could have been saved if they had gone to a doctor early enough, and submitted to the necessary operation.

Cancer is one of the very few diseases that is on the increase. One reason for this increase is clear; cancer is a disease of middle or later life, and more people live to middle or old age now than used to be the case. But there are probably other factors, even if we cannot be sure just what they are; and Dr. Little's advice is sound.

And remember this: Every case of cancer goes to the doctor, sooner or later. The sooner it goes, the better chance of recovery.

Supreme Court Reversed by the People.

For the last four months it has been dinned into the ears of the citizens of the United States that we must save the constitution and the liberties of the people of this government with our ballots in the election Nov. 3, 1936. Well, we have listened to the voice of hate, greed and jealousy, and weighed it on the scales of reason and cast our ballots accordingly.

We believe now (as we believe the framers of the constitution believed in 1788) that the main purpose of government is to establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.

By our vote Tuesday we have again ordained and established the constitution of the United States for the benefit of all the people of this great country and at the same time we have served notice on those among us who do not believe the constitution was intended to protect and benefit all the people that they had better read the constitution again and insert the word "we" instead of the word "Big I" and they will get a different understanding of what this government means to the human family.

Do not be misled by believing that it was the personality of President Roosevelt that caused us to vote for him, because that was not the reason. It was his great fight to have the principles of the constitution put into effect by statutory laws that endeared him to the common people who believe they are a part of the government.

While we do not know of all the pressure brought to bear on the different branches of the government against remedial and constructive legislation during the late emergency by "vested interests," much of which was obtained by fraud and bribery, we do know that he never faltered or took a backward step.

You know if there is any branch of this government that has a right to review the acts of another branch of the government, it is that branch called "The People." Well, that branch, the people, exercising its appellate power, has reviewed the acts of the president and congress of the United States of America, on remedial and constructive legislation during the emergency, and we have reversed the decisions of all lower courts that assumed they had the power to make the laws.

To all of those who have had their wages decreased and their hours increased by that small per cent of chiselers engaged in business be not downhearted but be of good cheer, for another day is dawning for you. You have not been forgotten—get ready to stand on your own feet and walk as upright men and women in your own right under the law.

Remember that any person has the right to express an opinion on the constitution or any law, but no person, regardless of the position they hold—official or otherwise—has the right to express an opinion, then by edict or proclamation make it the law of the land. That is a legislative function and vested exclusively in the congress of the United States.

T. J. SMITH.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

AT THE E. T. E. A. MEET

More than 1,000 pieces of A. F. of T. literature was distributed at the federation booth at the E. T. E. A. convention last week-end. The interest on the part of the teachers was greater than ever before. Representatives of at least three systems expressed plans for organizing locals.

Preliminary steps were taken toward forming a Tennessee Federation of Teachers. All state locals except one were represented. Stanton E. Smith was elected temporary president of the organization. Constitution and program committees were elected and instructed. All action is subject to the approval of the various locals.

BOARD MEETINGS TO BE REPORTED

Next week the publicity committee will issue a bulletin on the last board of directors meeting, together with the report of the delegates to the A. F. of T. convention. Each succeeding board meeting wil be reported in this way.

PRESIDENT JEROME DAVIS

Dr. Jerome Davis, president of the A. F. of T., has come in for some criticism by vested interests on account of his championship of the rights of workers and consumers. Dr. Davis has been notified that his tenure as associate professor in Yale Divinity school will be terminated next spring. This action of the Yale corporation was taken over the protest of the faculty of the divinity school and the student body. The New Haven-Yale Teachers' local has protested against this clear violation of academic freedom. Other locals and central bodies are expected to join in the protest. Our federation has already gone on record as doing so through the board of directors.

MORE ABOUT SUPREME COURT

it is an unfair labor practice for an employer:

To interfere with, restrain, or coerce employes in self-organization and collective bargaining.

To dominate or interfere with the formation or administration of any labor organization or contribute financial or other support to it.

To discriminate with regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization.

To discharge or discriminate against any employe for filing charges or giving testimony under the act.

To refuse to bargain collectively with the representatives of the employes.

Associated Press Case.

The Associated Press case concerns Morris Watson, an editorial employe who was discharged in October, 1935. The American Newspaper Guild filed charges with the labor board claiming that Watson had been discharged because of activities in connection with the guild, which was held to be an unfair labor practice under the terms of the Wagner act.

The labor relations board found the Associated Press guilty of the charge and ordered the reinstatement of Watson with lost pay.

On an appeal by the Associated press the circuit court of appeals of the United States for the Second judicial circuit sustained the decision of the board. From this decision the Associated Press appealed to the United States supreme court, claiming that the relation of employer and employe does not directly affect interstate commerce and is therefore not subject to congressional regulation.

Attorneys for the Associated Press contended the guarantee of a free press would be violated by collective bargaining between editorial workers and management under the conditions prescribed by the Wagner act and that such collective bargaining would deprive the press association of freedom of contract guaranteed by the federal constitution. These claims were denied by the circuit court of appeals.

Coach Company Case.

The second case accepted by the supreme court for argument grew out of the discharge of eighteen employes of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach company, which operates buses out of Washington, D. C. The employes claim they were dismissed for joining the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America. The national labor relations board found the company guilty of the charge and ordered the reinstatement of the bus drivers. The company refused to obey the order of the board on the ground that the labor relations act was unconstitutional and appealed the board's decision to the United States circuit court of appeals for the Fourth judicial circuit, which sustained the board and held that the labor act was unconstitutional From the appeals court decision the bus company appealed the cast to the supreme court.

There are three other attacks on the labor relations law filed with the supreme court. These are the Jones & Laughlin Steel company suit, the Friedman-Harry Marks Clothing company suit and the Fruehauf Trailer company suit, on which the supreme court has not yet acted.

Woe is me! No sooner does this column get a fan than it acquires a foe. And all that I said about Mr. Peel was that he liked to use the telephone at unusual hours.

Mr. Erskin Fischer, secretary of the Brewery Workers' Local No. 79, was in last week, and gave me a good reason why the Brewery Workers were voting for Roosevelt. Just before Mr. Roosevelt went into office, says Mr. Fischer, the membership of their local was just one-third of what it is today, and those members were averaging about two and a half days a week. Now, their membership has reached a new high and they are working helpers with all the salesmen.

This local is another of the "hundred per cent" groups. All inside and outside men in the breweries of Chattanooga belong to their union. And they carry their unionism right down to the painting of their trucks.

And did you know that this local was organized—over 30 years ago—it has not lost a single industrial dispute. The few strikes this local has had have been won without leaving a feeling of bitterness on either side, and during the last fifteen years there has only been one strike.

Incidentally, Brother Fischer wants to tell the Brewery Workers that he has a telephone now—his number is 3-1785.

The Literary Digest was certainly all wrong in its pre-election polls, but it is still all "right" as far as the union printers is concerned. So if you are looking for that sore of a magazine, remember the Literary Digest is union, but that Time magazine is NOT.

Wilhoite, Trustee, to John Nelson Adams and wife, Sallie Adams, by deed dated March 28, 1928, and registered in Book R, Volume 22, Page 552, of the Register's Office of Hamilton County, Tennessee.

Said sale will be made subject to all unpaid taxes.

MORE ABOUT SEN. COUZENS

difference of opinion on the World war. Couzens became police commissioner of Detroit. In 1919, he became mayor, and was re-elected by the largest majority ever given in a contest for that office. Being a people's mayor, he naturally had a fight with the local utilities, and took the street car company to a cleaning.

In 1922 he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Truman H. Newberry in the senate. Very soon he was involved in a controversy with Andrew Mellon, nominally secretary of the treasury, but the power behind the White House for two full presidential terms and part of a third. Couzens started an investigation which rubbed the gilding from Mr. Mellon's halo. He showed that the bureau of internal revenue was honeycombed with favoritism, and that the Mellon companies were among the prime favorite.

Mellon Starts "Spite Suit."

Mellon tried to get even by suing Couzens to collect more than $10,000,000 taxes, which he claimed were due from the profits made by Couzens in selling his share in the Ford Motor company to Ford. It was pure spite, federal authorities had been consulted every step of the sale, and when the issue was tried, the court held that Couzens had paid more than a million dollars too much.

Couzens' charities have been gigantic, and he concealed them as much as possible. He put about $13,000,000 into the children's fund, an endowment for Michigan children. In the health work of this fund, nurses and doctors were sent to teach school teachers how to pass on health counsels to the children and their parents. During the worst of the depression, a hundred thousand Michigan school children, with unemployed or partly employed parents, got no small part of their rations, and that the best part, through the children's fund and other Couzens benefactions.

In the senate and out of it, Couzens fought the battles of the workers, and especially their battle for steady employment. How grimly he fought it may be seen from his speech to the Michigan manufacturers' association at Detroit, just before Christmas of 1929.

"This unemployment situation that enters into this winter's depression in your future months and years. You could have prevented it. You could have refrained from high-pressure salesmanship; your forcing luxuries upon people unable to buy them. . . .

"I do not charge you men with being inhuman. I charge you with being careless, with being thoughtless of the results of your failure to solve this problem (of steady employment). I have a right to charge it, because ten years ago I had the honor of being your mayor when 150,000 men were laid off in a day by the snap of a finger at the command of industry, and we, your city servants, were left to find a way to buy shoes and milk tickets, pay rent and send children to school. You passed it off like the water on a duck's back. Government came to the relief."

A wise and noble man is gone from among us.

No labor union can live within itself and prosper. Its members must buy the products of brother union workers.

SHORT CROP, BIG CIGARETTE SALES AND COMPETITION OF INDEPENDENTS RAISE PRICE PAID TOBACCO GROWERS

Higher Prices No Reflection of Sudden Generosity by Big Four Companies, Which Continue to Keep Wages Down and Fight Unions, Despite Favorable Business Trend.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Flue-cured tobacco is selling in Georgia at an average of 20.9 cents a pound, an increase of about 2 cents a pound, or 11 per cent, over the same price paid in the same region for the same grade of tobacco last year. But do not imagine that the Big Four tobacco companies have been taken suddenly with any impulse of generosity or even of indifference to the pennies. Tobacco prices are higher this year than last for three reasons.

First, the crop of flue-cured tobacco this year is estimated at 686,000,000 pounds, against 81,000,000 pounds last year, a crop shortage of more than 15 per cent.

Second, the demand for cigarettes has risen sharply in the past twelve months; nobody knows just why. At the lowest estimates, cigarette sales this year will be 10 per cent greater than last, and the indications are that the increase will be larger than 10 per cent.

Effect of Competition.

Third, the independent tobacco companies making union label cigarettes furnish some competition for the Big Four in the purchase of tobacco, and the department of agriculture under its present management would not look with any sort of favor on any attempt by the Big Four to smash and flatten out independent competition. These last two circumstances give a short crop some chance to show part of its normal effect—only part—in an increase of prices.

How little a short crop alone could accomplish in raising tobacco prices is shown by the experience of 1932. The crop that year was much below the expected crop this year. Yet the average price which the farmer got for flue-cured tobacco that year was 11.6 cents per pound.

No Excuse for Fighting Union.

This, to be sure, was a better price than the farmer got for the same kind of tobacco in 1931. The average price that year was 8.9 cents per pound. It would have been lower if the independent companies had been out of the market; for the present department of agriculture has said more than once that the independents have been a great help to the tobacco farmer, bidding up his prices when Big Four buyers are trying to hold prices down.

One thing is certain: The increased demand for cigarettes takes away from the Big Four the last faint vestige of an excuse for holding down wages and fighting against the unionizing of tobacco workers. The American Tobacco company was reported by financial news services some time ago to be turning out 23 per cent more cigarettes than last year—and still was working 40 hours a week and not increasing its force. More recently, the same financial services said that R. J. Reynolds was increasing its output this year by one-third—and said not a word about any increase in the Reynolds payroll.

Of the total income of the Big Four, wages, that is, labor costs, are only 2 per cent. It is doubtful if any group of slave holders in history could match that record. The independent firms, Brown & Williamson Tobacco corporation and Axton-Fisher Tobacco company, make cigarettes to sell at 10 cents per package, and still pay union wages. If they can afford union wages—and they have not gone broke, then certainly the Big Four, making 13 to 15 cent cigarettes, should not complain when asked to do the same.

The tobacco industry must and will be organized. The drive to do so cannot begin too soon.

LABOR PARTY SUPPORTS BOND ISSUE FOR RELIEF

New York City.—Unstinting support of the proposed $30,000,000 bond issue for relief in New York state has been announced by the American labor party at campaign headquarters. It urged an overwhelming vote on the referendum in favor of the bond issue in order "to demonstrate clearly that the people of this state will tolerate nothing less than adequate relief for the victims of the depression."

The American labor party previously came out in support of the referendum for a state constitutional convention which was voted upon this election, as well as for the three-platoon system for firemen, which has just been removed from the ballot by the courts.

BOYCOTT IS URGED ON SALINAS LETTUCE

New York City.—James A. Sells, traveling representative of the Fruit and Vegetable Workers union in California, is canvassing labor groups in the east urging a boycott of lettuce and other vegetables from the Salinas and Watsonville district of California.

Sells charged that packing house workers had been locked out and pickets had been terrorized by deputized citizens.

STEEL MILLS AT CAPACITY

Pittsburgh.—Steel mills in this district making plates, tin plate, shapes, bars and sheets are working at capacity, and the improvement in machinery makes that capacity considerably larger than it was in 1929.

To be consistent, a member of a labor union should buy only union-made goods with his union-earned money.

some mills have already booked orders for 20 per cent or more of the output they expect to make in March, 1937. Cotton consumption is running 26 per cent ahead of last year; cotton mill operations about 22 per cent.

Shoe Employment Lags.

Shoe production is about 4 per cent higher than in 1929, and the output of the year is expected to reach 400,000,000 pairs. That of 1929 was 365,000,000 pairs. As in every case where attention has been paid to this side of the problem, employment is lagging behind production; a 3 per cent increase in workers as against a 4 per cent gain in output. Retail sales of shoes are running from 12 to 20 per cent ahead of those of 1935.

Paper production is running 10 to 12 per cent ahead of that of last year, according to Charles H. Boice, secretary of the American Paper and Pulp association. Employment in the industry, Mr. Boice says, is higher than ever before; but he gives no figures that make comparison possible between gains in output and gains in jobs.

Auto Business Booms

Social security legislation is credited with the increase in demand for accounting machines, though makers of office machines and furniture are having their best year since 1929. Oil burner manufacturers report demand far ahead of that of a year ago. Sales of electric refrigerators for the home are up 30 per cent from those of 1935.

Sales of twenty-three store chains and two mail order houses lumped together show a gain of more than 14 per cent above those of last year.

The auto business, which centers in Detroit, is going in high gear again, and 1936 is expected to be the second best year of the industry, 1929 being first; and in that year a million cars were made for which there proved to be no market. But the industry is counting on turning out 5,000,000 cars next year.

New England, the middle west and the Pacific coast join in the swelling prosperity chorus.

CAROLINA LONGSHOREMEN WIN INCREASE IN WAGES

Wilmington, N. C.—North Carolina longshoremen and local shippers union have reached an agreement regarding hours and wages, effective Nov. 1.

The agreement came after a conference with federal labor conciliators and labor leaders. Under the agreement, the longshoremen will receive a 5 to 10 cent hourly increase plus pay for overtime.

Jail Penalty of Only Three Years for Theft of $150,000

Goderich, Ont., Can.—John J. Huggard, lawyer of Seaforth, charged with theft and conversion involving about $150,000, was sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary. Those who lost money or stocks included many of the townspeople and countryfolk of the district where Huggard had been prominent as a lawyer. He disappeared from his office last spring and later was located in Los Angeles, where he voluntarily surrendered.

Election Gives Labor a Commanding Lead in Progressive Trend

America Turns Definitely To a New Era, Workers to Front

Organized Wage-Earners' Part in Overwhelming Roosevelt Victory Marks New Achievement in United States Politics and Assures Labor Movement Big Voice in National Affairs.

By CHESTER M. WRIGHT

Washington.—Labor has leaped into a political importance entirely new in the United States and the outlook is for immediate action to consolidate the new position to insure a permanent labor leadership in the demonstrated progressive trend of the nation.

In assessing the importance of election results, one of the first considerations is this:

It was not Alfred M. Landon who was defeated. It was these things that were beaten under the most amazing avalanche of votes ever rolled up for any single cause in this country:

1—The philosophy of corporation control;

2—The American daily press;

3—The notion that the individual, by himself, can be an effective factor for his own protection in modern industrial life.

Wealthy Families Beaten.

The worst beaten individuals are:

1—William Randolph Hearst;

2—The du Pont family;

3—Al Smith;

4—The Mellon family;

5—The other wealthy families that sought to form a hierarchy of wealth for political purposes.

The American nation has written itself down as definitely progressive

PLAN PROPOSED TO FINGERPRINT ALL EMPLOYES

Atlanta Agency Has Scheme for Mill Owners to Establish Nationwide Blacklist.

Anyone on "Undesirable" List Would Not Be Employed Anywhere After Being "Weeded Out" by "Peace-Loving" Boss.

Information has been brought to hand that there is a possibility of mill employers forcing their employes to file record of their finger prints for future reference. An agency known as "Southeastern Industrial Bureau of Identification," with offices in Atlanta, is sending out letters to southern employers, stating that under their proposed system when "an employe is once discharged from a mill as a trouble-maker or agitator, he will never be able to get work in another mill, for while he may change his name, he cannot change his finger prints."

In this manner, the agency says, "in a very short time we can weed out this undesirable element."

The letter follows:

Dear Sir:

Labor trouble all over the world is on the increase; in the southeastern states in the past twelve months we have had more than usual.

While this trouble affects many and is expensive, it is caused by a very few.

This trouble can be eliminated in a very short while with the cooperation of the mills, by fingerprinting the mill employes, and when the employe is once discharged from a mill as a trouble-maker or agitator, he will never be able to get work in another mill, for while he may change his name, he cannot change his fingerprints.

We propose to maintain a file in the city of Atlanta, Ga., for mill employes; to go to each mill and fingerprint all employes and to teach the superintendent to take prints of each new employe to be sent to this bureau; for the superintendent to notify us of all discharged persons and the reasons for such discharge.

When a set of prints come in to this office of a new employe who has been discharged as an undesirable from another mill, his new employer will be immediately notified.

In a very short time we can weed out this undesirable element.

The cost of this service is very small. A letter or a post card from you will bring a representative of this bureau to your office to explain the details of this work.

Yours very truly,

HARRY SPILMAN,
Fingerprint Expert.

ORGANIZE--NOW!

By GORDON DYE

From coast to coast the word comes that, "Now is the time to organize."

To which the logical answer is: "Well, go and organize."

If anything is needed today it is more unions—more cooperative effort — more solidarity, greater united action on all fronts to secure a shorter work day with higher pay, to increase purchasing power to avoid another depression.

Wage Increase Is Considered By Jones & Laughlin Steel

Pittsburgh, Pa.—It was reported that the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation planned a wage increase for its 20,000 employes within the near future. Several months ago the employes asked for an increase of 15 per cent. The action of the corporation officials was understood to be based on the necessity of reducing the widespread discontent among the workers with present wage rates.

DROP IN STATE RELIEF ROLLS.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The week ending Oct. 17 saw 7,506 persons dropping from the direct relief rolls in this state. In that week, 4,848 new cases were opened and 6,235 cases closed; a net gain of 1,387 cases covering the number of persons given above. Curiously enough, with the statewide decrease there was an increase of 111 relief cases in Philadelphia.

BROWNING SAYS ALL JOBS WILL BE ON MERITS

Civil Service System To Be Presented to New Legislature.

Governor Goes Into Seclusion to Prepare Program Next January—Prospects for Economy Administration.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 12.—Gov.-Elect Gordon Browning opened preliminary personnel division headquarters in Nashville Monday, Nov. 9, with the announcement that all applicants for state jobs under his administration must file applications and recommendations through this division office.

Under the Browning announcement opening the personnel office, no applications nor recommendations for jobs will be received personally by Gov. Browning, but solely through the personnel offices.

Application blanks can be secured personally or upon mail requests from the "Personnel Division," 240 Andrew Jackson Hotel, Nashville.

Browning will ask legislative approval of the civil service and merit system early in January, and will convert the temporary division into his permanent organization.

"Those who are incompetent and unworthy should not apply," the Browning statement emphasized, "for the reason that positions with the state are necessarily limited, and only efficient and trustworthy applicants will receive consideration."

He further emphasizes that "All applicants for state positions must come this way, and I am requesting those interested to use these facilities. All those who desire employment must fill out and file this application, so that it may be graded according to merit shown," he said.

Gov. Browning will go into practical seclusion within the next few days to formulate the bills and perfect plans for his full legislative program for early submission to the legislature in January. As the result, he will not be available to individuals or delegations interested in appointments, he has definitely declared.

All state jobs, except administrative and policy-forming posts, must be filled on a merit basis, he has reiterated from time to time, and the new personnel division is the first step toward accomplishment.

"My first obligation is to prepare and have ready for the general assembly the program presented to the people in the recent campaigns," Browning explains in his statement. "Therefore, I am asking my friends to be charitable and patient until this important task is performed. Naturally I would like to interview personally all friends who want positions, but this must come second to the immediate needs of the state," Browning said.

In simple, the announcement is interpreted to mean that there will be little patronage under the Browning administration, but instead a rigid application of merit system principles to the employment of all state workers.

LABOR'S LEAGUE ASSERTS RIGHT IN VOTE ARENA

4-Month Campaign Proved Workers Can Operate Effectively Politically.

Next Phase to Consolidate Experience for Future Policies Being Entered Into Immediately After November Election.

Washington.—Labor's Non-Partisan league has emerged from the national campaign, leading the parade.

Organized but four months before election, it whipped together a disciplined, fighting organization that literally led the fight for Roosevelt in a dozen states and was a real factor in every state, even contributing to the sizable vote rolled up for the president in the two states that did not give him their electoral vote.

One of the best tributes to the effectiveness of Labor's Non-Partisan league was in the stories brought to Washington by veteran newspaper correspondents who traveled through the country with the candidates. They reported that they were amazed at the energy and activity of state organizations of the league.

The story of this political miracle, as some call it, will not be written until weeks later, when detailed reports of work in all the states are available. But today it is known that the league was a tremendous factor

Attempt to Break Strike in Dalton Fails in 6th Week

Reports from the picket line in Dalton, Ga., at the American Thread mill, in its sixth week, say that last Tuesday, election day, a motorcade of some ten automobiles loaded with scabs attempted to rush into the mill and start up operation.

Fortunately unionists on hand were able to convince the would-be strikebreakers that it was not right to horn in in an attempt to take jobs which did not belong to them, and the motorcade turned back and made no further effort to go into the gates.

Labor Power in Congress Strengthened By Recent Nation-wide Balloting

LABOR PARTY GETS BIG START IN N. Y. STATE

"Forward to 1937" Is Slogan for New Party.

Tallied 300,000 Votes Indicate Workers Will Follow Their Own Political Emblem If Given Opportunity.

"Forward to 1937" is the slogan of the American labor party which arrived on the political scene in New York state as a powerful force with its tally of approximately 300,000 votes under its own labor party emblem.

The close of the campaign scarcely diminished the activity at state headquarters as the leaders turned immediately to the task of building the machinery for future elections in every district in the city and every county in the state. Not only do close political observers consider the work of the American labor party a decisive factor in swinging the state's 47 electoral votes into the Roosevelt column, but its vote is thought to have definitely assured Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's re-election.

With two such proud accomplishments already to its credit, as well as the record of electing several upstate candidates for congress and the local legislative bodies, the new labor party can be said to have made a stirringly successful debut.

Its contribution to the Roosevelt landslide is seen in the prevalent belief that at least double its own recorded vote was induced by the American labor party campaign to vote for Roosevelt. Hundreds of thousands of voters, unable to locate the cogwheel emblem on the voting machines and ballots, or unwilling to split their tickets, are known to have given their support directly to the democratic party.

"For each of these votes in our column," Elinore M. Herrick, state campaign director commented in this regard, "we feel justified in asserting that several others who went over to these candidates recorded their votes under the democratic emblem."

The labor party, it will be recalled, did not offer any local candidates for election in Greater New York, where its best showing was made. Upstate, it jointly nominated a few.

Most significant in the big showing made by the American labor party is the fact that a number of upstate counties, which are traditionally republican, were carried for the first time by Roosevelt this year. They included Monroe, Erie, Schenectady, Rookland and Oneonta. In each of them, the new party waged an intensive drive for votes, and, according to Mrs. Herrick, the narrow margin by which they were won by President Roosevelt was strongly indicative of how valuable was the labor backing.

Party leaders were frankly jubilant over their showing. The 250,000 votes made in New York City, and the 50,000 secured elsewhere in the state were regarded by them as a true indication of how deeply the Empire State trades union members and progressives wished for a political party of their own.

They called it "a mandate from the labor, liberal and progressive elements in New York to continue the task of building a powerful independent party."

With this in mind, Mrs. Herrick declared that the American labor party members and hundreds of af-

Leading Senatorial Opponents of Labor Legislation Defeated

Hastings, of Delaware; Metcalf, of Rhode Island, and Others Lose, While Norris and Borah, Staunch Progressives, Win—House Friends of Workers Re-elected.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—While chuckling over the enormous, unprecedented vote which it helped so much to roll up for Roosevelt, labor has not forgotten for a minute the importance of congress. The most friendly president cannot sign a law protecting labor until congress has passed it. With Roosevelt safe—by a majority 2,000,000 greater than the entire vote for Woodrow Wilson in 1916, labor leaders are scanning the senatorial and representative lists—and are still chuckling.

What perhaps more than anything else pleases labor about the new senate is the absence of certain gentlemen from its ranks. Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware; W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey, Jesse H. Metcalf, of Rhode Island—all are gone from among the senators, and only economic royalists mourn their passing. Hastings was a captain and Metcalf and Barbour were top sergeants of the Old Guard; always on the watch to spike anything that looked "too friendly" to labor.

T. F. Green replaces Metcalf in Rhode Island; W. H. Smathers takes the seat of Barbour for New Jersey, and J. H. Hughes speaks for Delaware in place of Hastings. None of the three has a nation-wide reputation; but all of them won in a fight

Legion Warned Against Joining in Mob Attacks

Indianapolis, Ind.—A warning against members of the American Legion becoming parties in violent attempts to interfere with communists speeches and meetings was made here by Harry W. Colmery, national legion commander.

In an article in the official Legion publication, the National Legionnaire, Mr. Colmery cited recent events where communists were barred from speaking platforms in Terre Haute and other places.

"Unfortunately, either rightly or wrongly, legionnaires are reported to have been associated with them," he wrote, adding:

"In the absence of a competent investigation I shall not particularize; but I feel that it is essential that I should take cognizance of a situation which, if it persists, not only will do immeasurable harm to the Legion but will undermine the faith of the people in the Legion and in our democratic form of government."

SALINAS WORKERS VOTE TO END LONG WALKOUT

Salinas, Cal.—The Salinas lettuce strike ended on Nov. 3. The Fruit and Vegetable Workers' union, whose members went on strike Sept. 4 after the Growers-Shippers' association refused to grant preferential employment concessions, voted to go back to work. Two units of the union voted separately in Watsonville and Salinas. The balloting was 613 for and 342 against.

A. S. Doss, secretary of the union, said "the men will go back to work as soon as possible."

Employers indicated they will not discharge strikebreakers who have been working behind barricaded packing sheds for six weeks. They intimated the union men will be taken back on their jobs when openings are available.

500 Meetings to Mobilize Public Sentiment for Peace

Philadelphia.—Peace meetings in 500 cities before Jan. 1, 1937, to mobilize public sentiment against war are now being arranged under direction of the emergency peace campaign with headquarters here, Ray Newton, campaign director, announced.

Distinguished Americans in many fields will participate in the undertaking, including U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye.

Those foreign nations that bought a war on the installment plan act just like all people who buy on that plan. Ain't it so?

WORSTED CO. GIVES MORE PAY TO 1,700

Providence, R. I.—About 1,700 employes of the Stillwater Worsted company have been granted an immediate wage increase of $3 to $5 weekly.

The Stillwater company, controlled by Austin T. Levy, operates plants in Rhode Island, Connecticut and Virginia.

"Our nation has the resources to supply and maintain a 1936 kind of civilization, and business as now constituted cannot endure unless these resources are utilized," the company announced. "Such a civilization resulting from the free utilization of the national resources can be maintained only if the income of the people is sufficient to support it."

It was reported that several other Rhode Island corporations planned wage increases.

Labor men consider it significant that pay increases are being granted following a launching of a campaign by the United Textile Workers of America for higher pay in worsted and woolen mills.

80,000 Reported Organized In Steel Unionism Campaign

Pittsburgh.—The Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, spearhead in the John L. Lewis drive to organize the nation's steel workers on an industrial basis, announces it has enrolled 82,315 members since its campaign started in June.

The announcement came from the committee chairman, Philip Murray, on the eve of a national meeting of the Committee on Industiral Organization.

Ministers say every man should be a hero to his wife. That's easy—like building a bridge across the ocean, taking a trip to the moon, or getting Europe to pay this country what it owes us.

Governor's Statement Sounds Good

Gov. Browning, just elected, has been informing the people from time to time of various ideas of his which he expects to put into operation when he assumes office in January. Most recent is his announcement that job-seekers will have to make applications for positions through an agency which he is setting up.

This agency will give certain tests for efficiency rather than for vote control. The governor says that under his administration his employes will have to "put out," and that he will do his best to have passed a civil service law for Tennessee which will protect employes of the state from political maneuvering.

We wonder if the governor's civil service plans would be enforced in the Kingdom of Shelby?

A Progressive Move by Our County Judge

Our county judge has built up for himself a reputation of being aggressive during his many years in office in that he has frequently championed important public improvements (although he fell down a lot in supporting payment of decent salaries to teachers). Within his quarter-century or more of public life the county has built fine highways, bridges and public institutions.

In the recent hospital controversy the judge allowed himself to be overawed by the "do-nothing" element here, and he came very near to letting that group cause Chattanooga to lose the golden opportunity of building a modern and adequate hospital.

We find today, however, that the judge has resumed leadership in the community. Backed up by labor and the Citizens' Council, the court has set a special meeting for next Monday to make final arrangements to see that Chattanooga really gets the hospital they should have.

We hail this forward step.

Organize Now!

To the laboring people who by their votes on Nov. 3 indorsed the new deal in its efforts to protect the laborer who, standing alone would not protect himself, I congratulate you. In exercising your franchise right, you served notice on the would-be masters that this government is still a government of "the people."

But if you sit down now and wait for ham and eggs to be brought around to you on a silver platter you will never receive the fruits of your labor.

You must remember that there is one branch of the government, "without any specified constitutional or legal authority by law," exercising a questionable right to make laws by deciding what shall not be law. Your vote did not change this situation. Therefore if you expect to better your condition in life, to get better wages, to shorten the hours of labor, to better conditions of employment, you will have to place yourself in a position to obtain them and maintain them after you receive them.

The only way you can do this is by organizing yourselves into labor unions, so you can force collective bargaining and make contracts that the courts will not attempt to decide unconstitutional. The time to do anything is to do it when it should be done. The time to organize is now.

The welfare of all laboring people is linked up together. Your wages are base on and regulated by what your employer thinks you can get by on; the wage rate for what is called common labor is too low to maintain an average decent standard of living.

All low wage scales reduce the consuming power of the people to keep the wheels of industry going. To this fact, and this fact alone, must be laid the blame for these so-called depression periods that occur ever so often and bring misery and privation to us who have not placed ourselves in a position to protect ourselves.

So, if you want to better your conditions, if you want to make yourself secure in your rights to earn a living by your labor, come on in, join the union now, then go after someone else and don't stop till every person working in the plant is a member of the union. Then it won't be long until you will begin to obtain results which will add to the welfare of every person who wants to do the decent thing. T. J. SMITH.

Press reports say that Senator K. D. McKellar, of Memphis, will demand a senatorial investigation of the recent Literary Digest straw vote. Now wouldn't it be embarrassing if the Literary Digest would call for a similar investigation of elections held in Shelby county?

Johnny—Say, dad, why doesn't the sea ever dry up?

Daddy—Because it's like you—it can't.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

SEEKING BASIS

The executive committee is seeking information from the city as to the basis on which the recent infinitesimal increases were granted, and the total amount of money appropriated for teachers' salary increases.

DELEGATES PREPARE ANSWER

Delegates to the annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers are preparing a report on the convention, copies of which will be mailed to all members. This report will serve as an answer to the scurrilous and thoroughly inaccurate article republished in the Free Press from the pro-fascist National Republic under the auspices of the local legion Americanization committee. The teachers are willing to compare their convention with any held by the American Legion, using the authorized press reports as the basis. While the teachers are charged with removing their coats and ties during convention, it is reported that the Legiannaires have not always stopped at this stage of undress during their meets.

CENTRAL BODY CONCURS

The Chattanooga Central Labor union passed a resolution introduced by federation delegates protesting the dismissal of Dr. Jerome Davis, president of the A. F. of T., from his position as associate professor in Yale Divinity school. It also instructed the delegates to the A. F. of L. convention to introduce or support a similar resolution on the floor at Tampa. This action was in support of similar action taken previously by the federation board of directors. Teachers who wish to familiarize themselves with the details of the Davis case are advised to read the article by Dr. Douglas C. MacIntosh, professor of theology at Yale Divinity school, in the November 4 issue of Christian Century, or the statement of the Yale-New Haven teachers' local, both to be found at the federation office.

TEACHERS LEAD FOR UNITY

Federation delegates to the CLU introduced a resolution to instruct the CLU delegate to Tampa to vote for unity in the labor movement and against expulsion of unions affiliated with the committee for industrial organization. It was passed by an enthusiastic unanimous vote. The teachers may well feel proud that their delegates took the lead in this important action.

COMMITTEES EXPANDS

The academic freedom committee is adding approximately twenty names to its roster immediately and is setting regular meeting dates.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Teachers who have a desire to do some service for the federation may very usefully occupy themselves during spare downtown moments by dropping into the office and cutting clippings from newspapers for the federation files.

PICK A JOB

Is there any educational project on which you would like to work through the federation? If so, call at the office and you'll get a job, either on one of the present committees or on a new one created to fit your inclinations.

Labor's Non-Partisan league paid for and jointly sponsored a nation-wide radio broadcast five nights a week on the Columbia network, sharing sponsorship with the Progressive league and the Good Neighbor league. One of the most effective broadcasts of the campaign was organized by the league when six labor officials were put on the air in a symposium broadcast to explain the social security act after the Landonites had thrown their lie about it into the campaign.

Labor's Non-Partisan league led a labor force composed of almost the entire labor movement. It energized the parade of thirty-five state federations of labor which indorsed Roosevelt and the list of national and international unions that did likewise in an almost unbroken line from beginning to end of the directory of unions. There were but two unions of any size that did not join in the indorsement and in these dozens of local unions were in the Roosevelt line-up and in harmony with the league, many joining the league in membership.

During the campaign Labor's Non-Partisan league built a cardholding membership on a permanent basis extending from coast to coast.

The league's first objective was re-filiated groups can be certain of the fulfillment of their hopes.

"They have proven to us, to themselves and to the state and nation at large that a real labor party can be built up overnight, and that it can carry enormous weight in an election. They have proven that a real labor party for today and for the future is wanted. They have one."

It was pointed out at campaign headquarters, incidentally, that the 300,000 tally far surpassed the expectations of the party's founders.

election of the president. Its declared second purpose is to "walk with him" through his second term. That task now begins and already national headquarters has its plans under way for the job.

President George L. Berry has communicated with every state chairman regarding the next phase of work and other steps will be announced shortly. The election marked a point to be passed, but it didn't indicate even a lull in operations.

Appreciation of the co-operation of labor papers throughout the country was officially expressed at headquarters and their future value was emphasized, with special reference to the rebuke by the voters of the overwhelming bulk of the daily papers who joined in the fight against the president, the meanest in all American history.

No effort was made to single out any state or group of states as having the best record for Labor's Non-Partisan league effort, but there was free admission on all sides that league operations contributed heavily to the results in New York and Pennsylvania, with their huge blocks of electoral votes. But there was effective state organizations throughout the country, some lacking the opportunity for spectacular results possible in the two big states, with their traditional republican background.

All the election polls overlooked the work of the league, a fact contributing heavily to their wide margin of error—some so wide that their sponsors appear no less than ridiculous. It is a fact recorded at headquarters that in every single case the reports of state league chairmen to headquarters here were an accurate and dependable forecast of the result.

Labor's first unified, organized political effort has been a record smashing phenomenon. It proceeded according to plan and schedule and at no point did it fall behind plan or schedule. Labor has built the most remarkable political organization in all world labor history.

Because of the intricacies of the double-nominations and the very novelty of a new party, they had not expected to roll up anywhere near such a score.

The party itself was only founded in the beginning of August. Without any organization or system, it set out to evolve a strong nucleus of liberals. So successful were its early endeavors that instead of the requisite 12,000 signatures on petitions for placement on the ballot, a total of 60,000 were submitted. The party also was strongly responsible, it is stated, for bringing out the huge registration last month.

A permanent organization that encompasses practically every portion of New York state has now been set up. Enrooted in local unions and other liberal groups, it will set to work immediately upon a program of interesting even more voters in the American labor party planks and plans.

"The victory of the American labor party," it was remarked by Mrs. Herrick, "was one which can be shared jointly by all of its friends and members. It means that the party will grow stronger and stronger. It is proud to have helped obtain the magnificent triumphs for President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman. It is a victory not for them but for the people of the nation and the state. We feel that our party's intensive campaign has been a decisive factor in placing New York's 47 electors in the Roosevelt column and in carrying the state for Lehman.

"Our vote is larger than we anticipated. Moreover, we know that hundreds of thousands who voted for Roosevelt and Lehman under the democratic star did so as a result of our campaign work. We regard this as a triumph for a party only three months old, and as a mandate from the labor, liberal and progressive forces in New York to continue the task of building a powerful independent party.

"Repeatedly during the campaign we emphasized our determination to remain as a permanent political party. The splendid record made in the polling has turned that determination into a certainty. The American labor party is on the political map. It has been placed there by the will of workers, organized and unorganized, of professional men and small business men. It regards this victorious election day not as an end but as a beginning."

Two candidates for congress, nominated by the American labor party, crashed through to outstanding victories. George Kelly, of Rochester, and Frank McElroy, of Syracuse, both running simultaneously on the democratic ticket, were elected. The Kelly success, together with the election of two state senators and two assemblymen of Rochester, all backed by the labor party, is regarded as the most important factor in achieving the city for Lehman standards. Mr. Kelly's candidacy had first been helped him win the democratic nomination from the present incumbent after a bitterly fought primary struggle.

Two labor party candidates in Utica, each of whom also had a democratic nomination, John Walsh as state senator and Paul Mercier as assemblyman, were swept into office also.

The greatest satisfaction was derived by the labor party officials from the election of McElroy to congress. He had been active in the Remington-Rand strike, and although he also had the democratic candidacy, he was particularly labor's choice. He defeated Horace Stone, who is considered by them one of organized labor's most hostile foes.

"In electing Mr. Kelly and Mr. McElroy to congress," Mrs. Herrick added, "in placing labor party candidates in the state senate and the assembly, we have made a start in translating labor's desire for independent political action into reality."

ELECTION GIVES

and as determined to back a program designed for people as against a program designed for corporations.

It may easily develope that the era of corporations is over, except as purely legal devices to facilitate production.

New Prestige for Labor.

Labor emerges from the campaign with remarkable triumph written on banners that flew in defiance of all the inherited tradition of the labor movement; but which flew in recognition of a fact. That fact was that the old way had ceased to work. Labor never has needed any other fact in determining policy.

When Labor's Non Partisan league was thrown into the arena only four months prior to election it was not given a welcome universally. But it went into the campaign and rolled up a prestige and a velocity amazing in every particular. It joined hands openly with progressives under the LaFollette-Norris leadership, with its heavy farmer strength and thus brought about the first really successful farmer-labor alliance. It declared its purpose to maintain that position through the new Roosevelt term and to work for a realignment of forces into two camps, one progressive, the other conservative.

With the reverberating rumble of the astounding Roosevelt vote at its back, the league stands on a pinnacle from which to start the new phase of its undertaking. This is objective reporting and nothing else.

Further Corporation Curb Looms.

Inevitably, league leadership has gained new prestige which may count in several directions—a fact worth facing everywhere.

This impending second Roosevelt term will be as different from the first in everything that affects labor as the first Roosevelt term was from what preceded it. Undeniably, labor now has its hands on chairs at the inner council tables.

There may be several economic consequences of the victory. There were pacific statements from political leaders after the votes were counted. But it is quite apparent there will be no cessation of hostilities toward the anti-social forces that backed the Landon campaign. How many forms this resentment may take is open to conjecture. But certainly the legislative program now impending must be directed toward carrying out pledges to restrict the power of corporate wealth. That program is mainly found in Roosevelt's Madison Square Garden speech, which all unions ought to keep on file for the record.

New Labor Pattern.

But the outstanding fact of the hour is that labor itself has won a political victory entirely new in American life and the effects of that achievement are bound to project into the future, making labor's coming four years entirely new in pattern, in the industrial arena as well as in the political arena. The force of such a blow as has just been struck cannot stop with the impact upon the immediate surface; it goes through to the back walls also.

LABOR POWER

against the Old Guard machine. Until they have had a chance to prove themselves in their new positions, this fact may be taken as a certificate of character.

Many Labor Group Holdovers.

L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, was not so complete a reactionary as the three eastern senators named; but he was a pretty staunch Old Guardsman on most matters, and labor welcomes his successor, Clyde L. Herring.

Labor—and for that matter, the whole liberal group—was uncommonly lucky in the number of its friends in the senate whose terms run two or four years longer.

Wagner, of New York, author of the national labor relations act, seems to have a right to a place at the head of the procession. Wheeler, of Montana, author of the utility holding company law, and La Follette, of Wisconsin, now busy tearing off the lid of labor spy systems, are strong competitors for first place. Then there is Duffy, also of Wisconsin; Nye and Frazier, of North Dakota; Bone and Schwellenbach, of Washington; Johnson and McAdoo, of California; Black, of Alabama, of the 30-hour week bill; Barkley, of Kentucky; O'Mahony, of Wyoming, are other members of this group. Some of them have rendered very great services to labor; all of them have given voice and vote to most of the new deal measures in which labor has a keen interest.

Good Friends Re-elected.

The list of senatorial friends of labor re-elected this year is shorter than that of the holdovers, but remarkably fine. First, by right of long and superb service to labor and to the nation is George W. Norris, of Nebraska. Elected hitherto as a republican, he finished his divorcement from that party by supporting Roosevelt in 1932 and again this year. Norris intended to quit public life, and changed his mind almost wholly on the ground that his presence in the campaign would help Roosevelt carry Nebraska.

He ran as an independent; and in spite of the many handicaps of that position, he was re-elected. Also, Roosevelt carried Nebraska. Norris is the author of the law curbing the use of injunctions in labor disputes, had a leading part in writing Section 7a—the charter of labor liberties—into the national industrial recovery act, whence it was lifted to the national labor relations act, and is the real progenitor of TVA.

Borah Again Wins.

Another famous member of the progressive republican group returned to the senate is William E. Borah, of Idaho. Borah ran this year on the republican ticket, as before. But he flatly refused to campaign for Landon; and when the du Pont-Hearst alliance financing and managing the Landon campaign tried to put pressure on Borah, he declared publicly that if he did take the stump on national affairs, he would speak his own mind, and the supporters of Landon would not like it. The pressure stopped.

Bankhead, of Alabama, and Capper, of Kansas, are two more senators who have earned—and received—the support of labor. Byrnes, of South Carolina, is another.

House Labor Victories.

In the house, David John Lewis, of Maryland, father of the parcels post law, veteran supporter and defender of every labor and liberal measure, and the man who introduced many bills that foreshadowed new deal measures, was re-elected. William P. Connery, of Massachusetts, chairman of the house labor committee, and James M. Mead, guide, philosopher and friend of government employes, came back to continue their splendid service. So did many others; but house rules do not foster the development of outstanding merit in any line, as do those of the senate.

Taking both houses together, the coming congress is emphatically a new deal congress, and a congress more than ordinarily friendly to labor.

Stockton Labor Attacks Unfair Work Conditions of Two Firms

Stockton, Cal.—The Stockton Central Labor council took definite action against the Montgomery Ward store and the Kress store lunch for their unfair labor conditions.

The case of the Montgomery Ward store was brought to the attention of the council through the strike of the union clerks employed by that concern.

For several months the Culinary Workers' union has endeavored without avail to reach an understanding with the management of the Kress store lunch to secure wages and other conditions enjoyed by over 600 culinary workers in Stockton. The union reported its failure to the Central Labor council.

After a thorough discussion the council requested union workers to withhold their patronage from the two concerns until satisfactory adjustments were made.

MINERS' STRIKE TO SECURE CONTRACT WAGES WINS OUT

Hazleton, Pa.—A promise by the Lehigh Valley Coal company to reimburse rock miners for alleged underpayment of contract wages brought agreement to end a three-day strike of 4,000 miners.

Hugh Brown, president of District 7, United Mine Workers of America, announced the settlement.

The workers at twelve of Lehigh's operations struck, charging that Charles Higdon had refused to pay wages provided in the contract between himself, the company and the unions.

Textile Workers Plan New Drive For Boost In Wage Schedules

Puckett Tells of Plans for New Organization Movement in Dixie—General Forward Step Is Goal.

Enormous Salaries of "Sock Mill" Executives Recalled, and Determination for a "New Deal" Stressed by Local Representative of United Organization—20 Per Cent Increase Set as Goal Throughout United States.

DALTON TEXTILE STRIKE SETTLED

Local trades unionists are glad to learn that the strike which has been in progress at the Dalton unit of the American Thread mill for the past six weeks has been settled and the mill is running at full capacity again.

On last Saturday M. W. Clark, general superintendent of manufacturing, flew in from New York and went into conference with F. Lee Gavitt, agent for the Dalton plant, together with representatives of Textile Union No. 1893 and C. D. Puckett, a representative of the United Textile Workers of America.

The details of the settlement have not been made public, but an agreement was reached which was acceptable to both parties and all employes are back at work again. A friendly attitude was maintained throughout the negotiations and there was no interruption of trouble during the time that the mill was closed down.

On Oct. 13 President McMahon, of the United Textile Workers of America, issued a public statement stating that at the next meeting of the executive council of this organization, he would recommend that the council indorse demands for a 20 per cent increase in wages in the entire textile industry of the United States and Canada.

In making demands for a wage increase in the textile industry, President McMahon gives some outstanding reasons why the wages of the textile workers of this country should be increased and called to the attention of the workers. In connection with Mr. McMahon's statement, C. D. Puckett, local representative of the U. T. W. of A., issued the following statement:

"First, we all recognize the improvement in business, and many manufacturers have admitted that an increase is due to the textile workers. A number of employers in the textile industry have already made increases, since Nov. 3. I am sure that we must have confidence in our great leader, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who will map the course we follow the next four years, and are blazing the trail for true prosperity.

"The cost of living has increased during the year 1936, while in many cases the income of the textile workers has been reduced, and it is also true that most employers have not posted wage rate reductions to their employes, but it is apparent from inquiring employes and their weekly wage received that the employer has forgotten the minimum wage for the industry set up in the code of fair competition under the NRA. This has resulted in decreased earnings for the textile workers, and thereby lowered their living standards.

"Some employers have reduced wages and increased hours, creating unfair competition at the expense of the employes. In most cases where wages have been reduced in the south company-dominated company unions have been forced on the workers under the pressure of employer agents. The employes are not satisfied with these conditions, and have told me that they were not going to stand for this mistreatment any longer.

"The United Textile Workers are ready to assist these employes in breaking the yoke of bondage where these conditions exist.

"Take a glance at the salaries paid to officers of textile concerns. It is apparent that these salaries do not harmonize with salaries paid textile workers. In 1929 the average salary of the officers of the industry was $7,250. Officers in 31 per cent of the largest companies received salaries in 1934 averaging $36,000, and if bonuses are included the average would be $40,000. The salaries, including bonuses, of some textile officers amounted to over $100,000 for 1935.

"Some southern textile officers received salaries of $40,000, $50,000, and some higher for 1935.

"From these high salaries, let us look at the wages paid the workers in the industry:

"Time card No..... June, 1934, to June, 1935, worked 51 weeks; salary for year, $558.80. June, 1935, to June, 1936, worked 52 weeks; salary, $538.55. These wages, taken from record of employe who worked for a Tennessee corporation are not the lowest, or highest, about an verage.

"For the month of July, 1936, the average wage per hour in the cotton textile industry was 37.5c as compared with wages paid all factory workers in this country for the same month, which was 57c per hour. For the same month the average weekly wage for textile workers was $13.65, as compared to all factory workers in the country, which was $22.40.

"Regarding workers employed in other industries for the same month the following are the average weekly wage paid for July, 1936:

Automobile, independent	$29.55
Blast furnace and rolling mills	26.40
Foundry and machine shop	24.80
Brake manufacturers	18.95
Saw mills	18.70
Tires and inner tubes	31.05
Petroleum and refining	29.40
Slaughtering and meat packing	23.85
Paper and pulp	21.45
Cotton textile industry	13.65

"Down at the bottom of the list the cotton textile worker who, with his skill, clothed the population, receives the magnificent average of $13.65 per week.

"Of course, if the employer is approached for an increase in wage, as usual, 'we cannot make any money.'

"With prices continually going up, the textile workers will not be able to exist unless the unorganized rally to organization, and those already organized lead the way for higher wages. As things are, the present standards for textile workers have dropped to a very low level.

"I appeal to every textile worker to become aware of this condition and to take a deeper interest in their economic organization, so that wages may be increased in the south and the standard of living be maintained. If we show a real interest in our cause, we will be able to increase the present standard of living, and in so doing we will be subscribing our efforts and energy toward bringing forth a greater prosperity to this country."

Florsheim Shoe Company Renews Union Agreement

Chicago.—The Chicago plant of the Florsheim Shoe company will continue to be a union shop.

This welcome news was announced following several conferences between union representatives and company executives. The firm agreed to renew a contract, without change, covering wages and hours. Workers in the Florsheim plant are paid from 66 cents to $1.20 an hour and have the 44-hour work week.

NLRB Authority To Hold Employe Elections Upheld

District of Columbia Court of Appeals Rejects Employers' Claim Ballot Would Cause Them Irreparable Injury.

Washington.—The court of appeals of the District of Columbia has upheld the rights of the national labor relations board to hold employe elections to determine who shall represent the employes in collective bargaining with their employers.

In reality, the court of appeals has decided seven suits in settling one, that of Heller Bros. & Co., a hardware manufacturing firm of Newcomerstown, Ohio. The case went against Heller Bros. in the lower court, and they appealed. Also appealing under the same conditions were the A. C. Lawrence Leather company, the Brown Shoe company, the Beaver Falls Mills corporation, the Bethlehem Ship Building corporation and the Pilgrim corporation.

No "Irreparable Injury."

All came to court, pleading that the national labor relations act was unconstitutional, and that the hearings and elections which the board proposed to hold would cause irreparable injury to the companies, through friction, discord, loss of efficiency and destruction of morale among the employes.

The court of appeals answered that nothing alleged in the suit would cause damage, let alone irreparable damage, to the companies.

"The act itself provides for judicial review of the instance of the employers and every order of the board which is not voluntarily obeyed is subject—before it is final and conclusive—to judicial scrutiny.

Courts Provide Redress.

"What the board does is primarily investigatory, it is the order of a court of competent jurisdiction which gives vitality to its act and proceedings. The act also provides an easy access to the court whenever there is believed to be an arbitrary exercise by the board of any of the powers conferred by the act."

If the employers lost a little in expense and time, said the court, that was hard luck, no doubt, but nothing to go to court about.

"These losses will have to be borne by employers without redress because they are incident to every sort of trial, and are part of the social burden of living under governments."

Sheboygan Truck Drivers Win Daylight Deliveries of Milk

Sheboygan, Wis.—Truck Drivers' Local Union No. 56 is reported to have secured so far the consent of over 90 per cent of the dairies in this district to inaugurate the practice of "daylight deliveries."

It is expected the daylight deliveries will start just as soon as a formal request is approved by the state department of agriculture and markets, as required by state law. Under the proposed plan no dairy will start deliveries until 6 o'clock in the morning.

During the summer, milk drivers usually start making deliveries soon after 1 o'clock in the morning. The extreme cold of winter months makes such a practice extremely hard on the hundreds of workers who are employed by the dairies. Again the value of organization by workers is clearly demonstrated.

The British Broadcasting company officially inaugurated television programs from the Alexandra Palace, London, on Nov. 2 with a program including "Buck and Bubbles," two American negroes recently with the review "Transatlantic Rhythm." Later programs included variety and new films. Newspapers began printing programs similar to ordinary radio programs.

CHURCHMEN IN STRONG SUPPORT LABOR'S RIGHTS

Southern Council Proclaims Sympathy for Workers.

FREEDOM ESSENTIAL TO SELF-RESPECT

Collective Bargaining Held Inalienable Prerogative, Free from Intimidation and Violence.

In a statement to the press early this week the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen came out officially for the right of workers to organize in independent unions. "We believe that it is," the statement said, "essential to the self-respect of the workers that they have freedom to become a part of the organized labor movement. We thus seek to encourage workers' affiliation with trade unions and to educate our church constituencies to appreciate and defend the right of all men and women to bargain collectively, free from intimidation and violence, 'legal' or extra-legal."

Meeting at Norris, Tenn., on Nov. 11-14, the ministers elected the following officers for the coming year: Rev. Thomas B. Cowan, president; Rev. Howard Kester, general secretary, and Rev. A. Nightingale, treasurer.

The full official statement adopted by the conference follows:

"As Christian men and women we find resources for the solution of the basic problems confronting our world in a common prophetic religious heritage. Believing that the salvation of the individual and of society are one and inseparable, we must accept responsibility for the widespread poverty, class-conflict, racial bitterness, warfare and unemployment accompanied by the contemporary moral disintegration and an overwhelming sense of futility and despair throughout much of the world today.

"We consider this chaos as the judgment of God upon a world which has forsaken the commandment to love our neighbor as ourselves and as evidence of the need for fundamental and basic change.

"We associate ourselves as a 'Fellowship of Southern Churchmen' to seek God's guidance in advancing the following principles:

"1. We seek to identify ourselves with an energizing minority of prophetic Christians who are trying to discover and give practical expression to the historic redemptive mission of our religion; 'to set at liberty them that are bruised, to proclaim release to the captive, and recovering of sight to the blind, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord.'

"We thus commit ourselves to work for a society in which opportunities for the abundant life are more justly and fairly given to the masses of men.

"2. We reject the idea that the labor of men should be bought and sold as a commodity, a pawn in the hands of exploiters, since it violates the right of men and women to participate as responsible personalities in the organization of their economic life and, moreover, relegates them to a status practically identical with that of the machine in present society.

"We believe that human values are more important than property values; and therefore we seek to supplant an economic system motivated by profit with one motivated by service.

"3. We condemn any system of industrial and agricultural organization which results in exploitation of human and natural resources, e. g., as seen in unorganized industrial workers manipulated by irresponsible employers unwilling to meet the demands of decent standards of living, and the system of land tenancy and sharecropping in the states where we labor.

"4. We believe that it is essential to the self-respect of the workers that they have freedom to become part of the organized labor movement. We thus seek to encourage workers' affiliation with trade unions and to educate our church constituencies to appreciate and defend the right of all men and women to bargain collectively free from intimidation and violence, 'legal' or extra-legal.

"5. We believe it is the duty of every Christian to uphold the greatest and most important safeguards of a free and democratic people; namely, the rights of freedom of speech, press and assemblage. We deplore the attempts of so-called American patriots to interfere with these privileges, as well as the signs of a growing fascist spirit within the southern states evidenced in floggings, teachers' oaths and other abridgments of academic freedom, concentration camps, vigilante service of deputized landowners and hoodlums in certain sections, which critically challenge these fundamental rights.

"We assert the right of freedom of the pulpit which is historically identified with the prophetic character of the Judaic and Christian religions; and in line with this we insist that no employers or any persons or groups responsible for any part of an individual's wages shall place restraint upon the free expression of his opinions or coerce his actions. Our hope of achieving our social goals by democratic processes depends upon the preservation of these civil rights."

We're "Building Up to An Awful Let-Down" unless we maintain union wages, shorten hours and buy union label goods.

McCann Given Signal Honor By Conference In Nation's Capital

President Roosevelt Promises Governmental Co-operation in All Labor Undertakings.

Former President of State Federation Submits Interesting Report of Washington Conference on Labor Legislation — Holds Long and Interesting Pow-wow With President Green—Commissioner Jacobs Also in Attendance.

R. S. McCann, president of the Memphis Trades and Labor council, also president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, returned from Washington this week, where he attended the third annual conference on labor legislation called by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

President McCann was signally honored at the conference, having been named chairman of the housing committee, which is composed of leading labor luminaries from all over the country.

Chairman

R. L. McCANN
Named to Head Housing Committee at Washington Conference.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Memphis Trades and Labor council at the Labor Temple, President McCann submitted his report of the Washington conference. The report follows:

"The meeting of the third National Labor conference was called to order at 10:30 a.m. Monday in the beautiful new department of labor building, Washington, D. C., by Secretary of Labor Madam Perkins. Representatives of organized labor and labor departments from thirty-eight states and Porto Rico were present. Numbers of international union representatives, representatives of the A. F. of L. and representatives of the various state and national departmentments of labor were also present.

"After the invocation by a local pastor and address of welcome by Madam Perkins a brief discussion of the benefits derived from the previous conference occurred and it was agreed that progress in passing uniform labor legislation in many states had taken place because of interest aroused at the previous conferences. It was also agreed that if possible these conferences should be held annually. Reports were made by committees continued from last year. In some instances the reports made were adopted; however, several committees were continued. During the Monday session, which adjourned at 1:30, committees were appointed on the following subjects: Industrial health and safety, workmen compensation, regulation of private employment offices, hours of labor, minimum wage, child labor, employment service, unemployment compensation, housing, vacations with pay, cooperation between state and federal departments of labor, apprenticeship and resolutions, and I was so fortunate or unfortunate as to be appointed chairman of the committee on housing, which consumed a goodly portion of my time and kept me from hearing

Steel Co. Ordered By NLRB to Cease War Against Union

Decision Also Directs Reinstatement of Two Efficient Workers Laid Off for Union Activity.

Washington.—The national labor relations board has ordered the Crucible Steel Company of America to end its interference with Local 20084, Strip Steel and Wire Workers' union, a Federal Labor union affiliate of the A. F. of L., which has been organized among the company's 475 production workers at the Spaulding & Jennings plant, Jersey City, N. J.

The board also ordered the company to reinstate with back pay Alva Kocher and John Lutz, both of whom the company discharged on December 6, 1935, one week after their respective elections as president and sergeant-at-arms of Local 20084.

Unionism Always Beaten.

At a hearing before Trial Examiner Benedict Wolf last March in New York City it was testified that Richard Benowitz, the plant superintendent, demanded assurance from Kocher that reports of his soliciting for the union were not true. "I can't understand why you didn't come to me before you got mixed up in this union," Benowitz stated, adding that he had been in the plant thirty years and that no attempt at organization had succeeded. "The men had always been kicked out."

John Lutz, it was testified, was told by his foreman that the union was "a bunch of communists." An offer of preferment was made to Lutz if he would subdue his active interest in the union.

Poor Excuse Given.

Both Kocher and Lutz, experienced and skilled workers, were laid off on the excuse of slack work at a time when this apparently was not the case.

In comment on the company's action in singling out prominent union leaders for discharge the decision states:

"To discourage labor activity among employes newly organized and very little experienced is for an employer a comparatively simple thing. The discharge of two leaders without more evidence brings a clear and forceful message to men who are acutely aware of their employer's underlying power and the favor upon which they must rely for economic livelihood."

Vancouver Unions Win Two Big Bakery Strikes

Wages Increases, 44-Hour Week, Union Shop and Check-off Dues Collection Secured by Bakers and Drivers.

Vancouver, B. C., Canada.—Bakers' Union No. 468 and Bakery Salesmen No. 189 have just concluded a joint agreement with two large bakeries here, following a hard struggle of six weeks, which many regard as one of the most complete labor victories ever won in this city. Robertson's Bakery and the Cowan-Dodson bakery have signed the joint union agreement, thus joining McGavin's bakery in providing Vancouver with three important thoroughly union bakeries. The fight continues with other bakeries, and additional agreements are expected.

Under the settlement, by which the strike was called off, bakers will receive wages ranging from $27.40 down to $21 for helpers per week, the 44-hour work week, with time and a half for overtime, the "closed shop" by which all employes must be union members and the check-off system of dues collections.

Bakery Salesmen (drivers) get a minimum of $23 a week, with 10 per cent on wholesale sales; the six-day week of 48 hours or "when route is completed."

All general conditions apply to both unions alike, including the closed shop, check-off, weekly payment of wages, one week's notice before discharge and provisions for controversies to be adjusted by a board of arbitration.

Los Angeles Judge Favors Bakers' Right to Picket

Los Angeles, Cal.—Picketing in Los Angeles, in spite of the efforts of several hostile employers, was given further legal status, when Judge Ida May Adams found Perry Stein "not guilty" of violation of Section 4 of ordinance No. 6859.

Stein, a member of Bakers' Union No. 37, was charged with putting a sign on his automobile windshield, merely a clipping from the Los Angeles Citizen, local labor newspaper, which stated: "Strike On at Franco Bakery."

The judge stated she could see no way clear to convict one American citizen for having a poster of any kind on his car when hundreds of other cars also have posters on them. She also expressed the opinion, long held by labor, that Section 4, which seeks to hamper labor picketing, is unconstitutional.

U. S. AID IN STRIKE SOUGHT.

Racine, Wis.—City officials on Nov. 16 sought federal aid in labor difficulties which caused closing of the J. I. Case plant. The farm manufacturing concern, which normally employs 1,700, was shut down when the United Automobile Workers struck after discharge of seventy union employes. Acting Mayor Olson requested Secretary Perkins to intercede.

County Court Did Its Duty

We join in with the rest of Hamilton county this week in congratulating every member of the county court who heeded the mandate given them by the people for an adequate new hospital. It seems that at least we are well on the way toward securing hospital facilities which have been so sorely needed but for various inadequate reasons up until now has been pushed around and stalled off.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

SICK LEAVE NEGOTIATIONS

A committee composed of C. C. Burgner, Mrs. Ethel Stroud and Margaret O'Grady recently conferred with Supt. Robinson and Commissioner McMillan relative to teachers who are under the tenure law but were unable to begin the school year due to illness. The commissioner and superintendent agreed to give these teachers half pay for their sick leave, effective as soon as they resume their teaching duties during the same year.

An attempt was also made at this meeting to establish the meaning of the term "sick leave." Supt. Robinson, who is a member of the 96 club, composed of two superintendents from each state in the U. S., stated that he would take this matter up before this body at its next session.

SPEAKS BEFORE P. T. A.

Miss Margaret O'Grady is scheduled to speak before the Normal Park P. T. A. on the second Friday afternoon in January on the subject "How Parents May Best Cooperate With Teachers for the Betterment of the Public Schools." It is to be hoped that more federation members will accept speaking engagements of this nature, for a better mutual understanding between parents and teachers is very desirable, particularly on the issue of teachers' unions.

DON'T FORGET MEETINGS

The next board of directors meeting convenes Dec. 7; the next general membership, Dec. 5. The former is at the Y. M. C. A.; the latter, at Dickinson.

JEROME DAVIS

The New Republic has published a special supplement to its last edition dealing with the academic freedom case of Jerome Davis. Copies may be found at the federation office, the library or the newsstand (the latter at 15c per). It contains statements from the Yale Corporation and Profs. Charles Beard, Colston Warne, Paul Douglas and Douglas C. MacIntosh.

WORKERS' CULTURAL SOCIETY

Teachers are invited to join the Workers' Cultural Society of Chattanooga, which meets on the first and third Wednesday of each month at the labor hall. This organization, headed by Miss Ina Greene, is carrying on labor dramatics, music, forums, classes and recreational activities. Trade unionists and sympathizers are eligible.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

The publicity committee has set a regular meeting date for the Tuesday after the first Monday in each month in the federation office at 4:15 p.m. The present committee members are Margaret O'Grady, John Dinsmore, Mildred MacKenzie, Ronald Hudgens and J. B. Campbell.

STATEWIDE TENURE

Stanton E. Smith has just returned from Nashville, where he presided at a meeting of the tenure committee of the Tennessee Education association.

Woman (to tramp, who had knocked at the door and begged for food)—No, certainly not. Go away at once or I'll call my husband.

Tramp—He ain't home.

Woman—How do you know that?

Tramp—Because a man that marriest a woman like you is only a home at meal times.

Many of us have found out that there are a great many things that we thought were absolute necessities a few years ago are now luxuries.

The Passing Show

Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Louis D. Brandeis was 80 years of age Nov. 13—and celebrated the anniversary by doing a full day's work.

No four score years in American history—in any history—have been more packed with human service than those of Justice Brandeis. He was still a young lawyer when he set aside a part of his time for unpaid public work. He devised and wrote the contract which gave Boston consumers cheaper gas, and the company higher profits. He went to the proprietor of an industry then notorious for irregular work, converted him, guided him—so that in a very few years this proprietor was guaranteeing his employes 50 weeks work a year. He exposed the rotten corruption of the Morgan-Mellon rule of the New Haven, and closed the last article on that subject with the grimly truthful words:

"Remember, O stranger, that arithmetic is the oldest of the sciences, and the mother of safety."

It would take twenty pages of an ordinary magazine to give a list of Brandeis' public services, with just enough explanation to make them clear. Only two can be mentioned here.

Perhaps the work which gives him most pride and pleasure is the savings bank life insurance of Massachusetts. If you are a citizen of the Bay State, you can buy life insurance over the counter at more than twenty savings banks, absolutely sound, at about three-quarters of the regular price. In establishing this reform, Brandeis had the help of organized labor and the devoted service of Alice Grady, commissioner of savings bank insurance for many years.

Even briefer must be the account of Brandeis as a liberalizer and great dissenter on the supreme court. If the United States goes forward, as all but bone-headed reactionaries hope, to a regime in which all people shall be secure in employment and in freedom, it will be because the dissenting opinions of Justice Brandeis have been written into law; and the "reminders of involuntary servitude," of which he wrote in the Bedford Cut Stone case, have been written out.

Justice Brandeis is a supremely great man—and a supremely lucky one; for his wife is about as good a lawyer and sociologist as himself. May their years still be long in the land.

No recent event gives a better illustration of the tremendous powers which modern man has at his command than the opening of the San Francisco-Oakland bridge. It is a structure 11¼ miles long, and spans more water than any other structure in the world. Its foundations lie deep below the surface of the waters.

It has been dreamed of for eighty years; but it took the job-making efforts of the present national administration to turn dream to fact. The RFC loaned $70,000,000; the state of California put up $7,200,000; and at this and the cost of twenty-four lives, the great bridge was finished.

Modern man has power to do any reasonable thing he pleases with the earth—but what he is doing with himself? The League of Nations gives a partial answer. Eighteen years after the close of the war which the world hoped would end war, there are 1,700,000 more men under arms than before that war began.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

The Label League is really doing things these days. Reports have come in that the meeting last Friday night was well attended and one of the most enthusiastic meetings that has been held.

Anniversaries seem to come around right often nowadays (always heard that was a sign that old age was creeping up). Be that as it may—the Label League will celebrate its second year in Chattanooga soon, and rumors are already flying around that the party this year will be even "bigger and better than ever"—and if you are one of the big crowd last year, you remember that we had a mighty nice party at our first anniversary celebration.

A great many requests have come in asking if any stores here handle ladies' coats with the union label. Miller Bros. has coats and suits that bear the Consumers' Protection label—and the Ladies' Garment Workers' International union writes that this label is "official" at this time. So when you go to get a coat, look for that little silk label just inside the front of the coat where the lining begins.

There are ladies' hats at Miller Bros., too, that bear the same label. So ask for that label in your hat.

Don't tell me that you haven's tried Rich-Maid union-labeled coffee yet. Requests have come in from Memphis, Tenn., and Dalton, Ga., wanting to know if they can't get some of that coffee, too. Told you that was good coffee!

PRESIDENT PROMISES U. S. AID TO STATES' LABOR LEGISLATION

Chief Executive Tells Capital Conference Nation Has Given Mandate for Improvement of Labor Standards.

Washington.—Governors and representatives from thirty-nine states, meeting in the third conference on labor legislation held in Washington during the present administration, received a greeting message from President Roosevelt which all agree is meant to charter the administration's course in labor matters for the next four years. The president said, in part:

"The sessions of the National Conference on Labor Legislation in 1934 and 1935 formulated a program for the leveling upwards of labor standards which commands my wholehearted sympathy and approval and that of my administration.

Sees Mandate Given.

"Furthermore, I believe the country has this last week given a mandate in unmistakable terms to its legislators and executives to proceed along these lines until working people throughout the nation and in every state are assured decent working conditions, including safe and healthful places of work, adequate care and support when incapacitated by reason of accidents, industrial disease, unemployment, or old age; reasonably short working hours, adequate annual incomes, proper housing, and elimination of child labor.

"I hope that your conference will give serious consideration as to how the objectives may be achieved and that when you return to your states you will assume the leadership in your communities for putting the necessary legislation on the statute books."

Substantial Gains Reported.

In welcoming the gathering, Secretary of Labor Perkins said that since these conferences began three years ago, "substantial progress is being made in the labor legislation of many states, in the interests of millions of wage earners.

"The creation of full-fledged state labor departments in Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Rhode Island and South Carolina followed the recommendations of the first conference held here and this means much to the wage earners of these states," she said.

"The passage of workmen's compensation laws for the first time by Florida and South Carolina is a signal of importance. Only Mississippi and Arkansas now remain without this form of legislation. In every other state one or more significant amendments to the workmen's compensation act has been adopted."

Legislative Record Set.

Secretary Perkins also took occasion to note that more labor legislation has been passed during the present administration than in all preceding administrations.

Representatives at the conference are named, partly by the governors of the states, and partly by the state federations of labor.

What Next!

Stoppers for German wine bottles will be made of wood from poplar trees, under a new plan of the Hitler government for making Germany independent of foreign raw materials. Sponsors of the wood "cork" claim it has greater resistance against breakage, acid and alkali, is cheaper, more hygienic and eliminates the "cork taste."

Labor Board Holds Union Proper Bargaining Agency for Workers In Anti-Labor "Big Four" Plant

Washington, D. C.—Rebuke to American Tobacco company anti-union tactics was voted by the workers themselves in an election just held under supervision of the National Labor Relations board in the company's plant at Reidsville, N. C.

This plant makes 39 per cent of the company's Lucky Strike Cigarettes. Local 192 of the Tobacco Workers' International union, polled 471 out of 487 ballots cast by the 936 workers declared eligible to vote. The national labor relations board has declared the union a proper bargaining agency, as a result of the election, but the company's attitude toward the union has not been stated. It probably will run true to past form and refuse to recognize the decision, unless and until there is a supreme court decision on the law itself. Forty-seven machine adjusters were not allowed to vote, following representation by the Machinists' union.

The bargaining unit includes cigarette making employes, packing, shipping and miscellaneous production jobs, but does not include supervisory and maintenance workers.

In announcing the election result, the national labor relations board declares that the company did not cooperate in holding the election and makes that fact clear from the record.

The situation in respect to the American Tobacco company is vastly different from that in Louisville, where more than two years ago the Brown & Williamson Tobacco corporation unionized voluntarily, putting the Tobacco Workers' union label on all of its tobacco brands and on its cigarette brands, which includes Kools, Raleighs, Viceroys and Wings. In addition, these brands carry the union labels of the Photo-Engravers and the Typographical union.

The American Tobacco company is one of the Big Four long noted for anti-union hostility and still in that unhappy category. The union has conducted an uphill battle to organize, but it is made clear that the brands that should be used by workers are the brands that bear the union label.

Big Four hostility continues and evidently will continue until the union can force recognition by force of numbers.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—What does labor say about the ability of industry to increase wages at the present time?

A.—The current American Federation of Labor survey of business says: "Industry this year has been in a position to raise wages by a substantial amount, but it has increased average hourly wages by less than 1 per cent."

Q.—Does the A. F. of L. constitution prohibit consideration of party politics at federation conventions?

A.—Article III, Section 8, of the constitution provides that "Party politics, whether they be democratic, republican, socialistic, populistic, prohibition or any other, shall have no place in the conventions of the American Federation of Labor."

Millions of times, every day, events occur which are small or great in the lives of individuals or the nation—and in which some phase of the telephone industry plays its part.

Maybe Mrs. Jones is ordering that loaf of bread delivered. Someone is frantically summoning a doctor. An American salesman is selling an order to a client across the ocean. A stockholder is opening an envelope containing the dividend on his investment in the telephone business. A telephone man is taking an order for service with pride in himself and the service he has sold. The foreign minister of one great nation is speaking with the foreign secretary of another world power.

These voice-to-voice contacts between human beings, separated by a few blocks or by the spans of oceans and continents, are possible today because the Bell System from the beginning has recognized and accepted its definite responsibility to all groups of people.

There is an obligation to telephone employees, whose noted loyalty would not exist if it were not deserved. There is an obligation to users of the service, and the United States has over half the world's telephones because good service at a reasonable cost is the rule. There is an obligation to the people who have invested their savings in the Bell System, and their confidence has been justified. There is an obligation to the people of the nation as an organized whole, expressed in the payment of taxes, and in this the Bell System has carried its share. There is an obligation to the future of telephony, and the Bell Laboratories have been a conspicuous success in meeting this duty to the future communication needs of this nation and the world.

All of these obligations have been summed up in the guiding policy of the Bell System, "the most service, and the best, at the lowest possible cost."

some of the lovely discussion on other subjects.

Leaders on Committee.

"Members of the committee on housing included several outstanding and prominent men and women, including Dr. Spencer Miller, now of the workers' educational bureau of New York; John A. Phillips, president of Pennsylvania State Federation; Elsie D. Harper, national board of Y. M. C. A. of New York; Helen Hell, of National Federation of Settlements; Claud R. Boland, of National Brotherhood of Carpenters, and others.

"After several sessions hours of discussion the report was prepared and I might say it was the only report that did not receive adverse criticisms or was turned back to the committee for alterations.

"The afternoon session was dispensed with in order that the committees could meet and confere on the various questions.

"On the morning of the second day immediately after the meeting was called to order an address was delivered by Madam Secretary on progress of the activities of the U. S. department of labor. Following the secretary's address Mr. Wendell C. Heaton, industrial commissioner of Florida, spoke of the advantages and help of the secretary of labor's advisory committee. There was some discussion following this address. The balance of the session was taken up with committee reports. Adjournment 1:30.

"Afternoon session opened at 2:30 and after an address by Miss Josephine Roche, assistant secretary of the treasury, on public health programs of interest to labor and state departments of labor. Reports of committees were continued. Lively discussion followed the reading of most of the reports. Session adjourned at 5:30. At 7 p.m. Tuesday night, an informal dinner was held in the Rose room of the Washington hotel, with I should say 300 present. I had arranged to sit with a group of my international officers. Madam Secretary sent for me and insisted that I occupy a seat next to her, at the speaker's table. The entertainment consisted of very good roastmastership on the part of Miss Perkins and the replies of those called upon. Several songs by a group of colored federal employes which caused me to think for the moment I was back in Memphis. It was a pleasure to talk to Madam during the dinner course and the manner she used to put the speakers on the grill was more so. Ribbons of different colors were given to representatives of states having achieved the passing of different kinds of labor legislation. Several states received four or five awards, especially some of the New England states, including Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and New York. For states that had passed legislation later declared unconstitutional, black ribbons were given. Madam Chairman said for the reason that black was the color of the robes of the supreme court judges. Tennessee was awarded a ribbon for having passed the Clayton Peizer act. It was a great party and wound up by everyone joining hands at each table and singing Auld Lang Syne.

"The third and last day both sessions were consumed mostly by committee reports, discussion of the various topics and it was 3 o'clock before I was called upon to report for my committee. Commissioner Jacobs and I had arranged to leave on a 4:50 train and we began to become uneasy for fear it would be impossible for us to go to our hotels, pack and get to the depot, but we did by a very close margin.

"One thing that the conference was fully in accord on was that inasmuch as the committee reports all recommended more and better labor legislation, bettering where possible the present laws and wherever possible institute state laws in conformity with federal laws. During the morning session a letter from President Roosevelt, addressed to the conference, was read, wherein he stated that last week the people had in unmistakable terms issued a mandate to its legislative and executive officials to proceed along the lines advocated by labor.

Talked With President Green.

"While in Washington I visited my international office and had a long talk with President Green in his office, also visited Mr. Sillman, who is now advisor to Madam Perkins.

"Among the visitors at the conference was the governor of North Carolina, who expressed a willingness to assist in passing legislation designed to help the workers of his state.

"Aside from child labor laws, laws for the protection of female workers such as maximum day and week hour laws, compensation for workers disabled and unemployed. Great stress was laid on necessity of laws to protect and safeguard the workers in the hazardous occupations. My organization, especially well represented with three commissioners of labor and five state federation presidents, were most active in their contentions that the management of apprentices with regard to selection of applicants, decision of numbers needed and general application of apprentice legislation be left in the hands of the recognized unions involved, and we were successful in having this incorporated in the committee report."

Harold—What's the trouble, Jessie? You look worried after last night's power game.

Jessie—Who wouldn't be? They invited Johnny Octopus, and he held eight straight winning hands.

WAGE INCREASES IN BIG INDUSTRIES FOLLOW GREAT ROOSEVELT VICTORY

Steel, Confronted by Tremendous New Deal Majority and Union Organization Drive, Leads Way in Raising Pay---General Motors Auto Plants Take Same Course.

Washington.—The biggest political story this week is the one which tells how pay increases have followed election returns. Steel led the way with 9 and 10 per cent additions to pay envelopes. Automobiles followed when General Motors added 5 cents an hour to the rate of pay. Even textiles have made a halting start in the right direction—a worsted mill with plants in Rhode Island, Connecticut and Virginia has raised its pay a little, and has not put in a stretch-out to cover the increase.

These things are news, big news; and while no one pretends that the terrific majority given to Roosevelt is the only factor in wage boosts everyone agrees that it is a factor and an important one. President Roosevelt's message to the labor legislation conference in Washington is significant:

"I believe the country has this last week given a mandate in unmistakable terms to its legislators and executives to proceed along these lines until working people throughout the nation and in every state are assured decent working conditions, including safe and healthful places of work, adequate care and support when incapacitated by reason of accident, industrial disease, unemployment or old age; reasonably short working hours, adequate annual incomes, proper housing, and elimination of child labor.

U. S. Ready to Help.

"The federal government is willing to do its part in making these standards effective, and in supplementing the efforts of the states when problems assume interstate or national character. This coming year should be an outstanding one in the annals of labor legislation."

And the man who says these things has just been re-elected president by the biggest majority in all American history.

The action of General Motors was set forth in a statement by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the corporation, after a meeting of the board of directors. The statement covered five points, of which Mr. Sloan put dividends first and wage increases last.

Christmas Bonus Also Planned.

"A wage increase of 5 cents per hour will go into effect as of today, Monday, November 9, applicable to all operations in the United States."

In addition to the wage increase was a boost in the "appreciation" fund. Last year, General Motors gave a Christmas present of $25 to all employes of six months service or more, who were not eligible for the bonus paid to salaried groups. This year, the Christmas present will be not less than $35 and not more than $60.

It is estimated that the wage increase will add $20,000,000 to the G. M. payrolls in a year.

As evidence that General Motors is passing prosperity around to more than its workers, the G. M. dividends this year will be $4.50 a share, the largest ever paid since the stock was divided into its present number of shares. Also, the bonus has been widened until, according to Sloan's statement, 8,000 persons will get some of it.

It is expected that one or two of the larger auto companies will follow the lead of General Motors. Chrysler corporation announced a bonus to employes some time ago. Present estimates set it at $4,000,000.

Steel Workers Hesitate.

The boost in steel wages has spread to most of the industry, and, much to the surprise of the managers, the men in many plants are in no hurry to accept. Fourteen thousand employes of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company are waiting to run down a rumor spread through that region that a federal law is being incubated which will fix a minimum of $5 a day in steel working. Other groups in steel are holding councils on the subject. All feel that a 10 per cent increase is not enough and that it is a concession from the management to the steel unionizing drive on the one hand and the part played by labor in the re-election of President Roosevelt on the other.

Besides, all workers in mass production industries feel that it is dangerous to a degree to leave all wage fixing in the hands of management. President Thomas McMahon, of the United Textile Workers, spoke for all the working population when he said that "labor will be contented no longer with the crumbs that fall from the management's table."

Iron Miners Also Benefit.

The steel raise has extended to and been accepted by 5,000 workers in the iron mines of the Mesabi range in Minnesota, one of the properties of the U. S. Steel corporation.

Oil workers are wondering whether other oil companies will match Standard of Indiana, which has granted bonuses said to amount to $4,500,000.

Union Employes of Federal Barge Lines Win Pay Boost

St. Louis, Mo.—Organized labor scored another victory here when an arbitration committee, headed by A. P. Norton, granted freight handlers employed by the Federal Barge Lines a wage increase of 6 cents an hour, bringing the rate from 44 to 50 cents. The workers agreed to arbitration on Sept. 26 and returned to work after having been on strike from Sept. 8. Therefore, the pay increase will be retroactive to Sept. 26.

The arbitration decision affects 246 men, members of the International Longshoremen's association, affiliated with the A. F. of L., who are employed at docks at the foot of North Market street and at East St. Louis.

Mills Novelty Company to Pay Employes' Social Security Tax

Chicago.—The 2,600 employes of the Mills Novelty company, which has three factories in Chicago and forty branches throughout the country, will be relieved of paying their normal share of taxes under the social security act, company officials have announced. Payments begin Jan. 1 and will be made entirely by the company.

In announcing this policy toward employes, Fred L. Mills, president of the concern, stated: "We foresee good business and increased prosperity for the country in the next four years and we feel that we could easily assume both the employers' and workers' tax under the social security act."

LABOR BOARD CONDEMNS "MODEL" COMPANY UNION OF HARVESTER CO.

International Ordered to Withdraw Recognition of Industrial Council Plan as Agency for Collective Bargaining — Decision Big Blow at Fake Unionism in Company's Thirteen Plants.

Washington.—The national labor relations board has ordered the International Harvester company to:

"Withdraw all recognition of the Harvester Industrial Council plan as an agency for collective bargaining, and completely disestablish it is a representative of its employes. Such disestablishment," the board adds, "is the only effective remedy in the case."

The decision of the NLRB affects immediately only the company's plant at Fort Wayne, Ind. But the "plan," which has been held up as a "model" and widely imitated, is established in all the thirteen plants of the International Harvester company in the United States, and in the two plants of the Company in Canada. There is no shadow of doubt anywhere that the whole structure of company unionism in the plants of this corporation has received a mortal blow.

The board found from its hearings that the plan is not a proper organization for collective bargaining, and is entirely under the domination of the company. The company informs all new employes that the works council, a part of the plan, will represent them in all dealings with the company.

Council Not Free Agent.

This works council is partly elected by the men, under conditions which lets the company know who votes for whom, and partly appointed by the company. It meets once a month; and its meetings are presided over by the manager of industrial relations for the company. No provision is made for meetings of employes. The company pays the expenses of the plan, and pays the regular wages of the so-called "employe representative," who goes around adjusting grievances.

"The employes possess only the shadow, not the substance, of collective bargaining," says the board.

As a clinching proof of the utter futility of the plan from the workers' point of view, the board finds that though the plan was brought to Fort Wayne in 1927, "no agreement relating to hours, wages or conditions of employment has ever been entered into by the International Harvester company with its employes at Fort Wayne."

The board further finds that this company domination is in violation of the labor relations act, and must be stopped.

Interstate Business Done.

Even the reactionary justices of the United States supreme court would have a hard time finding that the International Harvester company is a local concern. It is a New Jersey corporation, with thirteen plants in the United States, two in Canada and four in Europe. The Fort Wayne plant makes and assembles automobile trucks, as do two other of the company's plants; the Fort Wayne establishment being the center for handling spare parts.

It was shown at the hearings that no truck could be assembled at Fort Wayne without bringing in its component parts from various other states.

The company is more than prosperous. The board finds that its sales in this country in 1935 were $168,728,000, and foreign sales $46,855,000. This is a 57 per cent increase over the sales of 1934.

Company unions were first started by the harvester concern in 1919, four or five years after the introduction of this fraud in the Rockefeller-owned Colorado Fuel & Iron company.

The trouble with most office seekers is that they want an office that will pay them more than they can earn by their own efforts in commercial life.

Losers in Election Raising Cry Of "Unfairness" to Fool Public

Reactionaries Spread Deceptive Argument That Landon Supporters Have Disproportionate Congress Representation.

By JOSEPH A. WISE

Chicago.—The forces of reaction which received such a crushing defeat in the recent national election regard the result of the election as only a temporary setback, and they are preparing to carry on in the hope of success at a future time and under more favorable circumstances. They undoubtedly will time their next major offensive to synchronize with the return of better times for all of the people. Meanwhile there is to be a build up to prepare the minds of the people for a favorable reception of the propaganda prepared by many of the country's most skilled publicists.

The cry is now being started that 40 per cent of the voters will have only 10 per cent representation in the next congress. To buttress that argument it is pointed out that 16,000,000 persons voted for Landon and Knox and 26,000,000 for Roosevelt and Garner, and yet the representation in the senate and house at Washington is so lopsided and out of proportion that the voices of the 16,000,000 Landon and Knox voters will scarcely be heard in the legislative halls.

Will Argument Be Answered?

That is a skillful but very deceptive argument. The question is, Will it be analyzed and adequately answered before it has time to seize upon the imaginations of millions of persons who read the daily press and are influenced by it?

It is my belief that the big financiers and industrialists who have fathered this latest argument will be able to promote it into a menace before it is adequately met by the opposition. To illustrate what I mean, permit me to recall that I spent more than two months calling attention to the fact that the republican national committee had established a very large and very active "open shop" division in Chicago which operated nationally throughout the recent political campaign. Little attention was paid to the warnings until this "open shop" division launched its payroll attack upon the social security act.

"Open Shoppers" Back of Move.

It cost the democratic national committee a huge sum of money to answer that attack through a full-page advertisement which was published in daily newspapers throughout the country.

The same elements which fathered and financed the "open shop" division of the republican national committee have originated the disproportionate representation argument which is being very skillfully and ably handled.

TVA Wage Scale for Valley Is Re-Opened In Parley Last Week

Collective Bargaining Between Representatives of 17 Craft Organizations and Management of Federal Agency Continues 3 Days; Union Forces Anticipate Hike in Prevailing Pay Rates.

Leaders in organized labor crafts from various international unions, as well as local business representatives or agents, last week opened momentous collective bargaining negotiations with the management of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Out of the discussions, commenced Wednesday morning and which continued through the week, will probably come a new statement of management-employe policy between the federal agency and workers on its far-flung construction program in the Tennessee Valley.

Labor anticipates an elevation of the prevalent wage scale which was negotiated a year ago through similar conferences. Such a wage increase would affect the workers on the actual construction projects and those principally benefitted would be the ones on the Fowler's Bend, Chickamauga, Guntersville, Wheeler and Pickwick Landing dams, inasmuch as the construction at Norris is practically completed and the Wilson dam project of itself is staffed in the main by a permanent technical force.

It was announced after the initial meetings that several craft unions were represented in the first session. Clapp, director of personnel of TVA, said that the conference would probably extend for ten days or a report is submitted to the board of directors. Any new policy or amendment to the existing one would probably become effective Jan. 1, 1937, it was indicated.

T. H. Cuthbert, secretary of the Tennessee Federation of Labor attended to participate generally in the collective bargaining conference.

Participating in the parleys last week were:

Representing TVA management are Mr. Clapp, as chairman; J. B. Blandford, general manager; T. B. Parker, chief construction engineer; Ross Baker, general construction superintendent; William Holden, of the real estate clearance division; C. H. Morgan, supervisor of the fertilizer division; A. H. Sullivan, assistant chief electrical engineer; Frank Towsley, legal division, and Carl Richey and S. E. Schultz, of the personnel division.

Union representatives: R. Myron Stedge and G. M. Freeman, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; C. C. Arthur, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers; E. E. McDaniel, Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' union; Otis Dye, International Association of Machinists; Stanley Rounds, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers; James Secretary, International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Richard P. [illegible] general organizer, Plumbers and Steamfitters' union; H. L. Marshall, Association of Certified Welders; Robert Butler, Association of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers; Thomas R. Ziegler, Bricklayers and Plasterers' International union; [illegible] Hudson, Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers; C. R. Raynesford, International Union of Operating Engineers; [illegible] Horn, president International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths; A. L. [illegible], National Marine Engineers Beneficial association; A. L. Reid, secretary International Association of Marble Workers and Cement Finishers; W. [illegible] Bullock, international representative Sheetmetal Workers, and J. L. [illegible] Ford, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

General chairmen of the various system organizations: J. T. Dolan, of the N., C. & St. L.; G. A. Link, of the Southern Railway System; W. M. Daughtrey, of the Southeastern Express, and A. H. Few, of the Railway Express agency, extend a special invitation to their membership to be present.

New York Judges Uphold Picketing

New York.—The appellate court of Brooklyn has upheld a decision in favor of peaceful picketing, rendered by Justice Meyer Steinbrink. Labor unions have the right to have their members walk near to customers of the employer against whom they are striking, and carry placards advertising the union label.

The decision came in a case between Local 505 of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America and the Standard Baking company, of Brooklyn. The company sought and got a temporary injunction containing thirty-eight distinct prohibitions. When the issues were tried before Justice Steinbrink, he upheld the unions, and his decision is now affirmed.

Q.—What recommendation on health insurance did the A. F. of L. Executive Council make in its annual report recently issued?

A.—The council said: "We find additional reasons for recommending health insurance and provisions for medical service within the reach of all in the relation between sickness and dependency. If we as a nation had considered and met the problem of providing adequate medical care for all, our present relief problem would be greatly simplified."

HOSIERY WORKER TO DEMAND RAISE IN PAY ENVELOPE

Schedule of Radio Programs to Be Hooked Up With Other Phases of Publicity.

Berkshire Mill Strike Causing Picket Protest to Woolworth Stores in Many Parts of Nation After Chain Concern Refuses to Cease Handling Scab Product.

Telegram from John Edelman, research director of American Federation of Hosiery Workers, states that hosiery pickets are appearing in front of most of the large Woolworth stores in the nation because the chain company insists on handling products made by the Berkshire mills in Pennsylvania.

Berkshire has developed into one of the nastiest strike situations experienced by the hosiery workers, being faced with tear gas, clubs and guns.

The telegram states that Woolworths stock their stores with full-fashioned hose under different names, the most generally used being "Frantone."

In the past few months, due to an insistent demand for organization because of chaotic conditions reflecting in low living standards of the seamless hosiery industry, machine fixers, the highest skilled mechanics employed in the industry, completed the perfection of an organization for Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Sunday, Nov. 22, under the jurisdiction of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

The demand was so great upon the general office of the federation that an expert in this branch of the industry, John McCoy, national executive board representative of Seamless, has been assigned to assist these skilled workers in this endeavor. Mr. Edward F. Callahan, second vice-president and manager of tri-state district, states that in all the years of his experience, no move has ever been made, to his knowledge, that has been so significant. The meeting set up certain definite policies under which the organization would function after the approval of the national executive board which, in the opinion of staff representatives, is certain to be granted.

The machine fixers unanimously instructed their delegates to the December 5 meeting of the tri-state district council to press for increased wages. The wages paid for this highly skilled operation have reached a very low ebb in the last six years.

Branch No. 53 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers at its regular meeting, held Saturday, Nov. 21, instructed its delegates to the next meeting of the Tri-State District council of hosiery workers, which will be held on Dec. 5 here in Chattanooga, to push vigorously for wage increases, with wage increases, dividends and bonus payments of nearly $1,000,000,000 having been declared within recent weeks by various corporations of the United States and which money has poured into the pockets of stockholders and workers in other industries, it is felt here that this should be also reflected in increased earnings to the hosiery workers in this area.

Feeling satisfied that a buying wave by the general public has resulted since the election of President Roosevelt and that a new confidence has been instilled in the American people, the members of Branch No. 53 believe that wage increases are warranted in both sections of the industry, seamless and full fashioned.

Profit Upturn Continues.

Reports from both north and south indicate mill companies are making higher profits this year than last. A Charlotte, N. C., dispatch to Daily News Record Oct. 28, 1936, declared that a number of mills had several months of profitable operation and are assured of capacity operating during the remaining months of this year, and the situation was regarded by stock brokers as ifidicating numerous mills will resume dividend payments at the year end and others will increase their payments. In the fact of all this the hosiery worker members of Branch No. 53 are firm in their contention that wage increases are very necessary.

The workers at this meeting also disputed the recent press report made by the attorney representing the Chattanooga manufacturers and one hosiery manufacturer that only a few isolated hosiery firms had deviated from code standards and countered that they knew of none in the tri-state area that have not deviated in one form or another. The fact is that numerous companies have increased the working hours from eight to nine hours and longer per day, while most of them have not complied with the payment of code minimums. On the other hand, we do know where mills have violated the child labor provisions.

Beginning with Dec. 7 the tri-state district office of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers will begin a series of radio broadcasts so that not only the workers employed in the hosiery industries here, but the general public shall know at first hand the reasons for wage increase demands. These broadcsts will cover a wide field of information, covering every phase of both seamless and full fashioned hosiery.

Jacobs Is Quitting State Job

Commissioner Not Candidate for Reappointment by Gov.-Elect Browning.

Looks For Passage of Security Act in 1937; Favors Stronger Age Law for Youth in Industry.

In a statement released in Washington Saturday night, W. E. Jacobs, commissioner of labor of Tennessee for several years, said that he would not seek reappointment to the office at the hand of Gov.-Elect Browning in January.

It was the first announcement to come from the commissioner with respect to his future plans and to which was attached the statement that he hoped to resume his services with the Tennessee Central railway, by whom he was employed for many years before appointment to the state office. With President R. S. McCann, of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, he was in attendance last week at the third National Labor Conference called by Secretary Perkins, of the U. S. department of labor.

Retirement from public office does not mean that he will not take an active interest in labor legislation, one of the objectives of his Washington visit, Mr. Jacobs said.

"We expect early enactment of a social security act in Tennessee after Jan. 1," said Mr. Jacobs. "Mr. Browning is pledged to such legislation, as are a majority of the state senators and representatives-elect, and we hope that a law will be enacted that will provide a pension for every person in the state over 65, under Article I of the social security act. As is well known, industrial and other institutions pay 1 per cent tax on payrolls after Jan. 1, 1937, to provide funds for pensions, but as yet our state has done nothing in regard to the enactment of a law."

Uniform Plan Sought.

As to objectives sought by labor interests of Tennessee, and which will be presented to the legislature when it convenes, Mr. Jacobs said: "We hope a uniform plan will be worked out at this meeting to the end that all states may have the same laws without working a hardship on any one state. That is the real purpose of this meeting," he continued, "because some important legislation is needed in Tennessee.

"One of the laws that should be changed in justice to employers and employes is the workmen's compensation law now in force. Moreover, we desire a wage collection law in the state. Such a law has been found a success in other states, and provides that the state department of labor be given authority to collect wages due employes when the employer has failed to pay.

"Again," continued the labor commissioner, "something must be done in the state in regard to home work. In the mountainous section of the state, especially in East Tennessee, hundreds of women and children are engaged in such work as making dresses and candle-wick bedspreads. This work should be supervised to improve sanitary and other conditions under which it is done."

Employable Age Changing.

Mr. Jacobs said that a change of two years would be asked in the age limit. Under the present laws, youths between 14 and 16 may be employed in industrial establishments provided they have met certain educational requirements and secure a permit from the state department of labor, whereas those 16 and over may work in factories and other establishments without restrictions. "We would like to see the 14-year requirement raised to 16, and the present 16-year limit raised to 18," said Mr. Jacobs. "In other words, those between 16 and 18 should be required to secure permits, with 18 the minimum age at which the young people may go to work in factories of their own free will. Such a measure would be progressive and is just from a humanitarian standpoint."

Green Urges Higher Wages, 30-Hour Week, Federal Ban on Child Labor, Full Right to Organize, More Equitable Distribution of Wealth and Preservation of Majority Rule & Democracy in American Federation

"We Are Opposed to a Financial and Economic System That Is Determined to Maintain a Policy Which Diverts the Larger Part of the Earnings of Industry and the Wealth Which Labor Creates Into the Hands of the Favored Few," He Tells Tampa Convention.

Editor's Note: In opening the 1936 convention of the American Federation of Labor at Tampa, Fla., on Nov. 16, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, made a keynote speech outlining the economic and legislative demands of the federation and its determination to maintain majority rule within the federation.

Preceding President Green's speech, Rev. Adiel Jarrett Moncrief, Jr., pastor of the First Baptist church of Tampa, gave the invocation, and addresses of welcome were made by W. E. Sullivan, president of the Tampa Central Trades and Labor Assembly; A. E. McMullen, city attorney, representing the mayor of Tampa; E. P. Taliaferro, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Claude Pepper, United States senator from Florida.

The text of President Green's speech follows:

Chairman Sullivan, Senator Pepper, the distinguished representative of the mayor of the city of Tampa, representatives of the business interests of this city, and the representatives of labor—I express to each of you, in the name and in behalf of the officers and delegates assembled in this great congress of labor, their deep appreciation of the cordial welcome you have extended them.

We are deeply touched by the warmth of your welcome. We are gratified indeed in that we are privileged to meet in this very hospitable community. We have been accorded every consideration by the people of this splendid city and state, ever since the delegations from the cities, towns and villages throughout the nation began arriving in Tampa, and we shall carry back with us to our homes and our families, to our towns and our cities, the fondest recollection of a delightful visit spent here.

We are glad to come to this section of the southland, and in coming here we want to express with increasing emphasis our very deep interest in the economic, social and industrial welfare of the working men and working women of this great section of our nation. We ask that you accept our presence here in this city of Florida as more than a gesture. We ask you to accept our visit to this city as a concrete expression of our interests in all of the people of the south and our determination to give to the working men of this great section of the United States the full support of the American Federation of Labor in their efforts to raise their standards of life and living.

If, out of our gathering here the working men not only of the southland, but of the nation, may gain new inspiration and new courage to go forward in the great fight for the realization of human rights, human freedom and human liberty, we shall feel that our visit here shall not have been in vain.

Men and women of the south, accept my expression of assurance from the working men and women in the north, the east, the middle west, and in the remote sections of the Pacific coast, as the hand of fraternity, of friendship and of brotherhood extended to you, with all of the assurance that I can give of the full and complete support of the great economic power of the American Federation of Labor to help you.

INFLUENCED BY ARGUMENT

This great American Federation of Labor is represented here by trained veterans, men who have given their lives to the cause of labor.

They are not susceptible to emotional appeals or to unsound reasoning. These are hard headed men, the veterans of many industrial battles, men who examine a subject analytically and who substitute judgment for feelings. They are not swayed by men who appeal alone to their hearts and to their sentiments. They are influenced by facts and by convincing argument.

So that in this great deliberate body every question will be settled upon the basis of facts, of evidence, of argument, and when the question is settled, it will be settled right. That is the record that thus far has been made by the American Federation of Labor.

I could not speak to you this morning, in making response to these addresses of warm welcome, without referring to the subject matters that are occupying our hearts, our minds and our attention.

We are assembled here at a most important period in the economic, social and industrial development of our nation.

We are concerned about these problems that touch closely the lives and the happiness and the welfare of the masses of the people, and it is our determination in this great convention to devote our time and our attention to the consideration of these very vital problems.

BETTER DAY FOR WORKERS

As I sense the movement and as I visualize the future, I feel justified in expressing the opinion that we are now emerging from a period of economic demoralization lasting over an unusually long period of time, and I think now I can see the sun rising in the new horizon, the dawn of a better day for the working men and women of our country. The days of distress are now behind us. We are now putting our house in order and American labor stands at the threshhold of this new day, strong, erect, courageous, determined, to take advantage of the economic improvement, to build a higher wage level and a more tolerable condition of employment in the United States of America.

It is the masses of the people who have been and were so deeply affected by the economic demoralization that prevailed throughout the land. They suffered much. They gave of anguish and disappointment during those years. The distress was in the homes of the wage-earners. Hunger and suffering was manifest and in evidence there.

Do you think we have forgotten them or will forget them? Do you think they are behind us, never again to be remembered?

HIGHER WAGES DEMANDED

The law of competition must work. Labor must be paid for the distress it suffers, and I pledge to you so far as it lies within my power that every ounce of economic energy that I can mobilize or use, represented in the American Federation of Labor, shall be put forth to secure for the workers of this nation higher wages, improved conditions of employment, and a better day and a better life.

The earnings of industry must be more equitably distributed. The steady flow of earnings into the hands of the favored few must be diverted into the hands and the homes and the lives of the working people of the nation. For, while we are willing that capital shall realize upon its investment, we are opposed to a financial or economic system that is determined to maintain a policy which diverts the larger part of the earnings of industry and the wealth which labor cre-

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Mussolini and Hitler have recognized Gen. Franco, fascist rebel who broke his oath and attacked the government he had sworn to support, as the lawful ruler of Spain.

No lover of liberty needs any further evidence that the fascist regime in Spain is altogether vicious and damnable. Especially no one associated in any way with the labor movement, here or in Europe, can have any vestige of doubt.

The first act of Mussolini, after getting power, was to smash the labor unions. That came even faster than the obliteration of the comparatively free press which had developed in Italy. In Germany, Hitler did the same, with even more savage brutality and on an immense wider scale; for the labor unions of Germany were among the most advanced and powerful in the world, and the country's one real hold on freedom. They have been destroyed; their treasuries confiscated by the nazi government, and some of their ablest leaders sent to penal camps.

If President Roosevelt's trip to Buenos Aires does nothing but inspire his countrymen to study South American geography and history, it will be worthwhile. For what most of us don't know about that part of the world is nearly all of it.

Argentina, toward whose capital President Roosevelt is voyaging, has 1,153,000 square miles. This means that it is about the size of all Europe west of Poland and Hungary, or 300,000 square miles larger than the United States east of the Mississippi, or five times the size of France, or four times the size of Texas.

Buenos Aires is not by 200 miles as far south of the equator as Washington is north; but the southern hemisphere is considerably colder, latitude for latitude, than the northern. Argentina's long stretch is north and south, and its climate varies from as cold as Labrador to as hot as Texas. Most of its territory varies from cool temperature to subtropical in climate; and it probably has a higher percentage of fertile land than any other large country on earth. Though it rises to the peaks of the Andes on the west, most of the country is level or gently rolling; and one Argentine railroad runs 211 miles without a curve.

Argentina has 12,000,000 inhabitants—and one-fifth of them live in the capital. In a fertile country, with less than eleven persons per square mile, that is not so good.

Mme. Schumann-Heink was a world character, and her death is a world event. She was the greatest contralto of her age. When only 17 years old, she was called to sing the part of the old gypsy in "Il Trovatore;" and she stole the show. She could act almost as well as she could sing; opera-goers will never forget a dozen of her roles. And with two sons in the A. E. F. and one in the German military service, she sang to larger audiences in America's training camps than on the stage.

That is probably why the press of Berlin did not mention her death. But if you have a phonograph, and a record of Schumann-Heink singing "Stille Nacht," put it on and forget Hitler—for a time.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

Ah-h-h! Now that Thanksgiving is over, and the poor turkey is no more (p. s., our "turkey" turned out to be chicken) everybody can start on Christmas shopping. Somehow, I can't get enthusiastic about Christmas until after the Thanksgiving holidays are over.

How about making yours a "union-label" Christmas this year? Keep account of the gifts you buy that have the union label on them, then write in after Christmas and let me know how many union-label gifts you gave. The column might even give a prize to the person who gave the most union-label presents.

It's easy to find gifts for the men. There are ties, sox, shirts, pajamas, union pins and cigarettes. And for the practical ones there are suits, overcoats, hats and even shoes.

Incidentally, we've run across some swell new union-labeled shirts in Abe Phillips' store at 23 East Ninth street. Beautiful white shirts, the latest in checks and—for the boy friend—all the bright colors, even red. They are priced from $1.25 to $1.95. And you should see their union-labeled ties—the boss is all of a-twitter over the one he just bought.

For the ladies, it isn't so simple. But silk hose are always nice. And don't forget books and magazines—they are grand for the whole family.

For the kids—oh, my, there just don't seem to be any union-made toys. But do be careful to get American-made toys. Our own Chattanooga O B. Andrews company makes lovely ones.

And, if you just cannot find what you want with the label on it, go to the stores who use union workmen and who advertise in your paper. For instance, the biggest little boy in football-minded this year—and he's going to Martin-Thompson's and looking around for Santa Claus.

So remember—if you are looking for a gift and don't know which stores have been most friendly to organized labor—or if you don't know to which store to go to find the union-labeled tie, then just telephone here at The Labor World—be glad to try to help you.

Maybe we can help about telling you which magazines and books are union-printed, too.

Um-m! All this gift talk is making me feel "Christmasy." Meet you downtown in the pre-Christmas rush—I'll be the lady with the holly wreath.

Do not be impatient. The growth of organized labor may appear slow, yet it is sure. Remember the lady who discarded her rubber plant after two years of careful nursing because it did not produce a single pair of rubbers?

Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia was placed on a comparative basis of accomplishment with Columbus' discovery of America by an over-enthusiastic lecturer at Columbus recently. There is some resemblance—both used boats to accomplish their objectives.

SANTA CLAUS wears Essley Shirts to help him keep his Santa Claus disposition.

You can't be a Santa Claus at heart, if your shirt is pinching you here and there, bunching at the wrong spots, crawling or chafing.

Smooth-shaven men need Essleys even more than Santa, because they reveal the unbulge-y, unwrinkled bosoms which Essley two-plane construction makes possible, and the neat, trim collars which the Trubenizing process assures.

GO HOME CHRISTMAS — GO HOME NEW YEAR'S

Travel by Train

If you contemplate a trip to spend CHRISTMAS or NEW YEAR'S DAY with friends and loved ones, consider the speed, comfort, safety and dependability of the modern railroads, rather than the crowded highways.

On a train you can do the things you want to do while you ride—and with the freedom and peace of mind that you would have in your own home. The SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM is equipped with many safety devices, such as electric block signals, electric train control (ask some railroad man to tell you about how wonderful the electric train control is), rock ballast, heavy steel rails and all-steel cars.

Not a single passenger was killed by any of the standard railroads of the United States last year, while thousands on thousands were killed on the crowded highways.

The rates are reasonable; the basis for coach travel is only ONE AND ONE-HALF CENTS PER MILE while the basis for travel in the sleeping cars is only TWO CENTS PER MILE for each mile traveled (limit 15 days). For one way trips in Pullman cars the basis is THREE CENTS PER MILE plus the Pullman charges for space occupied.

The next time when you have a trip to make—and want to make it in the pleasantest way possible—go by train and you'll be convinced.

Any of our ticket agents will be glad to furnish you full information as to schedules and total fares.

Celanese Strikers Receive Support From Mine Workers

Proximity of Members of United Textile Workers in Strike-Bound Plant to Mine Locals Comes from Statement.

The following is the statement of the International Executive Board, United Mine Workers of America:

The strike of the employes of the Celanese corporation is naturally of concern to the United Mine Workers both because of the proximity of this group to our locals in Markland and because this is a flagrant case of the refusal of a powerful and wealthy concern to live up to an agreement to bargain with the union.

The workers in the Celanese plant organized to protect themselves against bad conditions, which included wage rates ranging from 23 cents to 77 cents per hour, as compared with salaries to officials of over $100,000. A basis of settlement was reached between the United Textile Workers and the company earlier in the fall. A representative of the company signed an agreement "to deal with the union as the representative of its employes who are, or may become, members of the union, in collective bargaining."

The company, financed by British capital, has sought, in spite of this agreement, to inject individual bargaining into the situation in connection with a proposed wage increase. It has furthermore fostered a company union in violation of the law.

The executive board of the United Mine Workers sympathizes with the efforts of the Celanese employes to establish their organization and to secure an agreement with improved conditions.

BAKERY WORKERS CHARTER MANY NEW LOCAL UNIONS

Chicago.—Keeping step with the forward surge of organized labor in many lines of endeavor, the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America has announced wide organization activities, with worthwhile results being constantly attained.

Ever since the recent Pittsburgh convention, the organization has grown steadily, charters having already been issued to local unions having over a thousand new members. It is stated that, with the establishment of new locals and signing of new working agreemtnts, many improvements have been gained in reduced hours of work, increased wages and better working conditions.

From throughout the five districts into which the country is divided, with an international executive board member in charge of each, come glowing reports of militant activity and commendable results.

One begins to get a different slant on "those movie people" since the Screen Actors' Guild came into being. A recent donation of $5,000 to California union-labor strikers bore the signature of most of the topnotchers, male and female, of the movie colony. Labor marches on!

Labor Declared Having Big Stake In TVA Success

Great Federal Project Has Been for Organized Workers from Beginning, David E. Lilienthal Tells A. F. of L. Convention.

Tampa, Fla.—David E. Lilienthal, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, warned the American Federation of Labor convention here that labor has a "real stake" in fighting for continuance of TVA because that project has set a significant example of successful working of collective bargaining and other labor benefits.

Lilienthal told how TVA really began in the World war, how the utility companies tried to get it after the war, how Senator George W. Norris fought them off in session after session, and then added what the general public doesn't know:

"Organized labor was in the thick of that fight—on the public side. Labor saw that Muscle Shoals was part of a larger issue; the unified development by the public of the public's own resources. As far back as the Portland convention, thirteen years ago, your federation unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the subsidizing of any 'privately owned and operated power system.'

Labor's Water Power Program.

"Your convention then proceeded to urge a broad program in words that are prophetic:

"'We individually and collectively urge the necessity for a co-ordinated public development and control of said water resources for the service of the people at cost, giving due regard to the four-fold duty of water for domestic supply, for irrigation, power production and navigation, and to the necessity for flood-water storage and control.'"

Lilienthal told how the Coolidge and Hoover administrations blocked every effort to develop Muscle Shoals. He gave the brief, ringing message which President Roosevelt sent to congress on that subject. Congress adopted his recommendations and passed the Norris bill, "and TVA went into action on a broad front."

Labor Support Aided Norris.

"The Muscle Shoals fight would have been even harder for Senator Norris and his helpers if it had not been for the support of organized labor. The task of the TVA board has been made easier by labor's support . . . I speak without the slightest fear of contradiction when I say that in the Tennessee valley region working men and women, both leaders and the rank and file, are with the authority unanimously. But the support from labor is not confined to the valley area; it extends to all sections of the country.

"Labor is for TVA because TVA is for labor. . . The TVA record, from the outset to this hour, shows in deeds, not in mere words, that this government agency operates according to the best standards and traditions of the labor movement."

He told how labor cooperated in framing that labor policy, and has an absolute freedom in choosing its spokesmen. This policy has made for efficiency in the work, but that is not all.

Unions Vital to Democracy.

"This policy goes beyond these things. Organization, effective, responsible, bona fide organization of wage-earners, is essential to the preservation of democratic institutions."

Lilienthal also told how, when TVA needed more skilled iron workers than offered, it went to Whitey Rounds, of the Structural Iron Workers. "Within a week, he had located a group of men from whom were selected four of the smoothest operating, most efficient riveting crews that the construction superintendent had ever seen."

Refreshing Relief
When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

MORE ABOUT
AFL CONVENTION

ates into the hands of the favored few.

And so we are on the verge of a new day in that respect, and we want this convention to make it known to the employers of labor throughout the nation, to those who own and manage industry, that labor is alert, that it is determined, that demands will be made and that those demands must be met, because there must come into the lives of the working people a larger share of the wealth which they create.

LABOR'S ECONOMIC PHILOSOPHY

Then we are thinking about the economic philosophy of the American Federation of Labor, a philosophy evolved out of a half century of varied experiences. It is not academic. It is practical. It was not the product of yesterday or today. It comes to us as the expression of the best judgment of the men and women of labor who have been fighting the battles of labor for more than half a century in the United States of America.

That economic philosophy was sound forty years ago, it was sound thirty years ago, it was sound yesterday, it is sound now, and if I appraise the judgment and sentiment of the responsible tried veterans of labor, I am of the opinion that they are not ready to discard that economic philosophy developed in so scholarly a way, they are not ready to depart from the road which they have followed into the byways and highways and paths of untried experimentation.

Our action will be based upon that economic philosophy evolved by the American Federation of Labor.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

We have been grappling with the problem of unemployment, of machine displacement, of sweat shop conditions in many cities and towns throughout the United States. We will consider those problems here.

I am more than ever convinced that labor presented the real solution for unemployment. What better remedy has been proposed than that which has been offered by labor? We have urged its acceptance, not only by the employers of labor.

I refer to a real, practical remedy for unemployment, and that is the shorter work-day and the shorter work-week for the men and women who toil.

If it is impossible for us to accord to working men and women an opportunity to work and earn a decent living under the long work day and long work hour plan that has been in effect for so many years, then what does common judgment and common sense dictate?

THIRTY-HOUR WEEK

I maintain that every man and woman in America able and willing to work, eager and anxious to work, is entitled under our form of government to an opportunity to earn for himself or herself a decent living.

I say to you that we are not measuring up to our responsibility nor are we discharging our duties in a full measure until we develop an economic order that will, in operation, accord to every man and woman willing and able to work an opportunity to do so.

Then if there is not work enough for men and women under the old work day and work hour program, we must make the adjustment.

I am more convinced than ever that the day is here when we should not hesitate longer, we should not halt in our decisions nor in the application of a remedy.

The day is here when labor presses and demands that industry immediately put into effect the six hour day and the five-day week without any reduction in earning power.

CHILD LABOR BAN

Then we are thinking about the children. It is this great movement that is leading in a fight for the protection of the children. We protest against the exploitation of our offspring in industry and industrial processes.

For that reason we have pressed for the acceptance of the child labor amendment to the constitution of the United States. We do that because we want to protect the child from industrial exploitation in Florida, in Georgia and in Mississippi, the same as we would protect the child from industrial exploitation in the more thickly populated industrial states of the middle west and the east.

Is not a child in the southland as precious to us as a child in any other section of the country? I maintain that the labor movement of our nation is equally interested in the children of the south as they are in the children of the north.

And so, my friends, what plan can be advanced to protect the children of every state and of every nation, other than to vest in the congress of the United States the power to prohibit child labor in every state, in every city, and in every town throughout the nation?

Why should we hesitate? Why should we halt? With millions of adults idle, why should we still continue to want to employ children?

We could relieve the unemployment very materially if child labor was abolished, and we are so convinced that that must be done that we in this convention will renew our determination to go out and continue to fight to bring about the acceptance of the child labor amendment to the constitution of the United States, so that our children can be protected and saved from industrial exploitation.

Ever since this proposal was made, the American Federation of Labor has carried forward the fight. Never for a single moment have we wavered. We have, through our concentrated, uncompromising efforts, secured the adoption of the child labor amendment to the constitution by twenty-four sovereign states.

have them. They must take their place with the twenty-four that have already expressed themselves, and the American Federation of Labor, if it can do it, if it lies within its power to do so, will prevail upon these twelve states during the coming winter to ratify the child labor amendment to the constitution of the United States. That is a part of our program.

WORKERS RIGHT TO ORGANIZE

Then along other legislative lines we expect to press for the acceptance and enactment of legislation designed to make labor free and accord to it the widest opportunity to organize and Unite its economic strength upon the industrial field, so that it can occupy an equitable position in its bargaining relationship with industry. We will drive forward in our effort to secure the enactment of legislation which is in accord with the economic philosophy of the American Federation of Labor.

I haven't the time on this occasion to go into our legislative policy in detail. Opportunity will be accorded as committee reports are submitted to this convention to analyze and formulate legislative policies which, in the judgment of this convention, will bring to those we represent the greatest degree of freedom and protection.

LABOR SOLIDARITY

On this occasion I cannot refrain from speaking about the internal affairs of the American Federation of Labor. I know we are all thinking about that most seriously. But we cannot afford, when meeting in a great congress like this, to permit internal dissension to be the question of primary importance.

Are we to devote all our strength and all our energy in internal conflict? Do the workers whom we represent wish us to be constantly at each other's throats, and while at each other's throats to exclude from consideration the constructive policies of the American Federation of Labor?

Remember, my fellow workers, that those we represent are humble working men and women, men and women who are grappling with the real problems of life and living in their homes and in their communities. They are not men and women moved by consuming personal ambitions. They are not attempting to utilize a great movement of any kind for the purpose of advancing their mere political aims or to satisfy a consuming ambition.

What they are interested in is their vital problems of life and living, and they are identified with our movement because they believe that to be the means through which they can bring about a solution of our vital problems of life and living.

So in this convention let us hear above the tumult and the strife the voice of the working people, the men and women back in the mills, the work shops, the mines, pleading with us to do something for them so that life will be made better and conditions of labor more tolerable.

MENACE OF DISCORD

I have always been taught to believe that the strength of the labor movement was centered in unity, in solidarity, in concord and in cooperation.

What is the chief asset of labor? I hear you answer now, our weakness lies in division and discord and our strength in unity, solidarity and cooperation. If that is the case, then what should we say to those who introduce in our movement bitterness, hate, division and discord?

My answer to that is this: Woe be to him who strikes a blow at the heart of labor by driving a knife and a wedge into it to divide it!

We can rest securely in the consciousness of this thought, that the American Federation of Labor did not create this year or last year or at any other time the instrumentality through which the labor movement might be ripped asunder.

We are the same federation of labor that met at Atlantic City, the same federation of labor that met first under the inspiration and leadership of the mighty Gompers.

We are the same federation of labor that was guided and helped by the wise advice of James Duncan, of Peter McGuire, of the other leaders of our labor movement who in the days gone by gave to us of their intellect, their strength, their courage and their determination.

And here in this fifty-sixth annual convention we are going to keep the faith, the faith of the pioneers, the faith of the leaders. We are going to protect the Ark of the Covenant, the American Federation of Labor, for now when decisions must be made those who are here representing a splendid constituency will decide to remain steadfast and true and immovable with the American Federation of Labor.

There is in my judgment no issue that can be developed in the American labor movement which transcends in importance the issue of solidarity and unity, and even at this late hour, when hope seems to be fading and when the outlook seems to be darkened, I still plead for unity and solidarity, speaking for you. We stand ready through our committees to confer with any dissident group for the purpose of healing the breach and settling the difficulty.

Can any fictitious issue be raised that would transcend in importance the issue of solidarity?

I was taught at the feet of the philosophers of labor that it was my duty, yes, my obligation as a member of organized labor, to emphasize the necessity of preservation of unity and solidarity in our great labor movement, to find a basis of accommodation when differences arise and strive for the solution of vexing problems, to give here, to give there, if necessary, in order to find a solution, never to occupy, except on a matter of principle, a rigid, inflexible position, never to say, "I demand unconditional surrender from those who differ with me."

That may be all right on the field of battle when the die is cast and the issues are cleared and the fight is on and we use force as the arbiter of differences, but I cannot conceive of the application of such a philosophy in the American Federation of Labor.

INDUSTRIAL VS. CRAFT UNIONS

It is claimed that the issue which has arisen is the issue of industrial versus craft unions. My friends, we have been functioning for fifty-six years. Why is it that that issue did not split us asunder twenty years ago?

The answer to that may be that industrial development has changed the economic order. Well, if it has, the American Federation of Labor has pursued a policy sufficiently flexible to meet any changing conditions which may have arisen.

I declare to you now, and publicly repeat what I have stated before, that the American Federation of Labor never was, never has been, and is not now committed to any one policy of organizing the unorganized workers of the nation.

We are willing to apply both forms of organization in accordance with circumstances and conditions and in accordance with the best judgment of the executive officers of the American Federation of Labor and of conventions of the American Federation of Labor.

Who can say, therefore, in view of these pronouncements and this announced policy, that the American Federation of Labor is against one form and for the other exclusively? No man can throw that into our teeth. We are for the best plan that can be devised in order that we might appeal to the unorganized workers of the nation to come with us and unite with us. Any issue raised upon that assertion is a fictitious issue and arouses within the minds of thinking men a suspicion of the sincerity of those wro raise that issue as a smoke screen to deceive us.

DEMOCRACY IS REAL ISSUE

The real issue is democracy within the American Federation of Labor. Shall the will of a convention, freely expressed, be the law of the American Federation of Labor? That's the issue.

I remind you that at the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor, all the issues presented by duly accredited delegates to that convention were considered and acted upon and then in democratic fashion a vote was taken.

The majority expressed itself, decided what would be the policy of the American Federation of Labor for the year 1936. Who originated and shaped that policy? Not me—no, the sovereign delegates clothed with the power to vote and speak for their constituents decided the policy by a majority vote.

And if this Executive Council, sitting on the platform with me this morning, has done any one thing during the year 1936 that stands out preeminently above every other act, it is that it heroically and courageously carried out the instructions you gave them at the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Would you want them to do otherwise? When you decide questions here, is it with a mental reservation that your executive officers, trimming their sails to any passing breeze, might substitute their own judgment for yours? Can they do that? You would not tolerate it for a single moment.

And so in coming to you, in reporting to this fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, we report the fact that we have carried out during the twelve months and the fifty-two weeks of the past year, the specific, definite, concrete expression of the fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

We could not do otherwise. We would not do otherwise, and I declare publicly that if you want a president who will do otherwise, then don't elect me as president of the American Federation of Labor.

But when those who participate in the deliberations of a great parliamentary body such as this voluntarily submit the issues for determination by their fellow delegates and associates, do so with an intellectual and mental reservation interpreted thus: If you vote as I wish, if you are with me in my contention, if you will approve my plan and my ideas, I will abide by the decision of the convention; but if you don't, after the fight is over and your will has been registered, then I am going on the outside and organize a rival union for the purpose of putting into effect the will of the minority in the convention—if that happens, what must be our answer?

MAJORITY RULE IS VITAL

Those of us who have defended democracy and democratic rules, shall we surrender? Must that be the answer? Shall we say that democracy is merely a term and that it possesses nothing vital?

I hear you say, never, for if there is one movement in America that begins in democracy, makes it a part of their daily lives, and actions, who intend to preserve it here in America, not only in the administration of our economic affairs but in the affairs of the nation as well, a movement so committed to such a vital proposition as democracy cannot and will not compromise with force of any kind whatever.

There is the issue—democracy. And what should be substitue for it? Can we substitute force and minority control for majority rule? And if we would, what would be the outcome? Chaos, destruction of our movement, for no movement could live if its policies are determined by a survival of the fittest.

Here the humblest, weakest international union in the American Federation of Labor is accorded the same rights as the most powerful organization, and democracy means much to them.

If they were to determine their questions by force, they would lose, but determined by the rule of reason and the application of the principles of democracy, they can win.

So what we must consider here and now in our deliberations is, shall the democratic procedure of the American Federation of Labor pursued for more than half a century be continued?

Shall we modify it? Shall we change it? Shall we require those who become part of our American Federation of Labor to abide by the rule of the majority? I know what your policy will be and what your answer will be.

MINORITY RULE CONDEMNED

You cannot risk the life of your own union upon any other basis or upon any other procedure. I ask you, representative of national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, would you tolerate in your own international union a minority rival organization, organized for the specific purpose of putting into effect by force a decision that was lost at a national or international convention of your deliberate body?

Suppose you meet as we meet. Duly accredited delegates are seated. You thresh out your problems, and when your convention is over and the problems have been settled by majority vote, a dissatisfied group goes out and organizes a rival union for the purpose of putting into effect the minority decision.

Would you say amen to that? Would you say, all right, you are right and we are wrong? Would you tolerate that? You could not, because if you did you would not live for a single moment, your organization would disintegrate and pass out. I have dwelt upon this because these are some of the issues involved, and I speak of it all in the spirit of forbearance, of kindness and of consideration. I still plead with those who have acted differently. I ask them to recognize the principles of democracy. I ask them to remain steadfast with the great organized labor movement of America. I ask them to come back with us and take their seats and let us fight out our differences in man fashion at conventions of the American Federation of Labor.

May I say now in conclusion that during this period of economic dislocation the morale of the masses of the people become greatly impaired. Not only did they suffer because of a lack of earning and a lack of opportunity to work for wages, but they suffered from depression and impaired morale.

Children's bodies became ill nourished. Starving children and anxious parents, wondering what they were going to do in order to stem the tide were found in great uumbers in our industrial sections.

Morale was destroyed, intangible assets greatly impaired, the very basis of our future life as a national unit was assaulted.

Now we must build, we must restore. Perhaps we cannot bring about complete restoration of the destroyed values of the children who have suffered so much, but it must be labor, the American Federation of Labor, organized labor, in cooperation with sympathetic groups that must approach the problem of building up the morale of our people, healing the wounds, constructing here a new manhood and a new womanhood equipped and fitted to discharge their duties in a democracy such as ours.

That is a part of our task. We can do that by raising the standard of life and living, by building it up to a higher level, by instilling courage where despair now prevails, by awakening hope where pessimism possesses men and women. That is a part of our job and our task. We must do it and we must do it well.

To you, my friends, I know I can pledge the support of the great masses of the people and of our friends not directly associated with us in this great humanitarian process of rebuilding human lives, restoring morale, increasing the value of intangible assets, making this nation of men and women strong and courageous, devoted to the principles of democracy and the institutions of our government.

I greet you, I salute you, I am happy to be here at this great convention. It will be one of the best we ever held, and when we go out we will go out as men and women who, at the sacred altar of trade unionism, have renewed our vows of allegiance to the principles and policies of the American Federation of Labor, and we will bare our breasts to the enemies within or without, determined that the word "surrender" shall never be found in our vocabulary.

Textile Workers Back Demand for 20% Wage Raise

Pay Increase Offered by Some Employers Unsatisfactory, Says President McMahon, Urging No Compromise.

NEW YORK CITY. — The executive council of the United Textile Workers of America, meeting here, approved the wage policy announced recently by President Thomas F. McMahon of the union calling for a general 20 per cent wage increase.

The council also voted unanimously to support the Woolen and Worsted Federation in demands for a 20 per cent wage increase, a 35-hour work week, regulation of the machine load and collective bargaining.

McMahon Hits Compromise.

President McMahon told the council the union would not accept any compromise on these demands and that the 10 per cent wage increase now offered by some employers in the textile industry "is unsatisfactory."

He urged all workers to "prepare their lines in an organized movement for a substantial increase in wages that would really meet the increased living costs."

Vice President Horace A. Riviere, representing the New England district, authorized Joseph Sylvia, U. T. W. of A. representative, to mobilize the local unions in Providence behind the original proposals served on all employers there.

Unionization Progresses.

Vice President Francis J. Gorman of the Washington office told the council that unionization of the industry was progressing in all sections. He said the union was now preparing its legislative program for congress, and probably would re-submit the original National Textile act.

The council approved the recent action of the unions composing the Committee for Industrial Organization in voting not to attend the American Federation of Labor convention at Tampa.

Garment Union Pushes Sale of Label Dresses

Demand for Union-Made Goods Spreads From Cotton to Silk Lines, Southwestern Office of I. L. G. U. Announces.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The International Ladies' Garment Workers' union has begun an intensive campaign to increase the sale of union label dresses, the union's southwestern regional office here announces.

In response to a widespread demand, the union label of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, originally available only on cotton dresses can now be had on silk dresses in all price ranges. Retailers, it is reported, cannot satisfy their customers' demands for union label merchandise in cotton and silk dresses. Within a short time the union expects to announce the signing of numerous dress manufacturers.

Among the manufacturers who are now using the union label are the following: In cotton dresses, Boulevard Frocks, Inc., Shelco Manufacturing company (Styl-O-iFt dresses), Fried Garment Manufacturing company (Texanna frocks), Atlas Manufacturing company, Scheinberg Dress company, Southland Frocks, Inc., and A. J. Peterson's (nurses' uniforms).

Movie Ops Sign Pacts 45 Houses

WASHINGTON. D. C. — Forty-five theaters in and near the District of Columbia have just signed a new agreement with Moving Picture Machine Operators' local union No. 224. These include all theaters of all kinds catering to white patrons, among them two fine new neighborhood movie houses. Peaceful negotiations between the various managers of groups and individual theaters and representatives of the union resulted in a victory of which any union might well feel proud.

Moving Picture Machine Operators' Auxiliary No. 224 is continuing negotiations with the managements of 12 movie houses and one combination vaudeville and movie catering to colored patrons for renewal of agreements. All theaters in this territory, except two that cater to colored patrons, are now employing union moving picture machine operators.

MUSKEGON, Mich. — Local union No. 527, Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, gained a signal victory here when negotiations were successfully concluded with the Wolverine Express company.

By terms of the new agreement, about 36 employes of the company, who are members of the union, receive wage increases of about 20 per cent to the union scale. The increases have already become effective, it is announced.

UNIONS WORKING ON TVA PROJECTS SUBMITTED TO AUTHORITIES FINE BRIEF

Eighteen Organizations Jointly Drew Up Exhaustive Survey of Working Conditions and Wages on Government Work.

Made Contentions at TVA-Labor Conference Held in Knoxville Three Weeks Ago in Three-Day Sessions.

The Labor World believes that members of construction and metal trades unions will be interested to read the complete brief filed in their behalf by their representatives in Knoxville at the second annual employe relation policy discussion with the TVA authorities. Signed by eighteen crafts, a great deal of favorable comment has been heard concerning the complete and logical case drawn up and presented.

Although the brief is lengthy, it will be presented in these columns in two or three issues.

To the Wage Conference Committee Operating Under Employe Relationship Policy of Tennessee Valley Authority:

This is the second annual wage conference held under the employe relationship policy. The cooperating unions believe our presence here represents an element of growth in employe and authority relationships. The adoption of the employe relationship policy last year signified that the Tennessee Valley Authority had passed out of its pioneer, construction stage into the sphere of an established institution. We believe that the cooperating unions are sensible, that that employe relationships between themselves and a government agency are not the same as between employes and private business. We understand that the techniques of collective bargaining developed under the hammer of give and take in private industry, are not altogether suitable to negotiations between employes and an agency of the United States government.

The president of the United States has described the Tennessee Valley Authority as "a corporation clothed with powers of government, but possessed of the flexibility and initiative of the private enterprise. Notwithstanding this description the cooperating unions believe that the Tennessee Valley Authority is a government institution bound by the precedents, traditions, aims and legal objectives of a government institution. iWth these facts in mind the cooperating unions are laying before this body a factual brief upon which is based certain requests for increased wages and improvement of working conditions. The unions believe that the facts are correct, and that the requests are warranted by the facts; and they have been careful not to exceed the facts.

AN FRANCISCO OPTICAL WORKERS UNION STRIKES

emand $35 for 40-Hour Week. Present Average Wage Is $27.50 Per Week.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — The ptical Workers' union, with an ef- ective organization for the first time ere, came out on strike against em- loyer opticians, after failure to gain ecognition and wage adjustments, or ven genuine efforts at a friendly set- lement, over a period of three months. The men are fully determined o win a clean-cut victory.

"The optical mechanic, a highly killed worker," an official of the nion on strike points out, "has for ears lived at a sub-standard level. he front door of the ornate optical tores does not tell the same story s the back door. Average wages have een $27.50 a week. Thos eworking or one employer cannot quit and get etter conditions with another firm. hey will not take one man from heir friendly competitor."

The union membership responded to he strike call and they are conduct- g themselves with a sustained mo- ale and such determination that only ventual victory can result. The men re seeking union recognition, a mini- um wage of $35 for a 40-hour work eek, with time and a half for over- ime.

BUSINESS GAINS BRING BIG CHILD LABOR JUMP

National Committee Reports Startling Increase In Employment of Boy and Girl Workers, With Predatory Abuse of Young Toilers in South and Other Sections.

NEW YORK CITY. — Child labor is coming back, according to the annual report of the National Child Labor committee, just issued. It has been coming back ever since the supreme court knocked out NRA, and the return is proceeding at a faster pace because of the obvious improvement in business conditions.

As to the increase in speed, the committee cites the figures of the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, collected from 10 states and frm 98 cities in other states. In the first five months of 1935, 3,350 children of 14 and 15 years in these states and cities secured regular working certificates. In the first five months of the present year, in the same states and cities, the number of children getting these certificates was 8,400.

This is an increase of 150 per cent in a single year.

The committee devoted special attention to the lumber and woodworking industries, the sugar beet industry, and the making of candlewick bedspreads in homes. In all, conditions were found unspeakably bad, and growing worse.

"Predatory" Abuse of Children.

In the lumber industry of the south, a survey of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana showed an abuse of children

"as predatory in essence as anything that has gone on in this country since the days when the mills in New England 100 years ago advertised for children to do their work."

Examination of the sugar beet industry in Colorado and Nebraska showed children 7 and 8 years old working in the beet fields, and the living standards of laboring families "on a starvation level."

12-Hour Day Found.

In some beet raising sections, the schools were closed so that children would work 12-hour days for wages ranging from 50 cents to $1 a day. The committee says of this:

"IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT IN ANY MANUFACTURING INDUSTRY TO SHOW A MORE PERFECT EXAMPLE OF MEDIAEVAL INJUSTICE THAN IS TO BE FOUND IN THE BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY TODAY, IN WHICH, OVER LARGE AREAS, A VAST PRODUCTIVE ENTERPRISE AND THE PROFITS THEREOF ARISE UPON A FOUNDATION OF HUMAN MISERY."

The making of candlewick bedspreads, being a home industry in which unionization is impossible, naturally shows a depth of wage payments which hardly permits one to imagine any lower depth.

Day's Work Brings 11 Cents.

The committee speaks of "the severe sweating of labor, the work of one person for a full day producing only 11 cents for the simplest tufted spreads, and great pressure being used on children to come in from play or even work into the night on rush orders."

"The greatest tragedy for children who toil," says the committee, "is not in the striking examples of abuse which arise to plague us during a depression. They, by the extreme degree of their offense to humanitarian instincts, tend to bring their own corrective.

"The greatest tragedy lies in the extent to which the employment of children in even larger numbers during a time of business improvement is covered up and glossed over by the general complacency over the fact that 'times are getting better.'

Aid for Amendment Urged.

"It appears to be hard for the individual who sees business and trade reviving, to pause to consider the extent to which this process of creating wealth is being built upon the backs of children who need to be in school, instead of having their youth ground out of them at labor."

The committee points out that 12 more states need to ratify the child labor amendment to put it into effect, and pleads for help in the ratification campaign which it is planning to get this number to indorse the amendment in 1937.

TRADES AND LABOR UNION COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, DECERBER 4, 1936

Labor Unity Comes First

The internecine war now raging in the American labor movement is accomplishing results for the reactionary employer groups that would have cost such enemies of labor millions of dollars had they attempted the project themselves. Bull-headedness on the part of CIO and craft union leaders, fanned by personal animosities and jealousies, should not be continued.

The rank and file of our labor movement, we believe, is expecting the committee resolved from the Tampa convention to bring peace once more into the organized labor family. We believe that the millions of workers in this country, whether in the industrial or craft union category, expect, and will demand, that the score or more of leaders in the controversy shall tread lightly. We hope that outthrust jaws will be pulled in, and that personal advantages or hatreds will be relegated to the background or submerged in a desire to accomplish what is best to maintain the same sort of unity and cooperation which those same leaders have been preaching to the unorganized workers in an attempt to show that "in unity there is strength."

Unless this is done it is quite possible that rumblings now being heard will grow to such an extent that guilty leaders, whoever they may be, will have an opportunity to pick up their trade tools once more, while competent successors lead this great American labor movement as a whole once more rather than as two snarling and warring factions.

Removal of the Typographical library and museum of American Type Founders to the Columbia university means that valuable collection will be preserved for posterity as an entity and be readily accessible to all interested. The collection, started in 1908, is said to be the largest and most complete of its kind in all the world.

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Labor stands divided in two camps.

Not in all the long history of the American labor movement has there been a time when all were under one tent. Division has been the rule, strange as it may seem.

Here are some examples: From the time of the great German immigration down to the post-World war period, there was a dual union of machinists. That was continuous dualism over much more than a quarter of a century.

For many years there was a dual union in the field now occupied by the carpenters. Many will remember the old Amalgamated.

And there was the warfare in the electrical industry.

For a considerable period the bricklayers were not in the A. F. of L.

Other unions have been "on agin, off agin." Or, in and out.

Never complete unity in one group.

So there is nothing at all new about division.

There was the Western Federation of Miners, and there, of course, were the "Wobblies."

Once a half dozen men formed what they called a union in rebellion against "Big Six" in New York. Some milk wagon drivers also formed a union dual to the teamsters.

And Sidney Hillman's powerful Amalgamated began as rebellion against the United Garmen Workers, existing for more than a decade outside of the A. F. of L., and now out again after only a brief interlude of membership.

Division has been the rule. Division should not be shocking. Maybe interest - compelling, but certainly not shocking.

The thing that makes the current division between A. F. of L. and CIO is the size of the contending, conflicting groups. Never has there been a bolt that shot so nearly down the center of the line.

Also, the division is dramatic and unusual by reason of the leadership in the contending camps.

William Green and John L. Lewis stand as men without counterparts in the divisions of the past.

William D. Haywood was a fairly dramatic character, but he led no such powerful unit, nor was his drama quite as authentic. He was thrust forward by the Steunenberg assassination, but he seemed unable to stick in the place to which he had been thrust.

Queer that Borah, who prosecuted him, should have grown from that date as a great though erratic leader of protest.

Through years of incessant sniping the socialists in the A. F. of L., possessed of oratorical strength in conventions of those days, battered away at Samuel Gompers and "pure and simple" unionism.

Disunity in American labor history has been disunity of small minorities.

Now an army marches out. It's different — in size. And that makes it VERY different.

The outcome? Well, you might as well ask, "Watchman, what of the night?" You're not likely to get the right answer in either case.

Nobody knows the answer. But there will be more sanity about the whole thing if it is remembered that division as such is not new. It is as old as the hills, in labor and in every other realm. Observe, for example, the churches.

And, from examples we may learn that disunity in an organization sense doesn't mean disunity of ultimate aim.

American labor stands for one thing throughout the industrial realm.

His subject will be "The White Collar Worker in the Organized Labor Movement." The L. I. D. lectures are being sponsored by the Workers' Cultural Society of Chattanooga.

Prof. Holmes was to have been the speaker at the last federation annual banquet, but failed to arrive due to a mix-up in correspondence.

STRIKE CLOSES HUNDRED SCHULTE CIGAR STORES

NEW YORK CITY. — More than 90 of the 100 cigar stores of Schulte & Co. were closed on November 24 by a strike of the Retail Cigar Salesmen's union, Local 906, affiliated with the A. F. of L. The union is demanding a 48-hour week, and a 20 per cent increase in wages, including the restoration of a four per cent wage cut dating from last September, when the company applied for leave to reorganize under the bankruptcy act.

John O'Grady, president of the union, said that men who have been with the company many years were getting $25 a week or less, and working hours that make 48 a week seem small. He reported that Schulte stores were also in Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, and one in Buffalo, making a total of at east 100 closed.

Bay City Dairy Workers Win Higher Pay, Shorter Hours

BAY CITY, Mich. — Typical of the new industrial order, under which employers are learning that their workers are human beings who appreciate humane treatment, the Bay City Dairy company has announced a welcome betterment in working conditions.

The new arrangement provides that all employes will go on a six-day work week instead of seven as heretofore, and every five weeks each employe will be enabled to have two consecutive days of leisure. The shortening of the work week was also accompanied by an increase in wages.

A total of 6,760 languages has been used since man began to talk, says the French Academy of Science, 2,796 of them now being in use.

Remington-Rand Staged Riotings Scab Chief Says

Tonawanda Clash Deliberately Brought On to Put Workers in Unfavorable Light Before Court, Says Boss Strikebreaker, in Telling NLRB Newest Technique of Defeating Workers' Effort to Improve Conditions.

NEW YORK CITY. — Pearl L. Bergoff, big shot of strikebreakers, testifying at the NLRB hearing in this city, admitted that he had accused James H. Rand, Jr., president of Remington-Rand, of deliberately staging a riot at Tonawanda so that he could get a motion-picture of strikers throwing stones to use in an application for an injunction.

"About that Tonawanda riot when several of your men got hurt and Mr. Rand's men took motion pictures," Trial Examiner Charles Wood asked Bergoff. "Do you think he had the men summoned there just so there would be a riot?"

"Yes," answered Bergoff. "I accused him of staging that. I said to him, 'If you wanted my men killed, why didn't you tell me?' I bawled him out. I was afraid some of my men might get killed.

"But I've nothing against Rand," Bergoff went on. "He's O. K."

Cash Soothed His Feelings.

Under further questioning, however, he disclosed that in this conference with Rand, his — Bergoff's — injured feelings were soothed when Rand gave him $5,000 in cash. All in all, Rand had paid Bergoff $25,850 for "services."

The "accident" at Tonawanda occurred while Bergoff was demonstrating the new way of breaking strikes. Rand declared that he had a large number of "loyal" employes who wanted to come back to the mill, but were scared. Bergoff fixed up 80 men to go into the mill, pretending to be strikebreakers, to act as bellwethers for the "loyal" ones outside. But the picketers just rocked those bellwethers something scandalous; and Rand later admitted that he meant to use the film in applying for an injunction against the strikers.

Working of "New" Scheme Revealed

Bergoff told with gusto how he worked the "new" strikebreaking scheme at Middletown, Conn., where one of the many Rand plants is located. It was a "whispering campaign," he explained. "You can whisper various things, like 'the plant is going to be moved.' That has lost some of its value, now, because employes are mostly skeptical."

It turned the trick at Middletown, however. Bergoff and some of his men went into the plant and began taking down some of the machinery. That, with the whispers that the plant would be dismantled, brought telephone calls from strikers and other citizens. The managers of the company "relented" after just the proper show of hesitation, and there was a regular love feast of ice cream, soda pop and ballyhoo, which strikers, strike breakers and executives of the plant all absorbed together.

False Names Used.

"My men and women went to visit the different employes on strike," explained Bergoff further. "They — the employes — were told that if they had any grievances against the company, they could take them up with the company after returning to work."

"Did your employes go into the strikers' homes?" asked Daniel A. Shortel, counsel for the NLRB.

Bergoff admitted that they did, and that most of them used false names.

"A number of these strikebreakers take different names when they go on jobs," he continued. "They don't want their families to know what kind of business they're in, so they take different names. I myself registered under the name of Brady, if that's any benefit to the crowd here."

Bergoff is reputed to have made $10,000,000 in his strikebreaking business.

Negroes Tell of Labor Slavery In Arkansas Trial for Peonage

JONESBORO, Ark. — Seven negroes took the stand in federal court and swore that they had been arrested without cause by Paul D. Peacher, city marshal of Earle, Ark. All swore —and this was not denied — that they were fined $25 each and sentenced to jail for thirty days; and that they all worked out their sentence on the farm belonging to the man who arrested them.

The defense admitted the arrests, the fines, the imprisonment, and the place where the sentences were worked out. Peacher claimed only that the men were loafers, that their arrest was an "official act," and that they had "regular trials."

The defense tried to attack the characters of the witnesses, but were stopped by the court. "The guilt or innocence of these men is not involved in this trial," said the judge. "The intent with which Peacher arrested them and whether they had a fair trial are the issues." The trial was held under the federal anti-peonage law, and the charge against Peacher was that of "aiding and abetting" in causing persons to be held as slaves.

Winfield Anderson, 51, was one of the witnesses. He testified that he owned his home in Earle, and had a steady income of a pension as a result of pensation for injury. He was arrested at his home last May without any explanation; was taken to the justice court of Mayor T. S. Mitchell, charged with vagrancy, sentenced to $25 and thirty days.

Mayor Mitchell, called by the government, testified that he had sentenced the negroes "on Peacher's word that they were vagrants."

Peacher claimed to have contracted with the county to work its prisoners; but he could not produce it. He did offer a bond filed for working prisoners. It was not dated, and the government established the fact that the bond was drawn up after the trial began.

Comment on World Events

tuart Chase, long known as one of few writers on economic subjects can be understood by an intelli- layman, has made a most inter- forecast for the next four rs. Writing in the November 21 of the Nation, he says:

"There will be no onslaught on cap- ism as such, but a steady growth collective enterprises in those sec- where private enterprise has ed its inability to make folks fortable. Specifically, I think we look for:

"National controls for minimum es and maximum hours; abolition child labor.

"A long-term collective plan for ag- lture, including curbs on surplus, insurance, increase of coopera- marketing.

"Strengthening of federal control banking, credit, stock markets.

"Further restrictions upon holding panies of the milking machine va- ty.

"More and more electric energy at and less cost, as the yardsticks ing into action.

"The TVA may hatch out a few thers and sisters.

"A real program for housing the lower income groups.

"Redoubled efforts to conserve the land, water, wild life of the American continent, and the absorption of the unemployed in conservation and other public works.

"An amended and improved social security act."

Practically all observers agree that we are within arm's length of an- other world war, and getting closer every day. The question is, who brought the world to this pass?

The answer, complete, conclusive, backed not merely by a preponder- ance of evidence, but by all the evi- dence, can be given in one word: Fascism.

Fascism in Italy alone was not an immediate threat to world peace. Italy was not strong enough to up- set the world alone. Mussolini stormed and blustered and made him- self disagreeable, but alone, he could do nothing more.

Fascism in Germany under the name of Nazism was a direct threat to world peace, though not, at first, an immediate threat. Germany has very great potential strength, but it took time to develop it; and it also took time for Hitler and Mussolini to learn to work together.

They have learned it now, and they are acting as a unit in the support of a rebellion designed to set up another fascist government in Spain. If world war comes out of this attempt—which is strongly indicated just now — fas- cism will have made that war.

Fascism began by smashing labor unions and destroying all forms of liberty at home; and it may end by trying to carry the same savagery abroad.

Editors are credited with command of about 50,000 words of the million or more in the English language, which seems to prove that editors are —just what is the proper word?

Labor papers in Long Beach and San Pedro, Cal., have been sued by a disgruntled creamery company for $100,000 damages. It might be a com- pliment to some labor papers, but to sue the Schindlers for that much is downright slander.

What is probably the largest first edition of any book ever published in the United States has just rolled from ahe presses of the government printing office. It is t 2,500,000 issue of a question-and-answer volume deal- ing with the activities and statistics of the works progress administration.

MORE ABOUT
CIO SUSPENDED

International union; J. C. Lewis, head of the Iowa State Federation of Labor; Jonathan Eddy of the American Newspaper Guild, and Jerome Davis, of the American Federation of Teachers.

The debate lasted many hours and was ended at midnight, when the convention, following a speech by President William Green, voted overwhelmingly in support of the resolutions committee report.

CIO Unions Asked to Return.

The report ended on a note of conciliation, urging labor unity and urging the CIO unions to once more join in the A. F. of L. councils, "to once more take up their share of the joint burden in the struggle for the betterment of the lives and conditions of all workers."

History of the A. F. of L. indicates, the report said, "there is room within its house for all workers — skilled, semi-skilled or unskilled. We are not bound to any definite form of organization, and include alike the so-called trade, craft and industrial form. Need we say more?"

Three Specific Steps Approved.

Three specific steps recommended in the report and approved by the delegates were:

"1. That this convention approve of all actions taken, decisions reached and rulings made by the executive council, as hereinbefore noted and referred to. We specifically recommend approval of the suspensions noted, and all actions and decisions and rules relating thereto. Lest there be fear that this recommendation may be interpreted to mean permanent suspension or complete severance, let it be understood that the suspension noted shall remain in effect until the present breach be healed and adjusted under such terms and conditions as the executive council may deem best in each particular case or in all cases combined.

"2. That the special committee appointed to discover a basis of settlement to be continued with the full faith and confidence of the convention.

"3. In event that by action of the suspended unions they make the present relationship beyond bearing and create a situation that demands a more drastic procedure, that the executive council be authorized and empowered to call a special convention of the American Federation of Labor, at such time and place it may deem best, to take such further steps and actions as the emergency of the situation may then demand. We counsel this procedure and delegation of authority in the sincere desire to avoid any possible future and permanent severance unless such permanent separation comes as the choice of those who would permanently divide and bring warfare instead of peace and unity into the ranks of labor."

Action on many resolutions of importance was taken.

The committee on legislation recommended strong support for the La Follette committee investigating labor spy conditions.

The committee charged that a "gigantic lobby" was seeking to cut off funds for the congressional inquiry into hiring of thugs and spies and piling up of arms for "a pitched battle" by corporations against organized labor.

The convention approved the report after Green recalled that the A. F. of L. "played a large part" in getting the LaFollette inquiry into infringement on civil rights of workers.

"The LaFollette committee has made only a beginning in dragging into the light the underworld that serves the biggest businesses; the spies and thugs whose profession is wrecking unions or even murdering workers," Chairman I. M. Ornburn of the legislation committee said in a statement.

Licensing Bill Backed.

The convention adopted a resolution directing the executive council to strengthen proposed federal legislation for licensing of corporations as a means of enforcing labor standards.

The strengthening provisions which the resolution would put into the O'Mahoney bill were described as technical provisions designed to make the legislation more effective.

Support to Strikers Pledged.

A resolution pledging continued support to strikers at the Kohler company, at Kohler, Wis., was adopted. The resolution ordered President Green to use his best efforts to prevent award of government contracts to the company.

Representatives of the strikers told the convention that pickets were still in action outside the Kohler plant after 28 months of strike and "we will stay there until we win."

The delegates heard a long report on the struggle to unionize workers of Remington-Rand Co., which led to a strike early this year. The strike is still on.

The convention approved a resolution offered by Frey congratulating the strikers and seeking financial aid from international unions and affiliated state labor bodies.

Dictatorships Denounced.

Dictatorship was strongly attacked by several speakers. George Gibson, fraternal delegate from England, declared that the task of combatting war and dictatorship lies in the hands of the world's working class, and British trade unionists are ready to fight for freedom if necessary.

President Green led the convention in a strong denouncement of dictatorship and a summons to the world's working class to "stand like the Rock of Gibraltar" in defense of democracy.

"The Church may fail, the Chambers of Commerce may be impotent and the civic leaders may lack the power to deal with the tyranny of dictatorial rule," Green shouted in assailing the regime of "the autocrat in Germany."

"But the trade union movement—at which dictators strike first—has the strength to prevent the rise of dictatorship in any form at any time and any place.

"We must take our lesson from what has happened and develop trade unionism to stand like the Rock of Gibraltar against every dictator."

CONTRACT WITH PIGGLY WIGGLY MAKES 37 UNION STORES IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER, Wash. — That union men and women throughout the nation are gradually learning the important lesson that patronage of friends and withholding of patronage from non-union concerns helps mightily in the advancement of wage earners, was well demonstrated here. Retail Clerks Protective union No. 942 recently signed a contract with the local store of the Piggly Wiggly chain, by which it became 100 per cent union. Word to this effect was passed around and, the following Saturday, the manager of the store reported 460 more customer sales than previously.

The Piggly Wiggly store became the 37th store in this vicinity that Retail Clerks No. 942 have signed up, running from grocers and florists to jewelers and hardware dealers.

In addition to the local store, others of the Piggly Wiggly chain have been signed by the union in nearby St. Helens, Longview, Kelso, Astoria and Marshfield. Still others in this district are expected to follow.

Thus the energetic campaign of the clerks' union is getting commendable results. Local No. 942 is chartered by the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

MORE ABOUT TVA BRIEF

however much wishful thinking might dictate different objectives.

We also believe that the facts that a number of unions are here cooperating in the presentation of a common brief, is evidence of improved morale and improved employe relationships in the Tennessee Valley Authority. This brief is the product of a conference held in Chattanooga and it has the indorsement of the following unions: Machinists, Plumbers and Pipefitters, Common Laborers, Electrical Workers, Painters, Iron Workers, Plasterers and Cement Finishers, Operating Engineers and Boilermakers.

The chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, Mr. Arthur E. Morgan, is author of the following statement: "Most of the great and enduring loyalties of men are loyalties to broad and inclusive generalities." (Address to the National Academy of Sciences in Boston, Nov. 21, 1933). Though workers are not moved consciously by generalities as such, they are aware that their whole organized movement proceeds upon the general principle of a constantly increasing standard of living. They respond vitally to this concept. They understand it in the abstract and in the concrete. We believe that the chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority rightly interpreted the president of the United States when he said "to escape from the use of surplus so that productive capacity can produce well-being, that is the aim of President Roosevelt."

Director David E. Lilienthal said at Tampa, before the American Federation of Labor "that the largest part of the stockholders o fthe Tennessee Valley Authority are the working men of the United States and their wives and children," and again "that the responsibility for the labor policy for collective bargaining for hours, rates of pay and working conditions rested squarely upon the Tennessee Valley Authority." Mr. Lilienthal developed this idea further when he said "here for the first time in America the people have set up a vast testing ground for the nation, where they can determine for themselves how the natural resources of water and land and power can best be developed and conserved and used, not for the benefit of a few privileged individuals, but for the benefit of the entire community." In short, we believe that management and labor are in agreement upon these definite aims of this great project here in the Tennessee valley. These are the same relations to which not only labor but management itself is loyal. We do not hesitate about presenting these generalities to the conference at this time, because they are the moving motives of the men, who work on the job, and of the men who direct on the administrative side. To undertake to discuss concrete details of wage and working conditions without a glance at principles should be pretty much like operating a boat without a compass.

May we go further in developing this question of the relationship of employes to the Tennessee Valley Authority as a government agency. The view of the function of government as it has been developed under the Tennessee Valley Authority is important. The function of the government as developed here is that of setting up proper standards by which the actions and processes of private industry may be adequately judged. This function of government is not the exclusive property of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Everywhere we find government acting in this wise, especially during the last four years, the government has undertaken to set up adequate housing standards through the federal housing administration and rural resettlement. It has undertaken to set up proper physical standards through the bureau of standards of the department of commerce. But it is in the Tennessee Valley Authority that the function of government as a standard maker has become popularized. We are aware of this in the popular term "yardstick." The Tennessee Valley Authority development is thought of, throughout the whole nation, as a yardstick not only in the setting up of proper electric rates, but in the setting up of proper community standards on a large scale under social and economic planning. These objectives have been repeatedly expressed by the chairman and by others in authority. Labor is quite willing to accept this standard-making function of the Tennessee Valley Authority, but it does not want it limited merely to the question of proper electric rates or questions of proper water control or proper principles of soil betterment, but wants to see the yardstick applied to the entire wage question in its larger aspects, as it affects the whole plane and character of human life in the valley, widespread purchasing power and consumers' absorption of goods. It would be a regrettable thing if the yardstick function of government should not be extended to the workers themselves. We believe that is what Mr. Lilienthal had in mind when he said that "labor is supporting Tennessee Valley Authority because the Tennessee Valley Authority is aiding and building the income and the labor wages and standards of the southeast. We need not tell," he went on to say, "this group that in the southeast the standards are by and large low. The reasons for this low wage standard, the history and the whole background, the part that discriminatory freight rates play in that picture—we have time for none of these here. The fact, however, is clear and we know that the prosperity of the whole country depends upon the prosperity of every section of the country; we cannot be secure in an adequate and fair standard of wages in one section of the country if at the same time another larger section of the countr yis suffering under a low and inadequate level of wages."

The cooperating unions here today believe that management early in the development of the Tennessee Valley Authority recognized this same yardstick function of the authority in the matter of wages, when it set up a basic wage, at the beginning, of $1.00 per hour. And the cooperating unions here now express their appreciation of the early efforts of management to fulfill this yardstick principle. It is true that precedent for the $1.00 an hour basic wage existed in the public works administration, and authority was found in the prevailing wage provision of the act itself. However, the cooperating unions believe that management was honorable and generous in setting up, in this region, the basic $1.00 hour wage. Saying this, the cooperating unions now go further to declare that the time has arrived for a revision upward of this wage, and for the amelioration of certain working conditions.

The cooperating unions are basing this contention upon the following facts:

1. The trend of wages not only in the southeast, but throughout the entire country is upward, and, in order to keep the yardstick parallel the wage scale of the Tennessee Valley Authority should be adequately raised.

2. A practical hardship is being worked upon unions and their administrators in the entire seven states involved, by a dual wage system.

3. Though labor does not accept the cost of living as a complete and adequate index to wage increases or decreases, there are certain exceptional features about the rise of the cost of living among workers of the area which must be taken into consideration.

4. Comparative wages on [illegible] government projects are to the advantage of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

5. The standard of life is [illegible] more important to consider than [illegible] so-called cost of living.

6. The employes of the Tennessee Valley Authority have been carefully sifted by an efficient personnel department and represent men of [illegible] usual attainment.

7. Any increase in wage may be regarded from the economic standpoint as a calamity to the region [illegible] to the nation.

This report will be completed in next week's issue of The Labor World.

Tri-State Council of Hosiery Workers Wants 25% Increase

Immediate Drastic Action Not to Be Taken Until Thorough Study Is Made.

RICHMOND MILLS SQUAWK ALREADY

Management at Richmond Hosiery mills have already begun to prepare for possible demands on the part of their employes for decent wages. Notices have been posted in the plant telling their workers that they are operating at a loss now because they want to help their dear employes.

They moan that they sell their products so cheap that they simply cannot pay any increase.

The management did not mention the enormous cost that was shouldered because of the army brought in by Gene Talmadge the last time workers asked for decent living wages.

The Tri-State District Council of Hosiery Workers of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, with representatives from Lenoir City, Loudon, Chattanooga, Nashville, Clinton and Knoxville, Tenn.; Griffin, Dalton, Rome and Columbus, Ga.; Anniston and Decatur, Ala., numbering 40 delegates, discussed at length and with quite some emphasis increases in wages, the necessity of advancing wages 15 to 25 per cent, the re-establishment of the payment of minimum wages, the return of the eight-hour day and the 40-hour work week and the elimination of the graveyard or third shift under which a number of mills in this area are now operating.

A strong minority group pressed very hard for an immediate drastic action if the demands of the union were not met; however, they were prevailed upon to give more detailed study to the entire matter.

The delegates voted to place this along with the course of action in the hands of the district office and a committee of five with full power to act; also the enforcement of the demands, including the naming of a particular mill or mills, and the time for this action was left to the discretion of the district office and this committee.

The delegates, after an analysis of reports of the verious mills represent-

Leather Workers' Unions Agree on Merger Action

Conference Within Sixty Days Will Set Up Machinery for Enrolling All Workers in Leather Industry, from Tanneries to Finished Products, in One Strong Organization.

TAMPA, Fla. — By agreement between President W. E. Bryan of the United Leather Workers' International union and Samuel Laderman, vice-president of the International Ladies' Handbag, Pocketbook and Novelty Workers' union, development of a union with potential membership of 125,000 was made possible here, Vice-President Laderman announced.

The agreement, negotiated by the two parties, with the assistance of Matthew Woll, A. F. of L. vice-president, resulted in withdrawal from the A. F. of L. convention of Resolution No. 101, in which the Handbag and Pocketbook Workers asked an international union charter.

Following are the stipulations agreed to by President Bryan and Vice-President Laderman:

1. That President Green is to call a conference within 60 days in Washington, D. C., between the United eLather Workers and the International Pocketbook oWrkers' unions for the purpose of establishing a functioning niternational union and set up machinery that will be able to organize the tens of thousands of leather workers now unorganized.

2. That Matthew Woll, chairman of the A. F. of L. Resolution committee, is to draft a memorandum setting forth the agreement terms.

3. That both parties are to make an effort to meet in conference and iron out differences now existing and prepare the ground for the official conference to be called by President Green.

The significance of the agreement, according to Vice-President Laderman, is that, upon the success of the conference to be called by President Green, the way will be clear for organization of workers in the entire industry, from tannery to finished products, including all manufactured leather goods, novelty as well as staple.

Vigorous Union Drive Planned

The United Leather Workers' International union has and always has had an industrial union charter, which will continue, under the terms of the agreement negotiated here, to serve as the charter of the united and revitalized industry-wide union.

Difficulties arose out of the fact that the pocketbook workers found their former status impractical. They formerly were chartered as a division of the leather workers, but working difficulties developed which both groups have recognized in conferences here and which, on the basis of the stipulations reached here, will, it is expected, be entirely removed in the conference to be called by President Green. Vigorous organization work on a large scale will be launched immediately after the conference, it was announced.

Labor's Political Conference To Elect Officers

Voluntary Political Organization from Majority of Unions in County to Clear Decks for Election Two Years Hence.

Labor's Political Conference will hold its second session since the November elections next Sunday afternoon at the labor hall at 2 o'clock. The meeting was announced this week by J. C. Cox, chairman, and a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Mr. Cox's letter, addressed to the officers and members of all local unions in the county, says:

"Labor's Political Conference will hold its annual election of officers at our meeting next Sunday, Dec. 13, 1936, at 2 o'clock in Roosevelt hall, 114 West Seventh street.

"All delegates should be present and the officers and members of each local should see that they are represented at this meeting.

"Each member of organized labor will be welcome and we trust that many of you will attend.

"Our conference is composed of the various federated craft unions and the railroad brotherhoods in Hamilton county and if your local is not already affiliated we extend you an invitation to come join us and take part in our activities."

Seattle Auto Mechanics Win Wage Increase and Hours Reduction in Arbitration Award

SEATTLE, Wash. — After months of carefully fought arbitration proceedings, during which the workers' side as well as that of the employers reached the attention of the arbitration board, Seattle automobile mechanics and garage employes have gained a smashing victory, bringing wages and working conditions here to a point where they are termed "the best on the Pacific coast."

The Seattle Labor Conciliation board got the case July 6, when the union called off a strike which had started May 23, as a result of the Seattle Automobile Dealers' association's efforts to prevent organization of the industry. The board gave the case untiring and diligent service.

The award, effective in all shops of the dealers' association, established uniform minimum wages and working conditions and extends to April 1, 1938.

Wages for journeymen mechanics are based on $1 an hour, with a minimum guarantee of $35 a week, or $8 a day for the day shift, and "represents an increase of 10 per cent." The minimum for workers other than journeymen is set at $25 a week.

Teamsters and chauffeurs will continue on a 44-hour week, but the work week for mechanics and other shop help is reduced from 44 to 40 hours a week.

The award is referred to as bespeaking "peace and harmony in the industry through the harmonious relations now existing."

BROOKLYN MAN GETS FIRST SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT

BALTIMORE. — John D. Sweeney, Jr., employe of a Brooklyn electric shop, received Social Security Account No. 1. His card was the first to pass through the new security agency machinery set up here.

The No. 1 card holder is a Princeton graduate, and his home is in New Rochelle, N. Y. Social security headquarters said Sweeney won the card when his application for an account number was the first to be returned to the New York postoffice. The New York postoffice, in turn, was the first to send a batch of applications to the headquarters here.

MAYORS ASK CONTINUED RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYED THIS WINTER

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The executive committee of the U. S. Conference of Mayors, meeting here, declared that it is "urgent" that the government continue supporting 3,500,000 persons by work-relief this winter instead of cutting job lists.

The request was made direct to Aubrey W. Williams, of the Works Progress Administration, who met with executives of 11 industrial cities to discuss the relief situation.

Backing the mayors' demand for continued relief were two other organizations, the Workers' Alliance of America and WPA workers on white-collar jobs in Philadelphia.

STRIKERS AT BIG CELANESE PLANT WIN SUBSTANTIAL WAGE INCREASE

CUMBERLAND, Md. — The three weeks' strike of 9,000 Celanese plant workers here has been settled, the workers having gained an average of 12½ per cent in wages and the prestige of their union, the United Textile Workers of America, having been greatly increased.

Commenting on the settlement, Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, who took an active part in the conduct of the strike, said:

"The agreement which settles the 20-day strike of the Celanese workers is another major victory for the organizational program and policy of the Committee for Industrial Organization. This strike was won, first, through the courage and militancy of the synthetic yarn workers themselves and, second, because of the splendid cooperation and support of the unions in Cumberland and the executive council of the United Mine Workers of America.

"We feel that we have cracked the solid south. Cumberland is the key to southern rayon, and approximately 86 per cent of the installed capacity of the industry is in the south.

"Officials of the United Textile Workers of America and the Synthetic Yarn Federation will meet in Washington to map out the next steps in our campaign to organize this industry. Our aim is to completely organize the rayon and synthetic yarn industry. We will move into the other centers immediately."

Labor Agreement Held Immune to N. Y. Anti-Trust

Collective Pact in Gotham Fur Industry Exempt from Law Directed at Monopoly, Justice Roseman Rules in Suit Against Employers' Association and International Fur Workers' Union.

NEW YORK CITY. — Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Roseman ruled here that collective bargaining agreements between labor unions and trade associations are immune from the provisions of the state anti-monopoly act.

This decision came in a suit which, as every court wag remarked to every other one, "made the fur fly." The American Fur Manufacturing association, Inc., together with 19 of its members, brought suit against the Associated Fur Coat and Trimming Manufacturers, Inc., and the International Fur Workers union. The suit asked the court to declare the agreement between the union and the rival fur association null and void, because looking toward the establishment of monopoly, and to enjoin the defendant from continuing alleged "acts of violence."

To back the charge of monopoly, the plaintiffs quoted a clause in the agreement with the unions that "there shall be but one collective labor agreement in the fur manufacturing industry in the Greater City of New York."

Pact Declared Legal.

Justice Roseman denied the injunction and summed up the case thus:

"I have concluded that the collective agreement, attacked by this complaint, is cloaked with immunity by virtue of Subdivision 2 of Section 340 of the General Business Law, which exempts labor unions.

"If the contract be held legal as to the defendant labor unions, it must, likewise, be held valid as to the defendant association. The contract cannot be effective as to one signatory and ineffective as to the other. If a labor union is legally entitled to enter into the agreement here assailed, such privilege would be wholly illusory if the contract were to be held invalid as to the other contracting party."

Justice Rosenman said that the obvious intent of the law as it stood was to "remove from labor unions all prohibitions which have their basis in restraint of trade. Whether such preferences are proper is not for the courts, but for the legislature, to decide. They are reasonable classifications, which it is not the judicial function to disturb."

Goes Back to Rail Cases.

This, as an attorney for the defending union pointed out, goes back to the old days when the supreme court of the United States, in three closely similar railroad cases, told the plaintiffs to go to the legislature, not to the courts.

The union is said to control 98 per cent of the fur workers in the metropolitan area, and has refused to make a contract with the complaining association, though ready to make one with the individual firms, or to extend the contract of the defendant association to all fur firms that join it.

Indiana Trolley Union Wins 20% Pay Increase

Pay Envelopes Will Contain $78,000 More Per Year Because of Union's Strength.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Another smashing victory may be chalked up for local divisions of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, affiliated with the A. F. of L., three Indiana divisions having won a 20 per cent nicrease in wages through the presentation of incontrovertible evidence of justification for the raise to a board of arbitration.

The award affects employes of the Indiana Railroad at Indianapolis, Terre Haute and Anderson, Ind. The men are members of Division No. 1072, Indianapolis; Division No. 1064, Terre Haute, and Division No. 1069, Anderson.

The award is based upon the wage scale as of May 8, 1936, and is retroactive to that date. The rate is to be effective at least one year and affects about 500 of the concern's reported 1,200 total employes. It is stated the increase will mean about $78,000 more wages for the men during the year.

Although one member of the arbitration board held out for an increase of only 7½ per cent, the majority ruled in favor of the 20 per cent. The decision said:

"It appears from the evidence that the average rate of wages of the employes herein is 52 to 59 cents an hour for Indianapolis, extremely below the average rate of wages paid men in similar occupations in the majority of cities."

The business-like and thorough manner in which the unions presented their case has won much commendation, and it is generally agreed that it was only through effective organization that the men were enabled to gain the substantial victory which crowned their collective efforts.

TOLEDO BAKERS GET UNION PACT WITH 10-STORE CHAIN

Toledo, O.—The local bakery and confectionery workers' local union here has announced another outstanding victory.

An agreement has just been concluded with the Meinert company, by which all of its ten stores will operate on a union basis. The firm produced an excellent line of fine pastries, cakes, etc., and high quality ice cream. The management is reported as sincerely believing in the advisability of workers organizing and is said to be cooperating splendidly with the union. The result, of course, is that the Meinert company is now getting a goodly portion of Toledo's huge union labor patronage.

LIQUOR TAX COLLECTIONS SHOWING STEADY INCREASE

Washington.—In the first three full years of the repeal of prohibition, ending this week, the federal government has collected $1,507,558,000 in liquor taxes. State treasuries have received in the same time from taxes and profits on licensed monopolies $303,525,000. State revenues are reported running 28 per cent ahead of last year.

Collections have increased steadily since the first legal liquor was quaffed late in the afternoon of Dec. 5, 1933. Federal officials expect $650,000,000 from this source for the fiscal year of 1937.

Wisdom

Equity is that exact rule of righteousness or justice which is to be observed between man and man. It is beautifully and comprehensively expressed in the words of the Saviour, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye so to them, for this is the law of the prophets." — Charles Buck.

The guy who invented "interest" was no slouch, but the worker who thought of the union label was also a genius.

Senior Printer Brutally Smashed On Head and Face

T. J. Davie Hurt Sunday Night by Stranger in Unprovoked Attack.

Assailant Arrested and Fined $100 in Police Court—Held in County Jail Pending Payment of Costs

Respected Unionist

T. J. DAVIE

T. J. Davie, one of the oldest trades unionists in Chattanooga, was severely injured last Sunday evening in an unprovoked attack on him by Earl Layman, said to be an employe of the Tennessee Paper mills. Mr. Davie was at his place of employment at the Hamilton County Herald when Layman was said to have entered the place and loitered around. Someone else in the office told Layman to leave, which he refused to do. While a policeman was being sought the attacker whirled on Davie and struck him viciously with his fists, nearly closing both eyes and cutting a bad hole in his forehead. It is feared that one of the cheek bones may be crushed.

Layman was arrested and fined in city court Monday to the amount of $50 in the city and $50 in the state. He is now in the county jail.

Mr. Davie is probably the oldest trades unionist in the city, being the oldest member of Typographical Union No. 89, and a charter member of Central Labor union.

Layman pleaded guilty to the charge, but said that he did not remember anything of the part he played in the assault.

Carpenters Open First Convention Since 1928

J. L. Carpenter, president of Local 74, Carpenters, is in Lakeland, Fla., attending the Carpenters' convention as delegate from his local union.

Lakeland, Fla.—The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners opened its first national convention since 1928 on Dec. 7.

Frank Duffey, secretary of the Carpenters' union, and J. W. Williams, president of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, were among notable labor leaders present.

Railroads Economized On Payrolls

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Reduction in employment and other operating costs was the principal "economy" effected by railroads during the depression, L. A. Downs, Chicago, president of the Illinois Central, told the Investment Bankers' association of America in convention here.

Downs addressed a forum held by the railroads committee of the association.

The Illinois Central president said operating costs were reduced principally by "mass production measures which substituted mechanization for manpower."

General discussion at the forum emphasized that mechanization of all phases of the railroad industry had effected "permanent economies with vast savings in employment costs."

PAY FEDERATION DUES

A number of teachers have failed to pay dues which came due last October. In most of these cases there have been considerable justification, what with increased living costs without increased pay, summer debts to pay, and new clothes to buy. But we must remember that the federation is an essential, and we should attend to its obligations among the very first that we pay. Let's pay up at once and keep our splendid fighting machine running smoothly.

CREDIT UNION PROSPERS

Ernest Harris reports that the teachers' credit union has 120 members with a total of $584 paid-in capital. To date twenty-seven loans totaling $1,340 have been made. Loans made range from $25 to $200. They are cared for confidentially in order of application. Payments on shares or loans may be made in federation office or W. P. Selcer's office at Chattanooga High. Membership is open to all county and city teachers.

All teachers who have not already done so should read the article in last Sunday's Times magazine section on loyalty oaths by Dr. Alex Guerry. Dr. Guerry has done a real service to the teaching profession by writing this article.

Grand Rapids Teamsters Win Good Wage Increase

Grand Rapids, Mich.——Wage increases of 5 and 10 cents an hour have been won by members of Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Local No. 406 from the Associated Truck Lines, a dock facility concern, after a temporary breakdown in negotiations had nearly brought on a strike.

Three classes of truckers benefit by the temporary settlement, which is expected to be followed by a final agreement including all of the union's demands. The increases brought the rates to 55 cents an houh for dockmen, 60 cents for city drivers and 65 cents for highway drivers.

Motion Picture Machine Operators No. 291, of Grand Rapids, has also won a substantial victory in the recent settlement with three local theaters, including the Our, Royal and Eastown.

A labor unionist cannot increase his own wages unless he raises the pay of his brother unionists by patronizing firms that display the union label, shop card and button.

What Next!

New German thermoplastic pipes for the carrying of acids, alcohol, brine, formalin and beer are offering competition to glass pipes, iron pipes, stainless steel and earthenware pipes. The pipes, known as "Mipolam," may be sawed, bent and formed with everyday tools. As the material is non-inflammable, yet softens at 80 degrees Centigrade, two pipes may be joined in a tight fit by heating the end of one and inserting the cold end in the other.

One of the smallest and lightest electric drills ever made is being shown at the Power Show in New York city. Though only half the overall size of any other quarter-inch electric drill, it produces the same power. It is so small that it fits into the hand like a small calibre automatic revolver.

LABOR QUERIES

Q. — Is organized labor still in favor of boycotting goods produced in Nazi Germany?

A. — Yes. The A. F. of L. convention recently held at Tampa re-affirmed its declaration of a boycott of German products.

Q. — Has the A. F. of L. taken any stand on the use of one-man street cars?

A. — The Tampa convention approved of a resolution condemning the use of one-man street cars in Washington, D. C., as "unnecessary and dangerous and as extending a policy of adding to unemployment."

Q. — Who said: "Honor lies in honest toil."

A. — Grover Cleveland.

Q.—How much is paid out by trade unions in benefits?

A.—National and international unions paid out $26,108,606.16 last year in out-of-work, disability, pension, death and sick benefits.

Q. — Does organized labor favor broadening of labor laws to cover agricultural workers?

A. — The recent Tampa convention of the A. F. of L. declared for bringing agricultural workers under the scope of labor laws, such as social security, workmen's compensation, etc.

Q. — Will labor push the campaign for ratification of the Child Labor amendment to the federal constitution?

A. — Yes. The A. F. of L. convention decided to make an urgent demand for ratification.

Buying and bargaining collectively are the chief ingredients of the only economic remedy.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

Friday night is Label League night. The meeting is at the labor hall at 7:30. The attendance has been increasing right along. Come and meet your friends in the labor movement.

Just learned from the Memphis Labor Review that the folks down in Memphis are meeting on the 15th of this month to organize a Label league. They have our best wishes. The Chattanooga Label league is an important asset to the local labor movement.

Yessir, 'm weakening fast—if I go down to Sears' again, one of those bicycles will surely be missing. The oldest little boy would like one mighty well and I can't forget what a thrill it was the Christmas morning that there was a shiny, new bicycle by my Christmas tree a lot of years ago. That was way back during the World war when bicycles cost more than they do now. And there weren't any balloon tires on them, either. You can get a bicycle at Sears' for only $27.00, too.

After you've eaten a great big Christmas dinner and feel that you don't want to see any more turkey or chicken, or duck—try a light supper of cheese-on-rye with a bottle of Old South beer. It's good—and union-made.

It seems that there was a group of labor men standing in the lobby of the Patten the other night, just chinning together. Included in this group were Mr. Harrison, visiting vice-president, Commissioner "Bob," Kamin and "Brush" Smith.

"Pardon me, gentlemen," came a polite query from a certain government representative who has just returned to Chattanooga and did not recognize the men at first because he hadn't seen them in some months, "pardon me, but is this a group of the farmers?"

Well, these fellows had been called practically everything else but farmers, but they were in no way daunted.

"No, sir, Mr.————," came back the answer, "just a bunch of communists."

SHORTS

Having been thoroughly licked in its campaign to beat Roosevelt, wipe out all laws designed to protect labor and make Big Business behave, the National Association of Manufacturers wants to start a "new era of good feeling" between government and industry. Answer, nerts!

Representative Davy J. Lewis of Maryland, re-elected by the voters of labor and all liberals in his end of the state, says that his family shows the speed with which "rugged individualism" has limited child labor. "My grandfather," he says, "went into the coal mines when seven years old, my father at eight, and I at nine. That's two years gained in three generations."

The Deshler-Wallick Hotel, at Columbus, O., boasts a new Oriental rug, said to have cost $35,000, on its lobby floor. Looks like business is picking up. Yet it can't be, as the management of this same hotel recently "couldn't afford" to grant a slight wage increase to its firemen and engineers.

Union's TVA Brief Continued In Full

ubmitted to Authorities to Prove Better Wage Claim

I.

The trend of wages not only in the southeast but throughout the entire country is upward, and, in order to keep the yardstick parallel, the wage scale of the Tennessee Valley Authority should be adequately raised.

According to statistical estimates since Nov. 3, 1936, wage increases in private industry of the United States have been in excess of $130,000,000 with $25,000,000 additionnal in bonuses. Notwithstanding the fact that the building trades, which involve perhaps one million workers, has been continuously hard hit by depression conditions, an upward trend in wage rates has been apparent. We suggest that this conference examine the study made by the United States department of labor, published in the Monthly Labor Review for April, 1936, page 908. Here is recorded number of changes in union wage rates quotations as of May 15, 1934, compared with May 15, 1935. Record is as follows:

Number of quotations comparable with 1934	1,983
Increases	298
No change	1,624

These wage increases in the building trades reach to helpers and laborers as follows:

Number of quotations comparable with 1934	323
Increases	54
No change	261

The actual increase in wage rates for skilled labor may be traced by turning to the Survey of Current Business, published by the United States department of commerce for March, 1935, and October, 1936:

Construction Wage Rates for Skilled Labor, U. S. A.

January, 1934	$1.05 per hour
January, 1935	1.11 per hour
January, 1936	1.12 per hour
September, 1936	1.16 per hour

Increase, September, 1936, over January, 1934, 10.5%.

Source: Engineering News Record, as reported in the Survey of Current Business; data for 1934 and 1935 from the monthly issue for March, 1935, page 30; data for January and September, 1936, from the monthly issue for October, 1936, uage 31. The upward trend of wage increases is also apparent in the electrical utility field, as the following table indicates:

UTILITY WORKERS.

Indexes of employment and payrolls for the electric light, power and manufactured gas industry (1929—100).

	Employment	Payrolls
September, 1936	93.4	90.6
September, 1935	86.9	84.5
September, 1934	85.8	79.3
Inc., 1936 over 1934	8.9%	14.2%

Source: Department of labor, as reported in the Survey of Current Business; data for 1934, from monthly issue for March, 1935, pages 28 and 29; data for 1935 and 1936, from weekly issue for October 29, 1936, uage 4.

If the Tennessee Valley Authority, therefore, followed the increases in the building trades the rate of increase would be approximately 10.5%, and if the Tennessee Valley Authority followed the rate of increase for utility workers, the rate of increase would be 14.2%.

II.

A practical hardship is being worked upon unions and their administrators in the entire seven states involved by a dual wage increase.

From time to time union officials have had experience with a dual system of wages. In order to meet complex conditions in certain cities, labor unions have set up a double wage plan in the hope of remedying certain evils. We can report to this conference without reservation that in every instance where this dual system has been tried that, under the tendeucy of wages to gravitate to the lowest level, it has been impossible to maintain a dual system. Inevitably the lower rate of wage prevails. Something of this tendency has been going on in the seven states involved in the Tennessee Valley Authority development. Where private industry has paid a scale lower than the Tennessee Valley Authority there has been a tendency for the workers to rush to the job supplied by the government project and when private industry begins to raise wages beyond the schedule supplied by the government project, workers tend to leave the jobs with the Tennessee Valley Authority and go to private industry. This is a law over which neither the Authority nor the unions have much control. The solution, we believe, would be to equalize wages insofar as it is possible as between government project and private industry. Local unions have reported to their various officials recently that there has been a drifting away from the government project toward private industry. This is to be regretted because we assure you the unions are loyal to the great publicly owned development that is going forward in Tennessee valley.

III.

Though labor does not accept the cost of living as a complete and adequate index to wage increases or decreases, there are certain exceptional features about the rise of the cost of living among workers of the Authority, which must be taken into consideration.

Very few economists take the position today that the cost of living is an important factor in wage making. The Business Week, for instance, a weekly dealing with consideration of contemporary economic problems, had this to say about the cost of living as a factor in wage making (May 6, 1931).

"The cost of living means nothing any more, and it has never had any necessary relation to wages. Real wages are determined only by the abundance of capital and the efficiency of management. The purchasing power of employed workers always increases and should increase during depression. This is one of the factors of recovery because it helps to offset the lost purchasing power of the unemployed."

The method of those analysts who undertake to fix wages in relationship to the cost of living may be accurately described as follows: They select a point, whether it be 1926, 1927, or 1929, to which to compare wages at that date with wages of the present. They do not examine the question, as to whether the wages at the given date of say, 1929, were adequate and fair. What difference does it make to wage earners when they are receiving inadequate wages in 1929 to have that inadequate wage raised or lowered according to the fluctuations of living costs. The wage still remains inadequate, but the analysts gleefully point out that wages—once a base is selected — are being adjusted according to fluctuations in living costs. Labor emphatically protests to this conference and every disinterested agency this method and this procedure.

Labor demands that there shall be an examination of the wage return on the basis of the needs of the family of the worker and of himself. If the wage is inadequate at a given base, any adjustment, either up or down, from this point has no significance whatsoever.

This same method of trying to fix wages by comparison of inadequacies is often employed by employer representatives when they attempt to compare one inadequate wage paid by one industry with another inadequate wage paid by another industry. Labor protests this method. If the steel industry pays an inadequate wage and the electric utility industry pays a few more cents does not mean that the electric utility industry is exempt from responsibility to its wage earners.

Labor is willing to recognize the cost of living as a factor in wage making provided that labor may determine its own standard of living to which costs are referred. The cost of living figures, for instance, prepared by the U. S. Department of Labor, are backed by a very inadequate standard of living, and this has been repeatedly admitted by authorities in the U. S. Department of Labor. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, as New York Industrial Commissioner, made the statement that "we hear much concerning the cost of living, but the truth is that no satisfactory estimates of the cost of living is available."

President Roosevelt is reported as stating in Washington, that he does not want the cost of living to be used in wage negotiations if it is to be utilized as an obstruction to wage increases. According to the figures of the U. S. Department of Labor there has been an increase of about ten per cent in the cost of living as between June, 1933, and July, 1936. However, in this particular wage situation one item in the cost of living to workers in the Tennessee Valley Authority projects should be justly considered. We refer to the increases in housing rents to employes. Some workers estimate these increases to be as high as 50 per cent. We are submitting photostatic copies of employes' service bills for comparable maintenance of different years and these do indicate 50 per cent increases in rental and service costs. (Copies clipped on another sheet of paper).

IV.

Comparative wages on similar government projects are to the disadvantage of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Other government projects are paying a higher scale today than is the TVA. The schedule of wages for civil employes in the field service of the navy department and the marine corps as revised March 1, 1936, reveals that blacksmiths are receiving from $1.10 to $1.29; boiler makers are receiving from $1.04 to $1.17; electrical workers are receiving from $1.04 to $1.27; machinists are receiving from $1.36 to $1.48; painters are receiving from 98 cents to $1.22; plumbers are receiving from $1.08 to $1.27. The differentials are determined by the place at which a worker is located. The scale at the Bonneville dam, Coulee dam, and Boulder dam is much higher than the Tennessee Valley Authority, the wage rates for electricians at these places being, per hour:

Bonneville aDm	$1.20
Coulee Dam	$1.20
Fort Peck Dam	$1.20
Boulder Dam	$1.25

V.

The standard of life is much more important than the so-called cost of living.

Early in our discussion we pointed out that both labor and management have the same objectives in mind—that is, a rise in the standard of life of the underlying population in the TVA. We believe that few people who actually have not been forced to undertake to live upon $30 to $35 a week realize how low this standard of life is. To be sure, a steady income of $30 a week is much better than the starvation wages of $15 or $10 a week which private business has often set up as good enough for wage earners. Yet, it is fitting and proper and wholesome for us to pause here for a moment and try to determine just what happens when a man tries to found a family, establish a home, and undertakes to become a decent citizen on an income of $30 a week. Not long ago we had opportunity to study the actual budgets of 278 wage earners, working for a public utility and receiving steady incomes of about $30 per week. We found that this group had a total indebtedness for all costs of $33,962.00, that they had been forced to borrow, principally from loan sharks, the total sum of $16,922.00, and that the only amount saved was $4,650.00. None of them were able to set aside money for the education of their children. Many of them owed doctor bills. Very few had the mortgage removed on their houses. None of them knew what it was to have magazines and books coming regularly to the home. None of them had money set aside for vacation. These are but indications that if the standard of living is to be raised to a decent level, not only in the Tennessee Valley but in the nation as a whole, it must be considered

Get Rid of Poisons
Produced by Constipation

A cleansing laxative—purely vegetable Black-Draught—is the first thought of thousands of men and women who have found that by restoring the downward movement of the bowels many disagreeable symptoms of constipation promptly can be relieved. . . Mr. J. P. Mahaffey, of Clinton, S. C., writes: "I have found that Black-Draught is very effective in the cleansing of the system. When affected by the dull headache, the drowsiness and lassitude caused by constipation, I take Black-Draught."

MORE ABOUT TVA BRIEF

well above the mark of $30 to $35 a week.

VI.

The employes of the TVA have been carefully sifted by an efficient personnel department and represent men of unusual attainment.

Gentlemen, the type of worker that has been employed by the Tennessee Valley Authority, due to the efficiency of th personnel department, is exceptional, and the standard of workmanship obtained in this region is very high. These qualifications alone would warrant the better schedule of wages for these men than in some sections of this country and upon some projects. Skill involved has always been a standard to be considered in the fixation of wage scales. Chairman Morgan himself has said "we have in this region old American stock with a large proportion of persons of good intelligence. A large industrialist who had plants in various parts of the country tells me that not anywhere else does he find so large a proportion of his working forces made up of men who can understand and master technical processes and problems. The working forces on our construction jobs are of a higher order than we commonly find in another part of the country."

VII.

Any increase in wage may not be regarded from the economic standpoint, as a calamity to the region or to the nation.

The cooperating unions submit herewith statements from reputable authorities as to the relationship of wages to production, to earnings, and to profits:

Bertram Austin and W. Francis Lloyd — The Secret of High Wages. "Contrary to the general belief in Europe, high wages do not necessarily mean a high level of prices. It is to the advantage of the community that the policy of industrial management should be directed toward raising wages and reducing prices." (Page 25).

Paul H. Douglas — Wages and the Family. "An industry that does not pay its workers enough to enable them to maintain themselves is extracting more vitality from its employes than it is returning to them. It is therefore parasitic, and either of the sources are bearing the burden of supporting its workers or the workers themselves are making severe inroads upon their own strength." (Page 3).

Paul M. Mazur — American Prosperity, Its Causes and Consequences. "Just as always happens when production decreases, the result of this slowing down process of industry and commerce adversely affected the purchasing power of those men and women whose economic well-being depended upon the activity of the business machine. With decreased purchasing power came decreased consumption, decreased demand, then decreased sales, and once more, decreased production . . . and so the circle, gaining momentum at each revolution, turned back upon itself with increased impetus." (Page 18).

William T. Foster and Waddill Catchings — Profits. "The risks and the losses due to the uncertainties of economic enterprise fall first cpon capital. Wages not only have a priority of claim, but they actually are paid, as a rule, before it is possible to tell whether there will be any profits." (Page 154).

William T. Foster and Waddill Catchings — Progress and Plenty. "Employers once accepted, without question, the dictum that 'the great mass of wage-earners can never rise far above the lowest level of subsistence.' This, they supposed, was hard luck for 'the great mass of wage-earners.'

"But gradually it dawned on them that low wages are hard luck for employers, as well. Lay off a wage-earner, and a customer takes the count. Nothing but wages will revive him." (Page 106).

In view of these facts and these conditions the cooperating unions fully believe that they are justified in making certain requests for revision of the wage schedule and working conditions in the Tennessee Valley Authority. In the main the requests are four:

1. For a basic 36-hour-week with a maximum 40-hour week.
2. Though the increase in building trade wages is a minimum of 10.5 per cent, the cooperating unions contend that in view of the fact that there is a trend upwards in wages, and in view of the fact that this schedule will have a year to run, that the increase should not be less than 15 per cent.
3. That even with this increase in wages some revision downward in the rents and service costs could well be effected.
4. That overtime be paid for every hour beyond the forty hours.

These four requests are general, and in consequence, a representative of each one of the cooperating unions will present his individual request, following the presentation of this brief. Gentlemen, we submit to you that we have placed this case upon the highest ground possible. We have not gone beyond the facts. Every one of these unions has had experience before government bodies at some time prior to this conference. Each has had varying degrees of experience and success. In some instances, it is a well known fact that when labor has placed its request on high ground and made a peculiarly factual presentation, it has been met with indifference and even with cold disregard of such data. The cooperating unions believe that opponents of these four requests must do the following before they meet the issues:

1. They must submit convincing data to show that the trend of wages is not upward.
2. They must submit data to show that where a dual system in wages does obtain, the two systems actually succeed in maintaining themselves in isolation.
3. That in particular the specialized increases in rates and service costs at the valley do not bear upon this problem of an increased schedule
4. That wages in other government projects are lower and not higher than those at the Tennessee Valley Authority.
5. That the standard of life is of such character that it does not need to be increased here or anywhere else in the United States.
6. That the employes of the Tennessee Valley Authority are not of an unusual skill and character and finaly;
7. That wage increases tend to penaize the economic system and woud be injurious to the commonweath.

Hopkins Offers Broad Prgram Of Security and Higher Wages To Solve Unemployment Problem

Washington.—Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of the works progress administration, proposed a broad program of social security and shorter working hours to meet the nation's unemployment problem.

The proposals were similar to those made by organized labor for improving the condition of the masses and for giving work to the idle.

Estimating that 6,500,000 to $7,500,000 workers will still be without jobs next year despite near 1929-level business, Hopkins proposed to the U. S. conference of mayors here a program comprising:

Shorter working hours, higher wages and stability of jobs.

Broad social security covering unemployment insurance, no child labor, aid to dependent youngsters and the aged.

Better public employment facilities, low-cost housing.

Immediate unemployment census and periodic new censuses.

Continuance of present work progress program.

Hopkins said the fact that unemployment persistently had failed to decline as rapidly as business improved showed plain necessity for a long-term program that would go to the root of the problem of protecting and rehabilitating idle workers.

LAUNDRY DRIVERS WIN PAY INCREASE AGREEMENT

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—Union laundry drivers here, after a 16-day strike had stopped all activities at the plant, have won a signed agreement with the Troy Laundry, which marks another decisive victory for organized labor of Cleveland.

Under the settlement, wages are increased from $10 to $11 a week, plus 10 per cent commissions, and a substantial minimum wage guarrantee, which the laundry had previously refused to grant.

ed, found that any number of mills elsewhere are paying 25 per cent and more for similar work, to say nothing of a number of instances where employers are paying 50 cents, sixty cents to a dollar a day to learners, and that after new style changes where an additional effort was necessary it was learned that the earnings were always less. The recent reports in the press concerning wage increases in other industries added to greater impetus to the necessity of wage increases in the hosiery industry, both full fashioned and seamless hosiery. The agitation was very significant on the part of the workers represented working in mills where there has been a complete collapse of code standards, coupled with two and three wage cuts in recent months in this territory.

It was further pointed out that a large number of hosiery manufacturers have announced increases in selling price in hosiery, effective Dec. 1, and a general move is seen in this direction. Price advances of 10 and 25 cents a dozen on some numbers of branded full fashioned hosiery for December delivery was made known last week by leading companies, which appears to be the start of a general upward movement in this field, while in unbranded hosiery prices have advanced 50 cents a dozen and it was further indicated that additional advances are contemplated starting with the new year.

The members of the council voted additional funds for radio broadcasts to follow those already contracted for beginning with Monday, Dec. 7 and 14, from 6:15 to 6:30 p.m., over Station WDOD, at whict time a more detailed analysis will be given of different phases of the industry, both seamless and full fashioned. Starting with the new year these broadcasts over the same station will be renewed,

The magazine "Fortune," which costs a dollar a throw, prints in its current issue sketches of the 23 richest women in the United States, the poorest of whom has $25,000,000. In its foreword to those sketches, Fortune says of these women:

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui as I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

$250,00 Labor Temple Is Dedicated As Central Body Holds First Business Session

One Hundred Per Cent Attendance Sees 618 Delegates Representing 113 Local Unions — State Penitentiary Put on "We Don't Patronize List"—Mayor's Proposal to Float $500,000 Bond Issue for Addition to New Temple Rejected.

Labor World Trustees Announce $5,000 Dividend to Central Body and Recommends That Editor's Salary Be Doubled—Organizing Committee Reports That Every Policeman in Chattanooga Now Member of the Union.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 24.—Organized labor moved into a new six-story labor temple just completed last week when the first session of Chattanooga Central Labor union was held with appropriate dedication ceremonies. The temple is the realization of an ambition made possible by the addition to the ranks of organized labor in Chattanooga of 25,000 members, each one contributing one day's pay, amounting to a minimum of ten dollars.

Before the 618 delegates from 113 local unions went into executive session, a grand march was staged on the top floor of the structure to the strains of Central Body's own fifty-piece band, directed by Delegate Carr Rodgers and his banjo. Leading the grand march was President Frank Dobbs, bullet-scarred veteran of Seventh street, and Mrs. Dobbs. Secretary Mabee, just recently bonded for $50,000, due to the increased treasury of which he is in charge, was in step with an "I told you so" smirk on his face.

Following the executive officers of the Central Labor union were Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hix and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gardner. In addition to the delegates were approximately 3,000 members and friends of the labor movement. This was all that the main hall would comfortably hold.

After the march the visitors danced while the delegates repaired to the third floor, where the official Central body meetings are to be held in the future. Each delegation has a semi-circular desk at which to sit, with an electrically illuminated plate attached designating the name of the local union it represent.

President Dobbs, in his enthusiasm, broke his gavel in a vain attempt to call the session to order, and finally gained his point by calling out to delegates Kamin, Hallmark and McKenna to break up their private party. Miss Virginia Munsey read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved as read.

Nashville Lawyer Incites Lynching Union Organizers

Froths at Mouth Because He Fears "Lasting Welfare" of Southern Employes Will Be Injured.

Nashville, Tenn. — Incitement to lynch law, appeals to religious prejudice and sectional feeling are resorted to in one of the most reckless and inflammatory pieces of anti-union propaganda issued recently by southern manufacturers. Gordon McKelvey, secretary-counsel to the Southern Garment Manufacturers' association, Inc. (with headquarters in the man building here) not merely indulges in diatribes against unions in general, but charges that a union organizer had recently attempted to shake him down for money.

We quote choice paragraphs from McKelvey's outburst:

"The communities in which our factories are located are being invaded by large numbers of preachers of discord and avarice. These men and women of alien "isms" are not in our midst to promote peaceful, progressive industrial relations; they are not here to aid, but to rule and ruin. They have no interest in providing for human needs. They have not the slightest conception of what constitutes the lasting welfare of employes. They are here for one purpose — to prey upon the emotional weaknesses of honest, loyal, satisfied employes, and to fatten their own purses at the expense of community discord, and if necessary, the destruction of life and property.

"I know what I am talking about. For a number of weeks I have been engaged in a battle of wits with these hell-bent mischief makers, whose sole stock in trade is to destroy peace, create unemployment, hatred, mistrust and lawlessness, and supplant barbarianism for civilization. These emissaries of the most powerful, organized, arrogant interests that ever strove to curse this great Anglo-Saxon section of our country, say that "the cotton garment industry in the south must be unionized." They say our spirit of freedom and independence down here must be broken. They even brazenly boast to your face that not only our employes, but the employers, are ignorant, credulous and 'easy picking' for the racketeer and labor union exploiter.

"Do you want some proof? Tere it is: One of the most important labor union heads of the country, whose head has swelled again because of his recent political successes, has just left my office. He 'claims' organized strength in practically every town in the south in which one of our factories is located. He propositioned me over and over again. He endeavored to point out where 'we' could have peace and tranquility by 'cooperating' with him. He promised diabolical developments would occur in some of our comunities in the south. He wanted money. He did not get it. He never will.

"Stop and reflect upon the lack of excuse whatsoever for the creation of such a vile and un-American situation in the south, where employers and employes have always been one large homogeneous group. Consider this vicious invasion for the disruption of normal employer - employe relations, in a section where both employers and employes are of practically one blood, speak the same language (one you can understand), fear and worship one god, and know but one standard of what constitutes right and justice. And all of this at a time when southern employers are on the threshold of ability to pay higher wages and improve working conditions by natural processes. Statistics show that, relatively, higher wages are paid in the south today than in the highly industrialized eastern areas of the country."

Edward F. Callaghan, district representative of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, in a statement issued here described Mr. McKelvey as "a trouble maker of the worst description" and challenged him to make public the name of the alleged union representative mentioned in this letter.

McKelvey's "letter" is a four-page printed affair. The text is a repetitious collection of rant much along the line of the paragraphs quoted above.

Callaghan's statement is as follows:

"Mr. McKelvey, as a member of the bar, should realize that he is actually inciting to riot and lynching in this letter. He is stirring up the worst sort of prejudices and religious hatreds.

"On the letter head of the Southern Garment Manufacturers are the names of several persons obviously of Jewish extraction. Are these gentlemen parties to their effort to stir up sectarian passions? Mr. McKelvey's whole statement is the most dangerous sort of rubbish which could inflame ignorant and narrow minds to rash and vicious deeds. It is high time that so-called responsible business men put a muzzle on creatures of the McKelvey type. The whole southland gets a bad name as a result of activity of this type."

Play, Group Sing Feature Cultural Meet

"The Home of the Brave" Presented at Labor Hall.

Some seventy trade unionists and friends attended the Workers' Cultural society meeting at the labor hall Wednesday night. After a short business session group singing was led by Mrs. Zilphia Horton, followed by the presentation of a satirical take-off on Nazi Germany, "The Home of the Brave." Anna Lafitte, of the Bakers and Confectioners, Simon Kaset; Lloyd Campbell, Sid Robinson and Frank Anderson, all of the Hodcarriers, took part in the play. Mrs. Dena Kaset directed.

After the program refreshments were served by the social committee, composed of Mesdames W. R. Hipp, James Broome and Joe Dobbs.

The Workers' Cultural Society of Chattanooga, a society for the promotion of workers' dramatics, forums, lectures, movies, music and recreational activities, was formed by local trade unionists and sympathizers in the last few weeks. Its officers are: Ina Greene, president; Sidney L. Robinson, vice-president; Louis Sear, treasurer; Pearl M. Campbell, recording secretary, and Blanche Goodman Eisendrath, corresponding secretary. On the board of advisors are Joe G. Dobbs, Erskine Mabee, Stanton E. Smith, R. C. Reynolds, Myles Horton, Rev. T. B. Cowan and W. T. McKenna.

The Workers' Cultural society meets on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at 8 p.m. in Roosevelt hall. Trade unionists and sympathizers are invited to attend.

CHARITY AFFAIR TO HELP NEEDS OF HUNGRY TOTS

Tuesday Night to See Great Display of Entertainment in Auditorium

Central Body to Provide All Expenses to Raise Cash for News and Times Xmas Funds--All Receipts Go to Charity in a Splendid Cause

Central Labor union Monday night announced that it intended to show Chattanooga what a real floor show, dance orchestras, staging and spotlights can be produced by local union labor. Every item of expense in the production of the entertainment will be contributed by local talent as a work of love to Chattanooga's needy. Four first-class orchestras will supply the music. Cooperation has been pledged by the various local dramatic schools, and the Times and the News have put their shoulders to the effort.

There will be a small admission fee. With the exception of auditorium rent, every cent of the proceeds will be turned over to the two papers' Christmas funds. Labor says that if the public wants to see a real exhibit of fun and frolic, come to the auditorium next Tuesday evening, have a good time, and at the same time help to make Christmas brighter for some of Chattanooga's unfortunates.

Two Frisco Papers Sign Newspaper Guild Pacts

Minimum Salaries of Editorial Employes Fixed, With 8-Hour, 5-Day Week and Paid Vacations.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Northern California Newspaper Guild, local unit of the American Newspaper Guild, affiliated with the A. F. of L., has won an excellent agreement with "The Daily News" and has secured an agreement with "The Chronicle," famous west coast daily, which is said to establish higher minimum rates of pay than enjoyed on any other paper in the west.

Those charged with reporting, writing and editing news, editorials and full-time feature writers, protographers, artists, cartoonists, retouchers, and lay-out men, with over five years' experience on "The Chronicle" get a minimum of $250 a month; over two years, $180; over one year, $130, and less than one year, $110. Editorial department copy boys and office boys, employed less than six months, $65; over six months, $75.

Severance pay is provided, one of the features many unions are fighting for. Employes with the paper less than two years will get two weeks' salary, in addition to accrued pay and overtime, in case of discharge; if over two years, four weeks' pay, and if over five years, six weeks' pay. All editorial employes in the continuous service of the publishers for six months and less than one year will be given one week's vacation with full pay; for those whose service has been one year and less than five years, two weeks.

The minimum salaries became effective Dec. 1 and the eight-hour day, five-day week was granted to take effect Jan. 1. For any necessary overtime work, equivalent time off will be allowed, and the management has agreed that three will be no discrimination because of union membership or union activity. The agreement covers a period of one year. The Chronicle management has been highly commended in labor circles as a result of their agreement with their newsroom employes.

CENTRAL BODY OKEHS NEVIL, HIT SALES TAX

Nashville Pressman Gets Indorsement to Governor for State Labor Commissioner Post

Criticises W. A. Bass for His Proposal of "Gross" Sales Tax --Express Confidence in Opposition of Browning to the Plan

Central Body last Monday night gave its approval of the candidacy of J. O. Nevil, Nashville pressman, for the job of commissioner of labor in the new governor's cabinet. Mr. Nevil is prominent in state labor circles and has a long history of union service, both in his own local as well as in the Nashville Trades and Labor council.

Recent suggestions emanating from the office of W. A. Bass, prominent state educator, and who is slated to be the next commissioner of education under Governor-elect Browning, which would provide a tax on gross sales, was roundly scored. The labor delegates expressed confidence that Mr. Browning would not support such a measure because in his campaign he denounced sales taxes as a source of revenue, and promised to have none of them.

Jury Says Unionists Innocent of Slugging "King" S. Bennett

Use of State's Prosecutor as Catspaw to Land Two Strike Leaders in Penitentiary Completely Fails

Attorney H. G. B. King, for Defense, Likens Candy Boss to Old King John, Except He Lacks Power to Chop Off Heads of "Disloyal" Subjects

Efforts of union-hating Sanford Bennett to forever squelch organization of his employs by railroading three unionists and a Soddy miner into the penitentiary met with complete failure last Tuesday when the jury hearing the charges of criminal conspiracy in the slugging of Sanford Bennett returned a unanimous verdict of "not guilty."

Although the state usually has charge of prosecuting criminal actions, it was brought out in the trial that Mr. Bennett had hired expert "investigators" to secure "evidence" that would forever dispose of the labor leaders. Murrel Lingerfelt, a Soddy miner, was accused of actually striking the blow that was supposed to have felled Bennett, while Joe Dobbs, president of Central Body, Curtis Sims, business representative of the Bakery and Confectionery union, and R. D. Dorsey, candy worker, were dragged in the "net" for procuring Lingerfelt to do the deed. In a previous trial, two lady candy workers were also accused, but they were acquitted, although the remaining defendants were tried over.

Defending Dorsey were Attorneys Tom Davis and Harry Berke, while F. G. Redwine was appointed by the court to defend Lingerfelt. King, ace legal adviser for the unions, defended Sims and Dobbs.

In his plea to the jury, Attorney King said:

"Your Honor and gentlemen of the jury: This is a very unfortunate affair, and is to me nothing more than an ordinary labor dispute — the outgrowth of a struggle by working people who are trying and fighting for the right to live. This is a controversy between union people and a non-union employer. Many people do not understand the meaning of the word union or organized labor. Many people do not belong to organized labor —not because they do not want to,

Label League Elects Officers for a Year

Plans for Annual Birthday Party in February Being Given Thought

Chattanooga Label League last Friday evening had its election of officers. Those elected were Miss Ina Greene as president, Miss Edna Brown, vice-president, Paul Reynolds, secretary - treasurer, Archie Underwood, recorder, E. E. Crosby, J. B. Campbell and Curtis Sims, trustees, and Miss Lena Edmonds, warden.

The second anniversary of the formation of the league will come in February, and plans are already being considered to duplicate the very successful party given last year.

From the enthusiasm evidenced at the sessions last week, it is believed that the coming year will see greater strides in the efforts of the league to further the cause of organized labor.

Her Dad—What do you mean by necking my daughter?

Boy Friend (sadly)—I was just carrying out the scriptural injunction to "Hold fast that which is good."

Dreaming of better times won't help much if you don't make your dreams come true.

HERE'S HOW IT HAPPENED

Early in the afternoon of Christmas eve ye editor of The Labor World had just gotten the paper out and was in repose, preparing to go home for the day and see that Santa Claus was suitably received that night for the kids. Henry Morris and Phil Angel, of the Angel Printing company next door, dropped in with a sample of their famous liquid refreshment of the genus grape. After a small sample, one thing led to another.

The next day the editor was shocked to find that he had taken his typewriter in hand and put out one of the niftiest labor story scoops yet accomplished. Furthermore, it had been set up in type by his orders, and rather than waste all the money spent for typesetting, and wishing to conserve the Labor World's finances, he decided to go ahead and run the story.

If would have been a good story if true.

The Lingerfelt Case

Now that the jury has declared that Lingerfelt was not guilty of the alleged slugging of Sanford Bennett, and that Joe Dobbs, Curtis Sims and R. H. Dorsey are not guilty of complicity, a particular nondescript and unreliable union-hating bunch of citizens are moaning that slugging is licensed to do as it pleases. To the point, these lightweight brains, intimate, if not actually say, that organized labor sponsored the slugging and that the future will bring forth more of them.

We suggest that if such critics knew of the guilt of any of the parties charged that it was their sacred duty to present their evidence before the courts. If they are only expressing their hope that union leaders would be convicted regardless of guilt, which is probably the case, that is an unjust as well as cruel attitude.

We remind these critics that at the first information of the "slugging," and when our leaders were indicted, we did not resent their arrest, nor did we resent their trial. Further, we formally told the world that although we believed the three men innocent because we knew them so well, that if they were convicted or proven guilty, we would be the first to disown them and kick them out. Until they were proven guilty, and since we believed them not guilty, we stood by them.

As to Lingerfelt, we did not know the man. We did not make his bond, or provide legal counsel for him. As far as he was concerned, we were not interested except that as decent citizens we thought he should have a fair trial before being condemned.

Since at no time have we condoned any sort of slugging, since we have at no time expressed or felt resentment because our people have been arrested and put on trial, we feel that now is the time, now that such a trial has been held, evidence by the state and defense weighed by an established court of the state, and that the defendants have been found not guilty of any part in "King" Bennett's slugging, it would be sportsmanlike, just and honest for anti-union folk to cease their harangues and slurs on organized labor in this case.

We realize, though, that any party that goes so far as to throw mud unwarrantedly at innocent ladies, will not hesitate to wish that innocent men should be railroaded into penitentiaries.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

SALES TAX

When the teachers of this county put themselves wholeheartedly into the fight for the provisions of the eight-point program of the Tennessee Education association they did so without any thought that this program would be financed by an anti-social tax. It is a great disappointment that the secretary of the T. E. A., Mr. W. A. Bass, should come out publicly for a form of the general sales tax in this connection.

Organized labor has long recognized that the sales tax violates the fundamental principle of equitable taxation; namely, the basing of the rate on the ability to pay. For this reason the A. F. of L. stands unequivocally against the sales tax in any form whatsoever.

Dayton McKean has presented statistics taken from the Business Week which shows clearly where the burden of the sales tax falls. They show that a worker earning $1,000 per year spends 60.9 per cent of it for taxable commodities. At the other end of the ladder a man with a $1,000,000 income spends only 1 per cent of it for taxable commodities. At this rate with a 2 per cent sales tax the worker pays $12 tax per $1,000 income, while the millionaire pays only 20 cents per $1,000 income.

EXCELLENT REPORTING

The federation board of directors are getting first rate reports, accurate in letter and in spirit, from its CLU delegation. This is due to the conscientious work of Mrs. Sam Johnson, a first year delegate, who fully merits the confidence the federation has in her ability and loyalty. Her thorough reports are highlights of board meetings.

BOARD MEETING

Board members are cautioned not to forget that the first 1937 meeting is scheduled for the first Monday in January—the first Monday after the Christmas vacation. The date is Jan. 4; the hour, 7:15; the place, Y. M. C. A.

CONGRATULATION, BRO. DOBBS

The teachers are happy with Bro. Joe Dobbs over his deserved acquittal in the Bennett slugging case. Labor has few leaders more loyal and self-sacrificing than Bro. Dobbs. His acquittal is a victory for all of us.

CELEBRATE TUESDAY NIGHT

Teachers should turn out in a body for the labor ball at the Memorial auditorium next Tuesday night. The committee is arranging an elaborate program with orchestra, floor show, lighting effects and all the trimmings. Any labor man who stays away will be doing himself, as well as the labor movement, a disservice.

Drive For Ratification of Child Labor Ban Opened by A. F. of L.

Green Urges All Union Officials and Members in Twenty-four States Which Have Not Yet Voted Favorably on Federal Amendment to Impress State Legislators With the Importance of Prompt Action to End Exploitation of Children in Industry.

Washington.—Immediate and persistent effort by the entire organized labor movement to secure ratification of the federal child labor amendment by the legislatures in twenty-four states which up to the present have not favored conferring upon congress the power to end the exploitation of children in American industry was recommended by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter sent to all state federations of labor, city central bodies and local unions in those states.

The amendment has already been ratified by the legislatures of twenty-four states, but favorable by twelve more states is required to make the amendment a part of our fundamental law.

As an emphatic argument in favor of prompt ratification Mr. Green pointed out that under the present state laws owners of factories in nine states are permitted to employ children 14 years of age and younger, while in eight states children between 14 and 16 years of age may be employed from nine to eleven hours a day. In addition, thirty-four states have practically no regulations covering the employment of children 16 and 17 years of age in hazardous occupations.

Twenty-four Delinquent States.

Twenty-four state legislatures have ratified the child labor amendment to the constitution of the United States. Ratification by twelve more states is required in order to make that amendment a part of the constitution.

The following state legisslatures that have not ratified the amendment will meet in January:

Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont.

Other states that have not ratified but may hold special sessions in 1937 are:

Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Virginia.

Candidates Were Questioned.

As your state legislature will meet in 1937, I believe that with the necessary agitation the members will vote to ratify. After the primaries were held in the various states that had not ratified the amendment I requested that the candidates be questioned as to whether they would vote for or against the amendment. Because of that fact the members of your legislature are well aware of the desire of labor to have the amendment ratified.

If every labor official and member of a trade union who is acquainted with a member of your legislature sees him personally and urges his support of the amendment there is no doubt that your state will be added to those who oppose the exploitation of children in industry.

I am, therefore, appealing to you and to your officers and members to work more persistently than ever before to bring about the ratification of the amendment.

Does Not Interfere With Family Control.

The fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor declared:

"When the child labor amendment is ratified congress shall determine the age at which children may be employed and shall prohibit gainful employment to all under that age.

"This does not mean that the law will invade the home either in the city or on the farm and prohibit children from taking a reasonable part in the home duties. It only seeks to conserve the formative period of every child's life to educational development. The amendment will in no way change family control and authority.

"It simply grants to congress power which the states now have and exercise. It will not interfere with states' rights to enact child labor legislation raising standards fixed by congress and to cooperate with federal authorities.

"The appropriations for dependent children provided in the new social security act will facilitate the establishment of higher age levels for gainful employment for children."

Backward State Laws.

The laws in each state stipulate the age limits of children who may be employed in gainful occupations. Under the law in nine states children 14 years of age and younger may be employed in factories. In eight states children between 14 and 16 years of age are permitted to work from nine to eleven hours a day. In eleven states children may be employed until 8 p.m., or later. In twenty-four states there are practically no regulations of employment in hazardous occupations of children 16 and 17 years of age.

This inequality in the laws of various states proves detrimental to the states that have enacted adequate child labor regulations.

Ban on Child Labor Competition.

Because a state has voted against ratification of the amendment does not mean that it cannot change its position and vote favorably. The sentiment against child labor is most intense.

Under the national recovery act no children under 16 years of age could work in gainful employment and under 18 in hazardous employment. These provisions were acceptable to the employers as they eliminated unfair competition.

The federal trade commission has been appealed to by certain industries to designate fair competition practices which contain provisions similar to those in the codes under the national recovery act.

This is evidence that employers generally desire the elimination of child labor competition.

Supported by Farm Bureau.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, a most important organization of farmers, has declared in favor of the amendment. At its last convention held in Chicago it adopted the following:

"We approve the pending child labor amendment to the constitution and request state farm bureau federations to give it serious and sympathetic consideration."

No doubt these pronounced sentiments will commend themselves to the members of your legislature, and if labor asserts itself in no uncertain terms they will vote to make the child labor amendment a part of the constitution of the United States.

Long Beach Auto Mechanics Organize 5 Shops Sign Up

Long Beach, Cal. — Automotive Maintenance Lolge No. 1126, International Association of Machinists, recently chartered with fifty charter members, although 110 applications had been received by the time the charter arrived, will maintain "open charter" rates for new members until Jan. 1.

Following the lead of San Pedro and Wilmington, nearby, where complete organization of automobile mechanics was effected some time ago, Long Beach auto mechanics have set their goal for this city at 100 per cent organization. Five shops are already reported as fully organized, with others coming into the fold gradually.

Houston Furniture Workers Win 8-Hour Day Agreement

Houston, Tex.—Furniture Workers' Union (Federal) No. 19766, chartered by the American Federation of Labor, has secured a closed shop agreement with the Texas Table company, which is regarded as a distinct gain for the union.

Provisions of the contract include the eight-hour day, 45-hour week and wage adjustments, together with recognition of seniority rights and other advantages. The new agreement extends to July 1, 1937.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The so-called big boys want to show that they haven't learned anything. Steel and automobiles and oil are still on the acid side. They are showing it just now by staying out of the co-ordinator's conference. They will not co-ordinate. Well, nobody ever suspected they had ever learned anything. Not about human relations. They know how to use machinery and they know all there is to know about selling. They'll be as humble as necessary to trap a customer. But they simply don't know how to be human with labor. That's their blind spot—and they are plenty blind. It will take an operation to remove the cataract.

What that means is that labor will have to organize—as it has a lawful right to do—and then simply walk up to the front door and say, "well, here we are; what are you going to do about it now?" Haughty brigands, these big outfits. They wouldn't go along with NRA. Remember how the automobile board was jockeyed? They wouldn't go along with the national labor relations act. They fought Roosevelt for re-election. Are people forgetting that du Ponts own the Liberty league and General Motors? And they make a bluff of saying that the Liberty league is going to quit politics and be good. But they do not say General Motors will be good. It's just about the same as if every motor in a G. M. car had the Liberty league emblem stamped on it.

Labor doesn't have to be as simple as these brigands think it is. The election is over, but the battle that was all wrapped up in the election goes on and must go on as long as tyrannical Big Business insists upon living up to its ancient record. The election was one battle in a long war. It will cease to be a war just as soon as privilege and vested interests get over the idea that we still have a caste system in industry. The democratic ideal must become as firmly fixed in industry as it is in political life—and it must work even beter. That's what labor is aiming at and that is what it is going to get. Maybe it will take a long time. It has taken a long time already. But we aren't going as slowly as we used to go and it will not take as long as the big fellows think it will take.

The recent A. F. of L. convention adopted a few resolutions to keep labor dollars away from hostile products. Those resolutions just scratched the surface. There needs to be much more of that. Labor dollars need to go to fair products—to products whose makers do not stand across the road like hogs, blocking traffic in stupidity. You can scare the tripe out of an editor by having a dozen kicking letters written to him. Nobody knows why, but it is so. You can scare the daylights out of almost any outfit by steering a few dollars away from his door. Nothing is more frightful to business than a dollar that passes by the door—thumbing its nose as it goes. Supporting foes is like eating dynamite. It doesn't even taste good.

The Thirty-Hour Week

The action of the Tampa convention of the American Federation of Labor in making the thirty-hour week without reduction in earnings the paramount objective of the Federation and instructing the Federation's Executive Council to have such a bill introduced in the next Congress of the United States and "devote its best efforts to secure its enactment into law" gives added importance to this measure designed to provide work for millions of jobless who still pound the pavements looking for unemployment which those who own and operate industry withhold from them.

The thirty-hour week for railroad employes is already on the legislative program of the standard railroad labor organizations for the coming Congressional session.

The thirty-hour-week bill sponsored by Senator Black, of Alabama, and Representative Connery, of Massachusetts, during the last Congress, but which failed of enactment, provided for closing the channels of interstate commerce to certain articles and commodities, in connection with which persons are employed more than five days a week or six hours a day.

In recommending its enactment by the Senate, the Senate Judicial Committee declared:

> "The thirty-hour week, without decreasing wages, would supply jobs and purchasing power; would increase production; reduce costs of production, and raise the living standards of the average American family."

It was estimated that the measure would regulate the working hours of around 20,000,000 toilers in the interest of millions of unemployed workers. The facts and arguments which made the thirty-hour-week bill a statesmanlike measure in the last Congress are equally persuasive now.

Whew! There aren't many days left to do all that shopping in. If you belong to that group of last-minute Christmas shoppers (and, believe me, that's a big organization judging from the crowds in town just before the holidays), you'll have to fall back on the "old reliables"—the gifts that everybody likes to get. F'instance, Signiago & Campbell's have some good-looking men's sox and ties.

And don't forget—the mothers, wives nad girl friends always like silk hose. There just isn't any nicer gift for them. Get them at The Vogue. They have the Phoenix hose (with the label, of course).

Speaking of homes—I've just found out that Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Adwell, of the Electricians' local, are building a new home—in Red Bank, I believe.

Got a lot of secrets with Santa Claus. Somebody I know is going to enjoy that new radio that Santa bought for them at Sterchi's a few days ago.

Oh, there are a lot of Santa secrets flying around. Haverty's sold a mighty pretty bedroom suite that's going to make a great big Christmas present for somebody.

Advice to the "bashful bear:" There are no set words with which to tell the one and only that she's the only one—but one good way is to bring her a diamond for Christmas. Le Grand's and Edwards & LeBus have some lovely ones this year and she's sure to like that sort of gift.

Labor Unions in Tucson Secure Wage Increases

Tucson, Ariz.—Arizona labor continues its march forward, in line with other progressive states where renewed vigor is coming into the labor movement, and Tucson is keeping step.

Along with increasing interest in labor's affairs and the increasing of membership in many unions, substantial pay increases have recently been won by at least three locals here, including the bartenders, motion picture machine operators and the Typographical union.

OBED wore a striped tunic of orange and white somewhat ragged and dirty, though his mother, Lara, washed clothes for other families in order to keep herself and ten-year-old son from starving. Yet you seldom noticed Obed's ragged tunic because of his vivid face. His skin was smooth olive, his lips were red, and his dark eyes were the color of pools at midnight. Obed sang a great deal. If he heard a tune whistled on the street he ran home singing it all the way. If he heard music strummed in the bazaars, he'd linger near until he remembered every note of it. In fact, Obed's listening ears were boxed many times by people feeling too cross or too tired for merry melodies. Even Lara scolded him. "Have I not enough, my son, beating soiled clothes on hard cold stones day after day, without listening to your voice screeching in every corner?"

But the whole world was a song for Obed. The sweet twitter of birds on dewy mornings. The sound of water lapping over sand, the very rumble of cart wheels over the cobble-stones thundered out its own rough music for the pleasure of his ears.

"What help are you to a poor mother . . . be gone with you!" scolded Lara day after day. Obed laughed, never meaning to be thoughtless or disobedient, having ears only for the music about him.

One evening late in December the longing for the shepherd's songs overcame him, and he slipped away at dusk. He was gone all night and in the morning he looked a different boy. His cheeks were pale. His lips did not smile, but there was a new and somber light shining in his dark eyes. This time his mother gazed at him in sorrow. He saw how worn she was, and he kissed her. "I cannot say I'm sorry," he hesitated, "Not even now can I tell you." His tunic was worn and stained. He wore a ragged sheepskin about his shoulders. On this he sank down in his own corner and went to sleep. When he woke his face was flushed and rosy. He knelt on the floor and looked at the busy street below. Then he opened his lips and a song of such joy and purity flowed out on the air as to make everyone stop and listen. Up and up soared the rapturous notes, seeming to possess a visible radiance of their own. Obed sang no words, but the music charmed every ear that heard it.

His mother stood behind him, her hands for once idle at their task. The tired lines on her face melted into peace. Her eyes looked far away. Clearer and clearer the exquisite melody continued, and died on a faint sweet note of ecstasy.

People listening below shook their heads and moved on as if awakened from a dream.

"Where, my son, did you hear that song?" Lara spoke in a whisper.

"In the skies, my mother. It came with wings and trumpets."

"Do not tell falsehoods about such divine melody."

Obed's eyes shone, but he would say no more. He hoarded the song in his heart. One evening, however, when the sky was clear and the stars shone like jewels, the boy was moved to sing again the beautiful, nameless music. When it was finished a knock came at the door. Lara opened it to a black servant who bowed low. "My master, the Prince, desires to know who sang that song."

Lara, trembling with fear, pointed to Obed who stood near an open window.

A tall figure dressed in rich furs and embroidered tunic pushed his servant aside.

"If the singer and his mother will honor my court with a visit, they shall be conducted hither with safety." The voice was deep. "I am a prince from a distant country, who came to pay homage to the new King born in a stable. On my way to that stable," his piercing eyes looked at Obed, "and from afar off, I heard the song your son has just sung. It came dropping from the skies . . . angels' heavenly voices and trumpets. If my people could hear that music," his voice softened, "I'm sure they would all become faithful followers of the Babe Jesus. I promise you comfort, both of you, for all your years."

So Lara and Obed quickly prepared for the journey, and Obed sang the angels' song, as he remembered it, in the court of the prince, so that he and his kingdom became thereafter faithful followers of the Babe Jesus.

Warden—Who gave the bride away?

Connolly—Her little brother. He stood up in the middle of the ceremony and yelled: "Hurrah, Annie, you've got him at last!"

ROSS HUTTON finished telling his little daughter the story of Christmas, of the shepherds and the Christ child, and had as tactfully as possible explained about Santa Claus, Polly heaved a sigh. "Well, I think there's a Santy Claus and I hope he brings me a sheep like the ones in the story."

The day before Christmas, Ross saw a white woolly lamb in the window of a toy shop. He was glad he had walked to his office. Otherwise he might not have seen the lamb. He would stop on his way home and get it. But one of the men in the office offered to drive him home, so the lamb was forgotten until he heard Polly as she was being put to bed tell her mother she hoped "Santy" wouldn't forget about the "sheep." Ross looked at his watch and decided the shop would probably still be open. Anne called to him to ask where he was going, and he answered, "Back in a few minutes."

When he parked his car before the shop, the thought that the lamb might not be there, struck him for the first time. He felt much relieved, therefore, when he saw the lamb in the window.

As he tucked the package under his arm and turned to leave the shop, a little boy came in. Ross heard him ask the proprietor if he still had the lamb that was in the window that morning. He was told the gentleman just leaving had bought it. "Oh," the disappointment he felt showed in his voice. Wasn't there something else he would like? But there didn't seem to be anything else.

As he got into his car Ross caught sight of a small boy standing before the window, his gaze fastened on the place where the lamb had been. He seemed so disappointed, it was too bad there wasn't another lamb for him, Ross thought as he drove away. But probably something else would catch his fancy and he would forget all about the lamb. Children were like that. Ross wondered though if Polly would have forgotten so easily. He scarcely thought so. The poor little thing would have been mightily disappointed. He was glad he had remembered before it was too late.

But try as he would he couldn't get the picture of the little fellow out of his mind. Halfway home he turned his car around and went back to the shop. The boy had left, so Ross asked the proprietor if he could tell him where the boy lived. He lived just around the corner. He often came into the shop. Tonight he had come to buy the little lamb for his small sister, and was so disappointed when he found it gone. The proprietor had tried to interest him in something else, but he hadn't been successful in doing it. Ross interrupted to know in just which house the boy lived. Then in order to have some satisfactory excuse to offer at home, he bought a baby doll for Polly.

When somewhat later he came into the living room where Anne was busy trimming the Christmas tree, she wanted to know where on earth he had been. He shook his head and put his finger to his lips as a warning not to waken Polly. He placed the package under the tree and with a happy smile he began helping with the work of trimming.

The next morning he was awakened by Polly's happy cry that she knew there was a "Santy Claus" because he had brought her a "sheep" and a baby doll just as she asked him to. Ross sprang out of bed and into the living room. Where could the "sheep" have come from? For there was Polly with a lamb under one arm and the doll under the other.

"Where?" Ross asked, pointing to the lamb. Anne whispered that she had bought it.

"There is a Santy Claus, isn't there, Daddy?" Polly's voice implied she was giving information rather than asking it.

Ross heartily agreed with her: "There certainly is a Santa Claus beyond a doubt."

Christmas Boxes

Giving Christmas boxes is said to spring from an old custom of priests putting on board of all out-going ships boxes for alms. These were opened at Christmastime and masses said for the givers of the alms. The box was called Christ mass box and from this comes the custom of Christmas boxes and gifts.

Woman—A letter from your husband, I see.

What Next!

A Milwaukee manufacturing firm is now making equipment for final inspection of packaged candies and similar products. Boxes borne on conveyors pass through the device, called the X-Ray inspector, and a green fluoroscopic screen reveals the outline of foreign matter like glass, shells, stems and nails.

The farmer's pink-cheeked daughter was coming up the lane. She was clad in a grimy pair of overalls, from the pockets of which bulged bunches of waste and sundry wrenches, screw drivers and other tools. In her hand a dirty satchel of iron tools:

Maid—I'm going a-milking, sir.

Visitor—But why all the tools, my pretty maid?

Maid—Trouble with that darm milking machine again.

SHOE WORKER ELECTED MAYOR

Concord, N. H.—John F. Conrad, who was recently elected mayor of Rochester, N. H., is a veteran shoe worker. He was born sixty-four years ago at Calais, Me., on the international border. At the age of 10, he went to work in the Calais shoe factory. He was elected five times and defeated once for the city council of Rochester, his recent successful bid for the mayoralty being his first for that chair. He is employed as a heeler in a Rochester shoe plant. Mr. Conrad was the democratic candidate.

The minister met one of the members of his church, lately reported to be on the sick list.

Minister—Well, Mrs. Thompson, I am glad to see you out again. Are you quite better now?

Mrs. Thompson—I'm a good deal better, thank you. I am not right, as you may say, but I am better.

Minister—That's right. What has been the matter?

Mrs. Thompson—Well, I had tonsilitis to begin with, and then it dropped into my legs.

Chicago Printers Reject Proposed Wage Agreement

Decisive Vote Against Pact, As Result of Publishers' Demand for Concessions and Refusal to Shorten Hours.

Chicago.—Following twenty-two months of wrangling with the Chicago daily newspaper publishers, the members of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 decisively rejected a proposed new wage agreement in a referendum election. The vote was as follows: For the agreement, 570; against, 2,346.

The proposed new wage scale provided for a slight advance in wages, but the publishers demanded so many concessions in reference to rights long established and failed wholly to grant a shortening of hours that the printers turned thumbs down on the whole business.

Big Publishers Involved.

William Randolph Hearst's two Chicago daily newspapers, the Herald and Examiner and the Evening American, are involved in the controversy, as are the Daily News, of which Frank Knox, recently republican vice-presidential candidate, is the publisher, and the Tribune, published by Robert R. McCormick, who is widely publicized as a champion of the "freedom of the press."

S. E. Thompson, publisher of the Chicago Daily Times, also is involved. The Times is an alleged democratic newspaper. The other four newspapers are reactionary republican organs. Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, exposed Thomason as an agent of the power trust a few years ago. In a scathing arraignment on the floor of the United States senate, Senator Norris charged that Thomason and one Bryan spent a large sum of power trust money in buying up daily newspapers in the southeastern part of the United States. According to a statement recently published in the Times, in conformity with the postal regulations, the power trust, Thomason and Bryan are among the principal owners of the Times.

Hearst Once for Hours Cut.

It was only a few years ago that William Randolph Hearst gained wide popularity by championing the six-hour day and 30-hour week. He deserted that great cause, however, just as he has deserted other causes, and he is now bitterly opposed to shortening the hours in his own printing plants.

Minneapolis Dairy Union Visions Week of 30 Hours

Minneapolis, Minn.—A step toward the five-day, thirty-hour week, now held as the paramount issue of the American Federation of Labor, was taken here, when a new agreement was entered into by Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes No. 471 and their employers.

Long regarded as one of the "long hour" jobs, the local dairy employes have a clause in their contract which calls for one week's vacation with pay for every three months employed. The agreement established in effect the five and a half day week, with the vacation provision giving approximately 80 days off a year, instead of 12 as formerly.

Where drivers or salesmen are required to wear uniforms, they must be furnished by the employer and the contract provides that they must bear the union label. The employer must also launder uniforms of plant employes. No employe is now required to distribute "literature," except notice of change of price, during his regular day's work, and any such notices must be union printed. The "closed shop" is provided, with the employers to call upon the union to furnish additional employes when needed.

Job Insurance Laws Approved.

Washington.—The social security board has approved state unemployment insurance laws of Pennsylvania and Connecticut, bringing the number of states with approved laws under the social security set-up to nineteen, including the District of Columbia.

WORK STANDARDS FOR WOMEN IN TEXAS COTTON MILLS SLIP

Washington.—Wage rates have been lowered and work hours increased for many women employed in cotton textile mills in Texas since the spring of 1935, says a report made by the women's bureau, U. S. department of labor.

For cotton textile manufacturing, the largest woman factory-employing industry in Texas, information was obtained on the wages and working hours of 1,300 women both during and subsequent to the NRA, which was invalidated by the United States supreme court, May 27, 1935.

In 1935 while the mills were operating under the NRA code they did not exceed the maximum 40-hour week set up by the code. In a normal week during this period 31 per cent of the women earned the minimum code rate of 30 cents an hour while 58 per cent earned more. About a year later, in 1936, over two-fifths of the women worked more than forty hours a week and a fifth in excess of forty-eight, but only 2 per cent received 30 cents an hour, and only about 15 per cent earned more per hour.

The median of the week's earnings of the women in 1935 was $10.90 while the median in 1936 was $10.30—half earning more and half less than the amount in each case. On an hourly basis, median earnings dropped from 30.9 cents in 1935 to 25.9 cents in 1936.

BIG UNION ASKS SUPREME COURT BE DEPRIVED OF POWER TO INVALIDATE LABOR LEGISLATION

Washington.—The powerful International Ladies' Garment Workers' union actively entered the fight against supreme court invalidation of labor legislation when its general executive board, meeting here, declared in favor of a constitutional amendment giving congress power to legislate "for the protection and advancement of the wage-earning masses."

At the same meeting, the board appropriated a $500,000 fund to begin a unionization drive.

The announcements were made by David Dubinsky, president of the union.

Dubinsky said his union "realizes that the sentiment of the country has overwhelmingly crystalized in favor of a fundamental change in the basic law of the land."

He described this suggested change as one "which would assure to the working population of our country that measure of economic security and welfare which was embodied in the new deal and which has heretofore met with judicial invalidation and industrial obstruction."

He specifically referred to "the annulment of the major labor and social enactments passed by congress in 1933 and 1935 by the supreme court of the United States on the ground of unconstitutionality."

President Dubinsky said:

"The general executive board unequivocally declares itself in favor of an amendment to the constitution of the United States which would invest congress with adequate power to legislate for the protection and the advancement of the wage-earning masses throughout the country."

Hosiery Strike Featured By "Lie-Down" Picketing

Reading, Pa.—Add "lie-down" picketing to the vocabulary of labor strife. A large group of men and women pickets at the Berkshire Knitting mill here, world's largest full-fashioned hosiery plant, whose employes are on strike, recently prostrated themselves on the pavement near the main entrance in a demonstration of fortitude in blockading the possible entrance to the mill of others who would seize the strikers' jobs.

The "lie-down" pickets came to some grief, however, when a tear gas barrage was loosed upon them, without the desired effect. Then police came and loaded up enough pickets to fill two jails. Forty-six men and women, who refused to get up when ordered by police to do so, then withstood blast after blast of tear gas, were arrested. Fines totaling over $15 each were imposed, which fifty-six refused to pay, one whose wife was soon to become a mother and one other being the only two to "pay out." One prisoner is said to have "disappeared" in transit. The strikers were tried under the Wyomising "nuisance" act, designed as a catch-all where alleged offenses are not definitely covered by statute.

While the American Federation of Hosiery Workers is conducting the strike, one of the bitterest and most hard-fought in the industry this year, the "lie-down" picketing was said to have been carried on by an independent group of the strikers, under the leadership of a 22-year-old Bible student.

Barber Shop Ordinance Won by Dayton Unions

Dayton, Ohio.—Dayton has become the thirty-sixth Ohio community to adopt ordinances providing regulation of barber shops, with special emphasis upon a sanitary code.

The Dayton law, similar to others, provides strict sanitary regulations and specified shops may remain open only between the hours of 8 in the morning and 6 in the evening, except on Saturdays, when the time is extended one hour.

The Journeymen Barbers' union here put on a vigorous campaign for the passage of such an ordinance, with the support also of the Dayton Central Labor union. It is stated that the regulatory measures are proving of benefit to workers and shop owners alike, and satisfactory to customers, since they definitely assure cleanliness and other advantages for the general public.

Kenosha Union Laborers Strike for Higher Wages

Kenosha, Wis.—Determined not to accept any compromise offer of less than the union scale of 85 cents an hour, laborers employed by the Veenstra Wrecking and Lumber company, members of Local 237, International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers, voted to strike and picket the firm's place of business until victory crowns their efforts.

In defense of the eighteen men involved in the particular instance, the union issued a lengthy statement giving the reasons for the strike. "As long," the union said, "as a single employer exists in Kenosha who is able to continue paying his employes only 45 and 50 cents an hour for difficult and dangerous work (as Mr. Veenstra was doing), so long there exists a threat to the wage standards won at the cost of great efforts and sacrifices by every union member of our city."

A farmer's truck stalled in front of an asylum. While he was fixing it an inmate looked over the fence and inquired:

Inmate—What do you do for a living?

Farmer—I'm a farmer. Why?

Inmate—Well, you ought to try being crazy; it sure beats farming.

Tabby Brought Kittens Into Christmas Manger

THE celebration with the Christmas tree that touched the ceiling and had a manger beneath it, was over, and a row of little stockings were hanging for Santa Claus. Mother had just tucked the happy children into bed and by the soft glow of the nursery Christmas tree was singing Christmas carols to them.

Father was about to turn off the lights below and lock the door for the evening when he heard a faint "meow" from the cold darkness without. Upon opening the door he saw a forlorn, bedraggled tabby cat almost frozen in the Christmas snow.

"Why, you poor creature," spoke father tenderly, "come in this very minute!" For some moments father was busy making tabby comfortable. He found some milk which he warmed, and plenty of holiday food. He served kitty with generous portions of Christmas repast and then provided a soft bed in the corner, with a cushion from his own easy chair. Tabby showed her appreciation by purring and purring louder than father had ever heard a cat purr before.

Satisfied and delighted with his Christmas guest, father retired, grinning and wondering what the family would say in the morning.

Christmas morning the happy family entered the living room—the children rushing ahead, hearing their bulging stockings and shouting with laughter.

"Oh, look at the manger!" cried mother with surprise.

"Merry Christmas!" retorted father, trying to keep from bursting out laughing.

Tabby had selected the soft straw of the manger as a fitting birthplace for her litter of Christmas kittens.—Alice B. Palmer.

Her Christmas Present Was a Lovely Daughter

MRS. BURKE wept a little as she trimmed the Christmas tree. "This will be the last time," she thought. "Next Christmas I'll be all alone in the world."

Her son whistled as he shaved. "Getting dolled up," his mother thought. "All for that girl!" She held a bright bulb aloft as though she must dash it to the floor, thought better of it, and hung it on the tree.

"Ready, mother? I'll drop you at church on the way over to Dorothy's."

"In just a minute, son." Oh, my son, my son, why must you leave me? Your first Christmas seems only yesterday.

The beautiful old anthems filled the church. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten son—" The text: "More blessed to give than to receive." Sacrifice. I must give up my son. His happiness means more than mine.

They were waiting for her in front of the church, young and happy. "Say, mother, Dorothy—"

"I couldn't have you spending Christmas alone, Mrs. Burke. We're all going out and celebrate. You see—my brother got married last summer, and I know just how we felt; that we were losing him, and so forth. But I really gained a dear sister, and so I want you to be just my other mother, and think of us both as your children."

Joy swept back into Mrs. Burke's heart.

"Such a wonderful Christmas present!" she cried. "A daughter!"—Helen Gaisford.

TOYS CHILDREN LIKE

A COMPREHENSIVE survey leads to the conclusion that building blocks are the favorite toy for children up to the age of seven. Drawing and painting materials rank high. With little girls, dolls and housekeeping equipment are favorites. Sand and clay for modeling retain the interest of most children. Mechanical toys, on the other hand, are soon discarded. Adults usually enjoy the mechanical toys more than the children for whom they are purchased.

Carver's Language

Few people are aware that such a pleasant Yuletide task as carving has a language of its own, which has nothing to do with exasperation. Forgetting for a moment the ubiquitous turkey, which apparently is only "carved," an expert cites the following terms as appropriate to the occasion: Allay a pheasant, Chine a salmon, Mince a plover, Barb a lobster, Lift a swan, Spall a hen, Unbrace a duck, Disfigure a peacock, Dismember a heron, Thigh a woodcock, and Tame a crab. In the Middle ages, when most of these picturesque terms were evolved, herons, being as common as starlings today, were a favorite Christmas dish amongst the poor; while the rich granted the peacock the place of honor at their banquets.—London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Blooms at Christmas Time

According to tradition the famous thorn at Glastonbury Cathedral was brought and planted there by Joseph of Arimathea and was part of the crown of thorns which was pressed upon the brow of Christ. According to tradition it blooms at Christmas time and the possession of a piece is said to insure good fortune through the year.

Great Explorer—We were slowly starving to death, but we cut up our boots and made soup of them.

Fellow Boarder (at boarding house)—S-sh-sh-sh! Not so loud. The landlady might hear you.

Joan's Unexpected Guest Was Her Yuletide Love

NINA had gone with her Donald to Chicago; Vera to her Grandmother's house to meet her fiance and [illegible] she had gone up to Lowell for [illegible] fraternity dance. Joan wondered if any girl had ever had such a lonely Christmas holiday in prospect.

"Gee, there's that little cripple boy down there in that rooming house on the corner that might relish some [illegible] food. I've waved at him every morning for the last six weeks. I guess we know each other well enough and they do say his mother takes that early train into town to scrub floors, every day in the week," she told herself as she was about to drop off to sleep, Christmas eve.

It was scarcely daylight when Joan had gone to the little corner rooming house, slipped a little note of invitation under the door of the cripple boy's door, and was on her way to the store for a supply of everything that belongs in a traditional Christmas feast, plus a few gifts for the lad.

There was barely time to exchange her house dress for a street frock so she might run down to the corner to push the youngster's wheel chair to her house as she had promised. But at the very moment she stepped forth into the hall, she met not only her guest-to-be but a splendid, handsome young man.

"You see, miss, I got the invitation—the note was tucked under my door, but I gathered at once who you meant it for so I delivered it to Jimmy and made friends with him—we're been together the past two hours, taking a short ride and now I'm turning him over to you, Miss—Miss—"

"Joan Burke, and you are—?"

"Larry King, Miss Burke, and this is Jimmy Jordan. With your permission, then, I'll return for my charge later in the day. What hour do you say, follow?"

Joan interrupted, "If I may be so bold as to ask—running along to where?"

"To the lunch wagon, if you must know," Larry acknowledged.

"You are not. If you don't stay to have Christmas dinner with us, I'm going right out into the street and hail the first stranger I see. You see I don't want any turkey left over for turkey hash, tomorrow."

Three partook of Joan's royal feast but the fourth guest, though unseen, was present, too. Love was there uninvited. But that fourth remained forever and a day, upon invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Larry King who never forget to include little Jimmy Jordan at their special occasion celebrations the year around!—Luella B. Lyons.

Why Christmas Day Comes on the 25th of December

CHRISTMAS, which seems to have been first officially instituted a church feast day by a decree of Pope Telesphorus, between 142 A. D. and 154 A. D., was a movable feast. Indeed, it was the most movable of all the Christian festivals. It was usually celebrated by the eastern branches of the Christian church in April or May, while in the western part of Europe days in January or other months were observed as Christmas.

In A. D. 337 St. Cyril, bishop of Jerusalem, obtained from Pope Julius I authority to appoint a commission to determine, if possible, the precise day of Christ's nativity. From the chronological archives of the Roman censors, establishing the times of occurrence of certain events of the same period of the Roman government of Palestine, the theologians of the eastern and western divisions of the Christian church agreed upon December 25 as the date of the birth of Jesus, and thereupon this became the officially decreed and generally accepted Christmas day.

CHRISTMAS SMOKES

Alice—They say a woman can't select Christmas cigars.

May—Nonsense. I have been sounding my husband and he says he likes light cigars. All you have to do is to match the shade.

Mistletoe, a Tree Parasite

Despite its popularity as a Christmas green, there is little worry about conserving the country's supply of mistletoe. For this attractive plant, with its shiny, dark leaves and waxy white berries, grows as a parasite high on the branches of trees and does considerable damage to its host trees. Science has revealed that the mistletoe seeds are carried from tree to tree by birds.

WO NEW DEAL POLICIES WIN IN SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

ys of Utility Holding Act Cases and FCC Order on Telephone Accounting System Upheld — State Laws Laws Against Cut in Prices Set by Manufacturers Also Sustained.

Washington.—The new deal won two victories, neither of m absolutely decisive, in the supreme court. The court unani usly agreed to action which permits the government to concen- te on the Electric Bond and Share case as a test of the consti- tionality of the holding company act; anl unanimously approved rules of uniform accounting established by the federal com- nications commission for telephone companies.

The utility case was almost an in- ce of now-you-see-it and now-you- t. The utility companies "ganged against the holding company and suit after suit, all making the general charges, all attacking constitutionality of the act on the grounds. The object of this, of rse, was to embarrass the govern- nt so much with so many suits that could not take proper care of any them.

The department of justice pleaded this in the District of Columbia supreme court, where many of these suits were filed; and the district court granted an indefinite stay of proceedings on several of the suits.

Temporary Stays Upheld.

This action was immediately taken up to the supreme court, and the court ruled that a lower court could not grant indefinite stays; but that it might grant temporary stays, for the same purpose. As a matter of fact, the action of the district supreme court brings the Electric Bond & Share case to the front of the utility suits, which is precisely what the government wanted.

The other decision cuts deeper than any mere method of procedure. In establishing uniform rules of accounting, the FCC ordered the telephone companies to base their accounts on actual cost. This is the thing that every public service corporation always has fought; because actual cost accounting makes it difficult and sometimes impossible to pull nice white fat rabbits out of the financial hat to make a banquet for the insiders.

Ruling Fought as "Arbitrary."

The American Telephone company and thirty-six subsidiary and affiliated concerns all filed suit, declaring that this ruling was arbitrary, unreasonable, and a lot of other undesirable things. The supreme court replied that there was nothing arbitrary or unreasonable about such a rule, which is just a polite, legal method of saying "Hooey."

The court also upheld the constitutionality of state laws forbidding the sale of standard, trademarked articles at a lower price than that fixed by the producer. Also, it indorses a policy which Justice Brandeis championed long before he came to the court, and criticized the court sharply for rejecting that policy then.

Policy Set Forth in 1913.

In an article published in November, 1913, in Harper's Weekly, under the title of "The Competition That Kills," Mr. Brandeis traced merchandising from primitive barter, "an equation of two unknown quantities to a one-price system, which is an equation of two unknown quantities;" and added:

"Such is the one-price system to which the United States supreme court denied its sanction. The courts of Great Britain had recognized this method of marketing goods as legal. The supreme court of Massachusetts and that of California had approved it . . . When a court decides a case on grounds of public policy, the judges become, in effect, legislators. It seems fitting, therefore, to inquire whether this judicial legislation is sound."

Court Now Backs Brandeis.

Brandeis came to the conclusion that judicial legislation knocking out the one-price system is anything but sound; pointed out that every industrial monopoly has depended on price cutting at some stage of its growth; and quoted with approval Justice Holmes' dissent in the case in question.

The supreme court is now taking precisely Justice Brandeis' long-time view of the matter.

Aluminum Workers' Unions Gain 40-Hour Week in New Agreement

Time and One-Half Paid for Overtime—Seniority Provided —Public Contracts Act Will Be Applied.

Pittsburgh, Pa. — Announcement was made here of the signing of a new agreement between the Aluminum Company of America and Aluminum Workers' Unions of the American Federation of Labor to replace the unilateral agreement in effect for the past two years between the company and this group of unions.

The aluminum workers' unions covered by the agreement are No. 19104, Alcoa, Tenn.; No. 19737, Badin, N. C.; No. 18780, East St. Louis, Ill.; No. 19256, Massena, N. Y.; No. 19332, Logan's Ferry, Pa., and No. 18356, New Kensington, La. Local Lodge No. 541 of the International Association of Machinists of New Kensington, Pa., is also covered by the agreement.

The important provision of the new agreement lies in the fact that it is the first bilateral agreement secured with this company by the unions and that the agreement provides for the abolition of all former NRA code hours above eight hours per day and 40 hours per week wherever possible to establish this working schedule within the plants of the company covered by the agreement.

In a few continuous operations departments exception to the straight 40 hours a week will be made in order to provide that where there is rotation of shifts no employe will have to work more than eight hours in any one 24 hours when he changes shifts.

Time and a half will be paid for all time worked beyond eight hours per day and 40 hours per week as well as for all work performed on Sundays and holidays, under the provisions of the new agreement.

The agreement also provides a clarification of the seniority rule giving preference to the older employe at times of reduction of forces as well as giving preference where new jobs are created or vacancies occur in the preferred or higher rated positions.

Arrangements have also been made in the agreement for protection to the employes of all provisions under the Walsh-Healey public contracts act and also any other federal or state law that may be created which will in any way affect the employes of the Aluminum Company of America.

The agreement is a great advance in collective bargaining over the former agreement which was in effect, as well as being the first agreement to be signed by both the representative of the company and representatives of the unions.

The agreement was signed for the Aluminum Company of America by Mr. I. W. Wilson, vice-president in charge of operations. The committee representing the unions, everyone of whom also signed the agreement, were as follows: Fred A. Wetmore and Carl K. Greene, of Alcoa, Tenn.; O. B. Lackey, Badin, N. C.; Eddie R. Stahl and Arthur H. Curtis, East St. Louis, Ill.; Oliver Moyes, Logan's Ferry, Pa.; Frank R. Meyers, Massena, N. Y.; Paul Howlett, John Haser, W. B. Gravatt, William McCall, George C. Hobaugh, Adolph R. Presken, Clyde T. Holmes and Chas. Wynant, of New Kensington. These all represented unions of aluminum workers directly affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Local Lodge No. 541, International Association of Machinists, of New Kensington, Pa., was represented by Thaddeus W. Buxton, who signed for that union. David Williams, president of the National Council of Aluminum Workers, acted as chairman of the negotiating committee during the conferences with the company and signed the agreement for the council and the American Federation of Labor.

committee that since the organization campaign had been so successful the label committee had been forced to change its policy. In the past the committee has spent its time finding merchants who have union-made products. Now the labor movement is so powerful that the committee spends its time trying to find merchants who do not have union goods.

Nancy Lea Smith, chairman of the organizing committee, told the delegates that she had just been successful in "lining up" the bartenders and waiters at the Wagon Wheel.

The executive committee concurred in the request made by the electricians to place the state penitentiary on the "We Don't Patronize List" due to the fact that a chair in the pen had been wired by nonunion electricians, and in addition the officials were not using TVA current. The state federation will be asked to place pickets about the institution in Nashville. Mass picketing will be used. The executive committee asked for further time on other matters placed in its hands.

The directors of The Labor World formally turned over to the secretary of Central Body a check for $5,000, representing profits by that paper over and above necessary expenses and a sinking fund. The trustees emphasized that this had been made possible because members of organized labor had been telling their merchants that "I saw your advertisement in The Labor World." As a result, the editor of the paper was kept busy filling requests from business men to come around and get some copy. A recommendation to double the editor's salary was concurred in unanimously while the editor himself fainted. Delegate Trotter revived him with rest and treatment that he had with him.

The organizing committee at this point asked for a "referring back" in proceedings to report that every policeman now on duty is a member of the union. One of the police delegates present jumped to his feet and shouted that his local had just amended their by-laws so that every one of its members must appear on picket lines in local strikes. In past strikes, he said, some few members of the police force had not been on the lines. He further stated that this action would strengthen the labor movement greatly because one bluecoat is worth fifty ordinary coats any time.

Under resolutions, Delegate Reynolds submitted three resolutions drawn up by Delegate Smith (Stanton). All three of them were moved to be amended by Delegate Smith (Nancy). All amendments were, of course, carried. Whereupon Delegate Reynolds, during the debate on the amendments, had run off some four or five resolutions of his own which he submitted for approval. The only one which he succeeded in getting through was the one authorizing Central Body to purchase three $1.500 modern sound trucks to be used in campaigns.

Delegate Cordell, of the building trades committee, reported that none of the building trades crafts were receiving less than $1.50 per hour, six hours per day, five days a week. Every man of the four thousand members in the various building crafts was working full time, he said.

The city commission committee, whose duty it is to attend every session of the board of commissioners, reported that the last meeting of the city dads had ratified the closed shop agreement with Locals 246 and 428, Teachers.

Delegate Moore (Machinists), chairman of the invitation committee for the dedication ceremonies, stated that John L. Lewis regretted that he was unable to attend the dedication ceremonies, but gave his personal message of congratulations. Mr. Moore stated that he had ridden a freight train to Washington to personally extend the invitation to the great labor leader.

Under communications and bills an offer from Mayor Ed Bass was made to Central Body. The spendthrift mayor said that already he had noticed the inadequacies of the new labor temple, although the paint on it was scarcely dry. He proposed that the city of Chattanooga should float a bond issue of $500,000 to add a wing to the temple, and thus properly house the labor movement which has been recognized as the most valuable asset of the community. It was the opinion of the delegates that the city should not be saddled with this additional expense and the proposal was turned down.

A telephone bill for $115.93 was presented for payment which was for long-distance calls to Washington, D. C., to Senator R. M. Cooke. The senator and Central Body are in almost daily communication concerning legislation in congress, and in this manner the Honorable Mr. Cooke keeps informed as to our desires.

A letter from Labor's Political Conference informed Central Body that the conference records showed that voting members of labor and families thereof had paid their poll taxes to the amazing total of 34,798.

Commissioner of Labor J. C. Cox at this point was introduced. He made a short talk, congratulating the labor movement of Chattanooga, but said that he was sorry that he had to leave immediately because he was on his way to Rockwood. At his behest he had prevailed upon the governor to send troops into Rockwood to protect the strikers from secret bands of self-appointed "defenders of the flag" who were busily engaged in beating and kidnaping labor organizers and strikers. At this date, however, quiet has been restored and the mill property is being protected by a double line of soldiers who see to it that no one goes into the plant until the owners come to an agreement with their strikers.

Under "good and welfare" some dozen or more delegates made enthusiastic speeches, predicting that within a few months every stenographer and office clerk in the city would be successfully organized, including the ministers of practically every church. Along this line it was recalled that about two years ago Rev. T. B. Cowan had the experience of seeing his salary walk out of the door because of his liberal utterances. Today he is one of the best paid ministers in the county.

Since the hour was growing late the most memorable session ever held by Central Body adjourned.

KING BENNETT

but because employers like Mr. Sanford Bennett discharges them if they do join a union.

"Something like eighty years ago some of our forefathers who saw the working man going about starving, wearing rags, with their feet sticking out of their shoes, and who were discharged from their work when they asked for an increase in pay, and knowing that they too would be discharged if they asked for an increase or a reduction of hours, had the nerve, audacity and courage to organize themselves into a union so that, instead of going one by one to ask for a living wage, they enabled themselves to bargain collectively through one or more of their men acting as their representative. If it were not for these men, some of whom have given their lives to the cause of organized labor, and for men like Joe Dobbs and Curtis Sims and others, you, gentlemen of the jury, and I, would be working today for seven and eight cents an hour.

"You and your children would have no chance for an education of any kind and would be fortunate if you were able to earn enough to sustain your bodies.

"Prior to the thirteenth century the tyrant kings and monarchs who ruled the world had the power to do with their people as they wished, and when any of their subjects failed to obey them, they would order a number to be brought forward and beheaded in public so as to set an example for others who did not love their king and obey him.

"In the year of 1215, A. D., on July 15, the feudal barons and the people gathered on the hills at Runnemeade, England, to give battle to the forces of the tyrant King John II, and demanded and forced him to sign the Bill of Rights which is now written into our United States constitution, and often referred to as the first ten amendments of the United States constitution. This bill of rights was known as the Magna Charter, or the Great Charter, which gave protection to all of the English people, regardless of their social standing.

"This bill of rights provided that no man shall be condemned or deprived of his life, liberty or property without a trial by a jury of his peers. It provided that the writ of habeas corpus shall never be suspended, and many other rights which we today enjoy.

"Now it occurs in this strike that we have a King Bennett whose pride and pocketbook were injured when his employes had the courage to go on strike. However, King Bennett cannot chop off the heads of his people as he would like to do, and as the kings did in the old world, for under our laws he, King Bennett, had no authority to chop off the heads of his people, so he decided to dispose of them by having the leaders of the strike, who were mostly officers of the union sent to the penitentiary. His main purpose in doing this was not alone for revenge, for if he could succeed it would be another $100,000 a year to him because if he could dispose of Joe Dobbs and Curtis Sims by receiving a verdict of "guilty" from you gentlemen, he could and would, the next day, cut the wages of all employes and increase their hours, all of which would well repay him for any money he might spend or did spend in convicting these men, our people.

"Now, what did King Bennett do in pursuance of this plan? The first thing he did was to hire a law firm and instructed them to hire an investigator to dig up the evidence that it would take to convict these people.

"Gentlemen of the jury, the attorney - general and the state itself did not see fit to do this, and apparently did not see anything in the state's case, but King Bennett had an objective in mind and carried it out to the extent of having his own investigator obtain the evidence, and after receiving the evidence, instead of swearing out warrants for the arrest of Sims and Dobbs he had the evidence taken before the grand jury, where the defendants were not allowed to tell their side of the story.

"Now, gentlemen of the jury, I call to your attention also the fact that King Bennett had already applied for an injunction in the civil court, where labor disputes are heard, where this one should have been settled, and having failed to get any more than order from the court limiting the number of pickets he has now appointed himself attorney - general, has produced his own evidence, and is now before you trying to dispose of the union leaders by a method of coercion in order that he may be free in the future to cut wages and increase hours and reap for himself another fabulous amount of money at the expense of the working people.

"It is my opinion, gentlemen of the jury, that King Bennett is using you and this court to break the strike, which is still in effect at his plant. Remember that the strike has never been settled, and therefore is still going on.

"Gentlemen of the jury, this whole case was concocted by King Bennett through malice and hatred, and I say with all sincerity that I have that you should turn everyone of these defendants loose; that when a man like King Bennett comes into this court, asking you to send men to the penitentiary on evidence that he himself has dug up, you should go back in the jury room and deliberate, weigh the testimony, and when you find that what I am saying to you is now true, take these indictments and throw them in King Bennett's face and let him know that you will not be a party to his malicious acts.

"The attorney-general has stated that you have no doubt already reached a decision. I say that that is an insult to every man on the jury, because the law provides that you should not draw any conclusion or decide this case until you have retired to the jury room and weighed the evidence. Remember, gentlemen of the jury, the scales of justice are in your hands, and I ask that you weigh the evidence and give us the benefit of the law which provides that every person charged with a crime is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty.

"Gentlemen of the jury, when you bring in your verdict of 'not guilty' which I am confident you will do in all of these defendants, I will be waiting to shake your hands. Thank you."

Seattle Clerks Strike; Firm Signs Union Shop Agreement

Seattle, Wash.—Although not then members of a union, employes of a big shoe store on Pike street here, through a mutual understanding decided to come out on strike. They promptly contacted the union and affiliated.

The union thereupon took the situation in hand on behalf of the men. After being out on strike about a month the Retail Clerks' union succeeded in signing the store on a 100 per cent union basis, with hours, wages and working conditions all substantially improved. Among other things, the clerks gained the eight-hour work day, with all overtime eliminated.

Union President Urges Fight On Textile Monopoly

Thomas F. McMahon Calls on Small Mills to Join Workers in Drive for National Regulation Legislation.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Thomas F. McMahon, of the United Textile Workers of America, in commenting on the absence of textile employers at the Council for Industrial Progress, held in Washington recently, called upon small mill owners to join with organized workers to "secure the passage of the National Textile Act and save the industry from itself."

Refusal of the employers' association to attend the conference was an example of their policy of defiance of regulation, he declared.

McMahon said the increased concentration of textile companies in given areas means that eventually the small producer and small business man will be forced out of existence unless regulatory legislation is passed.

"A large number of the small producers want legislation, but the monopolies and the big interests and the banks keep them in subjection," he added.

Attacks Stretchout Evil

McMahon also commented on the growing evil of the stretchout system. He said the recent wage increases given in the textile industry were not voluntary, but come from the pressure of the union and that in mills where the union is weak, an increase is given in one hand and taken slyly away by the other by the application of increased machine load and stretchout.

"One example of this is contained in the recent study in the silk industry, where, through the application of increased hours and extra work load and high living costs, the net wage loss since 1934 in New England has been 40 per cent, and in the Middle Atlantic 65 per cent.

Wages Called Disgraceful

"Wages now are down to a disgraceful level," he asserted. "Southern conditions are shameful. We have sent to the Walsh-Healey Act administration over 100 cases of violation of code standards.

"We must secure the passage of the National Textile Act and save the industry from itself, and we call upon the small manufacturer to join with us against concentrated monopoly."

Union Telegraphers See Monopoly For W. U. in Foreign Radio Service Unless FCC Decision Is Modified

Washington.—R. C. A.-Western Union monopoly in radio service to foreign countries is a possibility, in the opinion of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, unless the federal communications commission modifies its decision and order of June 3, 1936, denying the application of the Mackay company for a radio channel to Norway.

At a hearing before the commission on Dec. 7, Charlton Ogburn appeared as counsel for the Telegraphers to restate the arguments made in the original hearing by Frank B. Powers, international president of the union. The commission decided at that time that sufficient competition to the R. C. A. radio existed in cable lines and that there was not sufficient profit in the business to Norway to justify another radio channel.

Outline of Union's Stand.

The Telegraphers' stand in opposition to this decision as restated by Mr. Ogburn can be summarized as follows:

1. The R. C. A.-Western Union combination now has a monopoly in radio service to Norway.

2. Protection of that monopoly by the FCC by refusal to grant a chan-

Six More States Adopt Unemployment Insurance

Tennessee, North Carolina, New Mexico, West Virginia, Ohio and Virginia Provide Compensation for Jobless Workers.

A special session of the Tennessee legislature last week pass necessary legislation to enable this state to participate in the federal unemployment benefits.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Spurred by the desire to obtain for their states the statutory share of the federal government's unemployment insurance tax levied on payrolls, effective Jan. 1, the legislatures of North Carolina, West Virginia, New Mexico, Virginia and Ohio have enacted, within the space of one week, laws drafted in accordance with the federal social security act granting compensation to thousands of unemployed workers.

In most of the states the benefits for the unemployed are not available until 1938—a year after the federal law becomes effective.

The public Service Commission will continue its study of the financial status of the Bell Telephone Company, expecting to find basis for further reductions.

UNITED TRADES AND LABOR UNION COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1936

LABOR CANDIDATE WINS IN ST. JOHN

St. John, N. B.—In the first civic election held under a new charter which discarded the commission form in favor of the council or aldermanic form of municipal government, Jas. A. Whitebone was one of the six members of the council elected. Whitebone was the official candidate of organized labor and a member of the Citizens' Improvement league ticket, all of whom were successful at the polls.

Whitebone has been president of the St. John Trades and Labor council for eight years, and is president of the New Brunswick Federation of Labor, being elected this year. For the last fourteen years he has been business agent of the St. John local of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators. eH is a vigorous spokesman for organized labor and is the first officer of a union to become a member of the St. John city council.

Union Truck Drivers Win Strike in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Pa.—A brief strike by Truck Drivers' Local No. 107, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, won a distinct victory in union recognition, with the question of hours and minimum wages to be determined by a fair practices committee, headed by Mayor Wilson.

The walk-out was called at the produce terminals of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads, spreading rapidly to loading platforms of merchants along the Delaware river, for a time threatening the loss of $1,000,000 in perishable goods. Six hundred cars of perishables were on the siding when the strike was called, after previous futile attempts to gain union recognition and thus bring about wage and hour adjustments desired by the workers.

Newcastle Cement Workers Enroll in A. F. of L. Union

Newcastle, Pa.—Cement workers, now represented by the National Council of United Cement Workers, comprising unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, are gradually learning the value of effective organization, with the result that not only individuals, but grops as well are lining up under the A. F. of L. banner.

Typical of group affiliation, it is stated, is the recent decision of members of what was termed the "Independent Cement Workers' association" of Newcastle, who turned in applications for membership at a mass meeting held at the court house here. A special A. F. of L. charter for the group, numbering about 200, was promptly applied for, with the result that a really effective union now exists and is prepared to cooperate with other locals of the national council in further organizing and securing needed benefits for workers employed in this great industry.

The recent mass meeting here was addressed by Tony Gallo, secretary-treasurer of the National Council of United Cement Workers, and Ray Williams, president of Cement Workers' Local Union No. 18421.

Gold Star Mother—1937

Reading, Pa.—"A new sort of a gold star mother."

This was the introduction given to Mrs. Cora Rhoads by Luther A. Ammarell, a Berkshire strike leader, who spoke over Station WRAW this week.

Mrs. Rhoads is the mother of Donald Rhoads, Berkshire striker and head of the "non-violence" committee which arranged the "lie-down" protests at the mill in which almost 100 boys and girls were gassed and jailed.

Mrs. Rhoads was one of a group of parents who picketed the Berkshire mill last week carrying crosses to show that they were carrying on for their children:

Mrs. Rhoads said: "I am trying to do my share. I come from a family that always has fought for what they thought was right.

"In other years, the men did the fighting. The women had to stay home and sit and wonder and grieve.

"My grandmother knew what that was. In 1864 my grandfather joined the Union army, with Abe Lincoln. He, too, fought to free the slaves. . . . To his grave he carried his wounds. His body was marked with shot and shell from Fredericksburg, from Gettysburg and from Chancellorsville.

"My mother knew what it was to have her men away from home, fighting to make the world a better place to live in. Harry B. Rhoads, the uncle of my two boys who are now in jail, died at Chateau Thierry.

"So, when Donald and Bernard came to me the other week and said, 'Mom, we are going to lie-down before the Berkshire gates.' I knew my time had come, as it came for my mother and my grandmother.

"I was scared. I didn't know what would happen. Donald and Bernard are my only two boys. I guess I love them as much as any mother loves her sons—and such fine sons, too.

"I Was Afraid."

"Well, I was afraid they might be run over by automobiles, or that people might tread on them. I didn't expect what did happen—that the police would throw chemicals around and make them sick, and then carry them away to live on bread and water in dark cells.

"It is going to be a pretty poor Christmas at our home this year. I wonder what kind of a Christmas some of these mill owners will enjoy? They have their families around them and plenty to eat. My two boys will be in jail. That's bad enough. God only knows what might have happened to them if they had resisted instead of just kept laying there. Maybe I can be thankful they are well.

Proud of My Boys.

But I am proud of those boys. As proud of them as my mother was of their uncle and as proud as my grandmother was of my grandfather.

"I remember when we were kids, how we used to crawl up on my grandfather's knee and ask him to show us his wounds. Soldiers have wounds to show when they come home from war.

"The other day I was out on the picket line carrying a cross for my two boys. A big, healthy man walked past me and entered the mill.

"I wanted to holler after him. I wanted to ask him what wounds he would be able to show his grandchildren, when this horrible strike is won and people, years from now, tell of the struggle the workers made to keep his wages from being reduced.

"I wonder if he would have understood.

"Thank God, my boys are doing their part. I am proud of them."

Another example is the list of twelve fair concerns employing members of Sheet Metal Workers' Local Union No. 96.

Under the leadership of the Central Labor union, Evansville now boasts of thirty-nine splendid labor organizations.

"Golden Rule" Should Lead All Groups To Peace and Good Will

Labor Movement Is Founded Upon the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man, A. F. of L. Secretary-Treasurer Declares in Christmas Greetings Broadcast.

Washington.—The intimate connection between the Golden Rule of Christianity and friendly relations in history and peace throughout the world was stressed in a radio address here by Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of labor, extending Christmas greetings to the American people.

Mr. Morrison, who begins his forty-first year as secretary of the A. F. of L. next January, recently completed his fiftieth year as a member of the International Typographical union.

He spoke over WJSV of the Columbia Broadcasting system on the "Labor News Review" program, presented weekly under the auspices of "The Trades Unionist," whose editor and publisher is John B. Colpoys, and broadcast by Albert N. Dennis, neds editor of "The Trades Unionist," who prepares the program.

Following is the text of Mr. Morrison's address:

"I am glad to bring the people of America a Christmas greeting on behalf of the American Federation of Labor. I might say at the beginning that the fine spirit of this joyful season is akin to the spirit of good-fellowship, of helpfulness and of economic justice for which the great American labor movement has long been striving. And we of labor hope for the future that this spirit may not be confined to any one day, or any one season, but that it may spread to encompass all the seasons and all the days of the years. Happily, the efforts of organized labor toward this end have been helpful.

"He whose coming into a troubled world we celebrate, pleaded in His time: 'Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men!' Surely, every member of organized labor, and other good citizens, subscribe most heartily to this splendid ideal.

"The means of attaining this ideal is also expressed in a Biblical quotation, which says, in effect: 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.'

"When the Golden Rule of Christianity becomes the accepted rule of American industry, agriculture and commerce, then the people of our beloved nation will have attained that ideal of peace and good will which our Lord, in His infinite wisdom, set forth nearly two thousand years ago.

"Also, the application of the Golden Rule of Christianity between nations to a greater extent than heretofore would aid the peace and good will of all the world.

Labor's Contribution to Brotherhood.

"However far we may have yet to travel to the attainment of the Christmas spirit throughout the year, all of us will recognize that we have already traveled a long way. The period of the world's greatest progress has been during the past fifty years. No similar period in all history can compare with its accomplishments in virtually all divisions of human endeavor, nor in the development of a social consciousness, nor in the gradual attainment of economic advancement and mutual justice.

"Perhaps it is significant that this period of greatest achievement has transpired during the lifetime of the American Federation of Labor, which has just observed its fifty-sixth anniversary. Perhaps our movement has proven a dominant factor, a helpful factor, in the unparalleled progress of the half century. If so, we have just reason to be proud of our accomplishments and are eager to carry on.

"It has been my pleasure to appear several times before as a guest on the 'Labor News Review' radio program, which has attained high distinction during the past three years. Indeed, it has helped to advance the peace and good will which we speak, and it has followed the Golden Rule in doing so. On one of my appearances here, I recall having said that 'the American labor movement is founded upon the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man.' Upon that solid foundation, it has become an accepted institution for practical progress.

A. F. of L. Benefits All Workers.

"The American Federation of Labor has been and is the focal point of the concentrated efforts of the American labor movement—an impregnable bulwark built up by American wage-earners, for mutual protection and mutual advancement. Any differences of opinion that have arisen from time to time, as to details or methods, unfortunate as they may be, have not altered the basic structure, nor the high ideals, nor the sound philosophy, of labor's representative body. The growing pains which it has experienced have always left it healthier and more potent. And let me emphasize this fact: every achievement of the American Federation of Labor has also benefited unorganized workers and added to the sum total of human advancement for our entire nation.

"I am profoundly thankful that I have lived to witness, as accomplished facts, many achievements in economic and social progress that were regarded as 'impossible' when I became secretary of the American Federation of Labor forty years ago. I am thankful, too, for an ever increasing number of fair and public-spirited employers and for a liberal government, now headed by one who has been designated on previous broadcasts of this program as 'The Apostle of Humanity.'

"What has been done can be done. We may, therefore, reasonably expect continued progress in the future. I sincerely believe we are headed for that 'Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men' which God surely intended for us to enjoy.

"So I shall close my Christmas message, in this great year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty-six, with the old-fashioned wish that now bears a new significance: a very Merry Christmas and a healthful, prosperous and happy New Year, to all."

Seattle Cracker Workers Win Pay Increase Strike

Seattle, Wash.—A clear-cut victory has been won here, after a strike lasting twenty-three days, by Cracker and Confectionery Workers' union, auxiliary to Local Union No. 23, who won an agreement with the American Cracker company. Workers in this plant, through their victory, have gained recognition of their union, the 40-hour work week and wage increases ranging from 50 cents to $2.50 a week.

Early settlement was predicted for similar strikes at three other plants, where the solidarity of the ranks of the union presaged an eventual sweeping victory for these workers.

Culinary Workers Boost Pay from $7 to Over $15

Rock Springs, Wyo.—Organization of wage-earners in this section of "old Wyoming" is progressing substantially now, under the urging of the Central Labor union of Sweetwater county and other unions. According to reports, the campaign is being extended to many lines.

Outstanding among recent accomplishments was the organization of a culinary workers' local union, which has already secured a contract with employers, which amounts to a decided advancement for these normally low-paid workers.

As a result of organization and securing of the new contract, wages of the culinary workers have been increased from $7 to over $15 a week. Chefs may work nine hours, but all others have secured the 8-hour work day, along with improved working conditions.

Philadelphia Inquirer Signs Pact With Printing Trades

Philadelphia, Pa.—Five unions of the Allied Printing Trades council have won a "closed shop" agreement with the Philadelphia Inquirer, daily newspaper, which also grants a 20 per cent increase in wages over the amounts formerly paid and the standard union scale, with other conditions and union regulations to be worked out in conferences between union representatives and the management. All help required in the lines covered is now being furnished by the unions.

Participating in the settlement, following a series of conferences with the management, are Philadelphia Newspaper Pressmen No. 16, Steleotypers No. 7, Photo-Engravers No. 7, Mailers No. 14 and the International Typographical union.

It is reported that efforts are now under way to unionize the "Evening Bulletin," which has become Philadelphia's only non-union newspaper.

New York, N. Y.—Union bricklayers, refusing to work on jobs where material was being hauled by non-union labor, were made defendants in supreme court here in an action to restrain five local unions from "violating" existing collective agreements. The five bricklayers' locals contend that their agreements were qualified by a clause reserving the right of the unions to withdraw their members from jobs where non-union conditions exist.

The Building and Construction Trades Council of Greater New York is supporting co-operation between various crafts to gain union conditions in the industry. The Associated Brick Mason Contractors of Greater New York, Inc., and four individual firms brought the suit, naming thirty defendants, including the president of the council and officers of Bricklayers' Local Unions Nos. 21, 30, 34, 37 and 109, of New York.

Stetson Hat Workers Strike for Pay Boost

Philadelphia, Pa.—A strike of employes of the John B. Stetson company, hat manufacturers, said to involve 2,500 workers, was called here, when the company officials are alleged to have refused union recognition, a 25 per cent wage increase and improved working conditions. Instead of dealing with the union, it is stated the president of the company caused a notice to be posted granting a 5 per cent wage increase, effective in January, plus an extra week's salary as a Christmas bonus. But this proffered sop, it was said, did not alter the union in insisting on recognition and collective bargaining to arrive at wages and working conditions in the factory.

San Jose Building Trades Pickets Land Union Pact

San Jose, Cal.—The Building Trades council of Santa Clara county, in their fight against construction jobs where non-union subcontractors operate, has resorted to picketing—and with telling effect.

After pickets were on one big job only four days, the general contractor signed an agreement making the job 100 per cent union. Private houses built by non-union people for so-called "real estate operators," who sell them for residences, is also being undertaken.

Many affiliated building crafts have already noted gains as a result of the militant stand taken by the council, including plumbers, lathers, plasterers, cement finishers, sheet metal workers, iron workers, painters, tile setters, hod carriers and building laborers.

Carpenters Pledge 30-Hour Week Fight

LAKELAND, Fla. — The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America has pledged itself to fight for the 30-hour, five-day week.

The convention here voted unanimously to support the short work week after it voted down a committee report which recommended a 35-hour week.

William L. Hutcheson, of Indianapolis, won renomination to the presidency after names of two rival candidates were withdrawn.

Unanimous nomination by the convention is equivalent to election, but the Brotherhood votes on convention-chosen candidates at a referendum in January.

First to drop out was J. W. Williams, of Washington, president of the American Federation of Labor Building Trades Department. A few moments later the nomination of James M. Gauld, of Boston, was withdrawn.

Other officers renominated without opposition were Secretary Frank Duffy, First Vice President George H. Lakely, Second Vice President S. P. Meadows and Treasurer Thomas Neale.

1,500 Silk Throwers Strike Against Increased Work Load

Buffalo, N. Y.—Alleged sweatshop conditions and speed-up tactics at three silk-throwing plants operated here by the Duffy interests resulted in the walkout of 1,500 workers, with the effective closing of the plants pending settlement with the Buffalo local of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

Union officials say they have reason to believe also there is some connection between the Duffy throwing and hosiery mills here and the Berkshire Knitting Mills at Reading, Pa., world's largest full-fashioned hosiery plant.

La Follette Committee Report Uncovers "Riot" Gas Sales of $451,938

Washington.—The U. S. Senate civil liberties committee, headed by Senator La Follette, continues to uncover more startling facts concerning activities detrimental to organized labor on the part of large employers and even municipalities.

A two-volume edition of records gathered by the committee presents 732 pages of evidence concerning the operations of strike-breaking thugs, efficiently organized labor spy systems and bitter competition between firms that furnish munitions and supplies for strike-breaking.

It is revealed that private industry and municipalities bought $451,938 worth of tear gas and sickening was between January, 1933, and September, 1936, although this is only a small portion of the total expenditures for anti-labor activities. The report of the committee is expected to be submitted to the next session of congress, with recommendations for remedial legislation

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

MORE ABOUT CHARITY BALL

best musical talent in town was there. There was no intermission. The combined orchestras of Ellis Goodloe, Pless-McInturff, Rogers-Miller and George Van Arsdale made feet tap and bodies sway.

High expressions of praise were heard on all sides. The quality of the performance of the floor show, the cream of Chattanooga's dancing resources, and the exceptional cooperation given by the theater and stage craft unions, made possible an evening which would have been practically impossible to achieve by any other group than Central Labor union. There should have been 5,000 people to see and hear them, but now that it has been demonstrated that labor can really put on a first-class charity entertainment, it is believed by many the succeeding years will see an annual custom increase in popularity.

And by the way: Labor has a master of ceremonies in Stanton E. Smith, president of Teachers' union. He talked into the mike with all the eclat and ease of Major Bowles.

It took plenty of hard work on the part of George Rodgers and A. C. Kamin, with the aid of many others, to put the thing over. They did the job in great style.

MORE ABOUT W.U. MONOPOLY

nel to the Mackay company is contrary to the wishes of congress.

3. Congress alone has the power to determine whether such a monopoly should be established.

Postal Friendly to Labor.

4. This monopoly weakens the telegraph lines of the Postal Union company in the United States by making it impossible for the Postal to compete fairly with Western Union in the solicitation of foreign business.

5. The interest of the Telegraphers, in addition to its public interest opposintg a monopoly, lies in the fact that the Postal maintains a policy of labor relations more favorable to labor, a fact which the Telegraphers believe would receive consideration by congress in any extension if monopoly. These considerations prompted the Telegraphers to oppose the merger of telegraph lines which the commission recommended to congress in January, 1935, and which congress turned down.

Principle Far-Reaching.

6. If the principle adopted by the commission with reference to the radio to Norway is to stand, then the R. C. A. monopoly must be extended to most European countries. The principle adopted by the commission reads: "That competitive service be established where there are competing applications, or an application or applications to compete with already established service, and that in the grant of competing licenses fairness of competition be established, except that as to an isolated country, which, in the judgment of the commission, will not afford sufficient business for competing wireless lines, only one grant of license shall be made, preferably the first application in priority."

It was significant that Dirlef Knudsen, attache to the Norwegian legation, appeared before the commission and read a resolution passed by the Norwegian-American Chamber of Commerce of New York City favoring additional radio service to Oslo, Nor-

Stern's Paper Scores Anti-Guild Stand of Publishers' Association

Philadelphia Record Quitting Employers' Group, Smashes Argument Union Threatens Freedom of Press.

PHILADELPHIA. — The Philadelphia Record has resigned its membership in the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in protest against the unfair attitude of that organization toward the American Newspaper Guild.

J. David Stern, publisher of the Record, summed up the case in a letter which reads, in part, as follows:

"American Newspaper Publishers' Association, New York City.

"Gentlemen: The Philadelphia Record hereby resigns from your association.

Association Indicted

"We are resigning because your association, founded to benefit and strengthen the daily newspapers of this country, has in the past few years so conducted itself as to lower American newspapers in popular esteem, to endanger the freedom of the press, and has even gone so far as to urge its members to breach the law.

"I do not see how a law-abiding newspaper can consistently retain membership in your organization. Especially in view of the action of your board of directors on Dec. 9.

"At that meeting, your board recommended that 'no agreement be entered into with any group of employes.' As we understand the Wagner act, it is obligatory upon employers to negotiate with representatives of a majority of employes in any department or craft. * * *

Wrong Impression Given

"But aside from this one clause, the complete recommendation of your board was so worded as to give the impression that those of your members who have made contracts with the American Newspaper Guild have thereby forfeited freedom of the press.

"You know or should know that you have deliberately or inadvertently given an entirely wrong impression to the public."

Mr. Stern then says that while he has a contract with the Newspaper Guild, he can tell a reporter to write that two and two make five, and fire him if he disobeys, but "I cannot fire him without notice just because I want to give his job to somebody I like better or to please my whim.

Unions Not Menace

"More than 90 per cent of your members have contracts with typographical, pressmen's and stereotypers' unions, in many respects contracts stronger and more binding than the contracts for which the Guild is asking.

"Will you name one instance where any of these mechanical unions has presumed to dictate to a publisher what should or should not be printed in his news or editorial columns? Has anyone ever brought up the issue of the freedom of the press in the unionization of all the mechanical processes of a newspaper?

"Then why should the issue be raised now in reference to the Newspaper Guild, which is intended merely to better wage and working conditions of editorial workers who, in comparison with the other newspaper crafts, have been notoriously underpaid?"

Strike of Grand Haven Leather Workers Ended

Grand Haven, Mich.—Perhaps slowly but surely the onward march of wage-earners toward economic independence and social advancement continues, with the valiant vanguard of organized lavor leading the procession, which includes, whether we know it or not, every worker in the land.

Sometimes victories are sensational and sometimes just moderate gains that mark the upward trend. Into this category, labor officials state, may be placed the compromise victory, after ten weeks on the picket line, of employes of the Eagle-Ottawa Leather company strikers of Grand Haven and Whitehall. Re-employment terms, accepted by vote, provide that there shall be no discrimination, so that the local union may remain intact, with a slight gain won in the hard struggle, which began Sept. 14, with effective closing of the two plants by the strike conducted by members of Leather Workers' Local No. 81, and succeeding developments that placed this section in Michigan for a time in the labor spotlight.

Big Progress Recorded By Wilmington Unions

Wilmington, Del.—A revival of interest with resultant progress in the labor movement of this vicinity recently has old-timers and new-comers alike "on their toes" with determination to push forward to even greater gains.

Old-established unions are taking in many new members and new locals are popping up with consistent regularity.

Transportation workers have established a local branch, with many members; taxicab drivers are now 100 per cent organized, a mason's union has just been chartered; pattern makers have just been reorganized; the musicians' union is making real progress; organization of leather workers is expected to materialize and a laborers' union is being formed, while the building trades council is functioning to perfection. With the added impetus of practical accomplishment, the forward surge of organized labor in this community is expected to continue.

Bakers' Union Ladies' Auxiliary Is Formed

Washington.—The value to organized labor of support rendered by ladies' auxiliaries to local unions is reflected in a number of such auxiliaries in the nation's capital, including the auxiliary of the Typographical union and others.

Just now a vigorous campaign is being undertaken by the ladies' auxiliary to Bakers' Union No. 118, covering Washington and vicinity, to enlist all wives and other women members of the families of those affiliated with this union and allied locals, such as Bakery Salesmen No. 38, the Ice Cream Workers and Bakery Helpers.

A "Christmas party" given in connection with the regular December meeting of the auxiliary, to which all eligible ladies were invited, was expected to help in creating interest and understanding. The present motto of the auxiliary, "Watch Us Grow!" is indicative of the fighting spirit of these loyal ladies of the trade union movement and they are making good.

Governor Increases State Minimum Pay

HARRISBURG. — Gov. Earle has given 1,345 state employes a $10-a-month boost in wages.

A little over a week ago Gov. Earle appointed a committee to study the wages paid by Pennsylvania to its employes. The committee made its report and the governor issued the following statement:

"Having received the report of the committee which I recently appointed to study the minimum salary classification for employes of the Commonwealth, I am happy to announce that, beginning Dec. 15, the present minimum salary classification of $900 (a year) will be abolished, and a new minimum of $1,020 established. This will affect 1,345 employes.

"I believe in the principle of equal compensation for equal service, and consequently feel that any minimum salary classification, since it involves janitors, typists, file clerks, etc., no matter what agency employes them, should be the same for all."

SHIP STRIKERS BACK AT WORK

HOUSTON, Tex.—Striking deck officers and marine engineers returned to their jobs on Dec. 14 with the Lykes Brothers Steamship Lines.

The agreement included provisions for increased pay, an eight-hour day with increased rates for overtime, vacations with pay, and three nights off while in home ports for officers and engineers.

Mayor La Guardia Bans Remington-Rand Goods

New York City Executive Vetoes Big Order for Business Machines Because of Concern's Unfair Labor Practices.

New York.—Organized labor, solidly supporting the striking employes of the Remington-Rand, Inc., protested so bitterly over the award of a contract by the city of New York to that firm for business machines that Mayor La Guardia vetoed the ordinance that was intended to authorize the purchase. The amount involved was $126,795 net, after deducting trade-in allowances.

The Central Trades and Labor council, A. F. of L. affiliate, led the protest of labor that resulted in the controller agreeing to use the present equipment "until some future time when an adjustment may be made." In his veto message, Mayor La Guardia stated that "application may again be made when normal conditions are restored." Over 1,500,000 cards are used for filing in the finance department, where the proposed new equipment was to be placed.

The Remington-Rand strike has been in effect since last May. An investigation by the national labor relations board has revealed that the firm has used gun-play, labor spies and about all the despicable tricks of violent anti-unionism in an effort to defeat the striking employes, who are still holding firm.

Chicago Judge Rules Trade Union Members Are Liable For Dues and Assessments

Chicago. — Attempts of reneging members, or ex-members, of labor unions to avoid paying honest debts to their unions were given a severe jolt in municipal court here, when it was held that such members is liable for dues and special assessments.

The decision, of wide importance of organized labor, resulted from a suit entered for delinquent dues and special assessments against a member who had withdrawn from the union, by Chicago Photo Engravers' Local Union No. 5.

Where special assessments and dues are properly assessed and levied by the committee of the labor organization authorized to make such assessments and levies, the court held, all members of the organization are contracturally bound thereby.

How Cardui Helps Women To Build Up

Cardui stimulates the appetite and improves digestion, helping women to get more strength from the food they eat. As nourishment is improved, strength is built up, certain functional pains go away and women praise Cardui for helping them back to good health. . . . Mrs. O. R. Ratliff, of Hinton, W. Va., writes: "After the birth of my last baby, I did not seem to get my strength back. I took Cardui again and was soon sound and well. I have given it to my daughters and recommend it to other ladies." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

Union's Right Upheld In Picketing Bosses' Plant for Pact Breach

Chancellor Mitchell, Knoxville, Ends Injunction Obtained by Company Union —Holds Pickets Have Right to Make Truthful Statements About Employer.

The persistent fight of the Knoxville, Tenn., Moving Picture Machine Operators' union, affiliated with the A. F. of L., over a "company union," has finally resulted in complete victory for the legitimate union and a broadening of legal definitions affecting strikes and picketing.

The union called a strike at the Roxy theater in Knoxville (then operated by T. W. Smith, since deceased) because of an alleged breach of contract back in October, 1933. Some employes formed what was called the "Independent Motion Picture Operators' union." With the legitimate union, that had the contract with the theater which had been breached, on strike and picketing, the "company union" succeeded in getting an injunction against the aggrieved union.

Although the theatre was won over to the A. F. of L. union after being disposed of by Smith, the original injunction case was still in process of appeal and the union carried it through for the vindication of their contention that the Independent Operators' union was a "company union" and therefore had no valid standing as a collective bargaining agency, and that the bona fide union had the legal right to picket a struck plant.

This vindication came recently, after a three-year struggle, when Chancellor A. E. Mitchell, of the chancery division, embracing Knox county, terminated the injunction in a decision which upheld the right of working men and women to strike and to picket the place of business of their employer when they believe the latter has breached a contract entered into with his employes.

In discussing the action of the company union, Chancellor Mitchell said that organization "accepted employment from the former employers of the defendants at a time when there was a strike on between the defendants and their former employer. The equities in this case are against the complainant and in favor of the defendants."

"The defendants," he added, "had a right, under the circumstances, to strike and peacefully picket, and the injuries, if any, to the complainants were only incidental to the further prosecution of the rights of the defendants to use lawful means in an effort to protect their contract rights."

Chancellor Mitchell further said the pickets had the right, in their picketing, "to make truthful statements with regard to the employer, either by word of mouth and bills or on signs that were carried."

Florsheim Shoe Workers Have 40-Hour Week Pact

Washington.—In an article headed "Florsheim Shoe Company Renews Union Agreement," published in the November issue of the American Federation of Labor Weekly News Service, it was stated the renewed agreement covering the Chicago plant of the Florsheim Shoe company carried wage rates of from 66 cents to $1.20 per hour for the "44-hour work week."

The statement regarding the "44-hour work week" was incorrect. A letter from John J. Mara, general president of the Boot and Shoe workers' union, to Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, states that "the agreement provides for a 40-hour week on the same condition that applied during the NRA when the code for the shoe industry was in effect."

Wife—How do you like the potato salad, dear?

Hubby—Delicious! Did you buy it yourself?

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE MEMBERS, TAKE NOTICE

The legislative committee of Central Labor union will meet next Saturday, January 2 at Attorney King's office in the Chattanooga Bank building. Time of the meeting will be 2 p.m.

The following are expected to be present: John Cotter, M. H. Ortwein, A. V. Cordell, W. T. McKenna, J. B. Campbell and Edward Callahan.

Mine Operators Ask Longer Week At Present Wage

Soft Coal Employers Notify Union They Will Demand 40 Hours of Work Instead of 35, After March 31.

Washington—Eight soft coal mining companies have notified John L. Lewis and through him the United Mine Workers of America, that they, the companies, will demand an eight-hour day and 40-hour week with no increase in pay over the seven-hour day and 35-hour week now prevailing under a contract which ends March 31, 1937. Their letter to Lewis says:

"The operators offer to the United Mine Workers of America a continuation of the present wage schedules per day, per ton and per yard; that the work day be established on an eight-hour basis of a five-day week; that the hourly rates be adjusted in accordance therewith so that the same earnings per day per worker will be maintained as is now paid for a seven-hour day; and that the unit rates for piece work remain the same as under the present Appalachian wage agreement dated Sept. 26, 1935."

At least three companies in which the Mellon interests have sizable investments are included in the eight signers of this letter. They are the Pittsburgh Coal company; Koppers Coal company and Consolidated Coal company.

It is considered there is no chance that the miners will consent to this substantial wage cut. For one thing, the anthracite operators have signed a new agreement, going into effect April 1, continuing the 35-hour week. For another, the soft coal miners have been planning to ask a 30-hour week with the same wage as at present.

The present basic wage is $5.50 a day in northern fields and $5.10 in the south.

Mayor Orders Unsafe Dwellings Torn Down

Philadelphia. — Spurred by the death of six persons, killed in the collapse of a ramshackle tenement house, Mayor Wilson has ordered unsafe dwellings to be torn down. This is estimated to cover about 2,000 homes, and the mayor says that half of them ought to be down in a week.

The old, dirty Philadelphia politics shows up in the prevalence of these houses, according to the mayor. He made an inspection tour in person, and reported:

"I found thirty-three phantom voters registered from a house like one of these. The woman who conducted the house said she was told by her republican committeeman to let these phantoms be registered from there, or the city would force her to put up fire escapes.

The difficulty with carrying out the mayor's order is that there seem to be no safe houses in Philadelphia to which those now living in the collapsible firetraps can be moved.

Miss Rich—I hope you won't take it to heart, but our engagement is broken.

Mr. Golddigger—I won't grieve for myself, but my creditors will.

FOSTER URGES EMPLOYER MEET UNION HALFWAY

Free Press Editor Says Labor Always Offers Peace.

HUMAN RIGHTS FIRST; THEN PROPERTY RIGHTS

"There Needs Be No Classes and They Can Be Partners Together," He Says.

Christianizing industry should be the major objective of both employers and employes, according to W. G. Foster, editor of the Free Press, who spoke before the Industrial Fellowship club yesterday at noon at the industrial branch of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Declaring himself a firm supporter of organized labor, Mr. Foster said that capital, management and labor must co-operate and work in fairness and harmony if any are to be truly successful. The speaker urged that consideration be given to the rights of labor, since these rights should come before the rights of those who put money into industry.

"Labor will meet business half way; there need be no classes and they can be partners together," he said. The industrial division of the Y. M. C. A. was also commended highly for what it is doing and for the opportunity it has made for itself in helping the industrial families throughout Chattanooga.

Chicago Printers Act In Wage Controversy

Union Moves to Force Showdown on Issue and May Ask Strike Sanction If Publishers Prove Obdurate.

Chicago.—Members of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 employed on Chicago daily newspapers are in revolt following a four-to-one rejection of the publishers' proposal which was submitted to the members in a referendum election Nov. 25. The publishers had stalled off the demands of the union for twenty-two months and then offered a counter-proposal that outraged the concepts of decency of the printers.

The newspaper printers started the ball rolling with two moves. First they got the union to instruct each newspaper chapel to elect two men to act in an advisory capacity to the scale committee. These twelve additional men were chosen and are functioning.

A joint meeting of all newspaper chapels was held with a view of formulating demands. In addition to that daily meetings are being held on the premises by the printers employed in each newspaper plant. The latter procedure has been very disturbing to the publishers because it has thrown all schedules out of gear.

The advisory committee has been holding daily meetings with the scale committee to draft final demands on the publishers. Failing to obtain compliance with these demands, the local union will be advised to request the International Typographical union for strike sanction.

SKUNK SKIN SCRAPERS STRIKE; GET MORE PAY

St. Louis, Mo.—Scraping skung skins may now be carried on with the proper air by union workers here, who won an increase in piece work wages after a one day's strike.

Fur Scrapers' Local Union No. 31 won their demand for an increase of one-quarter of a cent for scraping a certain class of skunk skins and opossum skins. The increase brought the price to 2 cents for opossum skins and 3½ cents for the grade of skunk skins on which an increase was asked. Another grade of skunk skins brings 5 cents each to the scrapers.

It is stated fur scrapers are employed only about ten weeks a year, beginning about Dec. 1. The new agreement, reached with the St. Louis Raw Fur and Wool association, covers the workers in ten raw fur houses.

Peoria Typos Protest Use of Public Schools To Sell Scab Editions

Ask School Authorities to Stick to Educating Children and Keep Out of Labor Fight.

Peoria, Ill.—Emphatic protest has been lodged with the local school board by Typographical Union No. 29 against the "common practice" of certain magazines in using the public school system as a means of promoting subscription drives. It was claimed that publications using this method of promotion are nearly always non-union products, while the complaint was directed specifically at several non-union magazines, which were named.

"We do not wish to enlist the school board in a drive against any magazine or publication of any kind," President Marble, of the Typographical union, stated in a letter quoted in full in the Peoria Labor Gazette.

"We do wish to remind you," he continued, "that to people who are paying their money and dedicating their efforts and their lives to the advancement of the labor movement, and the better social conditions for which that movement stands, that it is extremely obnoxious to have the public school system prostituted into a subscription agency for a lot of magazines described in labor circles as 'rat.'

"Members of the Typographical union, along with other organizations of a like nature in Peoria, are to a great extent owners of property and patrons of the school system and object to having their children made innocent tools to defeat the cause for which their parents are striving."

CHATTANOOGA DOES IT

For many years the public school system has been used in Chattanooga to sponsor the sale of non-union periodicals. It has been the practice to allow the use of the school authorities' office, telephones, etc., as headquarters for certain organizations, who sell subscriptions to unwary citizens for labor-hating magazines.

Workers' Cultural Society To Meet Next Wednesday To Discuss Bobbie Burns

The Workers' Cultural Society will meet next Wednesday evening, Jan. 6, in the labor hall. After a short business session the program will consist of a talk on "Robert Burns, the Poet of the Common Man," by Rev. T. B. Cowan. Rev. Cowan will also sing some Scotch ballads.

There will be a short current events forum, and refreshments. The executive board of the society will meet at 7 p.m., prior to the regular session to begin at 8 o'clock.

Chicago Union Drivers Win Increase in Wages

Chicago.—Ten thousand union chauffeurs and drivers in the Chicago area will receive $1,500,000 more in wages during 1937 under an agreement just made between the Cartage Exchange of Chicago and Local 705 of the International Brotherhood of Tteamsters and Local 705 of the Chicago Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers' union.

Under the terms, effective Jan. 1, all chauffeurs and drivers will receive a $3 weekly increase in wages, which now range from $29 to $38.50.

40-Hour Week Set For State Workers

Harrisburg, Pa.—Gov. Earle has announced a 40-hour week for all state employes. The new system includes, besides the shortened hours, fifteen days vacation and fifteen days sick leave a year, with pay; and time off for overtime above the 40 hours.

A union label revival meeting is the best method to obtain union label converts.

The practice of getting children to sell magazines, oftentimes through school contacts, is said to be indulged in rather extensively throughout the country by the most notorious of the comparatively few non-union publishers.

Sheet Metal Local Gets Good Start; Forming Contracts

Newest Union Elects Officers — Contractors Are Co-operating With Baby Local.

Sheet Metal Workers, Local 51, is the name of Chattanooga's youngest union, and from all appearances, it has a very bright future. Contrary to the fate of many new organizations, it is said that sheet metal contractors look on the new union with great favor. Contracts are being prepared, and in a few days they will be presented to the employers for signature.

Last week Local 51 elected its permanent officers as follows:

President, W. R. Conly; vice-president, L. A. Campbell; financial secretary, G. D. Abercrombie; recorder, L. R. Prestwood; treasurer, Paul Tipp; warden, W. H. Alexander, conductor, William Davidson. The business representative is Erskine Mabee.

Machinists' Local 56 Will Start Off Year With Regular Party

Local 56, International Association of Machinists, will entertain with a get-to-gether party at the Labor Hall Friday night, Jan. 1, at 8 o'clock. The Chattanooga Label League is co-operating in the arrangements.

The program will consist of talks by Joe Dobbs and other labor leaders. Vocal and instrumental music and dance numbers will grace the occasion. A square dance and refreshments will top off the gala evening.

Machinists, metal workers and associated crafts are invited to attend. Admission will be 10 cents.

Akron Stenographers Win Pay Boost and Hours Cut

AKRON, O.—A four-hour strike by five members of Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Typists and Assistants' Union No. 19,266, affiliated with the A. F. of L., brought a prompt settlement with the Goodrich local of the United Rubber Workers of America.

Four women and one man employed in the office of the rubber workers, after calling their strike at 8:00 a.m., announced a settlement at noon. The strike was reported entirely effective. The office workers claimed "undue delay" on their request for adjustment of wages and hours. The settlement included wage increases for two of the five employees and establishment of the 30-hour week.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 1, 1937

Welcome, 1937!

Trades unionists of our country have every reason to look forward to the new year with every degree of hope and expectancy of better industrial conditions. More particularly should Chattanooga be optimistic.

However, it should be borne in mind that advances in living conditions of workers will not come of its own accord. Every element in our social life has changed during the past four years. It is up to the working people, first of all, to take pride in their workmanship. Give the employer the best work possible. After this is done it is natural to expect the employer to give the employe his share of the profits.

Unless the employe organizes into unions there will not be a fair distribution of that wealth. There are yet enough greedy bosses in all lines of industry who must be forced to share their profits, and 1937 will see more and more unorganized workers demanding of such employers that their unions shall be dealt with in a fair and decent manner.

It is encouraging to note the statements made last week by W. G. Foster, editor of the Free Press, in this regard. Mr. Foster, in addresses before several civic clubs, composed mostly of manufacturers and business men, told them that much of their "labor troubles" could be averted if they would only meet with the unions "half way." Labor can guarantee to Chattanooga industry that 1937 will not see a recurrence of "labor troubles" if the workers are met half way.

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year—and while you say it a lot of men are being shot in Spain, others are being thrown into durance vile by Hitler and Mussolini and the world goes merrily on with its wars and hates and conflicts.

Say Merry Christmas to the du Pont empire and see if it lessens the hate for organized labor. Or say it to U. S. Steel and see if it lets down the bars to organizing work.

Quit kidding. Holiday greetings are for friends, not for enemies whose enmity is inherent in their being. But holiday greetings are fine, just the same. So are all kindly greetings. Let us keep them up. But don't expect Al Smith to wire any to the president.

Incidentally, the birthday ball for the president is coming along right on the heels of New Year's. Intervening, we shall have inauguration, with conservative old Cary T. Grayson inappropriately running the show. And we shall have congress in session.

Nobody should make the mistake of thinking that the huge democratic majority will be all liberal. That's what labor has in mind when it talks about "realignment." There are plenty of hide-bound reactionaries in the democratic picture and labor will have to belabor them as hard as ever it had to belabor the most reactionary republican on the other side of the house. Divide them, not by the party labels they wear, but by the glint in their eye when you discuss some new prospective legislative child.

If the past year has been a socko of a year—a wow in all things that make for a wowful world—this coming year is billed to be double rich, extra special and how-de-do big doings. There are glimmerings that indicate 1936 was not fulfillment; it was forecast—a curtain raiser for 1937. Most of what was done in 1936 was knocked into insensibility by the well-known supreme court, known laconically as Scotus in the jargon code of the Morse men. And if the court insists upon getting in the way, it may be they'll stick in another "o" and call it Scootus, which is short for scram and vamoose. There's a big pair of shears being readied for a clipping operation, IF—

There are "ifs" all over the doorstep right now, portending a year of over-turns, right-abouts and new deals out of a hand eager to spill them forth. Labor's right to organize will be more firmly clinched than ever. Already, in spite of doubt about what the court will do, labor itself has become so firmly convinced of its right that nothing ever can take it away. And perhaps federal incorporation to forge another club over the heads of the recalcitrant big corporations, the gentry that won't behave until forced to. And another year in which to work out the AFL-CIO problem, one of the biggest of all, with something decisive sure to happen.

Well, hang up your stocking, pin up the mistletoe and prepare to get kisses by Lady Luck, or kicked in the pants by Mr. Adversity. There'll be nothing sly and retiring, quiet and effacing about this coming year. It will be a wow—and the joke is going to be on somebody.

Happy New Year.

Teachers are in full agreement with the part of Commissioner McMillan's end-of-the-year statement that follows: "Possibly the greatest present need is for some relief in the matter of teachers' salaries. Now that other professions are paying better, the work of teaching is suffering because our most promising candidates are being drawn by trades and openings which provide a better return."

General Electric Workers Turn Down Company Union

Schenectady, N. Y.—At an election held under the direction of the national labor relations board, employes of the General Electric plant here rejected the company union and voted in favor of the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America as their representative in collective bargaining.

The vote was: U. E. R. W. A., 5,111; Workers' Council of the General Electric, 4,033.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

New Year's resolutions from some of our labor folk:

Joe Dobbs—Not a single fight during the year 1937. No sir, not a single scrap.

Roy Reynolds—Wherefore, be it resolved—pardon me, Stanton Smith and I both resolve not to present a single resolution before the council.

Bernard Campbell—Gonna quit being such a good buddy of Lyle Stovall's.

Virginia Munsey—I shall practice reading the minutes until I can speak as loud as Joe.

Zeke Witt—I promise not to let more than two consecutive meetings go by without making a good old rousing union label speech.

Matt Lynch—No more Rockwood.

"Parson" Moore—I shall endeavor to pile up more freight car mileage in my never ceasing fight against that vicious chamber of commerce.

Frank Anderson—Next year I promise not to forget to bring my 700 members to all labor rallies, job or no job.

Erskine Mabee—I resolve to see that The Labor World gets painted this year, if I have to donate the labor myself.

Ina Green—More and better presidencies and vice-presidencies.

A. C. Kamin—I shall preserve my strength by trying not to wave my hand when I talk.

Mrs. Archie Underwood—I just will not "sub" for Arch at the Label league.

George Rogers—I shall devote the year to trying to get Vic Hallmark to join the Musicians' union so he can sing for us while we play.

Lora Goforth—I'm going to quit talking so fast. It's just wearing me out.

Phil Angel and Henry Morris—No more Christmas "spirits" will we, out of the kindness of our hearts, donate to the editor of The Labor World. From last week's story it is evident that he just can't take it.

Commissioner Bob—I shall limit myself to ten hours sleep each day.

Yours Truly—I resolve to start a boycott on blue penciling.

And with all that it should be a HAPPY NEW YEAR.

If we truly desire to recover, we'll have to discover that union-label buying is the only way.

Comment on World Events

A story received from Chicago should be posted up wherever workers meet, just to show what it means in serious trials to belong to a real, live union. The Chicago & Northwestern railroad is in the hands of a trustee. Federal Judge John P. Barnes authorized the trustee to restore to the pre-depression level the wages of 2,033 unorganized employes of the railroad. It is estimated that this will increase the railroad's payroll $32,681 a month. And the Associated Press dispatch telling this news closes with the guileless and truthful words: "The pay cuts of the organized employes of the carrier were restored a year ago." $32,681 a month means $390,172 a year. That is what those fellows lost by not being organized. Really, it would pay quite a lot of union dues.

Fascist Italian rulers of Tripoli are flogging the Jews in the market place of that North African town for the crime of closing their shops on Saturday. That is the official reason. It covers a mean subterfuge. Jews have been moving from the old Ghetto to the better parts of the town, and opening shops on good streets and corners. To drive them back to the Ghetto, the fascist authorities decreed that all shops must be kept open every day of the week, except Sunday. Jews of Tripoli, being orthodox, keep Saturday as the Sabbath. Most of them went back to the Ghetto, but a few stayed in their places and closed their shops on Saturday. For this grave offense, two were flogged on Dec. 8 with the kourbash, an oriental whip with plaited and weighted leather thongs.

Incredible? Not for fascism. Fascism isn't civilized; and the Italian paper in Tripoli, which gave a full account of the affair, spoke of the "moderation" which gave the victims only ten lashes each. Obviously, the anti-Semitic fanaticism of nazi Germany is spreading to its fascist Italian ally. Crime is contagious. As a sidelight, we learn that only 21,000 Italians are living in Tripoli, though the country was seized to "furnish an outlet for Italy's teeming population" more than twenty years ago.

The outlays for arming the United States are causing apprehension among the Canadian people, with whom this country has observed more than a century of unbroken peace, according to Miss Agnes MacPhail, only woman member of the Canadian parliament. Speaking in Washington recently, she said, "We think it is time you called a halt to your increasing military and naval appropriations if we are to take to heart the sweet words of peace and good will that drop from the lips of your president."

Labor Board Is Upheld By United States Court

Decision Declares Employers Cannot Legally Victimize Trade Unionists —Sustains Compulsory Collective Bargaining.

New Orleans, La.—The legal authority of the national labor relations board to force employers to bargain collectively with employes has been upheld here in a clear-cut decision of the United States circuit court of appeals.

In rendering its decision, the court upheld the labor board's recent "cease and desist" order against Agwilines, Inc., which operates the Clyde-Mallory Steamship Lines. The case involved dismissal of seven employes for union activities, at Tampa, Fla.

Hearings in the original case were held last July, following refusal of the company to bargain collectively with the local branch of the Longshoremen's union, and the discharge of seven workers, including the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the local union at Tampa. Agwilines, Inc., appealed the ruling, with the usual argument that the labor board's order violated the Fifth amendment to the federal constitution and that the board was without jurisdiction.

Three of the seven employes were ordered reinstated immediately, "with back pay and without prejudice to the rights and privileges they enjoyed." The other four were renamed to the labor board for further findings as to these cases. The court's decision was another distinct victory for the labor board and for organized labor.

Organized Labor's Right to Picket Clinched by N. Y. Court's Decision

Fight of Brooklyn Bakers' Union to Patrol Employer's Plant and Advertise His Goods as Unfair to Labor Won After Judicial Test Lasting Over Two Years.

The right to picket, to advertise a union label before places of business of non-union employers and before their customers, with signs also calling upon the public to purchase union label products, was recently reaffirmed in a bitterly contested court action in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Local Union No. 505, Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, whose members were victims of a lockout by the Standard Baking company ,which began May 1, 1933, has borne the brunt of battle to come through with a gallant victory. A strike of union members followed the lockout, and the then regional labor board of the NRA sought to settle the strike. Although the union agreed to proposed terms, the company refused to be bound by them and the struggle continued.

Anti-Picketing Injunction Quashed.

In May, 1934, the company brought an action in the supreme court, getting a temporary injunction against the Bakers' union, the infamous Faber injunction, which aroused much criticism throughout the nation among those who contended that it was an infringement on the rights of free speech, free press and free assemblage, virtually imposing involuntary servitude. Regarded by many as the most broad and drastic injunction ever issued in a labor dispute, the Faber injunction contained thirty-eight prohibitions on the activities of workers who were enjoined. Among these thirty-eight provisions was one which presumed to prohibit continuing the strike and another which forbade announcement by members of the union, or those in sympathy with them, that the Standard Baking company had secured an injunction. The new anti-injunction law, passed by the New York legislature in 1935, was aided very materially by the massed protests of organized labor over the liberty-destroying Faber injunction.

Judge Meier Steinbrink, of the Brooklyn supreme court, on appeal of the unjon, subsequently reduced the thirty-eight restrictions to eight. This modified injunction specifically permitted the union to have its members to walk up and down in the vicinity of the stores and customers of the Standard Baking company, bearing signs advertising the union label and calling upon the purchasing public to demand bread and rolls bearing the union label.

An appeal was taken by the company for the purpose of having the thirty-eight original Faber injunction provisions reinstated, in which it was claimed, among other things, that the advertising of the label constituted a "secondary boycott," one of the slave-driving type of employers' usual arguments. But the union contended that, instead of a secondary boycott, this was merely an exercise of the right of free speech. After a long and keenly contested struggle, the union won its contention when the appellate division unanimously overruled the plea of the Standard Baking company and affirmed the judgment of Judge Steinbrink.

Jury Trial in Contempt Cases Upheld.

An offshoot of the case was noted when the baking company sought to punish the union and officers for alleged contempt of court. This proved the first test case of the law granting jury trials in labor contempt citations, the constitutionality of the law being upheld, setting a precedent which has since been widely recognized and followed in similar actions throughout the state. Thus through sustained determination, the union membership, fighting for the righteousness of their cause, have not only gained victory for themselves but they have helped to tear down barbaric barriers that have forever impeded the emancipation of organized wage-earners.

MORE ABOUT COOPERATIVES

close alliance with the trade union movement.

"In a country where co-operatives will have to compete with chain stores under highly paid management, placing great emphasis on efficiency and shrewd business dealing, capable and experienced business leadership is of the utmost importance.

"The second foundation stone, education of co-operative members, is also of the greatest importance. Before they even consider opening a store, co-operators should make careful study of the Rochdale principles and of the business problems they are likely to meet. Such study should teach the history of the co-operative movement, both here and in the countries where it already has long experience in wholesaling and manufacture as well as retail trade. It should show the full significance of the movement, so that co-operators will realize their part in it and their interest will not end with the getting of dollars and cents in profits. Education should seek to build up community spirit through the co-operative so that it will become a true community movement.

Labor and Co-operation

"Thirdly, close alliance with the trade union is essential for full-rounded economic growth. There is real danger in the United States, where powerful interests are constantly seeking to keep wages at the lowest possible level, that co-operatives may become merely the mans of helping low-paid workers to exist on a mere pittance. Wage standards must be buttressed by strong trade union organization if co-operators are to have income to spend in their stores. Our convention of 1917 made a basic point when it stated that the trade union and the co-operative are "twin remedies." They must go hand in hand. Living standards must be raised both by wage increases and by the savings of consumer co-operation.

"In countries where consumers' co-operation has been most successful it has been closely allied with the trade union, and this alliance is equally essential in America. In a co-operative economy, the farmer needs his producers' co-operatives to protect his prices and handle his marketing problemts; the worker needs his trade union to protect and raise wage standards; both need the consumers' co-operative.

"The co-operative movement can do much to build up its alliance with Labor by insisting that the goods sold in co-operatives are manufactured under fair labor standards, by demanding the union label, by encouraging employees of co-operatives to organize in unions.

"The American Federation of Labor is ready to work with any constructive movement for consumers' co-operatian. We realize what co-operation can mean to wage earners and are anxious to see a strong and lasting movement built up in this country."

No Drastic Cut In Relief Rolls, President Says

All in Need Will Be Cared For, President Roosevelt Promises, Denying Report of Big Reduction in Aid Program.

Washington. — President Roosevelt at his semi-weekly press conference Dec. 22 said that there would be no drastic cuts in the work relief program, and declared with emphasis that all those in need will be cared for.

He was asked about the report that relief rolls will be cut one-third in the next six months, and replied that he never had heard of such a proposal. He repeated his already published announcement that he would ask congress for $500,000,000 to carry WPA through to June 30, when the fiscal year ends.

He added that this was not the only money that would be available during the next six months; but declined to say how much or where it would come from, save that it could be transferred from various balances to the WPA, and that enough would be available to keep WPA relief at its present level, if necessary.

Relief Problem Under Study.

The government is now spending more than $150,000,000 a month on relief, and checks are going out to 2,480,000 families.

The entire relief problem is being studied and reviewed, the president said. No accurate data are available yet, but they will be ready before he goes to congress for the money.

A story going the rounds in Washington and said to come from a source inside the administration explains why state relief administrators were ordered to cut relief, and then had those orders revoked.

Morgenthau Urged Step. Report.

According to this story, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau urged the president immediately after the election to take a step toward balancing the budget by cutting relief costs. The president, busy with preparations for his trip to Buenos Aires, told Morgenthau to take up the matter with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

Morgenthau, the story goes, "took it up" by telling Hopkins that relief expenditures would have to be cut, as the funds were running out. Assuming that the secretary spoke with presidential authority, Hopkins ordered the cuts. The resulting outcry reached the president on his ship, and he wirelessed Hopkins to stop the cuts.

Ben Tillett's Wife Dead.

London.—Mrs. Jane Tillett, 77, wife of Ben Tillett, veteran laborite leader, died on Dec. 23. During the famous dock workers' strike of 1889 she became known as the "dock workers' mother."

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Tillett was assistant secretary of the Dock Workers' union. A few weeks ago veteran dock workers presented her with a jewel casket, but she was too ill to receive their delegation.

Steel, Auto and Tobacco Stand United in Resolve to Continue Fight on Unionism to Last Ditch

Organized Workers and Their Friends Can Strike Effective Blow at Anti-Labor Cigarette Big Four by Buying and Boosting Brown & Williamson Unionized Brands.

By CHESTER M. WRIGHT

Washington.—The year-end holiday week brings to light one of the most amazing industrial situations ever recorded in national history.

Approximately 100 southern textile mills have declared their need for machinery to fix standards, as NRA did, declaring this necessary to their life and stability.

Meanwhile the great steel and automobile industries have made it clear that they are determined to resist any "interference" with their "right" to do exactly as they please, which is primarily a declaration of resistance to unionism.

The automobile industry likewise has made clear a similar position. Though doing a record-breaking business, both of these giants of industry have declared their determination to stick to company unionism.

Tobacco in Same Group.

But another giant has been ignored in this casting up of the situation. The great tobacco group that has fought labor as hard and bitterly as steel and automobiles have fought it, stands today in exactly the same position. The big cigarette group, known as the Big Four, are united solidly against unionism. With the clever and astute Clay Williams as chief diplomat, they seek to keep out of the front row in the controversy, evidently preferring to cover their warfare under a cloak of silence while steel and automobiles "take the rap" of public discussion and condemnation. But they occupy the same position as the more open opponents of labor in the nationwide line of conflict.

While in steel and automobiles there is no outstanding recourse for consumers, in the field of tobacco and cigarettes there are fully unionized brands. Those made by Brown & Williamson are making nationwide appeal, because of the union label, emphasizing that the company uses the label on all its brands of tobacco and cigarettes. The cigarette brands are Raleighs, Kools, Viceroys, Wings and Avalons.

In the field of automobiles, the La Follette senate committee is preparing for a thorough investigation of anti-union tactics. Labor expects important revelations.

Oil Partly Anti-Union.

Lined up with these union-hating giants there is a portion of the oil industry, notably the Rockefeller, Mellon and Pew interests, with Standard, Gulf and Sun. But here also there are the companies across the line, unionized, led by Sinclair, with the best agreement with them all.

Never before has the struggle for unionization taken in, over such a wide sweep, the giants of industry in all fields.

Big Developments Coming.

A notable break in the anti-union line came with the election in General Electric, with the company announcing in advance that it would abide by the results of an election under NLRB auspices. In the election the company union was badly beaten.

The coming two or three months will see tremendous developments, without doubt, in this battle of giants. But those giants that have dealt with unions know that the coming of unionism brings into industry a fairness and a spirit of co-operation that is of inestimable value, with all of the fruits so often proclaimed by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, pioneer in labor-management co-operation and marked as an outstanding road, largely for that reason.

Man—Going hunting without any cartridges in your gun?

Friend—Yes, it's cheaper that way and the result is the same.

Workers Need $3,600 Per Year, Green Says

Annual Wage of That Amount Is Necessary for Capacity Production, He Declares—Emphasizes Advance in Organizing Mass Production Industries.

Washington.—Employment of every one wishing to work is the fundamental requirement for capacity production in industry and this objective cannot be realized until every family receives an annual income of $3,600, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said in a statement on the outlook for labor during 1937.

Mr. Green stressed the right of wage-earners to have a voice in determined work conditions as elemental in our democratic life and emphasized both the growing acceptance of the principle of trade unionism and the gains in organization during the past twelve months.

Abolition of child labor, shorter hours to provide work for the jobless, higher wages, better living conditions and the enactment of federal and state social justice legislation were included by the chief of the A. F. of L. in organized labor's program for 1937.

Statement of Mr. Green.

Following is the text of Mr. Green's statement:

"The development of the past year of outstanding importance to labor is the growing acceptance of labor's right to organize in standard unions for the purpose of collective bargaining and the growing consciousness of the value of collective bargaining on that basis. The right of wage-earners to participate in determining terms and conditions under which they work is axiomatic in the democratic way of living.

"When wage-earners are assured the right to union membership to promote their own interests, the first step is taken to assure to those who work the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"When this right was first written into law under guarantee of our federal government, the movement of the workers to join unions showed what they really wanted to do when no longer victimized for doing it.

Growth of Unionism.

"Under the hope created by the national recovery act and the national labor relations board, unionism has spread into new fields and gained new vigor in old ones.

"Due to the organizing work of the American Federation of Labor new international unions were formed in the mass production industries and gratifying progress has been made in the aluminum, the cement, the flour, feed and cereal, the distillery and the gasoline distributing industries.

"This partial list is only suggestive of the general spread of unionism. There is no industry or calling that has not felt the touch of hope in the right to organize.

Wider Distribution of National Income.

"However, before industry can reach capacity production every one who wishes to work must have employment, and every family must have an income of at least $3,600. These things are not impossible if we work together advancing each other's welfare and with special favors to none.

"Labor looks forward to the new year with a renewed feeling of hope, inspiration and courage. It plans to drive definitely and unceasingly for the translation of the expressed wish of the people into effective action. No one can mistake or misinterpret the decision of the people of the United States in favor of social security legislation, the advancement of human welfare, and the wider distribution of the national income.

Goal of Organized Labor.

"The year 1937, therefore, will record in a very large measure the realization of the purpose of labor to secure higher wages, higher standards of life and living, shorter hours as a remedy for unemployment, an accelerated drive for the abolition of child labor, and the enactment of social justice legislation both by the congress of the United States and by the state legislatures.

"Labor hails the new year as one of promise, rich with possibilities, and filled with enlarged opportunities for social progress and the realization of human betterment. It is the determination and unflinching purpose of labor to play its part and to put forth continuous efforts toward the realization of a better day and a better life for the masses of the people throughout the entire country."

Baltimore Taxi Drivers Gain in Armistice Terms

Baltimore, Md.—Showing a militant fight and effective organization, taxicab drivers here whose strike threw at least 350 cabs out of service, have agreed to an armistice until midnight Jan. 2, on condition that all men be reinstated, including five who were discharged Dec. 11, for alleged union activities, and which act brought the strike to a head the following day.

After conferences at Gov. Nice's office, in Annapolis, the men agreed to handle the holiday crowds, with the understanding also that, in the meantime, negotiations for a settlement would be continued. Wiring [illegible] statement of the five discharged men and negotiation with the union is regarded as an important victory, as the controversy came to revolve around recognition of the union. A complete victory is anticipated as the men are reported as prepared to press their demands to a satisfactory conclusion.

La Salle Gas Station Union Doubles Strength

La Salle, Ill.—The local union of Gasoline Station Operators and Attendants, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has succeeded in doubling its membership, with the prospect of more than doubling the present number of members within the near future.

The local campaign, which has brought in a large number of these workers to the union fold, is being extended to nearby Ottawa, Streator and Mendota. An increasing interest is noted and a greater appreciation of the value of union membership. Labor officials are therefore of the opinion that 100 per cent organization of these workers can be eventually effected in this community.

Hutcheson Renominated To Head Carpenters' Union

Lakeland, La.—William L. Hutcheson, of Indianapolis, won renomination for the presidency of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners at the brotherhood's conveniton here after the names of two other candidates were withdrawn. Although the organization votes on convention-nominated candidates at a referendum in January, unanimous nomination is equivalent to election.

The other two candidates were J. M. Williams, of Washington, D. C., president of the American Federation of Labor Building Trades Department, and George H. Lane, of Holyoke, Mass. Their nominations were withdrawn.

Other officers renominated without opposition were Secretary Frank Duffy, First Vice-President George H. Lakey, Second Vice-President S. P. Meadows and Treasurer Thomas Neale.

BOTH HOUSES SURE TO HELP WORKERS

Progressives in Complete Control As Solons Meet

Sentiment Overwhelming in Both House and Senate.

Workers and Farmers to Benefit from Complete Rout of Reactionaries in National Lawmaking Body.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP
ILNS Staff Writer.

Washington.—What kind of a gathering of legislators will the present congress prove to be? Party names do not tell the answer. There are cases in which they mean absolutely nothing, even now; when one party is headed by a great liberal, President Roosevelt, and the other party has fallen into the hands of reactionaries. Even so, there are reactionaries on the democratic side, and liberals on the republican.

The real question is will the congress just meeting be liberal or conservative, progressive or reactionary, pro-labor or anti-labor? That is a question of keenest interest to the millions of workers who supported President Roosevelt, and in supporting him, rolled up an enormous democratic majority in congress.

Solid Grounds for Prophecy.

There once was a weather prophet who had a son, and the son said he could tell the weather just as well as his dad if you only gave him a little more time. The old man knew the boy's weather in the morning and the boy knew it at night. Many political prophecies rank with the son's weather predictions; but in this case, there are solid grounds for predicting several things. ILNS has made a survey to find out what kind of a congress we are to have. Here are the results so far:

Of the 96 members of the senate, who will sit in the Seventy-fifth congress sat in the Seventy-fourth congress the last one. Of the 435 members of the house, 342 who will sit in this congress sat in the last congress. In other words, seven-eighths of the senators and more than three-fourths of the representatives whose records which can be examined, from which their future course may be predicted with some degree of certainty.

Present Holdover Is Big.

Very few people, even those deeply and intelligently interested in public affairs, realize the size of the present holdover. Only one-third of the senators is elected every two years—except in cases to fill vacancies caused by death or resignation; so a strong contingent of experienced men in the senate is not surprising. It is doubtful, however, if the figure of 84 holdovers of re-elected men has often been reached.

In the house, the strength of the re-elected men is astonishing, for all members of the house come up for election every two years. Eleven states—Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, West Virginia and Wisconsin, have no change in their congressional delegation. None of these states have very large delegations; for Indiana has 12 congressmen. North Carolina 11, and Wisconsin 10.

Liberals Still Sitting.

The strength of this element coming down from the Seventy-fourth congress makes the writer confident that the boxed summary with this article is substantially correct. The Seventy-fourth congress passed, usually by large majorities, some of the most liberal legislation ever enacted in any country; and seven-eighths of the same men in the senate and more than three-fourths of the same men in the house are sitting there today.

In the first session of the Seventy-fourth congress, the work relief bill passed the senate by a vote of 58 to 16; and the house by 329 to 78.

The Wagner labor relations act passed the senate 63 to 12; and the house passed it without a roll call.

Other Votes Tell Same Story.

The tax-the-wealth revenue bill passed the senate 57 to 22, and the house 282 to 96.

The Guffey-Snyder coal bill passed the senate 45 to 37; and the house 194 to 168.

Fewer real test measures came up in the second session than in the first; but there are two which tell the tale and which came to roll call.

The soil conservation bill, a substitute for the agricultural adjustment act knocked out by the supreme court, passed the senate by 56 to 20 and the house by 267 to 97.

The reactionary proposal to return relief to the states was smashed in the senate by 57 to 14 and in the house by 287 to 90.

So much for the general picture. Liberal, progressive, pro-labor measures got a majority in the Seventy-fourth congress, often an overwhelming majority; and most of the men who did that once are there to do it again. Details will be given in later articles.

Death Angel Calls Pressmen's Chief After Long Illness

W. H. Satterfield Succumbs to Grim Reaper — Brothers Express Grief.

Walter Henry Satterfield, president of Chattanooga Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union No. 165, died Saturday at his home, 2113 Kirby Avenue, following several months' illness.

He is survived by his wife and two sons, Thomas and Fred Satterfield, and by three brothers.

Funeral services were held from the Page-Hancock Funeral Home Sunday afternoon, with the Rev. C. F. Clark and the Rev. W. S. Keese officiating.

Mr. Satterfield had served as an officer in the Pressmen's Union for the past two years, and the entire labor movement joins with the Pressmen in the loss of their brother and friend.

Among other local unions to officially express the grief of their members at the passing of Mr. Satterfield, the Printing Pressmen adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, in the passing of Walter H. Satterfield, the Chattanooga Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, Local 165, has lost a faithful member and a conscientious officer whose good judgment and wise council proved valuable to the work of our organization and gained for him the respect and esteem of all with whom he was brought into contact; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, on behalf of the membership of the Chattanooga Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, Local 165, extend to his wife and family our deepest sympathy in their bereavement; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this organization, a copy be furnished to The Labor World for publication and that a copy be sent to Mr. Satterfield's family as a testimonial of our sincere appreciation of his usefulness to our organization.

Machinists Stage First of Series Of Entertainments

Label League Co-operates With Local in Enjoyable Affair.

Machinists' Local 56 enjoyed a "get-together" with its members and friends last Friday night at the Labor Hall. The Label League co-operated with the Machinists and a splendid program was enjoyed. Betty Jane Underwood gave a song and dance number. Miss Ina Green, president of the Label League, explained something of the activities of that group and invited the Machinists and their families to work with the League. Erskine Mabee, secretary of the Central Labor Union, addressed the meeting. A string band entertained the visitors and dancing was enjoyed, after which delicious and bountiful refreshments were served.

Mr. J. H. Murdock, president of Local 56, had charge of arrangements and this union plans to make this the first of a series of such entertainments. All unionists are welcome and the members of the Machinists and Metal Trades are particularly invited, local officers stated.

Veteran Weather Man Succumbs

Chattanooga trades unionists feel a personal loss in the passing this week of L. M. Pindell, 80, for forty-nine years weather forecaster in Chattanooga, prior to his retirement in 1930.

Mr. Pindell was the father of Mrs. Ona G. Elder, whose husband is a veteran member of Chattanooga Typographical union, and numbered his friends in organized labor by the hundreds.

The Labor World speaks for the entire local movement in expressing sincere condolences to the bereaved relatives of Mr. Pindell.

MOLDERS WIN HIGHEST WAGE IN CONFERENCE

Local Union Members Receive Good News.

NATIONAL MEET CHEERS WORKERS

Mowery Declares Prospects for Trade Brightest in Its History.

Members of Local 53, International Molders' Union, are jubilant this week at the news from their headquarters that an agreement has been reached between the international and the Manufacturers' Defense and Protective Association, which gives to these workers a wage rate for 1937 within 5 per cent. of the highest ever paid to union members in the United States.

Ratio of apprentices was also cut, which is regarded as a definite gain by the local unionists.

R. L. Mowery, secretary of Local 53, explained the situation in a letter to the Labor World Thursday, as follows:

"The Manufacturers' Defense and Protective Association, national stove and heater employers' organization of manufacturing, holds a conference each year in December—that is if either side wishes a conference—the Manufacturers' Defense and Protective Association or the International Molders Union of North America can call for a conference. In the year 1936, the molders called a conference. This wage agreement holds until the next conference is held—be it one or more years.

"The International Molders Union was granted a 10.7 per cent. increase for the year 1937, this making $1.20 on board price. In other words, if a molder puts up $4.00 board, he receives $8.80 for it. This is within 5 per cent. of the highest wages ever paid molders. In the year 1920, the molders received $1.25 on board price. The board price is supposed to be stationary and the per cent. varys.

"This agreement is compulsory to the Manufacturers' Defense and Protective Association only, but it governs the open, or "rat," shops. In fact, all molders. When the union shops increase the hour—union shops receives a raise; when we receive a cut, they likewise. The apprentice ratio has been one apprentice to a shop and one to every five molders. This also has been changed to one to every eight molders.

"We think we got a fair agreement for 1937 and the foundry business looks better than in the past several years.

"If only the non-union molders could see and wake up to the fact that organization is the only way they can receive their rights, we really could 'travel'."

OFFICIAL SOLD ON HUGE JOB AGENCY

Nashville Typos Name Cuthbert Chief Executive

No, Not T. R., But Robert, Father of Our Own Editor of Labor World.

By R. M. COOKE

If the opinion of a large number of Chattanooga printers is worth anything, it may be stated that Nashville Typographical union is composed of a most intelligent group of workers.

Immediate reason for the above observation is the news this week that Robert Cuthbert, father of our own "Tommy," was unanimously named president of the Capital City local at the annual election held last Sunday.

Supporting the estimate of local friends, the Tennessean this week printed a splendid editorial reference to the old-timer, and commended the judgment of the Nashville membership.

Mr. Cuthbert is a veteran worker in the Typographical union, as well as the Tennessee Federation of Labor, and his advice and counsel have long been sought and valued by trades unionists of all crafts, throughout the state.

According to the Tennessean, Mr. Cuthbert's election marked the first time in twenty years when the Nashville Typos have named a chief without opposition.

Chattanooga friends—and they are legion—who have known and loved Brother Cuthbert for his rugged honesty and sincerity, and who have profited by his splendid and unfailing judgment in labor matters, rejoice with him in the signal honor which has been conferred upon him, and congratulated Nashville union on their good judgment in selecting a gentleman of his caliber as their executive head.

Indicative of the esteem in which Brother Cuthbert is held in his home city, the following editorial reference to his election was printed as a "lead" by the Nashville Tennessean on Monday evening:

"Cuthbert Leads the Typos"

"The election of Robert Cuthbert as president of Nashville Typographical Union No. 20 is notable because it marks the first time in two decades that there has been no division of opinion among members of this organization on the choice of a leader. To have been honored by unanimous voice is the best indication of the esteem in which Mr. Cuthbert is held by his fellow-workers in the printing trade, and of confidence in his ability and judgment.

"The new president has long been a leader in his calling and is recognized as a man of wide information and exceptional ability. The Typographical Union has every right to look forward to an era of progress and betterment under his administration."

Junior—What's an expert, daddy?

Daddy—It's a fellow who gets a big salary for telling other people how to do things he can't do himself.

New Employment Service Becomes Familiar Unit

Commissioner of Labor Says Job Is to Bring Best Men and Jobs Together.

Gives Outline of This Free Service and Tells How It Operates —200,000 Already Benefited Through Contacts.

"The free public employment services of the state and nation will become as familiar units of government as our postal system," said Commissioner of Labor W. M. Jacobs today, "and will be taken for granted. Their fundamental work is to bring the best men and the right jobs together.

"A competent staff of highly trained workers of specialized ability selected under the merit system, on an absolutely non-partisan basis, is now engaged in this fundamental work in Tennessee. The passage of the Unemployment Compensation law, which will be administered through the Department of Labor, will necessitate an even larger staff of trained employees who will also be selected by the merit system."

The workings of the now active and successful Public Employment offices of Tennessee were fully explained by Mr. Jacobs as follows:

"No individual can be expected to be a good citizen or live a normal, well-rounded life, without a satisfactory work situation. Leaving out of the picture the obvious chaos which results from absolute unemployment, there is no other condition which results in greater human and economic wastage than one which forces people to spend their lives at work which is markedly unsuitable to their personality and ability. And yet, it took a major depression to awaken public consciousness to such an extent that it has now become a joint state and federal responsibility, not only to find jobs for workers and workers for jobs, but to find the right man for and job and the right job for the man.

The passage of the Wagner-Payson Act on June 6, 1933, inaugurated a permanent Federal-State system of Public Employment offices, under the supervision of the United States Department of Labor. The Tennessee State Employment Service became affiliated with the United States Employment Service on July 1, 1935. Such affiliation means that the plan and standards of operation set up and recommended under the Department of Labor by the Director of the State Employment Service, and the Chairman of the State Advisory Council, meets the requirements of the United States Employment Service and that with certain maximum limits, state funds appropriated for the Tennessee State Employment Service are matched by equal federal appropriations. In addition to the state offices, which are located in Memphis, Chattanooga, and Nashville, the National Re-employment Service (a federal emergency organization) has district offices in Johnson City, Knoxville, Cookeville, Tullahoma, Columbia, Paris, Union City and Jackson. This latter organization is supported in its entirety by federal funds. In addition to maintaining the above mentioned offices, it provides additional personnel for the state offices, and supervisory personnel to assist in co-ordinating the work of the two public employment agencies.

"During the latter part of 1935 and early 1936 these public employment offices in Tennessee were forced to

What Next!

Concrete houses cast as a single block (monolithic), developed after research by the Portland Cement association, are expected by the association to increase the use of cement. Forms are set up with electrical conduit, plumbing, air-conditioning and heating pipes and ducts in place. A wide range of finish is possible and the cost is reduced, backers of this method say. Incidentally, it tends to take the jobs of building trades workmen, a fact apparently ignored by the cement industry.

TVA Salaried Workers Get Increase in Pay

New Ratings Bring Substantial Raises to 4,500 Employes—Higher Hourly Rates for 15,000 Others Coming.

Knoxville.—On Jan. 1, 4,500 salaried employes of the TVA went on a new rating that brought substantial increases of pay to at least 1,000 of them. The scale of increase is as follows:

Up to $1,260 a year, $150 increase; $1,260 to $1,800, $180 increase; $1,800 to $3,500, $300 increase; $3,500 to $5,600, $400 increase; above $5,600, $500 increase.

Salaried employes hereafter will be given one of three ratings—unsatisfactory, satisfactory, and very satisfactory. Unsatisfactory means transfer or dismissal; satisfactory get the standard pay rise given; very satisfactory gets twice the standard raise.

A new and higher wage scale has been agreed to by TVA officials and representatives of the workers for the 15,000 employes paid hourly rates. It has not yet been acted on by the directors.

BROOKLYN BUS DRIVERS STRIKE

New York.—Union employes of the Brooklyn Bus corporation struck on Dec. 29, partially crippling service on twenty-one lines in Brooklyn and four between Brooklyn and Queens.

Members of Local 1099 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America authorized the strike.

The union demanded reinstatement of thirty men dismissed for union activity and restoration of a former wage scale. Under the old scale, union officials said, drivers started at 50 cents an hour and worked up to 69 cents in five years. Under the present scale they start at 40 and advance to 70 in eleven years.

The union also asked readjustment of running time, contending that some schedules made it necessary to drive at dangerous speeds.

METAL MINERS ACCEPT WAGE INCREASE OFFER

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—An increase of 25 cents a day in wages has just been won by 800 metal miners in the Bingham and Lark districts, southwest of here. This advance followed other victories by 1,200 miners in the Park district, east of Salt Lake City, and another 1,000 men in the Tintic and Tooele districts.

Here's All the Dope On Company Union

By KATHERINE POLLAK

"When I am dealing with a company union situation," declares the president of an important international union, "I am careful not to antagonize the workers who belong to the company union. I tell them that some of our best union men used to be company unionists—and it's true. Our job is to show the workers that the bona fide union can do more for them." Whether the union boycotts the company union or is active within it, the organizers must know how it works and why some people believe in it.

Company unions come in "57 varieties." Some are obvious fakes, and based largely on intimidation and fear. But others have no clear company control, and have succeeded in blinding the employes to the need for genuine unions.

Here are some of the main arguments that have won workers to the company union, with answers that unionists have found effective.

"One Big Happy Family" Line.

"We are one big, happy family," is a favorite line of the management. "The personnel manager's door is always open to you. The interests of the employes and the company are really the same. You men don't need a national organization with outsiders coming in here to tell us how to run things."

The union can ask various questions. "One happy family," the organizer says, "but the president's office is in New York. And wasn't he the one who said your recent demand for a wage increase could not be met? What about the board of directors, who decide on wage policy and such matters? Are union organizers anything like as much 'outsiders' as these men? If everything is so open and aboveboard, why doesn't the company let you see its books? Why does it hire spies to report on your meeting?"

The union shows how the threat of union organization has brought gains. It points to cases like the Dodge plant in Detroit, where the United Auto Workers local recently forced restoration of seniority rights for hundreds of men, when the works council had failed.

"Company Is Doing All It Can."

"We cannot afford higher wages," says management. "We must meet competition from those paying less." The employe representatives usually have no comeback. But the union may be able to prove that other plants are already paying more, and that the company's earnings do permit higher wages.

But suppose the management's facts are correct; it is not making much money, its wages are higher than those of its competitors. "All the more need for a national union!" says the organizer. "Then you can help the workers employed in the other plants to improve their conditions; and you can, along with other plants to improve their conditions; and you can, along with other nation-wide labor unions, get laws that will put a bottom under wages, that will limit hours of work, and that will in various ways raise the whole level of the industry.

"The things that are keeping you from getting decent conditions lie far beyond the fence of this plant. They must be handled outside that fence through a powerful, nation-wide labor movement.

"Why Pay Dues?"

costs little or nothing—why pay union dues?" The Steel Workers' organizing committee answered this point very cleverly. They showed that laborers in steel mills received $35 less a month than laborers in the unionized coal mine industry—and that therefore they were really paying $35 a month in dues indirectly to the company union.

The United Electrical and Radio Workers say: "Of course a nation-wide organization needs money for organizing, for gathering facts, issuing a paper, getting favorable laws. But the members who support it also control it. Why does the company spend money on the employe representation plan? If a company union can do a few things, just think how much more a real union can accomplish!"

"Unionism means strikes," says the management. Many wage-earners believe this. They picture a walkout as bringing disorder and as an altogether disagreeable affair. A union explains: "A strike is only a last resort. But it is a very powerful weapon; and the fact that a union has a treasury and can strike brings gains without a walkout far out of reach of the employe representation plan."

"A strike," continues the organizer, "is carried on peacefully. "The disorder you have heard about is often falsely reported in the papers and is caused by violent methods of the employers. A walkout is a time-honored tactic. Moses led one of the earliest ones against the Egyptians—and remember the Boston Tea Party! Unions are very respectable. Leading radio and movie performers, such as Bing Crosby, are active unionists."

The boss in alarm cries, "The union is just a racket." But this argument, too, falls flat in the light of the union's record.

Because of such telling answers, the list of company unions replaced by genuine labor organizations is constantly growing—as witness steel, for example.

MISSISSIPPI ATTRACTS NON-UNION SHOPS

New Orleans.—Many clothing factories are being located in Mississippi, owing to the lack of union organization. In New Orleans, which is classed as the largest manufacturing center of men's summer wash suits, little effort has been made up to the present to organize the shops, which employ girls at practically starvation wages in competition with northern factories which pay the union scale of wages.

Union Labor Will Build Big Gulfport Hospital

Gulfport, Miss.—The new Gulfport hospital, work on which has just started in East Gulfport, is to be a 100 per cent union job—a situation not altogether common for construction work in Mississippi, but assuredly becoming more so, through the constant efforts of the state's growing unions.

The Algernon Blair Construction Company, of Birmingham, has the contract for the new hospital and the declaration of the management for a "closed shop" job resulted from conferences held with a special committee representing interested crafts that was recently appointed by the Central Labor union.

Not only all mechanics, but all laborers as well on this job must be union men. Due to effective co-operation by local unions, through the progressive central body here, this territory now boasts that union jobs, especially if they are important ones, are now the rule rather than the exception.

The new hospital here is to be of brick, concrete, tile and stucco. It will be 204 feet long, 158 feet wide and two stories high. The cost will be about $300,000. With only union men employed on the job, the best possible workmanship is now assured.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

Board Scores Sales Tax

The Federation Board of Directors expressed its unqualified opposition to the rumored effort to fasten a general sales tax on the people of Tennessee last Monday night in the following resolution:

Whereas, W. A. Bass, secretary of the Tennessee Education Association, has publicly declared for a general sales tax for Tennessee to support the educational program of the state, and

Whereas, the schools of Tennessee are badly in need of financial support to make possible minimum educational standards, and

Whereas, this organization has supported and is supporting the eight-point program of the T. E. A. and has asked for and received the support of the Chattanooga Central Labor Union and the Tennessee Federation of Labor for said program, and

Whereas, we are opposed to supporting a social agency with the proceeds of an anti-social tax and believe that education and teachers will suffer in the final analysis from such a tax; therefore, be it

Resolved by the board of directors of the Chattanooga Hamilton County Teachers' Federation in regular meeting, Jan. 4, 1937, that we reaffirm our opposition to a general sales tax under any name and our support of graduated income and inheritance taxes as the major forms of taxation, and be it further

Resolved that we hereby instruct all members of this organization to use their votes and influence against a general sales tax and in favor of necessary constitutional reforms to make possible graduated income and inheritance taxes for Tennessee, and be it further

Resolved that we send copies of these resolutions to the members of the General Assembly of Tennessee from Hamilton County.

From Executive Council, A. F. of T.

National Vice President Nancy Smith gave a stimulating report before the board of directors on the meeting of the Executive Council of the A. F. of T., held in Chicago last week. Some of the highlights follow:

An organization fund of $500 was alloted to this region. Contracts are being made and an organizational drive is in the offing.

Much discussion is taking place with a view to defining the term "teacher" as used by the A. F. of T. At the present time clerks, librarians and stenographers in educational institutions and Y. W. C. A. secretaries engaged in industrial education are not barred from membership by the national constitution.

The Executive Council is placing an official representative on the editorial board of the American Teacher in order to assure that the official policy of the A. F. of T. will be scrupulously adhered to.

The A. F. of L. Convention passed resolutions backing tenure and academic freedom introduced by the teachers. The convention also backed the fight to reinstate President Jerome Davis.

There was a jurisdictional dispute over the notorious District of Columbia "Red Rider." Several committees vied for the right to take punches at this piece of vicious legislation.

A remedy is being planned for the difficulty of distant locals sending delegates to the national convention. The next convention will be held at Madison, Wisconsin.

BRONSON CUTTING MEMORIAL.

Washington.—A memorial to the late Bronson Cutting, progressive republican senator from New Mexico, in the form of a series of lectures on important public issues is announced by Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, the senator's mother. The lectures will be known as the Bronson Cutting memorial lectures and will be given annually in Washington, beginning some time this winter.

LABOR BODY INITIATES PLAN OF LOW COST HOSPITAL CARE

Moncton, N. B. — The Moncton Trades and Labor Council took the initiative in a successful movement to establish a hospitalization plan for the people of the Moncton zone. This movement will give the families with small incomes an opportunity for hospital care, treatment and medicines, on payment of a small monthly fee of from $2 upward.

The Trades and Labor Council has been leading the campaign for the hospitalization for the last three years. During the past year, the council secured the assistance of several public and welfare service organizations in Moncton, and committees were chosen to complete the groundwork for the plan, as it will become effective in the two public hospitals of Moncton.

Indications are that the hospitalization will be available during January. It will be a big boon to families of the Moncton zone, and particularly to those with the annual comes of less than $1,000. Moncton is an industrial center, the chief industry being railroad repair shops.

BREWERY WORKERS WIN PAY INCREASE

St. Louis, Mo.—Brewery workers in the St. Louis area have been given an 11 per cent increase in wages, the increase being retroactive to Nov. 1.

The wage grant was announced by Jules R. Field, secretary and counsel of the Missouri Brewers' association following negotiations with ten brewing firms.

Teachers Local 246 Has Good Success In Credit Union

E. Harris, President, Tells of Growth in Thirteen Months—Announces Important Meeting.

That credit unions are of great advantage to working people in temporary financial straits has been further demonstrated during the past thirteen months through the operation of the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Federal Credit union.

There are thirty-three state and federal credit unions in Chattanooga today, and by this plan of self-help many people have been successful in escaping the clutches of the 42 per cent loan sharks.

Citing the plan of the teachers' union, Mr. Ernest E. Harris, president of the credit group, announces the annual meeting of stockholders, to be held in Dickinson Junior High school, at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 23. Mr. Harris says:

"There is a movement in the United States of considerable interest, not only locally, but throughout the country as a whole. I refer to the co-operative movement. One feature of said movement is the growth of credit unions. Many will be surprised to learn (as I was) of the magnitude of this growth. Most, if not all states, have laws under which credit unions may operate within their boundaries. Tennessee is one of such states. Furthermore, the Seventy-third congress of the United States enacted a federal law, known as the 'Federal Credit Union Act,' providing for the organization and operation of federal credit unions under federal charters. Said act was approved June 26, 1934. Credit unions operating in compliance with this act are incorporated under federal laws and are strictly supervised, regulated and controlled. One such federal credit union is the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Federal Credit union. Before permission is granted to operate it must be shown that there is a common bond of interest present among the field of prospective members.

"There are thirty-three state and federal credit unions operating in Chattanooga. About seventeen of these are federal credit unions, the rest, of course, are state organizations. In the United States as of Nov. 13, 1936, there were 5,431 credit unions. In the month of October, 1936, 149 federal credit unions were organized within the United States and its possessions.

"Some may ask, 'What is the purpose of such organizations?' The answer is simple. Two motives predominate: First, to provide for members a source of credit for provident and productive purposes at reasonable rates of interest, and second, to encourage thrift habits among the members. A reasonable return on the investment is sought, but no attempt is made to unduly enrich investors at the expense of the unfortunates.

"Speaking now more specifically about the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Credit union, may I say that said organization has been in operation a little more than thirteen months; it has grown slowly but steadily from a small group of a dozen or so to more than 125 members and has bright prospects for the year 1937. During this period of operation expenses of organization and operation have been practically taken care of and a reserve fund set up to take care of possible losses. To date not one cent has been lost. The officers and members of said organization invite and urge upon all teachers of the city and county school systems consideration of becoming a member of this local organization established and maintained for your benefit. Invest surplus funds with us and use this source for supplying your credit needs.

"The annual meeting of the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' Federal Credit union will be held at Dickinson Junior High school on the fourth Saturday in January (Jan. 23, 1937), at 10 a.m. All stockholders (present members) are urged to be present as important business will be considered at that time. Furthermore all teachers of the city and county public school system are cordially invited to be present."

Court Orders Return of Companies Fleeing to Escape Union Contract

Dress Companies Directed to Move Back to New York, Reinstate Discharged Workers and Pay Them Damages for Loss of Wagees.

New York City.—Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook has ordered two affiliated dress concerns to move their machinery back to New York, take back the union workers they fired, and pay damages which these workers suffered by loss of wages. And, sweeping as was the decision in itself, it became more so because Justice McCook laid down the rule that contracts like the one between the union and the dress concerns must be enforced to fill up the gap left by the passing of NRA.

The contract was made in February, 1936, between the Popular Priced Dress Manufacturers' Group, Inc., on the one side, and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union and the joint board of the Dress and Waistmakers of New York. The two affiliated firms were members of the employers' group, and were bound by the contract. One part of the contract pledged the employers not to move their shops to any place which can be reached only by paying more than a 5-cent fare.

"Strong Measures" Needed.

"The logic of the situation calls for application of strong measures," Justice McCook said. "With the end of NRA appeared a new need for such contracts as the one in suit.

"Without a remedy as wide as that need, unscrupulous employers of labor will be tempted to play one community off against another, unlawfully depriving New York City of her business and her inhabitants of their livelihood."

Justice McCook attributed the "unfortunate result" to a "head-on collision between a union conscious of power and an employer with an unenviable business record, an aggressive personality and a determination to make a success this time at all costs."

Firms Sought Cheap Labor.

"It is clear that the intention was at one stroke to get rid of the obligations of the contract and to obtain cheaper non-union labor in a more indulgent community."

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, and Julius Hochman, head of the joint board, were jubilant at the decision.

"The decision makes clear," said Hockman, "that no employer may evade his responsibilities by taking the jobs out from under his workers by seeking sub-standard conditions in rural areas hitherto untouched by industry."

MAYOR AGAIN UNION HEAD.

Glace Bay, N. S.—Daniel William Morrison, mayor of Glace Bay, was re-elected president of District 26, of the United Mine Workers, in recent district annual elections. Mr. Morrison had a plurality of 1,432 over William Beaton, of Dominion, N. S.

Dilatory Tactics Of Bosses Bring Strike of 7,000

"Sit-Down" in Fisher Body Plant Follows Management's Postponement of Conference With Union Grievance Committee.

Cleveland.—The management's cool postponement of a conference with a union grievance committee brought for answer a sit-down strike in the Fisher body plant in this city which soon affected 7,000 employes.

The committee of the United Automobile Workers of America was to discuss a number of things with the management; reduction of hours, double time for holiday and Sunday work, and a leveling up of pay to the best rates prevailing on any assembly lines in the factory, three of which are said to be conciderably higher paid than the rest. Also, they wanted to urge the rehiring of 25 men laid off a week ago, and the proposed layoff of 60 more.

The union men were prepared to shorten their own hours to get these discharged men back on the payroll.

The management agreed to meet the men at 11 a.m. on Dec. 28. The hour had arrived when word went round that the management had postponed the interview till 2:30 p.m. Workers in the quarter panel department stopped work.

The movement spread to the machine tool and die makers department, and the whole plant stopped work.

UNION LABEL PRETZELS.

Organized workers and their friends can now buy pretzels bearing the union label. The Pretzel Workers' Local union, No. 168, affiliated with the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union of America, 29 Reed street, Reading, Pa., recently made this important announcement.

Firms that are now under contract with the Pretzel Workers' union are the Pennsylvania Pretzel company, 228 Court street, Reading, Pa.; R. R. Pretzel company, 117 South Third street, Reading, Pa.; Heller's Pretzels, 836 North Ninth street, Reading, Pa., and Sturgis Bros, Inc., 946 Hill avenue, Wyomissing, Pa.

The Pretzel Workers' union displays an unique label, shaped like a pretzel, designating that its product is union-made.

MORE ABOUT JOB AGENCY

devote a considerable part of their time to the emergency job of helping put more than 50,000 individuals to work on federal works projects. Although this is still one function of the public employment offices, their fundamental concern is to match jobs and men in private industry. During the first ten days of December, 1936, nine hundred and thirty-five individuals found private employment through public employment offices in Tennessee. Of this number only 107 had been certified for work relief.

"How does this State-Federal Employment Service go about this business of matching jobs and men?

"To begin with, every applicant for employment or for a job better suited to his personality and ability, is interviewed by a trained staff member who records this individual's complete work history, together with other pertinent information. He is then classified and his registration card filed according to the work he can best do.

"In addition to this interview, in many cases actual tests are given to find out more about the person's qualifications; for example, stenographic tests. Questions also are asked which the applicant cannot answer correctly unless his experience has been such as he has indicated to the interviewer.

"The Division of Standards and Research of the United States Employment Service secures exact information about occupations and the qualifications required by workers for the successful performance of their jobs. This information is passed on to the employment office personnel by means of manuals and a continuous training program, and enables Public Employment offices to select the best qualified applicant for each job and to accurately evaluate each applicant's ability.

"At the present time there are approximately 200,000 individuals seeking jobs, or better jobs, through the offices of the National Re-employment Service in Tennessee and the Tennessee State Employment Service offices. Up to and including Dec. 24, 1936, 11,203 individuals were placed in private employment, representing almost 400 different types of occupations.

"In many lines of work there are jobs open for qualified people whom the employment offices cannot supply, not primarily because such people are not available, but because they have not made application with Public Employment offices. Many of these individuals labor under the delusion that Public Employment offices are either a relief agency, or else one admits a weakness when applying for a job with such an agency. Such is far from the truth. The state and federal government has simply recognized the fact that if we are to prosper as a nation it is absolutely necessary that individuals not only be able to secure a livelihood, but that they be permitted to do it in a work situation for which they are best suited. The Federal government believes this function important enough from an economic and social efficiency standpoint to set up, free of charge, such a service for both employers and employees.

"One example of a request from employers for workers which cannot be supplied due to the above mentioned situation is shown by an order recently received by an office of the Tennessee State Employment Service for a director of a School of Technology, salary $4,000 to $5,000 a year. No such individual is available in our files. Fortunately, through a clearance system with other offices and states in the Federal-State system, it is possible to draw upon qualified applicants over the entire country. We would prefer, however, to secure this man locally, for I am sure he is here if we could but find him, and he would be available now if job seekers and employers were aware of the complete nature, intent and extent of our service.

"Certain members of our staff devote their full time to contacting employers and explaining our service. They are called field contact men. They not only receive requests from employers to be referred to certain types of individuals for jobs which are now open, but they also request the employer to avail himself of this service by sending applicants for jobs who apply direct to his place of business to the employment service to register. This procedure saves the employer time and money, for he is saved the expense of interviewing these candidates for jobs by letting the trained staff of the employment service do it free. He can then call on the service to make preliminary selections from the thousands in their files, when he has a job open, and refer to him several of the best qualified; and he can then make the final decision as effectively as if he had himself used his time and money interviewing hundreds of job seekers.

"And then, again, some of the applicants whom he refers to the employment service will have secured jobs elsewhere and thus have increased the public buying capacity for this and all other employers' particular products.

"The field contact man, not only knows exactly what types of people are available for referral to jobs, in the files of the Public Employment Office, but he also knows exactly what each individual requested by an employer will be required to do. He can then send the best qualified man for the job. He is able to do this through information received from the employer by visiting his store or factory and by referring to the manual in the local office, which accurately describes the job in question, and then comparing these requirements with the qualifications of the applicants available in the employment service files.

"Obviously, increased use of the facilities of this State-Federal system of public employment offices on the part of individuals seeking jobs or better jobs, and by employers seeking the best qualified individuals for jobs, will result in a more prosperous and stable economic order.

"The usefulness of such a system extends beyond actual job placement. It is also a function of the Federal-State Employment Service to analyze industrial conditions in order to appraise possibilities of employment in terms of current and prospective demands for workers and thus give valuable information to: employers on the labor market; prospective employees in regard to future possibilities for employment; and to state and federal government, relative to future probably needs for federal and state-sponsored work relief projects.

"In addition to rating the efficiency of applicants, the testing division provides a basis for giving younger applicants for jobs sound vocational guidance and advice relative to the line of work they should strive to qualify themselves for. Furthermore, materials furnished by the Division of Standards and Research are used for this and other purposes, in many technical schools and universities—and by personnel managers in industry.

"We are, as a nation, just emerging from a blind, wasteful era of trial and error in the fundamental life process of securing for each individual his most appropriate life's work—into an era of social efficiency and security through intelligent planning and functioning of this permanent Federal-State Employment System, and the related phases of the General Social Security Program.

"To what future social Utopia—free from many of the ills we now try to remedy with charity—we may yet attain, will depend in large measure upon the public interest and support which these agencies receive. It seems unthinkable that we will persist in the old trial and error method of "the rat in the maize," when the foundation for an intelligent, planned solution is ours absolutely free, except for the effort of making use of it.

"The business of the government is the welfare of the people; and, conversely, the welfare of the people is the business of the government. There can be no welfare without prosperity, not only material prosperity, but also social prosperity. Neither material nor social prosperity is possible in times of widespread unemployment and occupational maladjustment. Thus employment becomes a major interest of government. Under the department of labor, through provisions of the Wagner-Peyser Act, it has become, and will increasingly grow to be, a major activity of government.

"The free Public Employment Services of the state and nation seem destined to become a vital unit of government as fundamental and permanent as the postal system and other such divisions of government of similar character, which now are taken for granted."

UNION HEAD PREDICTS MORE AUTO STRIKES SOON

Kansas City.—Homer Martin, of Detroit, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, said here that he understood additional strikes in the automotive industry "are to occur soon."

Martin, here to confer with strikers at the Fisher body division of the Chevrolet plant, declined to say where he expected additional strikes, but spoke of a "general shutdown" unless union demands are met by the General Motors company.

"We desire a uniform policy regarding unions from General Motors company," Martin said. "Every peaceable effort will be made to obtain such a policy before there a general shutdown.

"We have asked for a conference with the General Motors management to discuss union recognition, speed-up, seniority rights, methods of pay and other working conditions."

Substitution of day-rate pay for piece work is a union objective, he said.

Women from the "teen age" to the change of life have found Cardui genuinely helpful for the relief of functional monthly pains due to lack of just the right strength from the food they eat. Mrs. Orth Hayes, of Essex, Mo., writes: "I used Cardui when a girl for cramps and found it very beneficial. I have recently taken Cardui during the change of life. I was very nervous, had headaches and back pains and was in a generally run-down condition. Cardui has helped me greatly."
Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit you, consult a physician.

LABOR BOARD MAKES PLAIN CONSPIRACY TO NULLIFY WAGNER ACT

tudied Attempt on National Scale to Retain Autocratic Power for "Economic Royalists" and to Discredit Labor Relations Law in Eyes of Courts and Public Revealed in NLRB Annual Report.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The first annual re- rt of the national labor relations ard is a document which ought to reprinted and put in the hands of y American citizen. Certainly anized labor should do its utmost get some parts of that report into ry local in the land.

Speaking from the record, backing each statement with official evi- ce, the NLRB shows the conspir- of "economic royalists" to bring national labor relations act to ght, and to retain for the corpo- ons powers greater than enlight- ed masters in the old days tried to ld over their slaves. Of injunc- proceedings, the board says:

"During the last month, and before board had opportunity even to mine its procedure, an incident rred which was to stimulate in- ction suits against the board, and s to provide a sample brief for e wishing to attack the act. This the publication by the national ers' committee of the American rty league, on Sept. 5, 1935, of a cted assault on the constitutional- of the act.

Attempt to Undermine Law.

"This document, widely publicized distributed throughout the coun- did not present the arguments in impartial manner for the use of neys. It was not a review of the s which might be urged for and nst the statute. It was not a f in any case in court, nor was it inion for any client involved in case pending.

"Under the circumstances, it can organized only as a deliberate and rted effort by a large group of known lawyers to undermine e confidence in the statute, to arge compliance with it, to as- attacks, generally in attacks on statute and perhaps to influence courts."

The board tells of the first in- tion suit brought in the western rict of Missouri. The demands of corporation asking the injunction e utterly contrary to the proced- prescribed in the Wagner act it- which was modeled on the pro- ure followed by the federal trade commission for more than 20 years. In this, the board makes a preliminary investigation, issues a complaint for a thorough inquiry if the case appears to warrant it, makes its findings and its orders; and then these are reviewed, if desired, by the federal circuit court.

No Notice Given Board.

In the first suit brought against the NLRB, the court granted a temporary restraining order without notice to the board. Then:

"Immediately following the start of this suit, a nationwide and apparently concerted endeavor was made to utilize the same injunctive method to prevent the board from proceeding with the many other hearings. Not only did the attorneys filing the in-

Machinist Moore Gives Good Advice

W. K. Moore, member Local 1450, machinists, wrote to The Labor World last week concerning the editor's Christmas dream. Mr. Moore, a staunch unionist of the old school, was shown as chairman of the invitation committee to invite John L. Lewis, CIO head, to come to Chattanooga. Since "Parson" Moore likes to tell the delegates to Central Body about the box cars he used to ride, that matter was mentioned also.

"I want to thank the editor of The Labor World for the compliment paid me on the box car ride to visit John L. Lewis. This brings back many memories of hardships and pleasures enjoyed by old-timers that did the same thing for the benefit of all organized labor. Us old-timers think we did a good job and made it possible for the younger set to organize without having to resort to the box car route. We even made it possible for a number of organizations to spring up which might not have had the grit to grab an armful of box cars. To be serious, it looks as though the membership of labor should not take sides with any ship of state, but stick together and tell our leaders to stop squabbling or get out. Many members do not remember when we had more than one head in the transportation department, and the disastrous effects thereby."

Hosiery Workers Ask Pay Increase

25 PER CENT. BOOST WILL BE SOUGHT AT SEVEN MILLS.

Greater Cost of Living Given as Reason for Union's Demand for Raise.

Union representatives of two Chattanooga hosiery mills and of five others in Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama, are preparing to present demands for an immediate 25 per cent. wage increase, it was announced by Edward F. Callaghan, president of the Tri-State Council of Hosiery Workers.

Callaghan, second vice-president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, said the decision to demand the increase was made at a meeting of union delegates Saturday.

The hosiery union officials said the workers in the southeast now would strive to see that "minimum wages are not also maximum wages," so that the skilled worker can reap some extra reward.

Firms Involved.

Demands for the 25 per cent. increase, he said, will be presented to the management of the following mills by their union committees: United Hosiery mill and Bryan Hosiery mill, Chattanooga; Holston Hosiery mill, Knoxville; Mays Hosiery mill and Sterling Hosiery mill, Nashville; Dovetown Hosiery mill, Griffin, Ga., and Langel-Fencil Hosiery mill, Anniston, Ala.

In some other mills, Callaghan said, a slightly lower rate will be asked after it is worked out by union representatives. This change, he said, would be made because of conditions in certain departments where wages have been somewhat higher than elsewhere.

Callaghan explained that the increase demanded would put most wages over the old NRA code minimums, but that "the cost of living" has increased "more than that since the NRA went out."

Brewery Workers Ask Central Body Help To Keep Dr. Chastain

Local 79, Brewery Workers, formally petitioned Chattanooga Central Labor union last Monday to appear before the city dads the following day in an effort to retain the services of Dr. Cleo Chastain. The request was complied with, and Secretary Mabee was told to present the petition, which says:

"We request our mayor to retain the services of Dr. Cleo Chastain. We feel that because of her familiarity with the work as well as her ability to handle children, make it out of the question for the city to be without her services.

"Dr. Chastain's ten years of service with the city, in which time she handled both charity and school work in a very gracious and thorough understanding way, have endeared her to a large part of our population."

Celtics to Play Peerless Mills

The unbeatable Celtics, who have thrilled thousands of basketball lovers in Chattanooga several times, will be here again this Friday night at the Memorial auditorium when they will meet the Peerless team. The team is owned by John L. Hutcheson of recent notoriety when Georgia bayonets were used to prod his workers back to work.

Bayonets will not be used in the basketball game, however. The Celtics can fight back more than defenseless women.

First One-House Legislature Meets

Lincoln, Neb.—Nebraska launched the nation's first one-house, non-political legislature Jan. 5.

Its forty-three legislators, elected on a non-partisan ticket, convened in the capitol building without a precedent to guide them.

They had no rules to follow, for the regulations that guided the old bicameral system passed into the discard with it.

ORCHESTRA ENTERTAINS "SIT DOWN" STRIKERS

Anderson, Ind.—A 30-piece orchestra entertained 3,000 employes of the Guide Lamp company, General Motors subsidiary, as they entered the third day of their "sit down" strike inside the plant.

Card playing, regular exercises and four meals a day supplied by the strikers' wives from a restaurant across the street were other diversions.

Supreme Court Upholds Law Banning Convict-Made Goods

Decision Crowns 25 Years of War On Prison Goods

Ruling, Great Labor Victory, Is Seen Opening Way to Effective Regulation of Hours, Pay and Child Labor.

Washington. — Twenty-five years of labor effort to eliminate the unfair competition of prison-made products with free labor were crowned with victory when the U. S. supreme court upheld the Ashurst-Sumners act.

Moreover the broadness of the decision was heralded by members of congress and by leaders of labor and industry and the public who helped draft and fight for the bill as pointing a constitutional method of achieving new deal objectives in industry regulation. It was held that the combination of federal enabling legislation and state prohibitory legislation would apply particularly to elimination of child labor and for industry regulation in the matter of minimum wages and meximum hours.

Quick Action Held Possible.

If sufficient pressure were exerted, it was asserted, both of these objectives would be attained in sixty days, inasmuch as enough legislatures are now in session to pass laws which would close enough states to the market of goods made under unfair conditions so that all manufacturers seeking national markets for their products would be forced to conform.

Laying down the principle that congress may prevent interstate transportation from being used to bring into a state articles which the state has constitutionally forbidden, the decision was rendered in the suit brought against the Illinois Central railroad. The decision was concurred in by all the members.

Twenty-two states have enacted laws protecting free labor from the competition of prison labor. No prison-made goods can be sold in the

Gov. Browning Praised for Part Of Future Program

Civil Service, Abolition of Convict Labor, and Legislators' Pay Part of Labor's Program.

Hope Expressed That Governor Might Change Views on Child Labor Amendment — John Mahoney Boosted for Place on Committee on Labor.

Recent statements by Gov. Browning regarding his future policies as governor received quite a bit of favorable comment in Central Body this week. Mr. Browning has placed himself publicly in favor of legislation which would provide civil service for all subordinate state employes, thus removing them from under dictatorial demands of political bosses. He has also stated that he hoped to abolish the use of convict labor in competition with free labor. Most recently he has said that the pay of legislators should be increased from four dollars to ten dollars per diem.

All three of these planks are contained in organized labor's legislative program, and the secretary of Central Body was instructed to notify the governor that it was pleased with his views in these respects. Hope was also expressed that the governor's present opposition to ratification of the child labor amendment would be changed after certain misunderstandings concerning the intent of the amendment were cleared away.

Speaker of the House Walter Haynes was asked by the Central Body to place John T. Mahoney, of Hamilton county, on the committee on labor.

Organized labor's welfare depends upon how "fair" the merchants are in your community.

The worst thing about a ridiculous mistake is usually the ridiculous excuse to which it gives birth.

Small Financial Groups in Control Of Big Industries

"Economic Royalists" Found Ruling Huge Masses of Capital and Taking Tribute from Both Labor and Consumers.

Washington.—Three investigations, conducted by three separate agencies, into the affairs of three different groups of corporations, have been going on in Washington for several weeks. The outcomes of these three inquiries are practically identical. All show enormous masses of capital and huge industries controlled by comparatively trifling investment by the controllers. All show great expertness in milking the public—sometimes the consuming public, sometimes both.

And all agree in making plain the financial devilments is the holding company, which is controlled by "economic royalists."

Senator Wheeler's investigation of the Van Sweringen railroad empire is a classic, even in the long array of senatorial investigations.

Rail Empire Bought for Song.

Touching only the high spots and not all of them, Senator Wheeler showed that control of the corporation which controls more than 23,000 miles of railroad lines, was bought for $274,682; which Wheeler correctly stated was about the price of two first-class locomotives. Yet into that controlling company, the Alleghany corporation, the investing public of America put $147,000,000 in the year 1929 alone.

This control of a transportation empire was bought by two elderly manufacturers, neither of whom seems to have known a safety coupling from a superheater. When they made the purchase, they gave the Van Sweringens an option to buy back control at any time within five years for $8,250. And Senator Wheeler has shown further, that while the Van Sweringens still ruled their far-flung dominion, one of their subsidiary companies, the Missouri Pacific, borrowed $17,100,000 from the RFC on false pretenses and dishonest bookkeeping. And RFC money is public money.

Other Financial Hocus-Pocus.

At the same time, the security and exchange commission, through the quizzing by its attorney, David Schenker, was showing how David Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., got control of a $218,000,000 investment trust company, the Consolidated Funds corporation, for $13,000 in cash and 6,300 shares of a corporation which no one was either buying or selling. The SEC showed, too, how another investment trust, the Equity Corporation, traded its shares for those of another investment concern whose common stock holdings were

Squire Camp Will Receive Visitors

Executive Committee of Central Body Told to Call on Him and Offer Thanks for Recent Statements.

Squire C. E. Camp, member of the county court, has of "two distinct occasions in the last month or two defended the aims and policies of organized labor in regards to building and construction work. Delegates from the floor of Central Body rose last Monday and proposed that the squire be told face to face that labor appreciates his recent outspoken acts of friendship. As a result, he may expect in a few days to receive company in the form of the executive committee.

Wilmington Taxi Drivers Win Increase in Pay Rate

Wilmington, Del. — Following a four-day strike of taxicab drivers here, a 30-day truce was offered by the union through Mayor Bacon. During the period of the truce, negotiations for a final settlement must continue. Meantime, the drivers are to receive 33 1-3 per cent commission, instead of 20 per cent as formerly, with a minimum guarantee of $15 a week.

Wilson Line truck drivers also engaged in a strike, demanding recognition of the union as the exclusive collective bargaining representative for these workers. Local organized labor, including the building trades, is fully supporting the strike.

The Child Labor Amendment

Press reports today say that Kentucky has just ratified the child labor amendment to the United States constitution, making the twenty-fifth out of a necessary thirty-six to do so.

At the last session of Tennessee's legislature, the ratification was defeated in the lower house before it had opportunity to come before the senate. This year, political wiseacres say, the amendment will fail again.

It is incomprehensible how legislators can block such ratification. While it is true that child labor in Tennessee factories is not used to an extreme, it has been definitely shown that many states surrounding us allow employers to wax fat on the profits wrung from kiddies. In those states, it is certain that legislation emanating from their own legislative halls will not occur. At the same time, those heartless manufacturers are competing unfairly with employers in other states whose consciences will not take advantage of the child in that manner.

The federal government is the only agency that can pass a mandatory and uniform curb on such evil practice. It is up to labor, P.-T. A. groups, women's clubs, the church and other organizations to go to Nashville and tell our legislators in no uncertain terms that this amendment must be ratified by Tennessee at this session.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—How many states have "union label laws" and what do these laws provide?

A.—Forty-four states and the District of Columbia have such laws, which secure to labor organizations the right to register, use and protect from counterfeit or unauthorized use the trade marks or labels chosen by them to distinguish the services or products of union labor from other services or goods.

Q.—When did broom workers organize?

A.—In 1892, when the International Broom Makers' Union was formed. It later became the present International Broom and Whisk Makers' Union.

G. M. Stock-Owning Judge Issues Picket Ban Edict

Flint, Mich.—Circuit Judge Edward D. Black, who issued a sweeping injunction here against striking workers, including the prohibition of picketing, is a substantial stockholder in General Motors corporation, according to charges of union officials.

It is claimed the judge, who evinced such a friendly interest in the motor giant, showing no consideration for the rights of the workers, owns the tidy number of 3,665 shares of General Motors, which are currently quoted at about $219,900. In fighting the injunction, the workers point out that Michigan law provides that "no judge of any court shall sit as such in any cause or proceeding in which he is a party or in which he is interested." Labor officials have long contended that labor injunction judges usually have special reasons for their anti-union decisions and it is believed the special reason in this instance has been located.

Detroit, Mich.—Officials of General Motors company here announced that to avoid any legal entanglements because of the fact that Circuit Judge Edward D. Black, of Flint, who issued a drastic injunction against General Motors striking employes, owned a large block of General Motors stock, the court proceedings has been transferred to Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola, of the same jurisdiction, who, it was explained, is not a G. M. stockholder.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Well, lookit the supreme court. Lookit!

It upheld the Hawes-Cooper Act, which says that prison-made goods cannot be shipped into states which have laws forbidding the sale of such goods.

Don't get away with the idea that this isn't important. It's goshawful, good and plenty important.

It cuts the ground from under a lot of high-flying prison goods contractors, who make goods that have been going into competition with free-made products, underselling because prison labor costs about as much as a look at the lake.

But, Sister Susan, it does a whacking lot more than that, this decision does.

This decision lays the legal ground work for a considerable amount of new law to regulate industry and give the chiselers a headache, which nobody of decency will regret.

The country has been stewing around, looking for a kind of new law that would stand a chance of getting past the supreme court and along comes the said court and says: "Well, boys, here's your pattern. See what you can do with it."

The one paramount principle sustained in this decision is that states can be given authority by the Federal Government to keep sub-standard goods out of their territory.

And is that something, Jeremiah? Well, just ask Senator O'Mahoney and see that amiable solon cut loose on possibilities.

You can lay your bottom dollar on the bet that this year 1937 is going to be a sockdolager for doings.

We start with a Congress meeting under the inspiration of a presidential declaration right in line with the Philadelphia excoriation of economic royalists.

Hostile papers say Congress isn't going to do what the President wants in all things. Bosh. Congress is going to carry through the administration program. And, no bill that labor fights can get within gunshot of passing.

And, with the legislative mill at work on music that will give some of the Wall Street gold miners St. Vitus dance, there's the devil to pay all along the industrial line.

There's a fever to organize. It's everywhere.

It's in every field.

The A. F. of L. issues charters at a new high rate. The CIO tells a story of fast organizing. The automobile field is ablaze. Steel is fiddling with the idea of hanging onto its company unions.

Both automobiles and steel have immense backlogs of orders which will become a liability, instead of a source of strength, the minute they have a strike on their hands.

Employers that say: "I'll shut my plant rather than stand for unions" are plain crazy. They know well enough that plants make no money if they don't run and stockholders want profits, even if they have to unionize to get them.

The word "never" is a very big word that employers ought not use. "Never" is such a long, long time.

EMPLOYERS WHO DEDUCT TAXES FROM PAY MAY FACE ACTION

The U. S. district attorney's office is planning to seek indictments against employers who have been deducting unemployment insurance taxes from the salaries of their employes, it was intimated following a conference Thursday afternoon between state and federal legal departments.

As a result of complaints made to the state department of labor and to Charles M. McCabe, collector of internal revenue, the conference was called. Employes have been complaining that the 1936 unemployment insurance tax which, according to law, must be paid by the employer himself, has been passed on to them and taken from their pay envelopes.

The conference, held at the district attorney's office, was attended by Owen W. Hughes, assistant district attorney; W. H. Eagle, assistant state attorney-general; Edward McCabe, representing the collector of internal revenue, and R. O. Ross, of the state department of labor.

Though the names of the firms which have been violating this law were not revealed, it is understood that there are a large number. The federal law imposes this tax upon the employer, the tax being one per cent for the year 1936; two per cent for 1937, and three per cent for 1938, but provides that the employer may receive credit on this tax up to 90 per cent of the tax for contributions to an unemployment fund created by state law, provided no part of such tax was deducted from the wages or salaries of employes.

Though it was intimated that indictments may follow where 1936 unemployment taxes have been deducted from salaries of employes, it was stated definitely by the U. S. attorney's office and by Collector of Revenue Charles M. McCabe that no credit will be given employers for state unemployment taxes, if any part of such tax was collected from employes.

Evidence Shows Some Employers Plan Fight on Social Security

Failure to Fill Out Registration Cards Indicates War on Paying Tax—Employe Registration Continued.

Washington.—The far-flung and tremendous federal-state social security set-up, probably the largest and most important of new deal projects, is getting into motion as the business and industry of the nation turns the new year. However, about 14 per cent of the estimated eligible employes, and 13 per cent of the estimated employers, who came under provisions of the act have failed to register—that, or they do not exist.

Latest figures indicate about 23,000,000 registered employes and 2,500,000 registered employers, have filed necessary information with the board. These figures fall short of estimates as announced by actuaries of the social security board at the outset of the registration.

Pay Deduction Begun.

Starting with wages earned on Jan. 1, one per cent will be deducted from the amount in the pay envelope of each registered worker. This sum will be matched dollar for dollar by the employer and paid monthly into the federal treasury. The first old-age benefits will be paid to persons who attain the age of 65 on Jan. 1, 1942, or after that time.

Evidence continues to accumulate that there are employers affected by the act who have deliberately refrained from filling out their registration cards, and intend to combat payment of the tax on their payrolls by action in the courts. How many employes are affected by such acts is just a guess, for there has never been a survey of industrial and commercial establishments upon which accurate estimates can be based.

Registration Goes On.

The postoffice department will continue to receive applications from employes for registration and assignment of social security account numbers. Workers can obtain these blank forms in any general or branch postoffice, and may file them by addressing an envelope to the local postmaster and depositing in any mail box without postage.

Employers cannot make their payments of payroll taxes to the federal government unless each eligible worker on the payroll has been assigned an account number. All wage payments are credited to employes through their account numbers, and the amount of old-age benefits that are paid after the age of 65 are determined by the total amount of wages that have been earned, and credited under an account number, before the worker attains that age.

Filing of Applications Urged.

Labor unions and other organizations are earnestly urging every worker, whether a wage-earner or a salaried person, and whether with or without a job, to file an application through the local postmaster for the assignment of an account number. Such applications may be delivered into the hands of the postmaster in a sealed envelope, and thus the information given on the card carefully guarded from every person other than the applicant himself.

Had occasion to call Mr. Crosby the other day and overheard somebody up where he works call out, "Come on, Bing, it's for you." Aha! So Mr. Elmer Bing Crosby it is.

The occasion referred to above was because the coffee supply was getting low. Incidentally, this union-labeled coffee is selling right along now, with a string of regular customers. Don't forget that Mr. "Bing" gets in a fresh shipment every ten days or so—it's always fresh—and it's vacuum-packed.

Still on the subject of coffee—one of the Cement Workers came in the other day and got a couple of pounds. He says the fellows who work on the night shifts make coffee for their night meal there at the plant—so, since they are one of the 100 per cent organizations, they want 100 per cent union-made coffee.

MASSACHUSETTS JOBLESS INSURANCE LAW UPHELD

Boston, Mass.—The last stand of the few remaining anti-unemployment insurance employers in Massachusetts met their Waterloo when the Massachusetts supreme court upheld the constitutionality of the state employment compensation insurance law.

Arguments of attorneys that the state enabling act for participation in the benefits of the federal social security act was "capricious" was ignored when the full bench dismissed the appeal of the Howes Bros. company and the George H. Ellis company, of Boston.

Washington.—A smash radio event in observance of Civil rvice week is scheduled for Jan. 15, with the American Federa- n of Government Employes and the National Federation of stoffice Clerks cooperating in a special program with Chester Wright's Avalon cigarette program extended to a half hour the event.

Labor Board Rule Favors Portland Bus Operators

Portland, Ore.—Another important victory was won by Portland labor, when announcement came from Washington that the national labor relations board had ordered the Union Pacific Stages, Inc., to reinstate two former bus operators and to pay them back wages for the time they were off.

The board found that the local division of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes was right in their contention that these men had been discharged by the company for union activities. The labor board also directed the company to cease interfering with organization of employes.

PAY BOOST STRIKE WON BY STETSON HAT MAKERS

Philadelphia, Pa.—Continuing his good offices as labor mediator, in which capacity he has served successfully in a number of instances, Mayor Wilson helped to bring a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year" to 3,300 employes of the John B. Stetson Hat company here.

A strike which began Dec. 15, at the Stetson plant, was settled a few days before Christmas, when the company agreed to recognize Local Union No. 60, United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers as the sole agency of its employes for collective bargaining, granted a 5 per cent wage increase, agreed to a new method of work distribution and set up satisfactory machinery for settlement of grievances as they arise in the future.

An added note of happiness for the union workers came with the usual extra week's pay and a turkey for Christmas.

OIL WORKERS PLAN BIG DRIVE

LONG BEACH, Cal.—Plans to unionize 1,000,000 oil workers under an industrial union plan and to seek congressional aid, if necessary, to enforce a 36-hour week and a $5 minimum wage were disclosed here by Harvey C. Fremming, president of the Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America. Fremming informed the union's executive council that the membership drive to recruit all oil industry employes, including filling station attendants, would start April 1.

EMPLOYERS TRYING SUBTERFUGES TO GAIN ACCESS TO INFORMATION IN SOCIAL SECURITY BOARD FILES

Washington.—Curious subterfuges are being used by employing interests, as the social security law goes into operation, to learn the contents of account numbers forms that their employes have filed with the social security board. So far the information has been zealously guarded, even against adroit efforts and excuses to gain access to it.

The most common subterfuge that is being used is that an age may have been filed with the board by the employe that is different from the age that appears on the employer's record. The claim is that the employer, in connection with his elderly workers, may not know whether to deduct the wage tax for them or not, and that he incurs the risk of paying a tax himself for workers who have attained the age of 65 years.

Another allegation is that if an employe has given his age to the board as more than the figure appearing on the employer's record, he may work beyond the retirement age of 65 years.

Age Figures Kept Secret.

The board is making clear that in all cases where its records show that an employe has attained the age of 65, and a wage credit to his account number is received, the employer will be notified to this effect, and the proper refund made. It is made clear that age figures will not be given out by the board.

The law contains nothing which requires the employment of workers by a firm until the age of 65 is attained. The retirement age in many industries is less than 65 years; in some industries it is 55 or 60 years, and after that time the worker is left to shift for himself.

In these circumstances an employe may easily be compelled to retire long before he is 65 years old, or eligible to receive an old-age benefit each month from the social security board.

Forced to Sign Affidavits.

In various instances employers are compelling their employes to sign affidavits stating that the age given for themselves to the social security board is the same as appears on the records of the employer, or if the age is different, to state in the affidavit the age that has been given to the board.

The subterfuge is justified on the ground that some of the employers have private retirement plans of their own, with the amount of the deduction graded according to the worker's age rather than the amount of his earnings. It is claimed that the records of both the private plan and the social security board should be the same.

WAGNER ACT

junction suits become most ingenious in devising all possible allegations of inquiry, but, strikingly enough, the growth and fantastic character of these allegations showed a gradually increasing uniformity. . . .

"The process was like a rolling snowball. The allegations in a pleading filed by an employer in Georgia, for example, would show up in precisely the same wording in a pleading filed in Seattle. There came a very rapid and widespread exchange of pleadings all over the country until all had exhausted their ingenuity in conjuring up the many and gross injuries which it was alleged a hearing before the board would entail."

Hearings Reveal Spy Activities.

Nevertheless, in the eighty-three cases filed, the plea for a temporary injunction was defeated in fifty-nine cases, granted in twenty, and is pending in four.

"The cases heard and decided by the board have revealed what the hearings of the La Follette committee have since disclosed to be a widespread practice in American industry —the use of professional labor spies and undercover men," says the board. It gives instances; and then passes to the activities of professional labor sluggers, quoting its decision on one A. A. Ahner, employed by the Brown Shoe company:

"Actually, Ahner has a reputation as a professional strikebreaker and union-wrecker, and employer of thugs, sluggers and armed guards in his strikebreaking activities, a planter of labor spies in factories and labor organizations, has been implicated in framing union leaders, and is notorious in the St. Louis industrial area for successful terrorism in his chosen field. . . .

Local Officials Aid Bosses.

"The same case shows that if other methods fail, such persons do not hesitate to slug union organizers. In such activities, employers may sometimes count on the cooperation of local officials. In a Jones & Laughlin case in Pennsylvania a union organizer who was distributing union pamphlets was set upon by two persons, who beat him severely. He was taken before a justice of police, fined $5, and refused a transcript of record for purposes of appeal. . . In the same case, the president of the union, while on his way to work at night, was followed by a Jones & Laughlin police car. He lost sight of the car, and passing an alley, he was stopped and struck. He asked for police protection at the station. He was told:

"'Get out of our car and leave. You can't receive protection.'" open market in these states. The Hawes-Cooper act denies any interstate character to convict-made goods from state prisons, forcing them to be made in conformance to standards set up by the laws of the state to which the goods are shipped.

CONVICT LABOR

Second Law Blocks Evasion.

The Ashurst-Sumners law, supplementing the Hawes-Cooper act, blocks evasion of this ban on prison-made goods. It puts teeth into enforcement by providing that when shipped in interstate commerce, prison goods must bear a label on the container, telling in plain print the name of the prison where the goods were made and the person or firm to whom it is consigned. No carrier may accept such goods for shipment to any state which prohibits their sale in the open market. Chief Justice Hughes, who read the decision, said:

"In the congressional action there is nothing arbitrary or capricious bringing the statute into collision with the requirements of due process of law.

"The congress in exercising the power confided to it by the constitution is as free as the states to recognize the fundamental interests of free labor, nor has the congress attempted to delegate its authority to the states.

Power Not Usurped.

"The congress has not sought to exercise a power not granted or to usurp the police powers of the states. It has not acted on any assumption of a power enlarged by virtue of state action.

"The congress has exercised its plenary power which is subject to no limitation other than that which is found in the constitution itself. The congress has formulated its own policy and established its own rule. The fact that it has adopted its rule in order to aid the enforcement of valid state laws affords no ground for constitutional objection."

The court discarded a contention that the law was valid because the goods produced in a Kentucky prison were not themselves harmful. It said:

"The contention is inadmissible that the act of congress is invalid merely because the horse collars and harness which petitioner manufactures and sells are useful and harmless articles.

Wrong Use Is Unlawful.

"The motor vehicles, which are the subject of the transportation prohibited in the national motor vehicle theft act, are in themselves useful and proper subjects of commerce, but their transportation by one who knows they have been stolen is 'a gross misuse of interstate commerce' and the congress may properly punish it 'because of its harmful result and its defeat of the property rights of those whose machines against their will are taken into other jurisdictions.'"

No one can read this first annual report of the NLRB without realizing [illegible]

Autocratic Power Wielded.

First, the almost incredible autocratic power exercised by employers in several key industries, especially in steel. The employer in a factory town is literally what the old French seigneur was before the French revolution—"of the high justice, the middle, and the low." And this astounding power is frequently used with an equally astounding savagery and brutality.

Second, that so far as any official group has dealt with this situation, the national labor relations board seems [illegible] for the job.

practically worthless," and bought other concerns—at least, this is the contention of the SEC—with the funds in the treasuries of the purchased corporations.

In the same brief period, the federal communications commission has been going into the hitherto private affairs of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Telephone Overcharges Exposed.

The FCC attorney, Samuel Becker, has brought out a world of facts of serious interest to every telephone user. Its engineer, Cyrus G. Hill, testifies that the telephone monopoly's capitalization of its equipment is at least $500,000,000 overcharge. Other expert witnesses of the commission and officials of the company have revealed facts showing that under the pretext of "research," $177,921,569 have been added to phone charges in the last 11 years; and that probably at least half of this is another overcharge.

All these things have been done through the agency of holding companies.

Labor has a big, practical interest in these investigations. The more money paid to holding companies, the more money lost in investments due to holding companies, the less money is left to pay wages and provide employment.

Wisdom

There is an honor in business that is the fine gold of it; that reckons with every man justly; that loves light; that regards kindness and fairness more lightly than goods or prices or profits.—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

"Similarly, the object of the federal kidnaping act is to aid in the protection of the personal liberty of one who has been unlawfully seized or carried away.

"On the same general principle, the congress may prevent interstate transportation from being used to bring into a state articles, the traffic in which the state has constitutional authority to forbid, and has forbidden, in its internal commerce."

Gompers Suggested Fight.

Dr. E. Stagg Whitin, executive chairman of the national committee on prisons and prison labor, which has acted as the coordinating agency in getting industry-labor-consumer sponsorship for the Hawes-Cooper and Ashurst-Sumners types of legislation, said:

"It was Samuel Gompers who originally suggested to me, nearly 20 years ago, that the national committee should join with the American Federation of Labor in undertaking this fight along the lines now established by the enactment of the Hawes-Cooper law and the Sumners-Ashurst law.

"Today, the U. S. supreme court decision not only writes the final chapter in the long story of efforts to secure regulatory measures to control unfair competitive exploitation of prison labor and leading the development of the state-use system of just employment, but also, in my opinion, clearly points out the American and constitutional way to approach other problems involved in the vast and controversial subject of industrial regulation.

"And it seems highly significant that both of the supreme court decisions relate to the two federal statutes enacted by a congress responding to the strong, coordinated support of industry, labor and consumer groups."

4-POINT PROGRAM TO PROTECT MASSES ADVOCATED BY COUNCIL

Berry Group Stresses Production Control, Minimum Wages, Curb on Unfair Competitive Practices, and Establishment of Government Advisory Council to Study the Use of National Income as a Cause of Unemployment and Industrial Depressions.

The Council for Industrial Progress, whose chairman is George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, adopted a policy report favoring production control as an emergency measure and minimum labor standards in industry, urged the curbing of unfair competitive trade practices and supported the formation of a permanent advisory council, for consultation by the president and congress, to make a continuing study of the national income with emphasis placed on the uses to which that income is put so as to cause widespread unemployment and business stagnation.

Government Control of Industry.

The council's policy report, previously adopted by the committee on national industrial policy and ratified at an executive session of the council, contained a strong criticism of industrial conduct in the past years.

"The public welfare demands," the committee said, "that that degree of governmental restraint shall be exercised on private industry which will require its management and ownership to administer business and industry in such a way as to preserve and protect social justice, equity and fair dealing."

Unjust Distribution of National Income.

With regard to our present economic ills the report said they "are attributed to the maldistribution and unwise use of the national income," and that "surplus production and employment arise chiefly, if not solely, from the diversion of too great a portion of the national income from the consuming market into the investment field, working injury to capital, to labor, to management, and to the general public by depriving the people of buying power, by depriving workers of the opportunity to produce needed goods, by depriving management of production and marketing opportunities, and by causing production facilities to become unusable, destroying their capital value almost in exact proportion to their non-use."

The advisory council to study the national income, and advise the president and congress would consist of an equal number of representatives of labor, management and the public.

The joint chairman of the committee on national industrial policy, whose report the industrial council adopted, are Flint Garrison, managing director of the Wholesale Dry-goods Institute, for management, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, for labor.

Following is the text of the recommendations made by the national industrial policy committee and adopted by the Council for Industrial Progress:

Production Control in Emergencies.

"1. Production Control: The committee declares its belief in an economy of abundance and therefore considers unwise and ineffective any attempt to solve unemployment by the limitation of production, whether imposed by government or accomplished through voluntary agreements in industry. The committee recognizes the need, under emergency conditions, of instituting production control when that may be necessary to prevent the destruction of socially useful values.

Minimum Wages.

"2. Hours and Wages: While recognizing the need to maintain the respectve fields of state and federal authority, the committee advocates the policy of a minimum wage in industry and the payment of substantial overtime rates for hours worked in excess of a reasonable work week, believing this to be an advisable national policy tending to increase the purchasing power of wage-earners, and make for re-employment in an age of continuous technological improvement.

Unfair Competition.

"3. Trade Practices: The committee believes that our national industrial policy should give proper recognition to the need for curbing these unfair practices which are destructive of the public interest in the maintenance of a free and open market for the sale and distribution of goods.

Functions of Advisory Council.

"4. Permanent Advisory Council: The committee believes there should be instituted by the national government a continuing study of the national income; the source from which it springs, the channels through which it flows, the uses to which it is put, and the forces which cause it to periodically form and freeze into vast pools of disease, causing the stagnation and paralysis of industry and bringing unemployment and suffering to the people.

"The committee believes this study can be facilitated by the establishment of a permanent advisory economic council consisting equally of representatives of industrial management, of representatives of labor and of representatives capable of fairly representing the interests of the public. It suggests that the president should appoint the members of this council with the advice and consent of the senate. It suggests that not more than one-third of such members should be appointed each year, to the end that there should be both consistency and fresh viewpoints available to such a council.

"In suggesting that such a council should have a purely advisory function, the committee expresses its conviction that as an intelligent and representative adviser such a council will have more influence and find more general acceptance than any other role. Such a council should be available for consultation by the president or by the congress. It should and would be competent to undertake studies and analyses suggested by the president, by the congress, or upon the proper request of management on labor."

The industrial council directed George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, to appoint an appropriate committee to draft the legislation necessary to attain the objectives included in the national industrial policy report. He named the following persons: Seigfried Hartman, Matthew Woll, I. M. Ornburn, Harry Warrum, John Hayes, David Drechsler, Robert A. B. Cook, Carl Whitney, Earl Houck, Harry Robinson and Charlton Ogburn.

I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

EDERAL INVESTIGATION REVEALS TELEPHONE MONOPOLY WONDER AT NABBING EVERY DOLLAR IN SIGHT

reat A. T. & T. Shown Dropping Low Wage Employes While Keeping Up Fat Dividends, Extracting Juicy Profits from Subsidiaries by Financial Hocus-Pocus and Making Public Pay for Research.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Uncle Sam is wringing astounding secrets out the American Telephone & Telegraph company, the biggest rporation in the world. Its assets, including, of course, those its subsidiaries, are variously estimated from four billion dol- s up. It has very near a complete monopoly of the telephone mmunications of a nation of 127,000,000 people. It has also a actical monopoly of manufacturing, through a subsidiary, the estern Electric, the machinery, through which this communica- n is carried on. Its stock is the favorite stock on the market. started paying $9 a share each year in 1921, and has kept it right through the bitter depths of the depression.

The A. T. & T., as everyone calls has always posed as being virtu- in proportion to its size. The eral communications commission, rking through its energetic attor- , Samuel Becker, and its super- untant, Dr. Meisel, has cast grave bts on this self-appropriated repu- ion.

Their investigations give strong und for the belief that the A. T. T. is a chiseler and overcharger to customers and an absolutely heart- job master to its workers.

The first investigating foray made the FCC brought out some ex- rely interesting bits of financial tory. The operating revenues of A. T. & T. in 1929 were, in round bers, $1,063,000,000. Its operating enues in 1935 were $934,000,000, a line of 13 per cent.

120,000 Fired in Depression.

But in the same time, the number employes of the great monopoly pped 120,000 or 32 per cent. Mr. lter S. Gifford, testifying before FCC, rather minimized the drop employment by saying that 74,000 the displaced telephone employes e getting less than $1,000 a year nsiderably less than $20 a week.

Mind, the dividends were kept up through this period. They were t out of surplus when they couldn't met out of earnings. But if a dol- of the more than a billion dollar plus and reserve of the A. T. & T. s used to keep men and women at k, that fact has been carefully t from the public knowledge. As facts are set forth in the record date, the A. T. & T. put the bur- of the depression on its workers.

More Damaging Facts Revealed.

In the last two weeks, the FCC taken another whirl at probing financial affairs of the A. T. & T. he research department of the phone monopoly is Bell Labora- s, Inc. It has a capital stock of 0,000, all owned by trustees for telephone set up. It was organ- d to take over from Jan. 1, 1925, is supposed to be a strictly non- it corporation.

bout the first thing that Bell oratories was required to do was take over the research property ch previously had belonged to stern Electric, another subsidiary A. T. & T. This property was car- d on the books of the Western tric at $2,439,000, in round num- . But Bell Laboratories bought r $4,552,000, in round numbers, a clear profit of $2,112,000 to stern Electric. Western Electric fits go into A. T. & T. dividends.

Extortionate Interest Profitable.

ut that wasn't the only product telephone monopoly got out of non-profit corporation. It was a starter. Bell Laboratories bor- ed the money from Western Elec- to buy this research property, gave demand notes at 7 per cent, 3,640 a year interest charges e. And of this sum, $147,840 interest on the overcharge of 12,000. And corporations not rly as strong financially as A. T. were borrowing money at 5 per t.

is safe to say that for ten years, n 1925 to 1935, the telephone

Flint Glass Workers Gain Increase in Pay

Negotiations Between Union and Employers Brings New Agreement Covering Unskilled Workers in 43 Plants.

Pittsburgh.—The National Association of Manufacturers of pressed and blown glassware announces that a new working agreement granting a "slight increase" in wages has been negotiated for unskilled workers in forty-three flint glass plants.

About 7,000 workers are believed to be affected by the new agreement, which becomes effective Feb. 1 and remains in effect until the first Monday in September.

Week-long negotiations between the manufacturers' association, representing the manufacturers, and representatives of the American Flint Glass Workers' union resulted in the agreement.

Tumblers, lamp chimneys, etc., are made in flint glass plants.

Michael J. Gillooly, of Toledo, O., president of the Flint Glass union, was one of eight union leaders who participated in the conferences. His union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Meanwhile, the long strike of 7,000 employes of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company remained stalemated in five plants located at Creighton and Ford City, Pa.; clarksburg, W. Va.; Henryetta, Okla., and Mt. Vernon, O. This strike was called by the Federation of Flat Glass Workers.

Child Labor Amendment Must Be Ratified, Says Federation

Social Security Act Ruled Valid By Federal Court

Judge Davis in Alabama Scores Argument Government Cannot Levy Tax to Prevent Calamity of Depression.

Birmingham, Ala.—Constitutionality of the federal social security act was upheld by Federal Judge David J. Davis, of the Northern Alabama district court.

In an informal brief the judge denied the petition of Alabama firms seeking to enjoin the collector of internal revenue from collecting the compensation insurance tax levied on employers under the act. The decision, although informal, was a detailed defense of the law's constitutionality.

"The most strict constructionist would not deny that congress has the power under the general welfare clause of the constitution to levy and collect an excise tax such as prescribed in this act," Judge Davis said.

He then recited the "calamity" of the depression. "To relieve the situation," he continued, "the federal government spent billions of dollars. Can it with reason be said that congress cannot levy an excise tax on the privilege of employing others to aid in the prevention of a recurrence of such a calamity and the alleviation of its hardships should they come again?"

Courts have definitely determined that congress can levy for the general welfare, the judge declared. Otherwise, he said, the general welfare clause of the constitution would be meaningless.

The suit was brought by the Beeland Wholesale company and the Alpha Portland Cement company, a corporation, and others.

CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT IS RATIFIED BY KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky. — Kentucky on January 14 ratified the child labor amendment to the constitution, being the first state to take favorable action on the amendment following the appeal of President Roosevelt for its ratification.

Ratification was completed when the House adopted a resolution already approved by the Senate. The House vote, 59 to 24, after an appeal by Gov. A. B. Chandler, who said 24 other states already have ratified the proposal.

TEXTILE ACT IS REINTRODUCED; UNIONS WORK TO PASS MEASURE

Washington.—The national textile act bill has been reintroduced in congress by Representative Henry Ellenbogen, of Pennsylvania.

Emil Rieve, president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, and the officers of the United Textile Workers have already launched a nationwide campaign to secure early passage of this bill for which vigorous fight was made at the last session of congress.

The national textile act bill, as it now stands, is very much the same bill that was originally introduced in congress at the last session. The bill seeks to rehabilitate and stabilize the textile and hosiery industries by setting up basic and nationally uniform protections for the million and half persons employed in the industries.

Under the act a textile commission of five, appointed by the president, would fix minimum rates of pay for all classifications of workers, irrespective of age, sex or location.

Until the commission can fix minimum rates the law provides for a basic rate of $18.00 a week for the least skilled. Minimum rates will be established for various occupational classifications as was the case under the NRA hosiery code.

Maximum hours will be thirty-five per week.

The American Federation of Hosiery Workers will formally launch its campaign at the national convention of the federation to open in Washington the week of Jan. 25. However, the officers of the union are already actively pushing the drive to mobilize public support for the measure.

Garnishment and Injunction Relief To Be Sought

The enactment of the child labor amendment to the constitution of the United States by Tennessee was the topic of most interest Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 16 and 17, when the executive board of the Tennessee Federation of Labor met in Nashville to discuss with W. C. Clark, legislative chairman for the federation, the immediate program in the state legislature.

Attending the executive sessions were R. S. McCann, of Memphis, president of the federation; T. R. Cuthbert, secretary-treasurer, and the following board members: D. C. Long, Johnson City; W. Clay McKenzie, Knoxville; J. O. Nevil, Nashville; George McNamara, Memphis, and A. C. Kamin, Chattanooga.

The fact that Kentucky has just ratified the amendment seemed to act as a spur to Tennesseans to not lag behind in this most important humanitarian legislation. In a visit Saturday afternoon with Gov. Browning by the board, further pleas were made to him to change his present determination to oppose the measure.

Legislative Chairman Clark reported that steps have already been taken to either directly sponsor prepared bills or to support bills to be presented by other groups for the following phases of labor matters, which, by the way, composes one of the most ambitious programs presented by organized labor in the legislative halls of Tennessee for some time:

RATIFICATION OF CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT.

A bill to strengthen the workmen's compensation law, taking judicial powers now existing in courts from them and placing them in a commission.

An enabling act covering the cooperative industrial policy and purchasing policy.

An extended social security bill.

Protect existing laws relating to credit unions.

A bill strengthening workmen's compensation laws which will increase amount of hospitalization and doctors' bills, and to increase amount of payments to dependents of accident victims.

Support a bill to repeal present tax on beer manufactured in Tennessee and shipped out of the state.

A constitutional amendment to allow a graduated income tax.

A bill to provide power to state factory inspection to enforce collection of wages under the present two-week payment clause of wages due and unpaid.

A bill to prevent subsidization of industrial plants by municipalities either by taxation of taking wages from pay envelopes to pay for upkeep or building of factory.

A bill setting maximum weekly hours for women workers to 48 per week and eight hours per day. Minors 40 hours per week.

The eight-point program of Tennessee Educational association with the addition of a statewide teacher tenure law.

Bill to repeal or reduce present requisite of poll tax for franchise privilege.

Bill to prevent sale of convict-made goods, causing them to be used for

Leave the Tenure Law Alone for a While

Let the teachers beware of any tampering with their tenure law. Simply because the head of the department of education has not been successful in firing two teachers because of the provisions in the present law, it would be extremely unwise to allow him to twist and turn it to suit himself.

It would be well to recall that when Commissioner Mac was simply Teacher Mac, he was fired for talking too much. He burned the woods to secure the present tenure bill. He went to Nashville, and with the editor of this paper, and others, he begged that it be passed. It was passed alright. He thereupon rode the wave of dissatisfaction with the commissioner who fired him and got the commissioner's job for himself.

The situation became different immediately. He tried to fire two teachers, but he failed in showing evidence under provisions of the law which justified his act. Therefore he now desires to change the law.

Maybe it would be better to make the law inoperative while Commissioner McMillan is in office, to become operative when he goes out of office.

Let's not tamper with the tenure law. It took too much effort to secure it. When you start to juggle eggs, one of them might slip from the hand, however agile, and nothing in the world can put it together again.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Who said: "We know with a feeling of certainty and individual and collective assurance that the real remedy for unemployment can only be found through the application of the shorter work-day and the shorter work-week in private industry?"

A.—This is from a declaration of the last American Federation of Labor convention.

Q.—What union head now in the public eye was formerly a clergyman?

A.—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America.

Q.—Does organized labor favor a national system of health insurance?

A.—Yes. The American Federation of Labor is on record as asking the federal government to create a commission to study plans to expand the social security program to include compensation and medical care for sickness.

What Next!

Pontalite is a new entry in the field of plastic materials, of which celluloid was the first. Now many products are made of plastics. Pontalite is a crystal clear plastic which was recently demonstrated before the New York Electrical society. Big, glass-like balls of the material were bounced harmlessly on the floor and transparent sheets of it transmitted light around corners.

The SEC is doing its best to sit on the lid of Wall Street speculation. The treasury of the United States has laid its plans to head off the inflation which it fears may result from the tremendous influx of gold into this country. Quite a contrast, this, to the days when President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon told the country that brokers' loans—the best measure of speculation in stocks—were not too high, and that the crazy activity of the stock market was just an evidence of prosperity.

Campaign Called for Child Labor Amendment

President Roosevelt's personal letters to the governors and governors-elect of nineteen of the twenty-four states which have not ratified the Federal Child Labor Amendment, but whose legislatures meet this year, urging them to make ratification "one of the major items in the legislative program of your state this year," are an important and timely contribution to the campaign for the prompt approval of the amendment.

Twenty-four states have already adopted the amendment. It requires favorable action on the part of only twelve more state legislatures to make this noble effort to protect the children of America from ruthless exploiters a part of our fundamental law.

The President was concise and to the point in his letter to the governors. He said:

> "I am sure you will agree with me that one of the most encouraging developments of the past few years is the general agreement that has been reached that child labor should be permanently abolished. Outstanding gains were made under the NRA codes which have been maintained in many establishments through the voluntary cooperation of employers.
> "However, it is clearly indicated that child labor, especially in low-paid, unstandardized types of work, is increasing. I am convinced that nation-wide minimum standards are necessary and that a way should be found in behalf of the elimination of child labor.
> "Do you not agree with me that ratification of the child-labor amendment by the remaining twelve states whose action is necessary to place it in the constitution is the obvious way to early achievement of our objective? I hope that you will feel that this can be made one of the major items in the legislative program of your state this year."

The President's letter was sent to the executives of the following states: New Mexico, Nevada, South Carolina, New York, Texas, Nebraska, Maryland, Connecticut, Florida, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Tennessee, Delaware, Georgia, Kansas and Missouri.

The present campaign for ratification of the child labor amendment was initiated by the recent annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, held in Tampa, Fla. The convention ordered an immediate drive by organized labor in all of the non-ratifying states whose legislatures meet this year to require prompt consideration of the amendment.

Early in December, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, sent a letter to all state federations of labor, city central bodies and local unions in the delinquent states urging them to mobilize organized labor's forces in the interest of the amendment.

Many competent observers believe that President Roosevelt's influence coupled with the zeal of the organized labor movement and progressive forces generally will make the amendment a part of the United States constitution despite the illogical but stormy efforts of subversive elements to leave American children the prey of unpatriotic profit mongers.

Significance of Convict Labor Decision

The possibility of using the principle laid down by the United States Supreme Court in its decision upholding the constitutionality of the Ashurst-Sumners prison labor act to prevent the exploitation of children in industry is suggested by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement on the significance of the decision.

The Supreme Court held that when a state has enacted a valid law prohibiting the sale on the open market of prison-made goods, the United States Congress has the constitutional right to prohibit the shipment of prison-made goods from other states into such a state. With regard to the application of this principle to the inter-state shipment of products in whose manufacture the labor of children is used, Mr. Green said:

"The unanimous decision of the Supreme Court sustaining the validity of the Ashurst-Sumners act, which bars the shipment of prison-made goods into states where the manufacture and sale of convict-made goods in competition with those manufactured by free labor is forbidden by state statute, is heartening to labor. Because the American Federation of Labor sponsored the Ashurst-Sumners act, its officers and members view the decision with a feeling of deep satisfaction.

"The implication involved in the decision is very important. Even a superficial study of it justifies the conclusion that the shipment and sale of goods manufactured by child labor in states where the employment of children is prohibited by statute can be effectively barred. While the American Federation of Labor will continue to press for the adoption of the child labor amendment to the constitution of the United States, it will sponsor and support legislation designed to immediately prevent the employment of children and the exploitation of child labor in industry.

"It is clearly evident that the decision of the Supreme Court points the way through which labor can effectively deal with the evils of convict and child labor competition."

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The reorganization of the federal government on lines proposed by President Roosevelt would be a world event of top rank importance. Even the proposal will attract world wide attention. The five chief changes proposed are very briefly as follows:

1. Creation of two new departments in the president's cabinet, social welfare and public works; and put all the 100 boards, commissions, administrations, authorities and other government agencies under appropriate departments of this enlarged cabinet.

2. Assignment of six executive assistants to the president, to give him more time for the thinking needed in his office.

3. Development of the budget bureau into a first-class executive agency which would collect, study and publish information, examine legislative proposals, draft and issue—on instruction—executive orders.

4. Extension of civil service to all government workers except those engaged in making and shaping policies.

5. Wiping out the comptroller-general's office and establishing in its place an auditor-general, who would have no power over congressional appropriations, but would audit all federal expenditures.

Some things which favor such a reorganization can be stated without any long pondering. The presidential office as it stands is a man killer when the president tries to use it for the public good. It killed Wilson; it would kill Roosevelt if he did not have an endurance rivaling that of the toughest known metal, and an unparalleled capacity to relax. Some plan to lighten the president's burden is necessary.

Next, the depression has been fought and beaten back largely by agencies improvised for the purpose. There is sure to be waste motion in such hurried improvisations; yet in all probability, the federal government must continue to do most of the work which has been performed in this manner. It would seem the part of wisdom to revise and co-ordinate these agencies wherever possible.

But the accounts are by no means all on the credit side. For one thing, there is grave danger that the study and debate of the reorganizing plans will get in the way of more imperative needs. President Roosevelt himself listed minimum wages, maximum hours, extension and safeguarding of collective bargaining, the abolition of child labor and some more effective aid to agriculture among the tasks of the present congress.

These are huge tasks and pressing needs. Recently, the federal circuit court of California struck a heavy blow at the whole structure of collective bargaining by declaring unconstitutional the Wagner labor relations act. A thousand corporations are leagued to drive home this blow in the supreme court, which has already given some five to four decisions that are reactionary almost beyond words. These are things of immediate, instant importance.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

GENERAL MEETING FEB. 5

The next general meeting of the federation will be held Saturday, Feb. 5, at 10 a.m., in the auditorium at Dickinson.

MAKE HASTE SLOWLY

The committee of city principals has done a painstaking piece of work on the teachers' pension legislation, and their efforts deserve the appreciation of the teachers. However, their bill, if approved by the teachers and passed, will be in effect for a long time, and teachers should be sure it is the bill they want before they give their indorsement. A hasty decision should not be made, and judgment should be suspended until all the facts are in.

A. F. OF T. MISREPRESENTED

There has been considerable misrepresentation of the action of the annual A. F. of T. convention in regard to the Spanish situation. One current misstatement is that the convention voted $5,000 of A. F. of T. funds to the Spanish loyalists government. The true facts of the case follow:

The convention voted to authorize the A. F. of T. executive council to raise a fund of $5,000 for the use of the Spanish Labor Red Cross. The funds were not voted out of the A. F. of T. treasury. They were to be solicited from locals and individuals. A. F. of T. funds are used only in upkeep of the national and for organizational purposes.

The Spanish Labor Red Cross is an organization sponsored by the trade union federations of Spain and is concerned solely with relief and medical aid. None of their funds are used for war supplies. To knowingly oppose support to such an organization is to admit a lack of feeling for human suffering.

Boston Transcript and Reporters Reach Pay Agreement

Boston, Mass.—Notable gains have been won by news and editorial room employes of the Boston Evening Transcript in an agreement signed by the management and a committee of the Boston Newspaper Guild, authorized to act in collective bargaining for the Transcript employes.

The 40-hour work week is provided for all employes except department heads. A dismissal bonus of two weeks' salary for all workers dismissed within two years of their employment, with six weeks' pay as a dismissal bonus for those employed longer than two years. Disputed dismissals will be subject to arbitration by the state board of conciliation and arbitration.

Minimum wages for office boys is $15 a week and for new reporters and writers $25 a week, with a step-rate increase based upon experience, up to a minimum of $45 a week for those who have over five years' experience.

While the management appeared anxious to have it understood that the agreement was not made with the Boston Newspaper Guild directly, the committee which represented the Transcript unit of the Boston Newspaper Guild as duly authorized collective bargaining representatives was a committee composed of members of the Boston Newspaper Guild, which is the local branch of the American Newspaper Guild, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The present agreement extends to October 1.

A fine market the southern sharecroppers furnish for the products of American labor! Listen to this from Henry Wallace, U. S. secretary of agriculture:

The League for Industrial Democracy will begin its annual series of lectures this year in the Memorial auditorium when E. E. Ericson will discuss "The New Technocracy—Poverty or Plenty?" on Wednesday, Feb. 3. There will be six lecturers to visit Chattanooga, each one being one week apart, and each being introduced by a local citizen of prominence and good repute. The complete program follows:

Wednesday, Feb. 3.

Dr. E. E. Ericson, "The New Technocracy—Poverty or Plenty?" introduced by Dr. Frank W. Prescott.

Formerly a Montana dryland farmer, Dr. Ericson, now an associate professor at the University of North Carolina, has studied conditions in the mine and steel industries. He is a co-author of "Modern Russia" and of "Gandhi's India," which is now being published.

Wednesday, Feb. 10.

Dr. Harry W. Laidler, "Is Health the Public's Business?—The Case for Socialized Medicine." Introduced by Stanton E. Smith.

While primarily engaged in economic studies as a director of the League for Industrial Democracy, Dr. Laidler has recently done research work in public health. He has written such notable books as "Concentration of Control in American Industry," "Unemployment and Its Remedies" and "Socializing Our Democracy."

Wednesday, Feb. 17.

Dr. Jesse Holmes, "The White Collar Worker Enters the Labor Movement." Introduced by Rev. T. B. Cowan.

Trained at the University of Nebraska and Johns Hopkins, Dr. Holmes serves now as professor of philosophy at Swarthmore college. Former president of the National Federation of Religious Liberals, he has also directed work for the American Friends service committee.

Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Mr. Frank McCallister, "Without Due Process of Law—Vigilante Rule—the Ku Klux Klan." Introduced by Joe Dobbs.

Grappling with fascist-like floggings in Florida, Dr. McCallister, southern secretary of the Workers' Defense league, has experienced the terror of vigilante lawlessness. He was formerly an executive of the League for Independent Political Action.

Wednesday, March 3.

Miss Jennie Lee, "Empire Building and War." Introduced by Mr. L. J. Wilhoite.

Brilliant and charming young Scotchwoman, was elected to the English parliament at the age of 24. Since her early childhood, in the mining district of southern Scotland, she has been involved in the struggle of the workers for better living conditions. Despite her busy political career, Miss Lee has traveled in continental Europe and Russia.

Wednesday, March 10.

Rabbi Edward L. Israel, "America Faces the Future—Do We Need a Labor Party?" Introduced by Rabbi A. Feinstein.

Rabbi of Baltimore, member of the commission on social justice of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, served on a regional national labor board and now acts as chairman of the arbitration committee for the men's clothing industry. With others he has written "The Western Maryland Railway Strike" and "The Centralia Tragedy."

ROCHESTER HOTEL STRIKE GAINS MORE UNION SUPPORT

Rochester, N. Y.—The strike of the local Hotel and Restaurant Employes' Alliance, affecting several leading hotels, restaurants and clubs, appears to be gaining momentum as all concerned express renewed determination to press on to victory.

The strike is being widely supported by other organized groups and this support is also growing. Local No. 71, International Brotherhood of Operating Engineers, which has about twenty-five members employed in struck hotels and other places affected by the strike, voted in favor of calling a sympathy strike to support the alliance, if and when permission to do this is granted by the international headquarters in Washington.

Stretchout Brings Strike of Weavers

Brunswick, Me.—Operations were halted at the Cabot Manufacturing company's cotton mill when weavers struck in protest against doubling of the number of looms per worker. The mill employs about 900.

The weavers refused to obey a new order that weavers' machines should be increased from 20 to 40.

Mr. Mellon's efforts to untax [illegible] rich during his long term as secretary of the treasury cost the government of the United States more than [illegible] 000,000,000 which it might have collected if the surtaxes on big incomes had been kept at a proper level. It will take more than even a $27,000,000 art collection to square that.

Consumers will fare better if they trade at "fair" shops.

MORE ABOUT ROOSEVELT BALL

... Merriam, Joe Engel, Charles S. ...affey, Peabody Howard, John E. ...well, Earle N. Wester, Frank Her... ...n and Phil B. Whitaker.

Mr. Borisky said yesterday that the birthday ball, for the benefit of children afflicted with infantile paralysis, should attract 5,000 persons this year and that the most entertaining and beautiful floor show to be staged at any of the balls here is being planned under the direction of Miss Belle Kinney, the noted sculptress.

"The attendance at the birthday balls has increased every year," the general chairman said. "The first year about $800 was taken in and the amount increased to about $3,300 last year, when at least 3,000 persons took part in the occasion.

Appeal Is Described.

"The appeal to people for the necessity for this to go over should be greater this year than ever before. First, because the cause is so worthwhile. Second, because it is in honor of our president, who is not the democratic nominee or a democratic officeholder, but the president of the United States and our leader. Third, it will be really an inaugural ball this year."

President Roosevelt's birthday is on Jan. 30, but the ball is scheduled for the evening of Jan. 29, so that dancing can be continued after midnight. Jan. 30 occurs this year on Saturday and the committee pushed the date forward one day so that the festivities could go on past midnight without running into Sunday.

The pageant being arranged by Miss Kinney will portray the spirit of Chattanooga in helping crippled children. Taking part in the spectacle will be seventy-five children, pupils from four dancing schools and cadets from Chattanooga High, Central High, Baylor and McCallie schools. One of this season's debutantes, whose name will not be disclosed in advance, will portray the "spirit of Chattanooga."

For the pageant, several elaborate properties—among them a huge birthday cake and a chariot—are being built, and interesting lighting effects are being arranged under the direction of Harry Pruette.

Taxpayers Vote Factory For Making of Hosiery

Durant, Miss.—The taxpayers of Durant will build a $25,000 factory to go, indirectly, into the hosiery-making business. The city, voting a bond issue for that amount, was the first to take advantage of Gov. Hugh White's plan for industrializing the state. Under the program, cities or counties may vote bond issues to build factories and then lease or rent them to manufacturing companies.

"I believe other cities will soon follow suit," Gov. White said. Durant approved the bond issue by a vote of 330 to 19. The factory will be leased (to the Durant Manufacturing company) for a period of twenty-five years and will employ 150 persons in making 5,760 pairs of hose weekly.

When you buy foreign-made goods, you are saying good bye to American dollars that will never return.

Warm Springs, Plus Courage, Help Host to Beat Crippling Paralysis

* * * * * * * * *

Franklin D. Roosevelt First Demonstrated Value of Springs Treatment for Infantile Paralysis Victims and Opened Way to Others to Overcome Effects of Dread Disease.

Washington, D. C.—There is a warm spring in Georgia which is party responsible for the present President of the United States. Its waters helped him in the grimmest, hardest struggle of his life. But they only helped. The chief factor in that struggle was the character of the man himself; with all known kinds of courage, in quantities to which no one has found a limit. He might—the chances are that he would—have built himself up again without the spring; but the spring helped.

There is a disease to which doctors have given the daunting name of "acute anterior poliomyelitis." Turned from Greek to English, without straining too hard for an exact version, this means an acute inflammation of the forward part of the spinal cord. Up the back of the spinal cord run two small, long bundles of nerve fibers which carry sensations from the body to the brain. Down the front of the spinal cord run two other small, long bundles of nerve fibers which carry orders from the brain to the muscles.

Inflammation Knocks Down Wires

The back part of the cord, the posterior, is the sensory tract. The front part of the cord, the anterior, is the motor tract. Every professor of anatomy who teaches the freshman class in a medical college gives the same illustration to fix in the minds of his pupils the locations of these two tracts. "If somebody kicks you down stairs," he says, "the sensation will be behind; but the motion will be in front. It is so here." The youngsters giggle; but they remember.

"Acute anterior poliomyelitis," therfore, is an inflammation of the motor tract of the spinal cord. That inflammation knocks down the wires, so to speak, by which the brain gives orders to the muscles; and the result is a paralysis of those muscles. The extent of that paralysis depends on the location and extent of the injury caused by the inflammation. If only one side is paralyzed, that means that only one of those two bundles of nerve fibers in the front of the cord has been damaged. If both sides are affected, both cords are damaged. If only the legs are affected, it means that the damage is fairly low down in the spinal cord, so low that only the leg wires are broken. In a case which the present writer heard of while writing this account, the victim is completely paralyzed from the neck down. That, very fortunately, is rare.

Flatly Refuses To Be Cripple

In the summer of 1921, Franklin Delano Roosevelt went for a summer vacation to the Maine coast, a model of health and athletic vigor. He came away on a stretcher. Poliomyelitis had gripped him; and 999 out of 1,000 victims, circumstanced as he was and stricken as he was, would have ended their days in a wheeled chair.

Instead, he flatly refused to be a cripple... With a courage and patience which simply cannot be overpraised, he worked to train his legs to some measure of usefulness again. "You don't know," he said to a friend, "you don't know how good it feels just to be able to wiggle your foot."

After three years of struggle, in the fall of 1924, the future president learned of a young man who had been stricken like himself, and who had spent three summers at Warm

DEMONSTRATION HITS ALABAMA SALES TAX

Montgomery, Ala.—A proposed 2 per cent general sales tax, which would hit all consumers, regardless of ability to pay, and intended to supplant the 1½ per cent gross receipts tax which became effective Jan. 1, is meeting with stiff opposition by the people of Alabama.

Mass demonstrations have been held against the proposal, hundreds of opponents plodding through a drizzling rain to Alabama's historic state house and on into the famous house chamber where, among other demonstrations, advocates of the general sales tax were roundly booed.

A vast majority of the people of Alabama appear to favor the view of the American Federation of Labor, which strongly opposes the levying of any general sales tax, favoring instead taxation in accordance with ability to pay.

DRIVE ON TO END SENATE INQUIRY INTO ACTIVITIES OF LABOR SPIES

Squelching of Investigation Sought by Denying La Follette Committee Funds to Continue Work, as Investigation of Mob Outrages in South Is Begun.

By GEORGE L. KANPP

Washington.—The La Follette civil liberties committee of the United States senate reopened its hearings on Jan. 14. The first subject of inquiry was the flogging of Joseph S. Gelders, professor of physics at the University of Alabama, who was kidnaped and flogged near Birmingham, Ala., last September. It is known that Prof. Gelders was beaten for being pro-labor; but he will be on the stand to supply details; and so will Sergt. McClung, of the state highway patrol, who investigated the case.

This is the first time the civil liberties committee has gone south in its investigations; and the first time it has turned to uncover the class of outrages to which this particular flogging belongs. Terrorism of this kind has been the chief reliance of big business in fighting unions in several southern states. S. H. Dalrymple, when speaking for the United Rubber Workers at Gadsden, Ala., was seized and beaten almost to death by mobsters who acted with the knowledge and connivance of the sheriff.

It is probable that before the La Follette committee is through, it will have the Dalrymple story told from the witness stand.

Fight on Inquiry Started.

After the Gelders flogging story is told, and other incidents in the same region of the same general character are put on record, Curtis S. Garner, superintendent of the American Bridge company, a subsidiary of United States Steel, will take the stand to tell of the labor troubles the company had in building the Pulaski skyway across the New Jersey marshes.

A very definite movement is on foot in Washington to quelch the investigation of the civil liberties committee by blocking an appropriation to continue the work. The committee so far has had only $15,000. How it has done the things it has accomplished with that sum is a mystery. Its revelations have damaged the prestige of giant corporations more than any one thing that has gone before; and has justified all that labor has been saying about strikebreaking for twenty years.

> The La Follette committee has shown from the records that tear gas bombs and labor spies are part of the standard equipment of manufacturing big business; and that rifles, machine guns and charged wires are used on occasion.

The campaign to block an appropriation to enable the La Follette committee to finish its work is working from two separate angles. It says that these investigations cause "hard feelings" when what big business most desires just now is an era of "good feeling." In addition, it raises the plea of "economy."

Congressional Probes Pay.

Labor feels that big business should be required to earn any good feeling it receives, not go round begging for it as a gift. As for economy, nothing else ever has paid the federal government such huge dividends as some of the congressional investigations. For example, the investigation of the oil frauds, conducted by Senator Thomas J. Walsh, ended by recovering for the government oil lands whose value is conservatively estimated at half a billion dollars, and something like twenty million dollars in cash besides.

The money which the steel masters have spent on gas bombs, rifles, machine guns, billies, spies, hired thugs, charged wires and lobbies probably would more than cover the cost of the increased wages which the steel workers want.

Labor Action Needed.

Labor should get ready to bombard congress with demands that the civil liberties committee should be supplied with all the funds it needs to finish its work. Nothing now on foot in Washington is more important to labor than to complete this record of what big business does to labor when it has the chance.

MORE ABOUT TELEPHONES

monopoly took $200,000 a year out of Bell Laboratories in excess interest charges alone. Then, in 1935, Bell Laboratories paid $2,627,000 of the sum in cash—which is $188,000 more than the property was worth in the first place. And the Bell Laboratories is still paying 7 per cent interest on $1,925,000 of demand notes which represent just plain extortion.

Public Soaked for Research.

In the eleven years since the Bell Laboratories was set up, the telephone monopoly has spent $177,921,569 on research. Of this sum, $52,634,681 has been charged back to A. T. & T., which takes 95 per cent of sum out of phone users. $119,171,159 has been charged back to the Western Electric, which adds the sum to the prices of materials which it makes for the operating companies which are subsidiaries of A. T. & T.

> In other words, the phone users pay for the research; and Mr. Becker was careful to bring out that a lot of this research is of no value to phone users.

Radio transmission research has cost the A. T. & T. $9,191,095 in the last eleven years, such items as transoceanic transmission, ship to shore, airplane to station. These are worth about as much to common phone users as hair restorer would be to a frog—but they pay.

Take just one item. In 1929, the A. T. & T. tried to run a telephone line to Europe via England; and sunk $2,209,989 in the effort. FCC investigators testified that the bulk of this cost was charged up to local telephone users in the rates they pay to operating subsidiaries of A. T. & T.

Jobs and Payrolls Gain In New York Factories

Albany, N. Y.—The number of workers employed in New York state factories increased 1.2 per cent from the middle of November to the middle of December, while total payrolls advanced 5.7 per cent during the same period. Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews, who issued this statement, pointed out that the average November to December changes in the last twenty-two years were a decrease of about 1 per cent in employment, accompanied by a gain of less than 1 per cent in payrols.

MORE ABOUT WARM SPRINGS

Springs, bathing in the warm water; and who found that he had been very much helped by it. Mr. Roosevelt went to Warm Springs with no appreciable delay. He went back the next spring and spent weeks, most of the time in the pools of warm water. He saw such improvement in himself and in others that in 1926, he decided on a rather comprehensive experiment.

Springs Treatment Helps 23 Persons

Twenty-three persons, all crippled to a greater or less degree by poliomyelitis, were placed under observation at Warm Springs for periods of from 5 to 17 weeks, from June to December. All showed improvement, some showed very great improvement. At the end of the season, a detailed report of each case and the progress it had made was laid before three prominent orthopedic surgeons. All expressed approval of the project to establish a Hydro-therapeutic Center at Warm Springs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was the moving force of the whole enterprise, and the major factor in raising the funds. The next summer, July 28, 1927, a non-profit corporation called the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation was formed to take over the work.

That work has been continuing and growing for nearly ten years.

The natural features of the enterprise are almost ideal. It is far enough south to have a long warm season; but the altitude of 1,000 feet above sea level insures a high percentage of cool nights, even in summer. The water pours forth from the springs at the rate of 1,800 gallons per minute; at a temperature of 90 degrees, day and night, summer and winter, for as long as records have been kept. There is no particular medicinal quality to the water; but it contains enough minerals to keep it from soaking out too much of the mineral contents of the human body through the skin; and people can and do stay for hours at a time in the pools with no weakening effects.

These natural advantages have been used to the full. "Down in the water," said one shrewd patient, "we get away from Old Man Gravity." It is true. The human body and water are so near the same density that most of our weight is abolished in the water.

Crippled Able To Move in Springs

People so badly stricken that they cannot lift a leg on land are able to move that leg quite a bit in the water. The mere encouragement of such an experience is of enormous value; and besides, exercise that starts from the inside of you is always more useful than the best that can be given from the outside by massage. And that is not said to decry massage, whose value is greater than two-thirds of the physicians of American appreciate.

Patients at Warm Springs take their exercises lying on submerged tables in the pools, or holding to a guard rail at the side. They avoid the drag of Old Man Gravity till their wasted muscles are built up enough to master that drag. They are under the constant attendance and guidance of trained physiotherapists. There is another Greek word which needs only a half-translation. "Theraphy" is the Greek for healing; and a physiotherapist is simply a physical trainer who has specialized in the healing side of his—or more commonly her—her art.

Hundreds of Patients Attest Springs' Value

The value of the Warm Springs system is attested by literally hundreds who have been restored by it from helplessness to usefulness. The need of it can be seen from two facts. Last year, 4,528 cases of poliomyelitis, commonly but incorrectly called infantile paralysis, were reported in the United States; and in spite of the efforts of scientists for many years, neither cause nor cure nor even an assured and available means of prevention is yet known. The last, indeed, seems closer than the two others; but is still a good distance from the demonstrated certainty with which we may prevent diphtheria if we go at the work in time.

For the virus which causes poliomyelitis is one of those ultra-microscopic poisons which goes unharmed through the finest filters and escapes the most searching tricks of photography. Some day, it will be trapped; but in the meantime, it must be reckoned with; and the finest bit of reckoning yet recorded is that going on at Warm Springs, where every resource of science and of human leadership is massed for the rebuilding of stricken mortals.

Strength of Will Brings Victory.

For always, always, always, the patient at Warm Springs is kept reminded of the truth which Ulysses, when old, discovered for himself:

> "Though much is taken, much remains, and though
> We are not now that strength which in old days
> Moved earth and heaven, that which we are, we are;
> One equal temper of heroic hearts,
> Made weak by time and fate; but strong in will
> To strive, to seek, to find—and not to yield."

Philadelphia Mayor Retires 3,600 Eligible for Pensions

Philadelphia, Pa.—To help meet a growing budgetary crisis, Mayor Wilson has determined to retire about 3,600 city employes who are eligible for pensions.

Akron Gas Station Men Aid Tank Drivers' Strike

Akron, O.—A strike of seventy-five gasoline tank truck drivers here brought the solid support of organized gasoline station attendants, with the result that all gasoline stations were obliged to close in one of the most effective strikes in the city's history.

Union officials assured Mayor Schroy that gasoline would be provided for dealers in essential foodstuffs and coal and for law-enforcement agencies, physicians, undertakers and nurses. Two emergency stations were established in suburban Cuyahoga Falls and Barberton, for urgent uses only.

The thoroughness of the strike was evidenced when one independent operator tried to keep his station open. It is said that pickets kept driving up in a steady stream to this "lone wolf" station for the purpose of having their radiators and oil "checked." The station finally closed.

The gasoline tank drivers, members of the local union of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, affiliated with the A. F. of L., demanded a minimum wage of $137.50 per month.

According to the lawyers, injunctions can be granted only to prevent irreparable injury. In Michigan Judge Block issued an injunction against the sit-down strike in a General Motors plant. One craves to know how strikers can work an "irreparable injury" by sitting down. Some years ago, Judge Wilkerson, in Chicago, enjoined some saxophone players from quitting work when their contracts expired. One can understand an irreparable injury from playing the saxophone, but from not playing it—this is too deep.

Refreshing Relief When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

METAL TRADES EMPLOYERS USE SPIES AND GUARDS IN FIGHT ON UNIONISM, SENATORS TOLD

Employers' Association Official Admits Undercover Men and Strikebreakers, Many With Criminal Records, Are Employed in War on Organized Labor.

Washington.—Admission that the National Metal Trades association waged bitter war on labor with the use of guards, spies and strikebreakers was made by Homer D. Sayre, executive officer of the association, before the La Follette civil liberties committee. The witness said the association had 952 members. The organization has maintained an "open shop" policy since 1901.

Sayre told the committee that undercover men, or spies, went into plants and secured labor information for members of the association.

The work was described by Sayre as under a separate department of the association, operating out of the general office.

Association Takes Control.

Senator La Follette asked Sayre whether the National Metal Trades association took "exclusive control" of a labor situation when it moved in to "cooperate" with a member in settling a strike.

"In fact," La Follette demanded, "doesn't your association demand the exclusive right to settle such a strike?"

Sayre agreed that the constitution of the association made that provision, but said that "as a matter of fact the association representation is there in an advisory capacity."

"They always take your advice, don't they?"

Sayre agreed that they usually did.

Sayre said the association furnished transportation for strikebreakers they provided to members. The association also bears all expenses and wages for guards provided a member.

Other Officials Testify.

He said O. R. Abbott, of the Chicago office, had charge of such arrangements all over the territory served. He referred to undercover agents as "special contract operatives."

Also in chage of such activities was L. A. Stringham, of New York, he said.

La Follette called both Abbott and Stringham to the witness table where they sat alongside Sayre.

Ammott said they had lists of men who could be used as guards in labor disputes.

The hiring of at least one guard with a long police record was admitted by Abbott and Stringham.

"Did you send Lawrence Pfohman as a guard in the addressograph strike in Cleveland?" La Follette asked.

"Yes."

La Follette then read the police record of Pfohman, including a Joliet prison sentence for robbery and a charge of assault to kill.

Other charges against him were for larceny and operating a "con" game.

Sheet Metal Boys Meet on Tuesdays

The new local of sheet metal workers is going strong. They meet every Tuesday evening at the labor hall at 7:30. This local is rapidly sweeping through the city in organization, and delegates to Central Body ask every unionist to watch The Labor World next week for a very important announcement.

Painters Sign Firm To Union Agreement

Rhodes Decorating company, 809 Cherry street, last week signed a closed shop agreement with Painters and Decorators union, Local 226. Announcement was made at Central Body meeting Monday night, and all unionists are informed that if they have painting, paperhanging or other decoration to be done on their homes that this company is well equipped to do a good job with union men.

Milwaukee Meat Cutters Win Pay Increase Strike

Milwaukee, Wis.—Local Union No. 248, Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, won a complete victory, following a strike lasting several weeks, in their skirmish with the Plankinton Packing company here.

The nearly 800 men are now back at work, following a settlement in which the regular union was given complete recognition, notwithstanding attempts over a long period to supplant it with a "company union."

The same wage scale as applies in the Chicago packing houses is now being paid and the settlement contains a provision that there would be no discrimination against strikers, with all seniority rights preserved.

Picket lines held tight throughout the strike, which was conducted in orderly persistence to a sweeping victory. Robert E. Mythen, of the conciliation division, U. S. department of labor, worked hard in arranging conferences and otherwise in helping to bring about a settlement.

SHOE WORKERS WIN STRIKE.

Haverhill, Mass.—Their demand granted after a one-day strike, 300 workers returned to their benches at the Unique Shoe company plant. Company officials agreed to the Boot and Shoe Workers' union demand regarding rates for manufacture of second-rate shoes.

Maine to Aid Aged by Tax On State Liquor Receipts

Augusta, Me.—The Maine legislature on Jan. 14 unanimously passed and Gov. Lewis O. Barrows immediately signed a bill to finance old age assistance by a 10 per cent sales tax on state liquor receipts.

In December a special session of the legislature passed the same bill, but it was vetoed by retiring Gov. Louis J. Brann.

Previously the state financed old age assistance with funds from the state contingent fund, but that became exhausted Dec. 31 and the state was forced to suspend the January payment to 4,000 elderly persons.

L. I. D. Lectures Start Wednesday

Dr. E. E. Ericson Has First-Hand Experience in Industrial Issues.

Dr. E. E. Ericson, University of North Carolina teacher and writer on political and economic subjects, will inaugurate the series of community discussion lectures sponsored by the Workers' Cultural society, which will begin Wednesday, Feb. 3, at Memorial auditorium at 8 p.m., when he will speak on "The New Technology —Poverty or Plenty?"

"Local citizens supporting this educational enterprise extend again their welcome to everyone for these lectures," Miss Ina Greene, chairman of the sponsoring group, stated. She announced that an open forum period for remarks and questions will be held after the lecture. She also declared that Dr. Frank W. Prescott will introduce Dr. Ericson at the meeting.

Besides having had first-hand experience in dealing with industrial issues Dr. Ericson has studied the relation of the new technology to the problem of distribution. He will discuss recent studies of America's capacities for production and consumption.

After receiving undergraduate training in Nebraska and at the University of Montana, he earned graduate degrees at the University of Maryland and at Johns Hopkins university. He now teaches at the University of North Carolina in the English department.

At one time he was a leader in farmers' union work. This experience led to his writing about the exploited dry-land farmers in Montana. His literary work has been published in "The Stratford Anthology" and in "An Anthology of Northwestern Poetry." With Ervid Ericson he wrote the volume, "Modern Russia," in 1932. Another book, "Ghandi's India," is now being published. He also acts as managing editor of the Southern Socialist.

Dr. Ericson has figured in progressive political movements. In Montana he was active in the non-partisan league. He is also working for the protection of civil liberties with the southern committee for peoples' rights.

American Federation of Labor organizers have launched a campaign for unionization of all retail store workers in the Dorchester and Roxbury districts of Boston. Men and women workers are included in the campaign.

UNION LABOR OFFERS AID AS FLOOD VICTIMS' PLIGHT GROWS WORSE

Appeal Made by State Federation Calling All Tennessee Locals to Dig Deep Into Treasuries to Rescue Fellow Americans.

Offer Made to Police Commissioner of Sufficient Men for Home Duty in Order to Release Uniformed Men for Patrol Work in Louisville—"We Are at Your Disposal," He Is Told.

Organized labor of Tennessee and Chattanooga will not be found lacking whenever national calamities occur. Regardless of class or station in life it is doing all in its power to relieve suffering and distress in the flooded sections of the Ohio and Mississippi river valleys, both by financial and personal effort contributions.

Late Tuesday night the mayor of Louisville made a radio appeal for all cities to send by airplane, if possible, as many uniformed policemen to Louisville that can be spared for duty. The Kentucky mayor, in tearful tones, stated that such help was most needed at present.

Within thirty minutes officials of Central Body had communicated with Chattanooga police officers and told them that organized labor stood ready to supply as many able-bodied men as needed to take the places of his uniformed police if he would send them to Louisville. "We feel we can make it possible in this way to relieve our neighbors, and we pledge you that we will hold the lid down here until your men come back home," Commissioner Bryan was told.

Commissioner Bryan has sent sixteen of his policemen to Louisville, and he expressed his appreciation of the offer. "This is the first offer of help of this nature I have received," he said, "and I hope that if I find it necessary that you will be standing by for my call."

Secretary Cuthbert, of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, Tuesday evening radioed from Station WAPO, calling on all Tennessee locals to take immediate steps to see that money was sent in to relief agencies.

"Let's form a picket line right up to the edge of the waters and pass food, clothes and medicines to those men, women and babies who, but for the grace of God, might have been our families instead," he urged.

Although many local unions and members, as well as individuals, have already made up purses through various channels, it is hoped that those who have not yet done so will become active at once and see that money is available to purchase necessary supplies.

Arbitrators Increase 1500 Loom Fixers' Pay

Boston.—One thousand and five hundred loom fixers in two Lowell textile plants will receive a pay increase to $28.60 for a 40-hour week, according to a decision of the state arbitration board.

Workers in the Merrimack Manufacturing company and Boott mills struck Dec. 14 in protest against a pay increase to $26.80, but agreed to submit wage differences to the board and returned to work Dec. 21.

San Antonio Light Grants Scale of Newspaper Guild

San Antonio, Tex.—The San Antonio "Light," local Hearst newspaper, following conferences with a committee of the San Antonio Newspaper Guild, has announced increased wages and other improvements for news and editorial employes. In making the announcement, William McIntosh, publisher, stated the right of editorial staff members to "join any organization of their own choosing, or refuse to join" was recognized and that there would be no discrimination by reason of any such membership.

In addition to adjusting wage scales in keeping with other Heart papers where employes are organized, amounting in many instances to substantial increases, a 5-day, 40-hour week is granted, also sick leave with full pay and one to five weeks' dismissal notice.

Reading Police Attack Pickets With Tear Gas

Reading, Pa.—Persistence of police and other "peace officers" in beating up striking employes of the Berkshire Knitting mills here, and attacking them with tear gas bombs when several happen to get together, is being widely condemned, according to responsible labor officials.

A recent melee, in which gas bombs and clubs were freely used and, labor officials claim, without any justification, resulted in a still further order against the strikers. Sheriff Cook has issued a proclamation forbidding the assembly of "crowds" at the strike-torn plant, reputed to be the largest full fashioned hosiery plant in the world. While the sheriff insists the order does not interfere with "peaceful picketing," strikers contend it does have the effect of interference with this established right.

In the meantime, however, the ranks of the strikers hold firm and the workers appear more and more determined to win recognition of their union and a settlement that will provide fair wages and working conditions.

Building Trades Wages Boosted in St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo.—Several building craft unions here have secured wage increases which bring wage payments back to the 1929 level. Individual unions, cooperating through the Building Trades council, had submitted their demands several months in advance and the Master Builders' association, although not immediately signing a contract, announced the payment of the new scale before the dead-line.

Under the new schedule of wages, a number of increases were effected, with iron workers topping the list with $1.75 an hour, an increase of 28 cents an hour. Hoisting engineers get $1.75 an hour for operating multitple drums and $1.50 for single drum operation.

Sheet metal workers got an increase from $1.37½ to $1.50 an hour. Carpenters are getting $1.50 an hour and asbestos workers $11 a day, which is an advance of $1 a day. Building laborers, who had been getting 78¾ cents an hour, were advanced to 87½ cents an hour. All the building craft unions benefitting by the increased wages are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Gas Workers Win Strike in Toledo

Toledo.—The 10-day strike in two Toledo gas companies ended when union workers voted to accept a one-year contract.

The contract calls for 5 to 49 per cent wage increases and improved working conditions.

Flood Should Help Dam Projects

For some time President Roosevelt has been severely criticized from various sources for his extensive projects for construction of dams in the Tennessee valley to hold back flood waters. It is a human trait that when catastrophes do not actually exist, not much thought is given to them. When the hour of trial does come on us there is great lamentng for our shortsightedness.

We hope now that the many millions of dollars of damage being done to property in Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Tennessee, not to mention loss of human life and attendant suffering, is uppermost in the public mind, that President Roosevelt will present to congress legislation that will allow the Cumberland river to be controlled, and will harness the rampant Ohio streams during flood times.

Teachers Should Have a Pension

It is to be hoped that our local delegation will act with promptness when the completed pension bill for school teachers is presented to them in Nashville. At present there are one or two details being worked out in the proposed bill which will prevent the law from being declared unconstitutional when passed.

Teachers do not have the privilege of becoming beneficiaries of the social security pensions under the federal government, and they of all classes of people should be provided for in their old age.

It is believed that the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' association will complete its study of every phase of the proposed act in the next week. When such is done, school teachers may rest assured that organized labor will throw its full support toward securing its enactment.

Union leaders state that 80 per cent of the employes of General Motors got less than $1,200 each during the past year. But Knudsen says, with tears in his voice, "we are trying to do the right thing by our men."

Jackson and Roosevelt

Some folks who have nothing better to think about have queried what President Roosevelt meant by asking that the reviewing stand from which he saw the inaugural parade should be built on the lines of Andrew Jackson's Tennessee home, the Hermitage. Why, they ask, should Roosevelt hark back to Jackson?

The answer is that in at least one particular, the two men are strikingly similar, and that there is a still closer resemblance in the problems which they faced.

The keynote of the character of both men is courage; unbreakable courage. Jackson showed his courage in war, and Roosevelt showed his in peace. The man now admittedly the political and social leader of America, a few years ago was expected to spend the rest of his life being lifted back and forth between a couch and a wheeled chair. For clear, long-term grit, Roosevelt's battle against paralysis is not surpassed by anything, even in the record of Jackson.

The repeated elections of Jackson and Roosevelt are alike victories won by the common people of America over the economic royalists of a century ago and now. Then, privilege chasers who hated Jackson called themselves, with becoming modesty, "the rich, the wise, the good." Now, privilege chasers who hate Roosevelt call themselves the Liberty League. The names are different, but the natures are identical.

For another similarity, both Jackson and Roosevelt had to deal with nullifiers; men who claimed the right to nullify laws demanded by the people, passed by congress, signed by the president.

The nullifiers of Jackson's day were in South Carolina and the senate. The nullifiers of Roosevelt's day are in Wall Street and the supreme court. If Roosevelt whips his nullifiers as thoroughly as Jackson beat Calhoun, all will be well.

A Contributed Editorial

Here is the challenge to our democracy: In this nation I see tens of millions of its citizens—a substantial part of its whole population—who at this very moment are denied the greater part of what the very lowest standards of today call the necessities of life.

I see millions of families trying to live on incomes so meager that the pall of family disaster hangs over them day by day.

I see millions whose daily lives in city and on farm continue under conditions labeled indecent by a so-called polite society half a century ago.

I see millions denied education, recreation and the opportunity to better their lot and the lot of their children.

I see millions lacking the means to buy the products of farm and factory and by their poverty denying work and productiveness to many other millions.

I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished.

It is not in despair that I paint you that picture. I paint it for you in hope—because the nation, seeing and understanding the injustice in it, proposes to paint it out. The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much, it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little.—President Roosevelt's inaugural address.

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

So far as we know the earth still rolls its way around the sun at the same rate of speed as of old. Time runs on, but such things remain as they are, except for calculations too fine for the average mind to grasp. But while the earth rolls along in its accustomed way, things on the outer surface of the shell of the earth pick up their speed and do a rat-a-tat-tat in rising crescendo. Like gunfire, first an occasional shot, then quicked, then the steady pump of a repeating rifle, then a machine gun, tearing away like blazes.

Think of this as you measure the doings of this year. It will help you. Issues appear, dimly—and before you know it they are white hot and the crisis comes.

Think back. Nothing is as it was before the World war. Again, nothing is as it was before Franklin D. Roosevelt took office the first time. In a little less than four years our whole national picture changed. He has taken office for a second term. The wiseacres speculate on turns to right, or to left. Nothing anybody can do about it can preserve today's things as they are. Four years hence another complete phase will have come—and possibly will also have gone. And nothing is changing faster than the method of controlling the machinery of production and distribution. Mark that.

Congress, just now getting down to work, will enact legislation of which it may not now even dream. And some of which it does dream. One bill will be a low-cost housing bill, brought forth by Senator Wagner. Some know quite definitely what will be in that bill, but nobody can know the social changes that will follow its enactment. They will sweep from coast to coast—and that's about all that can be known for sure.

There will be industry control, of some kind. But its effect? Who knows that? Who can give us today the picture? Nobody. Nobody at all—not even Roosevelt.

This year there are many maybes. Very many. General Motors, steel and coal are used to be in alliance against labor, ready for anything. Maybe. But also maybe that whole empire will be unionized.

Sign of the times: A union tobacco manufacturer—a big corporation—puts a frankly union labor program on the air for its Avalon cigarettes. That company knows the trend of the times—and goes along. How different from the corporations that stand and fight!

Half the newspaper columnists are frankly pro-labor. The Mark Sullivans and the Dave Lawrences hold back and look back. But ime rushes on pell mell, washing out the old, dashing in with the new in a cyclone of change. Change is the only sure thing. Nothing stands still any more.

This year, of all years, keep your eyes open and keep them looking a long way ahead down the road. See the new things first! He who sees first is thrice armed!

HANDBOOK ON UNION METHODS

New York City.—"To build and to run unions today requires trained minds," writes Julius Hochman, manager of the New York Dress Joint Board, in the introduction to "Handbook of Trade Union Methods," a 96-page illustrated pamphlet published by the educational department of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union. This pamphlet, believed to be the first of its kind, is based upon talks given at a special training-for-trade-union-service course by the heads of the various departments and union experts, business agents, shop chairmen and organizers, on the basis of their practical experiences. The teachers included President David Dubinsky, of the ILGWU, on negotiation and enforcement of agreements.

Labor Expert for Ohio Job

Washington.—Thomas J. Duffy, of Columbus, O., attorney and labor expert, has been appointed special consulting representative of the social security board in the Ohio bureau of unemployed compensation.

In announcing the appointment, the board said Duffy has been interested in labor legislation since 1899 when he became head of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

WIRE-TWISTING
By ELMER

Don't forget next Wednesday is regular meeting night.

Money and electric current are just about alike; you can't keep much of any one of them.

The folks around Red Bank would like to have a TVA water company or something similar. If you have city water and just take one drink it's $1.25.

How long until election? Some members who have not been seen around much ought to come up so when voting time comes they won't be in the dark.

The electricians out at Chickamauga dam are being instructed in first aid this week by Chief Peters of the TVA police force.

* * *

A. T. Johnston is soliciting the brothers to contribute for the flood relief to the Red Cross, so if he doesn't find you just call him up and make announcements to meet him. Well over $100 has been raised by him.

What Next!

The latest in gasoline and oil service stations is made of glass brick and at night, well lighted inside, it is a glorified electric sign. The station is in Minneapolis. Other such stations are expected to be put up this year. The cost of building is higher than the usual brick or concrete construction, but advertising gains are expected to greatly outweigh the cost over its lifetime.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Has the American Federation of Labor in recent years made any declaration on war?

A.—The Tampa convention, held in November, reaffirmed previous declarations denouncing war as a means of settling international disputes.

Q.—Has labor as a whole gone on record as condemning the Hearst publications?

A.—No. The last A. F. of L. convention rejected resolutions condemning William Randolph Hearst and his papers. It was pointed out that many of the Hearst publications have contracts with unions, that his journalistic policies and opinions had nothing to do with these contracts and that under traditional American freedom of the press Hearst had a right to express any views that appeal to him.

FARM PAY HIGHER

Washington.—Farm wages averaged 103 per cent of their pre-war level at the beginning of this year, compared with an index of 94 a year earlier, the bureau of agricultural economics reported. The index is now the highest since 1931.

Farm wages declined in the last quarter of 1936 but not as much as is usual at that season.

The federal communications commission has learned that the A. T. & T., the telephone monopoly, borrowed money from its employes' pension fund at 4 per cent, and charged up the interest in "operating expenses" at 6 per cent. In nine years, this has amounted to the nice little nest egg of $47,000,000 excess charges to telephone users. More and more clearly we understand why monopolies object to investigations.

The union label and the labor union are the pioneers of higher wages and shorter hours.

SINGING STRIKERS PICKET TENNESSEE SHIRT FACTORY

Employes went on strike when the plant superintendent tried to prevent La Follette, Tenn. — Demanding union recognition, shorter hours and higher wages, nearly all of the 400 girl employes of the Atlas Shirt company quit work in a strike featured by a singing picket line and the active support of union miners.

Pickets carried banners announcing, "We are creating a new NRA."

The girls, who went to the picket line at daybreak, sang extemporaneous songs, including, "The miners are behind us and we shall not be blue."

Robert L. Childers, of District 19, United Mine Workers of America, pledged 100 per cent support to the strikers and said: "We are going to see them through to the end." Miners joined the girls on the picket lines.

Plate Glass Workers Win Large Pay Boost

Pittsburgh. —Their three-months-old strike ended under a wage agreement providing for the "highest minimum labor rates in American industry," workers of five Pittsburgh Plate Glass company plants returned to work Jan. 21.

Glenn W. McCabe, president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers, announced settlement of the strike, which threatened to curtail automobile production through loss of production of glass for cars.

Company officials made plans to resume operations immediately in the plants at Creighton and Ford City, Pa.; Clarksburg, W. Va.; Barberton, O., and Henryetta, Okla.

The agreement provided in brief:

A minimum of 63 cents an hour for men (common labor).

A minimum of 55 cents an hour for women (common labor), in which some were raised from 41 cents.

Time and a half for overtime in excess of 42 hours weekly.

Recognition of seniority rights.

Creation of a commission to investigate "inadequacies in rates between the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company. (This commission would be composed of two representatives from the union, two from Pittsburgh Plate and an impartial chairman to be appointed by the department of labor.)

The contract, which carries provisions "for other improvements and interpretations," will continue in effect one year.

BAN ON VOTE COERCION PROPOSED IN NEW YORK

Albany, N. Y.—Senator Emmett L. Doyle, new state senator from Rochester, has introduced a measure in the state legislature designed to carry out Gov. Lehman's recommendations for the outlawing of vote coercion by employers.

The bill would prohibit duress and intimidation of employes in the exercise of their elective franchise and provides heavy penalties. The bill is similar to that introduced by the U. S. senate and Senator Van Nuys.

Wage Assignment Racket Penalized in New York

New York, N. Y.—Recurrence of the old credit store racket of having purchasers sign a "wage assignment" under the belief that they were signing merely an "installment contract," was nipped here, when the two operators of the so-called Fox Credit Clothing company were fined $50 each, or ten days in jail, for violation of Section 440 of the penal law.

Guilty pleas were accepted on only one count, in lieu of many pending, when the men agreed to go out of business and make restitution to all their victims. The information showed that they had victimized war veterans and other workers, by pretending that suits sold for $17 were recently tailor made, when they had simply been made over from old clothes. The same men also operated a concern, secretly, through which they induced customers to sign wage assignments in the belief they were installment contracts. On these, it was charged, customers in many instances eventually paid as much as $83 for their $17 made-over suits.

distribution of Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America handbills. Ten girls who accepted leaflets from Organizer C. E. Handy, of the Amalgamated, were fired and the walkout promptly started.

Organizer Handy predicted the success of the strike and said the town was decidedly in favor of the strikers, with the exception of a half dozen business men who were attempting to intimidate officials.

...OOD OF PROPOSALS TO AMEND CONSTITUTION BEFORE CONGRESS

...use and Senate Opinion Seems to Favor Giving Congress Power Over Industry and Farming to Stop Court Interference With Labor and Social Legislation.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Up to the beginning of the week beginning Jan. 17, fif... proposals to amend the constitution of the United States had been in...uced in the senate, and thirty-one in the house. Only four of these pro...ed amendments—three in the house and one in the senate—would em...er congress to pass laws such as those which the supreme court has de...ed unconstitutional. No amendment has been proposed limiting directly ... power of the supreme court to declare laws unconstitutional.

...e general opinion on Capitol Hill ...n to be that if the constitution ...anged to give congress the same ...ite control of industry, agricul...ture and labor that it has now over interstate commerce, court interference can be stopped by act of congress without a special amendment.

A rough classification of the amendments introduced to date is as follows:

Giving congress added powers, 4; 3 in the house and one in the senate.

Making the term of president and vice-president six years, with no re-election, 5; four in the house and one in the senate.

Other Amendments.

Making the term of representatives four years, instead of two, as now, 5, all in the house.

Abolishing all future issues of tax exempt securities; 8; six in the house and 2 in the senate.

Giving the president power to veto items in a bill without knocking out the whole bill, 3; one in the house and two in the senate.

Limiting or changing the power to declare war, 4; two each in house and senate.

Three for Popular Rule.

Applying the initiative or referendum or primary to national affairs, 3; two in the house and one in the senate.

This leaves a few proposals out as unclassified. Two of these are identical proposals, one in the house and one in the senate, for the perrenial women's party amendment, giving equal rights to men and women. Since the American labor movement turned thumbs down on this plan years ago, pointing out that it would nullify all the special legislation which women in industry need, the repeated introduction of this plan is little more than a gesture.

To Regulate Labor Conditions.

In the house, Martin, of Colorado, and Ford, of California, introduced identical proposals for an amendment "empowering congress to regulate hours and conditions of labor and to establish minimum wages in any employment, and to regulate production, industry, business, trade and commerce to prevent unfair methods therein."

To make assurance doubly sure, Mr. Martin and Mr. Ford added a second section, knocking out the due process clause with respect to all legislation on these subjects, except as to methods of enforcing such legislation.

Congressman Faddis, of Pennsylvania, puts it in shorter form: "The congress shall have power to make laws to regulate agriculture, commerce, industry and labor."

Logan Has Air-Tight Plan.

Senator Logan, of Kentucky, goes at the same proposition in a different way. He would give congress power:

"To make all laws to promote the general welfare of the United States, and to determine the necessity for such laws."

It would be difficult for even the die-hard justices of the supreme court to get around that statement.

Two other amendments offered aim at separate reforms which have been invalidated by the supreme court.

Hamilton Fish, of New York, proposes this amendment:

"Each state shall have power to fix fair minimum rates of wages for women and minors employed in industry for service of equivalent value."

For Agricultural Control.

Senator Nye, of South Dakota, would make it possible to restore the AAA by this amendment:

"Congress shall have power to regulate the sale and marketing of all agricultural commodities."

Four of the eight proposed amendments to end the nuisance and loss of revenue due to tax-exempt securities are identical in wording; and all of them are nearly identical in effect. One makes an exception that tax-exempt securities may be issued in the "exigencies of war," and be valid. There are other differences; but none important.

The three amendments giving the president power to veto items without vetoing a whole bill give the president powers now held by many governors of states. Two are identical in wording, all in fact.

Four War Amendments.

Of the war amendments, one, by Senator Frazier, of North Dakota, reads as follows:

"War for any purpose shall be illegal, and neither the United States nor any state, territory, association or person subject to its jurisdiction shall prepare for, declare, engage in, or carry on war or any other armed conflict, expedition, invasion or undertaking within or without the United States, nor shall any funds be raised, appropriated or expended for such purposes."

Clear enough. I imagine Hitler would whoop for joy if the United States adopted that amendment—but not even with stimulants can I imagine it being adopted.

The other three war amendments provide for referendums, except in case of invasion, and in one case imminent threat of invasion proclaimed by the president.

Would Conscript Property.

Another amendment by Representative O'Malley, of Wisconsin, gives congress power to conscript property in time of war whenever it conscripts men.

Lemke, of North Dakota, in the house proposes an amendment to let the voters of the United States initiate legislation. Senator Pope, of Idaho, would have them initiate amendments to the constitution, and Senator Steiwer, of Oregon, has an amendment for a presidential primary.

Two amendments deal with the liquor traffic. To provide that aliens may not be counted in apportioning representatives in congress.

PHOTO ENGRAVERS PAY $4,000,000 TO UNEMPLOYED MEMBERS

New York City.—Edward F. White, president of New York Photo-Engravers Union No. 1, International Photo-Engravers union, announced at the twenty-ninth annual meeting of No. 1 that $4,000,000 had been distributed among 3,000 members in unemployment benefits since 1930. The average number idle in that six-year period was 600 at a time, he said.

The union went on record as opposed to the committee for industrial organization, following an address by Edward J. Vloz, international president.

"Away back in 1900 the photo-engravers were represented in the so-called vertical typographical union," President Volz said. "Our experience since we organized for ourselves has been most encouraging, real progress resulted and I warn you to be careful in guarding against any C. I. O. movement in our ranks today."

Wausau Shoe Workers Gain Agreement for Closed Shop

Wausau, Wis.—Products of the Pied Piper Shoe company may now bear the union label of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union. This authority was gained by reason of an agreement signed by the company with Boot and Shoe Workers' Local Union No. 686.

The firm manufactures a line of shoes for growing girls, misses and children under the trade name of Pied Piper, and has been located here for many years.

While the shoe workers had been organized for some time, the new agreement provides for the "closed shop," which carries with it the right to use the union label. Pied Piper shoes, regarded as of the highest quality obtainable, are sold by principal stores in all leading cities of the United States.

The General Motors idea of collective bargaining is to have plant managers, who have no power to change or modify any policy of the company, meet with "employe representatives," whom the plant managers have power to fire without notice.

Progressives to Plan Fight for Amendment

Washington.—Senator George W. Norris, the only living man who fathered a real amendment to the United States constitution, has been chosen to preside at a conference in this city of progressives who believe an amendment to the constitution is absolutely necessary to curb the interference of reactionary federal courts.

"This supreme court," said Senator Norris, "is out of touch with the people. It has constituted a continuous constitutional convention, ruling on merits of legislation."

THE NOVELIST'S PLOT.

A highly distinguished novelist frequently found himself traveling in a train with two very talkative women. Having recognized him from his published portraits, they opened fire on him in regard to his novels, praising them in a manner which was unendurable to the sensitive author.

Presently the train entered the tunnel and in the darkness the novelist raised the back of his hand to his lips and kissed it soundingly.

When the light returned he found the two women regarding each other in icy silence. Addressing them with great suavity, he said:

"Ah, ladies, the one great regret of my life will be that I shall never know which of you it was that kissed me!"

Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, is confident that "congress will have the courage of the president's convictions."

CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS HOLDS WAGNER ACT UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Employer's Right to Contract With Employes Taken Away by Law, Judges Hold—Dissenting Opinion Brands Decision as Upholding Liberty of Strong to Oppress Weak.

San Francisco.—By a two to one vote, the United States court of appeals of the Ninth circuit has declared the national labor relations act unconstitutional. This was done in the face of five decisions of three other circuit courts of equal powers which have upheld the constitutionality of the act; and in the face, also, of a blistering dissent by the third judge of the Ninth circuit, Justice Francis A. Garrecht.

The NLRB had ordered that five employes discharged by the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company should be given their jobs, and reimbursed for the wages lost; and also that the company should "cease and desist" from interference with the union, or threatening to discharge employes who sought to join the union.

The majority opinion was written by Curtis D. Wilbur, who was secretary of the navy under President Coolidge. Justice Wilbur declared that the right of the company "freely to contract with its employes, is taken away without due process of law."

Act Termed "Coercion."

"The act is unconstitutional," Justice Wilbur went on, "as violative of the Fifth amendment in so far as it attempts to force on an employer engaged in interstate commerce a contract of employment with employes who have voluntarily terminated the contract of employment.

"The act coerces both the employer and the minority of the bargaining unit."

Justice Wilbur was plainly peeved that any board should require an employer to take back discharged employes and compensate them for unjust dismissal.

"The question involved," he declared, "is one squarely of the constitutional power on the part of congress to require such re-employment and reimbursement through the medium of the national labor relations board and the decrees of this court.

"These considerations alone require us to deny the application of the board for an enforcement of the order."

Liberty to Contract "Mythical."

Justice Garrecht, in his dissenting opinion, upheld the constitutional authority of congress to regulate "the inalienable right to hire and fire;" and went on:

"The main opinion argues for absolute liberty to contract, but the irony of the situation is that, under existing economic conditions, such freedom as between master and workman is mostly mythical.

"The only liberty interfered with is the liberty of the strong to oppress the weak.

"Economic domination must be kept within definitely just limits, and where necessary government, where possible, should exercise effective control, and where the evil embraces the field of interstate commerce the right to do so within the constitution cannot be questioned.

Master's Rights "Distorted."

"In the main opinion, the rights of the master are exaggerated and distorted, while the equal rights of the employed are waved aside or overlooked and, more significant still, the rights of the public are ignored or utterly disregarded."

Justice Garrecht held that industrial disturbances in the United States had reached a pitch that required a strong hand to take control, and bring order out of chaos.

"The increase and magnitude of the conflicts between employers and workers is appalling," he said.

"I feel that a decision which deprives congress of the power to establish a department of the government clothed with authority to compose the increasing strife between employers and employes, which admittedly hampers interstate commerce, is to hamper the general welfare by crippling the government in the exercise of a most beneficial, even necessary, function in the modehn field of industrial employment.

"The enactment of this statute by congress was not beyond its power under the commerce clause of the constitution."

THREE COURTS UPHELD ACT.

Washington.—United States circuit courts in three circuits have upheld the constitutionality of the national labor relations act in five separate cases.

The circuit court of the Second circuit upheld the act in the Associated Press case and the New York Packing case.

The circuit court of the Fourth circuit upheld the act in the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach company case.

The circuit court of the Fifth circuit upheld the act in the Bradley Lumber case and the Agwilines, Inc., case.

In all these cases, the decisions of the circuit courts were unanimous.

LABOR - - - - - MARCHES ON

"The American Federation of Labor issued more charters for December, 1936, than were issued in any one month since August, 1934," said Frank Morrison, federation secretary-treasurer, in reporting a membership of 3,675,376 last December, an increase of 1,548,580 over the membership for the year ending Aug. 31, 1933.

* * *

Employes of the Pearl harbor naval station, Honolulu, have been granted a metal trades council local charter by the Metal Trades Department, American Federation of Labor. This brings into the Metal Trades department the employe groups of all naval stations and yards.

With the backing of Labor's Non-Partisan league, workers in the big oil plants of the Standard Oil company and Tide Water Oil company at Bayonne, N. J., are taking action for affiliation with the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers.

In a drive to raise its membership to a quarter million, the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union is using varied methods. Its educational department caters for 20,000 of its members by classes ranging from tap dancing to the production of the three-act play, John Wexley's "Steel," in addition to study classes in social science. Numerous publications include "Handbook of Trade Union Methods" and "Mother Goose Goes Union" (a trade union revision of the well-known jingles). In New England leaflets have been showered from airplanes. Girl organizers in stage coats of mail crusaded against the sweatshop (and their pictures incidentally appeared in labor papers literally from coast to coast). Now the bright blue covers of book matches carry the appropriate slogan "Ladies' Garment Workers, Light Up Your Life. Join Your Union!" Inside, the appeal runs "All Workers Are Bettering Their Conditions by Joining Trade Unions. WHY NOT YOU? Become Part of the American Trade Union Movement."

The local merchant will not try to ascertain where he can procure merchandise with the union label on them until his customers ask for them.

William Green, Gilbert Hyatt, Congressman Mead and Others Praise Government Workers at Program Given by Cooperation of Avalon Cigarettes and U. S. Employes' Unions.

Washington.—Before a brilliant audience of 200 union officials and leaders, government officials, senators, congressmen, writers, social workers and friends, what one Washington daily paper called a "nine-star broadcast" was put on as a part of the observation of National Civil Service week by Avalon cigarettes, made by the Brown and Williamson Tobacco corporation of Louisville.

For this broadcast, Avalons added 15 minutes to the usual program time, thus extending it to a full half hour, with additional stations. A score of stations which clamored for the program could not be accommodated. Union groups had asked to have the program in many cities.

The broadcast was staged in the beautiful dining room of the Ambassador hotel, turned over for the exclusive use of this program by Manager Russell A. Conn. Speakers and announcers were grouped around four microphones on one side of the room, while the orchestra was ranged around other microphones on the opposite side. With WOL as the station of origin, the broadcast was carried by WOL, WEVD and an eastern network. In several places union groups had organized meetings for listening.

The program was organized and produced by Chester M. Wright, who is the regular commentator on the Avalon program each Friday night. The speaking participants were: William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Gilbert E. Hyatt, editor and legislative representative, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks; Berniece Heffner, secretary, American Federation of Government Employes; Hon. James Mead, chairman, house committee on postoffices and post roads; Hon. Robert Ramspeck, chairman, house committee on civil service; Hon. J. M. Donaldson, deputy first assistant postmaster-general of the United States; Harry B. Mitchell, president of the United States civil service commission; Mrs. Lucille McMillin, member United States civil service commission, and Chester M. Wright.

The 16-piece Bureau of Internal Revenue orchestra furnished music, including the theme song, "Avalon." Raymond B. Robinson, remarkable baritone, postoffice clerk, sang. There were many predictions that a singing career, rather than a postal career, awaits Robinson.

A full hour's program, outside the broadcast, was presented. In this program, the orchestra and Mr. Robinson participated. Also starring in the entertainment was Helen Karen Hoyem, of the Marian Chase dancers, in three beautiful solo numbers that brought her prolonged applause, amounting to an ovation. This program was presided over by Congressman Mead, introduced by Oliver Hoyem. The Singing Secretaries, an internal revenue bureau crooning trio of unusually clever girls, also participated. Miss Edna Merton, radio star, was piano accompanitst for the singing numbers, for the dance, and for the voice participation in the theme song. Morris Novik, WEVD station manager, came from New York to witness the broadcast. WEVD is the New York station outlet for the Avalon program.

The program is said to have been the most pretentious labor broadcast ever attempted and the only one of its kind ever staged under commercial sponsorship.

A federal judge in California put the case for the national labor relations act in one sentence when he said: "The only liberty interfered with (by the act) is the liberty of the strong to oppress the weak."

Harlan Mine Operators Frantic

Hotel in Harlan in Which Union Organizers Were Staying Was Tear-Gassed Last Week and Two Union Automobiles Dynamited.

Meningitis Quarantine Declared in Attempt to Prevent Meetings of Workers—All Theaters, Schools, Churches and Dance Halls Closed.

Despite Terrorist Tactics Men Are Joining Union by the Hundreds.

The war is on again in Harlan county, Kentucky! Coal operators are frantic with fear that their strictly non-union mines will come into the fold of the United Mine Workers of America, and paid thugs, dynamiters, as well as obedient sheriffs, cops, state police and other officials are already doing their dirty work.

On Jan. 11, twenty-one organizers from ten districts moved into Harlan county and began spreading the union gospel among the mistreated miners there. All went well outside of the 300 gun thugs who are operating as deputy sheriffs, says George Titler, until on Jan. 23 at about 3 a.m., the new Harlan hotel, where fourteen organizers were staying, was bombed with tear gas. According to Titler, T. Arnett, vice-president District 19, and myself were awakened by a hissing sound, and found tear gas streaming under our room door. We threw open the windows and yelled to arouse the rest of the hotel guests. Arnett opened the door and kicked the bombs down the hallway, where there was a circulation of air. This helped to prevent suffocation of all of us.

"About five minutes later there were two terrific explosions about half a block from our hotel. We found the cars of Milton Hall and Frank Hall blown up by what appeared to be hand grenades. Several windows were broken in the L. & N. depot nearby."

Although miners in Harlan fear for the safety of their families, they are eager to join the union. During the last two weeks several men suspicioned of joining the union were badly beaten up.

In addition to the organized thuggery, county officials have declared a meningitis quarantine. The real issue is unionitis. Schools, dance halls, churches and theaters are closed up tight, and no mass meetings are tolerated.

It is charged by union officials that most of the new deputies put on by the sheriff are ex-convicts.

In years past it has been certain suicide for union organizers or union men to appear in Harlan county. Instances have occurred where they were shot down in the streets like dogs. However, says Titler, organization activities will not be stopped, but will be pushed with renewed vigor until the festering sore in Harlan county is completely cured.

Hosiery Workers Favor More Funds For Spy Inquiry

Convention Backs Continuance of Senate Investigation—Constitutional Amendment Indorsed and Drive for Textile Act Begun.

Washington.—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers met here in convention on Jan. 25. President Emile Rieve presided most of the time, relieved occasionally by Alexander McKeown, vice-president.

The convention will launch a drive for a national textile act, the one introduced by Representative Ellenbogen.

"The voluntary labor code," said President Rieve, "which hosiery manufacturers imposed upon themselves when the NRA was nullified, is rapidly breaking down. Unless the national textile act is passed, the hosiery industry will probably be the scene of some bitter strikes this spring."

Spy Probe Indorsed.

The request of the La Follette civil liberties investigating subcommittee for additional funds from the senate was indorsed and delegates suggested that directors and officials of concerns, including the hosiery industry, be called to explain why they had employed "labor spies" as disclosed by the committee's hearings.

The convention passed unanimously a resolution which said:

"That the American Federation of Hosiery Workers urge the prompt passage of a constitutional amendment which will permit the federal executive and congress to establish minimum standards of wages, maximum hours of work, regulation of work load, safeguards to regulate the employment of women and minors, and rights to collective bargaining; and,

"That pending passage of such an amendment, congress adopt such laws as may be necessary to provide for immediate jurisdiction by the supreme court on all cases attacking the constitutionality of federal law, so that lower and intermediate courts may not handcuff and render helpless by injunctions and obiter dicta of prejudiced judges such acts as the labor disputes act in the operation of which delay is equivalent to invalidation."

End of Child Labor Demanded.

The convention also passed unanimously resolutions calling for the abolition of child labor, a permanent federal, state and municipal housing program, and federal legislation for health insurance. One vote was cast against the last. The convention also voted to study and explore the services of credit unions.

In addition, the convention went on record as favoring labor representatives on the federal reserve board.

Another resolution opposed loans by the R. F. C. to any textile concerns that were not bargaining collectively with their workers as required by the Wagner labor relations act.

An "Accident" in Harlan County

This is one of two cars belonging to organizers for the United Mine Workers of America which were blasted by high explosives five minutes after the organizers themselves were routed from their hotel beds at three o'clock in the morning by tear gas fumes.

MACHINE POLITICS SCHEME TO WIN GRIP ON SOCIAL SECURITY ACT AID

Various Forms of Help Given Under Federal Law Falling Into Hands of Local Bosses, Who Anticipate Rich Pickings and Plan to Further Extend Control.

Washington.—Machine politics is casting an envious eye at the social security act, and preparing for an incursion into the rich domain afforded by the aid that is made available to the states by the federal government under this act.

Such aid includes grants for public assistance to aged people, a scheme of unemployment compensation, aid to sick and dependent children and for certain forms of vocational training. Sometimes the grants are outright, and again they must be matched by the states.

But in some of the big states of the east various forms of this aid are falling into a net of machine politics and control of local political bosses. The conditions may even break the record of the Harry Hopkins set-up in the season just after the 1934 strike of the United Textile Workers, when hundreds of strikers, denied their jobs again, found control of the local relief situation lodged tightly in the fists of the local mill bosses.

Politics Menace Law.

Thousands of mill workers who had been on strike, with their families, went through a desperate winter of starvation as mill bosses ordered their names kept off of the local relief rolls.

Thus it is that machine politics is casting a sinister shadow across the entire scheme of federal-state aid as provided for in the social security act.

The presumption under the federal and state laws is that a state or county agency charged with the task of making an impartial examination of each applicant's case will render a decision based on the applicant's merit and need. In every case the individual applicant, whether an elderly person in need or a helpless mother with dependent children, must pass muster before a state created agency.

Bosses Sway Decisions.

But this is not proving to be the case every time. The evidence is accumulating that in some localities such applications are being granted primarily at the behest of some local political mogul.

Movements are afoot in some of the states to amend the federal social security law in a manner that will load up the lists of persons in accepted industries with farm workers and casual laborers. Such workers do not come under the provisions of the law now, and their inclusion, it is felt, would throw an additional load upon industrial employes and their employers to carry.

Other schemes afoot would permit employers with private schemes for old age retirement to be exempt from the terms of the social security act, and to provide such benefits to their workers on the employers' own terms.

Tightening of Law Probable.

Labor leaders in Washington realize that an energetic fight is ahead of the industrial workers of the country if the benefits of the social security act are to be preserved intact, and the law made a success without falling under the control of machine politics in the industrial states. To this end it is likely that congress will give attention to tightening up the social security mechanism in Washington and revamping some of the vital and essential features of it.

FRANCIS J. GORMAN BECOMES TEXTILE WORKERS' PRESIDENT

Strike Leader in 1934 Succeeds Thomas F. McMahon, Who Resigns to Accept Rhode Island Post—Union Executive Council Votes Support of Auto Strikers.

Washington.—Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America and leader of the great textile strike of 1934, has assumed the presidency of the union, succeeding President Thomas F. McMahon, who has been appointed labor commissioner of Rhode Island.

McMahon, veteran trade unionist and president of the United Textile Workers since 1921, presented his resignation at a meeting of the international executive council in Washington. By action of the council, he was made honorary president of the union.

The council unanimously voted its support of President Gorman, who said:

"As president, my policy will be the policy laid out for our international by the mandates of the last biennial convention. This policy involves the launching of an immediate nation-wide campaign to organize the unorganized textile workers. It involves an energetic drive to pass the national textile act at this session of congress. It involves the activizing and drawing into collective leadership the members of the local unions themselves. These are some of the convention mandates. There are many others."

One of the first acts of President Gorman was to transmit to members of congress the decision of the executive council protesting against any restriction of the activities of the La Follette civil liberties committee and urging an immediate appropriation for the continued investigation of labor spies.

The executive council voted a contribution of $1,000 monthly to the general campaign of the comittee for industrial organization, of which the United Textile Workers is a part. The council also voted to recommend to the local unions that they place a $1 assessment on their members.

"Wholehearted and unqualified" support was pledged the United Automobile Workers in their strike against General Motors and a declaration of support and commendation was telegraphed to the sit-down strikers in Flint, Mich.

Milwaukee Machinists Win Lindemann Strike

Agreement Recognizing Union and Granting 40-Hour Week and Wage Increases Ends 18 months' Strike.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The strike declared against the A. J. Lindemann & Hoverson company by the Machinists' union and three other unions in August, 1935, was brought to an end by an agreement granting union recognition, a 2½ per cent wage increase and the 40-hour week, with provisions against loss of seniority and discrimination against the strikers. The strike was originally declared, according to union officials, because the firm discharged workers who had started a movement to organize the employes of the company. About 600 employes were involved. The company manufactures electric, gas, kerosene and gasoline stoves.

Must Our Slums Wait for a Flood?

Louisville.—Louisville will be rebuilt much as was Chicago after the great fire, Mayor Neville Miller says.

Slums are to be cleared, traffic routes rearranged, auxiliary utility stations built, and a step taken toward reduction of crime and disease.

"We are going to do this slowly, carefully, systematically, and legally," Miller announced. "If we rush into things too fast, before you know it some one will be building a monument to the flood instead of houses for poor people."

Dr. Harry W. Laidler Next L. I. D. Speaker To Appear in City

Authority on Social Medicine to Lecture on "Is Health the Public's Business?"

Dr. Harry W. Laidler, former president of the national bureau of economic research and an executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy, will speak on "Is Health the Public's Business?"—the case for socialized medicine—at Memorial auditorium at 8 p.m. on Feb. 10, when the Workers' Cultural society will present another in its series of community discussion lecturers.

"People interested in applying the scientific method to the study of social problems will particularly enjoy hearing Dr. Laidler," Miss Ina Greene, chairman of the local sponsoring group, said today. She also announced that Stanton Smith will introduce the visiting speaker.

Dr. Laidler was graduated from Wesleyan university, where he scored a notable debating record. He later studied law at Brooklyn Law school and was admitted to the New York bar. In 1914 he was awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of political economy at Columbia university.

Dr. Laidler has written extensively on American social conditions and is recognized as a leading economist. His "History of Socialist Thought" is the acknowledged authority, widely used in colleges throughout the country and throughout the world. "Concentration in American Industry," published in 1931, was the first work to analyze the astonishing growth of mergers and monopoly in American industry since the World war. "Socializing Our Democracy" was published in 1935. Prof. Charles A. Beard said of this book that it was "indispensable for everyone interested in the movement of contemporary thought." Dr. Laidler's most recent work, "A Program for Modern America," was listed as among the ten best books published in 1936 by a special literary board of the magazine, "Current History."

He has recently done special research work in public health, and has studied socialized medicine and health insurance. He speaks authoritatively on this important subject. He is thoroughly familiar with medical cooperatives and other aspects of medical economics.

One of Dr. Laidler's personal friends here in describing him, stated, "Pleasing in manner and scholarly, yet popular in presentation, Dr. Laidler is a social scientist who can translate economic and political complexities into language easily understood by the layman. You will enjoy the by the layman. He will enjoy the open forum period after his lecture, when everyone will be invited to offer remarks and questions."

"G" MAN TO TALK TO CENTRAL BODY MONDAY NIGHT

Will Tell Labor Delegates How Uncle Sam Catches Public Enemies.

Department of Justice Sponsoring Series of Lectures to Acquaint Public With Crime Detection.

Inspector W. H. Drane Lester, administrative assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, of the department of justice, will address Central Body next Monday night at its regular session. Mr. Lester is also the personal representative of Mr. Hoover. Mr. Hoover is the director of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice.

Mr. Lester's subject will be "Crime Detection." As an indication of the popularity of his informative lectures, taking some 45 minutes to deliver, Mr. Lester is scheduled to remain in Chattanooga for five days, making six or more appearances each day before all high and junior high schools of the city and county, and before joint meetings of all civic and women's clubs.

He assists in training field agents of the bureau, and holds a commission of major in the reserve corps of the intelligence section of the United States army. He is a real southerner, being a graduate of the University of Mississippi, and is also a Rhodes scholar.

Although his set speech lasts approximately 45 minutes, it would take an ordinary speaker two or three times as long to deliver the same address, Mr. Lester being capable of speaking in an audible and interesting way at the rate of 350 words per minute, outtalking even the redoubtable Graham McNamee.

Every delegate is requested to be on hand Monday night and bring members of their families with them. Expense of this educational feature is borne entirely by the federal government.

1,200 Truck Drivers Secure Pact in Strike

Philadelphia Agreement Also Lands Wage Increases from 125 Furniture Warehouse and Moving Firms.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A sweeping victory of outstanding importance was won here, after a four weeks' strike, by about 1,200 truck drivers, employed by 125 furniture warehouses and moving firms. The settlement included recognition of the union and pay increases.

A tentative agreement was made between the Household Goods Movers, the employers' group and Local Union No. 107, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, with provision for further conferences to arrive at a permanent agreement through collective bargaining, the strikers in the meantime returning to work. Mayor Wilson's labor board, which has participated in a number of labor dispute settlements and prevented others, aided in bringing about the settlement in this instance.

The agreement provided definitely for the "closed shop," which is to say that the union is recognized as the exclusive collective bargaining agency for the truck drivers and helpers employed by the concern participating in the settlement. Local wages for drivers and packers were set at 70.08 cents an hour; helpers and warehousemen, 56.02 cents an hour; long distance wages (for more than 40 miles from city hall) for helpers 50 cents an hour and for drivers and packers, 60 cents an hour, with allowance of $1 a night and money for meals. The permanent agreement, expected to be arrived at soon, will probably include all gains secured by the workers in the tentative agreement, with the possibility of providing still further advances.

The life of labor unions depends upon a healthy diet of union labels, shop cards and buttons.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

GENERAL MEETING SATURDAY

The February general meeting of the federation will be held in the auditorium at Dickinson on Saturday, Feb. 6, at 10 a.m. A splendid report of the legislative committee on the proposed teachers' pension bill will be presented at that time. This report was adopted by the board of directors last Monday night.

TENURE IDEA SPREADS

Marion county teachers have succeeded in securing passage of a tenure law modeled on the one in effect in this city and county. A state-wide law is ready for presentation at an early date. These pieces of legislation have grown directly out of the work of our local. Chattanooga and Hamilton county teachers may well feel proud of their achievements in not only improving their own working conditions, but in addition serving as an inspiration to teachers all over the state.

ST. LOUIS "YELLOW DOG" CONTRACT

Local 420 of St. Louis is composed of college and private school teachers. This is not due to lack of desire for organization on the part of public school teachers there. The latter are kept out by a "yellog dog" contract ruling forbidding St. Louis public school teachers to join any organization affiliated with organized labor. The federation board of directors in a resolution passed last Monday night called on the St. Louis board of education to rescind this arbitrary and un-American ruling. Such a rule denies to teachers their fundamental rights as citizens, and is a definite step toward fascism. Such tendencies should be nipped in the bud wherever they manifest themselves if democracy is to be maintained in this country.

PROMINENT TEACHERS HERE THIS MONTH

Two prominent members of the A. F. of T. are on the League for Industrial Democracy lecture program this year. Dr. Eston E. Ericson, forceful young University of North Carolina professor, appeared last Wednesday. On Feb. 17 Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, president of the Philadelphia Teachers' union, will speak. All the lectures are being presented in the community hall of the Memorial auditorium on Wednesday evenings beginning at 8 o'clock.

What Next!

Subway stations in Tokyo are being equipped to show news reels to waiting travelers. The pictures will include films advertising Japanese winter resorts and nearby points of interest and scenic beauty.

Floods and Unemployment

Two facts, both well known, should be put together for the American people to ponder on—and then act on.

The first fact is the flood. Over a considerable region, it is the worst on record. A million or more people have been driven from their homes. The known deaths from the flood were 130 as this was written, and the roll was climbing almost hourly. Rescuers paddled a boat to where a woman and a newborn baby were on the roof of a house standing in water to its eaves, but they came too late. Both woman and child were dead.

More than three thousand square miles are already under water, and the area thrown out of effective use is at least ten times as great. And the whole may be covered before the flood is through. Cities are fighting a desperate battle against a foe as destructive as the fascists at Madrid.

The army prepared—and expected—to move all people out of a strip in places 100 miles wide along the Mississippi, from Cairo to New Orleans.

When the waters retire, they will leave behind a coating of mud over everything, varying from inches to feet in depth, damaging and often destroying what it covers, expensive and toilsome to clear away. That pestilential mud, a few years ago, was good soil growing trees on hillsides where now are only bare and gullied slopes. Yet probably for every cubic yard of soil turned into mud and deposited where it is not wanted on land, ten cubic yards have been carried out into the Gulf of Mexico.

The other fact is unemployment. Despite the large and very real measure of recovery in the last four years, the American Federation of Labor reports 9,000,000 unemployed in November—the number is probably greater now. The A. F. of L. classes emergency workers for the government as unemployed. In the WPA. the CCC and other relief agencies, there are 3,000,000 of these.

This leaves 6,000,000 people entirely without jobs.

Why not abolish unemployment by building and planting our floods?

It is sheer lunacy to talk about "permanent and unavoidable unemployment" in a country where such a gigantic work is to be done. The country needs all the man power it can get, just as it does in a war. In fact, in any far-seeing sense, this is war—war against natural forces let loose by man's foolishness in the past.

Grant that new laws must be passed before the work can be undertaken without permitting a deal of extortion and unearned profit. Congress is in session. Grant that vast plans must be drawn and many surveys made before the work can move into its greatest stage. The army engineers, the forest service, and other public bodies have enough information and plans ready made to put a million men at work in six months. Grant that only a minority of men now idle can be employed in this work. A million men working at fair wages at a task like the one which confronts the nation would make work for twice as many more.

There is no surplus of labor in this country if the country is to be developed aright; and labor is getting in a mood not to be content with makeshifts.

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Floods? Why are floods? They are partly for the same reason that there are broken-down and discarded men. In 1930 there were floods of human wastage, tossed up on the banks of the industrial stream. Today we have the story of destruction from too much water. Unions played their heroic part in the flood of unemployment. They played their part in the river madness of water. It will be a long time before the whole story is known, if it is ever known. There is an astounding lack of information in union offices thus far. But it can be accepted as sure that they have played their part.

Maybe rivers rose just as high in the days of the Indians—and before that. But then they had plenty of lowlands to wander around in and the Indians hadn't built docks and factories right up to the banks. White men, eager for the last word in efficiency and convenience, as well as profit, have walled up the rivers so that when the water goes high it goes right into buildings and streets at once. And there is damage and woe. Equally important, they have slashed away the trees. The "sponges" that used to be there to soak up the water and thin it out and remove the sting and danger have been taken away by man. What men have done to the landscape has increased the height of the water wall and destroyed its natural safety valve.

So, we have floods. We shall have more floods. Uncle Dan Roper can't stop them. Maybe the army can't stop them, either. It is a huge problem. It is of nation-wide importance. It may change our ways of making a living. It may wipe out cities. Similarly with the dry belt in the west—we may have the desert there once more. We go hunting profits and we lose our sustenance. Sustenance, after all, comes out of the land—out of tillable soil. There have been great migrations of whole peoples because the land changed under their feet. Boards of directors don't keep people fed when natural sources fail. And labor has a part to play in the salvaging.

Floods? Terrible floods, covering whole cities, driving people mad, taking many lives, making some places so they can never be lived in again. Union men, among others, have lost everything. Dozens, if not hundreds, of union halls must have been destroyed; valuable records washed away, never to be found again. It is a story that appalls. It baffles the imagination. The radio calls for help told the story better than all the fancy writing.

"Speed boats, slow down; you are swamping smaller craft."

"Go to thus and so and take ten people out of a building."

"Get a boat to such and such street and pick up a woman and child."

And in a prison fighting started as the water came in—rats in a sinking ship. Only instead of a ship going down it was water coming up. The tragedy of the seas in reverse.

And down the long road of the future—what? How many more floods? And then what, for America and Americans.

Comment on World Events

"Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad," runs the old Greek proverb. The madness which the Greeks had in mind is the kind that we call variously a swelled head, megalomania, or a Jehovah complex. And by all the signs, it has afflicted a number of officials of General Motors.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, a part of the organized government of the United States, courteously requested Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of G. M., and several other high officials to meet in her office with representatives of the strikers, and consult to find some way out of the strike tangle without further loss of time, wages and profits. And Mr. Sloan and the other G. M. officials refused, on the ground that the sit-down strikers at Flint were unlawfully occupying some G. M. property.

"I told them that I was not only disappointed in the refusal of Mr. Sloan to come down here, but that I regarded it as a very unfortunate decision on his part." It is President Roosevelt speaking, and he expressly waived the rule against quoting the president at press conferences in order that his feelings might go out to the country.

Provident Gains

Far outdistancing all previous records, Provident Life and Accident Insurance company, entering its fiftieth anniversary year in 1937, established new high totals for all departments of the company in 1936, President Robert J. Maclellan announced in his annual report to the company stockholders. He cited as outstanding the 24 per cent gain during 1936 in life insurance in force, an 18 per cent gain in premium income, and a 15 per cent gain in total assets.

That the progress of the company in all departments was well balanced was brought out in the president's report to show that during the period of 1936, when new high totals in production were achieved, the ratio of assets to liabilities was maintained at the high figure of 138 per cent.

The president brought out the fact that these noteworthy production gains were made during 1936 in spite of the fact that the national average for all life insurance companies was reported only 3.7 per cent above that secured during the previous year.

Bringing out plans for the Golden Jubilee year, the celebration plans for which are now well under way, President Maclellan stated that these were being developed to reach their height during the Homecoming Jubilee convention in Chattanooga next September to which several hundred field representatives from all departments are expected to win trips.

And the flood isn't over yet—did you know that the International Brewery Workers' union is taking care of many of its members who were made refugees by the flood? And many other unions are doing the same thing. Not only that, but the local unions have contributed generously to flood relief. Among those that I know of in town are the Brewery Workers, the Plumbers and the Typographical. The building tradesmen are donating work, and the Barbers are helping out with haircuts and shaves.

The Label league has added another line to its union-labeled products—you can now get union-labeled razor blades at the same offices where you get your union-labeled Coffee and baking powder.

* * *

"Bing" Crosby says these are good razor blades, too. And they just cost 15 cents for a package of five. Had to take a razor away from the 3-year-old the other day—guess even he is becoming "label conscious."

* * *

If you're looking for one of your friends and can't find him, just go by the Easy Way Grocery. Went in last week-end to buy the week's supply and saw five of us "union folks" shopping there at the same time—it must be true, their slogan that "your fellow union man trades here, why not you?"

Be sure to plan to come to the dance that is being sponsored by the Label league on Feb. 26—that's on Friday night and costs just one dollar a couple. It is open to the public—and Ellis Goodloe's orchestra will furnish the music. So, even if you don't like to dance, you'll enjoy the swell music.

Listen—between the senator from Hamilton's "gag" bill and the editor's blue pencil, this column is going to be in a bad way!

Clean System Clear Skin

You must be free from constipation to have a good, clear complexion. If not eliminated, the wastes of digestion produce poisons and the skin must do more than its share in helping to get rid of them. So for a clear, healthy skin, remember the importance of bowel regularity. At the first sign of constipation, take Black-Draught—the purely vegetable laxative. It brings such refreshing relief, and tends to leave the bowels acting regularly until some future disturbance interferes.

The month-old strike of cooks, waiters, waitresses and bartenders in downtown Rochester, N. Y., hotels has ended with an agreement meeting union wage demands.

Thomas M. Finn, federal mediator, and the Rev. John P. Boland, chairman of the regional labor relations board, arranged the negotiations with employers, who, though signing no contract, submitted a memorandum of understanding stating the wage scales which the union accepted.

LOWER MINIMUM ASKED IN WALSH-HEALEY ACT

Washington. — Secretary of Labor Perkins has announced that she will advocate amendment and broadening of the Walsh-Healey act by reducing from $10,000 to $2,000 the size of government contracts to which it applies.

Miss Perkins presented figures showing 550 contracts worth $27,500,000 had been awarded under the act during the three months ended Dec. 28, but said this consisted of only 50 per cent of government supply contracts during this period.

She said the act was "likely to have lower limit" than $10,000 in order to make the act more effective and that Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, was about to introduce a bill to that effect.

She said the act was "likey to have the effect of raising prevailing wages in some areas."

Canadian Labor Head Hits Plan To Force Unions to Incorporate

Ottawa.—An agitation for compulsory incorporation of trade unions has prompted P. M. Draper, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, to state his position. This agitation is specially strong in Quebec, where the Catholic Syndicates, incorporated unions, are asking the government to amend the collective bargaining act so that only incorporated unions will have the right to sign a contract with employers or employers' associations.

"Those asking for incorporation assume and assert that unincorporated unions are above the law," says Mr. Draper. "This assumption is wrong, as trade unions as voluntary associations, are not even allowed to do things which each individual member is allowed to do. . . The employer is held responsible for the acts of his agent only when the agent is acting within the scope of his authority. The union has, for one reason or another, been mulcted in damages for absolutely unauthorized acts of its members, or even where those acts have been committed without the knowledge and in defiance of the expressed will of the union."

Transit Strike Averted

New York City.—The threatened strike on the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit company subway, bus, elevated and surface car network was averted when company officials agreed to reinstate two union workers who had been suspended.

Victim of Alabama Reactionaries Tells Story of Barbarous Attack To Senate Investigating Committee

Washington, D. C.—The La Follete Civil Liberties Committee probably had the most exciting sessions of its life when the witness stand was occupied by Joseph S. Gelders, flogged half to death by the self-styled champions of law and order at Birmingham, Alabama, last fall.

Gelders is a middle aged man, who interrupted his schooling to enlist during the war, though he never got to France. After the war, he was variously occupied for a time; then went back to college, worked his way through to a master's degree, and was assistant professor of physics at the University of Alabama in Birmingham. He was the southern representative of the national committee for the defense of political prisoners.

He brought to the stand a sheaf of affidavits of workers, from sharecroppers to hodcarriers, men and women, who had been beaten up or otherwise maltreated by company guards or police in the south, as evidence that some such organization as that to which he belonged was needed in that region. His own difficulties came as a result of his efforts in behalf of Jack Barton.

Given Stiff Sentence.

Barton, recently out of the sanatorium for tuberculosis, is a communist, but the communist party is a legal organization in Alabama. He was arrested for the "crime" of having communist literature in his possession.

"Can you name the publications that they called Communist?" asked Senator Thomas.

"Yes, sir," said Barton. "The Nation, the New Republic, several copies of a paper called the Labor Advocate, an A. F. of L. publication in Birmingham."

For this he was sentenced to 180 days at hard labor and a $100 fine, which he was to work out at the rate of 50 cents a day. He worked at first with iron shackles on his legs, walking 14 miles a day in them, till his legs became infected and he was unable to work. Gelders was trying to get him liberated or transferred to the sanatorium. He went to see Arthur Green, an official of the Bessemer Cut-Off, a separate municipal jurisdiction. Green told him that "all leaders in that A. F. of L. are communists," that "the T. C. I. (Tennessee Coal & Iron company) controls Bessemer," and that he had better get out of town.

Gelders Brutally Beaten.

Shortly afterward, on the night of Sept. 23, Gelders was attacked and beaten up by three men, thrown into an auto, in which he was taken to a lonely place, being kicked frequently the while.

"As we were going down that road," testified Gelders, "a man named Williams who was sitting just above me, pulled out a long leather strap, about 2½ inches wide, ¾ of an inch thick and perhaps 3½ feet long. They stopped the car. . . They stripped all my clothing off, ripping the pants into two pieces, and left me in my trunks and socks. . . Williams threw me over on my face, and started flogging me with this strap that I had seen.

Assailants Not Arrested.

"Well, I became unconscious after a few licks. A counted about fifteen licks. They rolled me over on my back, one hit me in the mouth with a blackjack and another kicked me in the stomach, rolled me over and started again. I became unconscious."

He was alone when he wakened. He staggered to a house, whose owner gave him some trousers and took him to where he could get treatment. He identified positively two of the men who beat him, and the third was made certain—but none of them were even arrested.

Isn't there something screwy about a society in which increased ability to produce things that everyone wants brings unemployment and misery to some one?

St. Louis Bartenders Union Has 800 Members

St. Louis, Mo.—Bartenders and Soft Drink Dispensers' Local Union No. 51, chartered by the Bartenders' International league, associated with Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has shown what can be accomplished through effective and persistent efforts to organize.

According to Edward Neusel, secretary of the local, there were about 350 members last October and 800 members now, an increase of 450 in three months.

Through international union cooperation and the naming of local organizers, in a concerted drive for members, results were speedily obtained. As the membership grew, so did the number of contracts with employers, with resultant improvements in wages.

JUDGE AGAIN UPHOLDS SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Boston.—Taxes levied on employers and employes under the old age assistance provision of the social security act are constitutional, Federal District Judge George C. Sweeney ruled here.

His decision was rendered in the first national test case of title [illegible] old age benefit section—of the act.

Judge Sweeney, a Roosevelt appointee, and former U. S. senator attorney-general, previously had ruled constitutional title 9, which deals with unemployment insurance.

The court dismissed the petition of George Davis, of Waltham, a stockholder, to restrain the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston from deducting from employes' wages and from making contributions of its own under the social security act.

As in the title 9 case against the Boston & Maine railroad, Davis was expected to appeal to the circuit court of appeals.

Roosevelt Court Plan Aimed to Forward Nation's Progress

ague and as Yet Unpresented Scandal-ous Charges Against Monteagle Folk School Denounced as Effort to Stultify Delegates in Labor Movement.

OBODY KNOWS NOTHING" ABOUT IT

bor Leaders Declare It Is Continuation of Insidious Ef-fort to Discredit and Destroy Organization of Teach-ers in Particular as Well as Others in General.

A story in an issue of Saturday's News has caused a wave indignation to sweep over delegates to Central Body. The ry states that the Monteagle Folk School was described as a angerous institution" in an alleged report compiled by "some-ly" at "some time." Mr. Lyle Stovall, chairman of the Ameri-ization committee for the American Legion, was quoted as ing that neither he nor his organization had anything to do th the "investigations."

The report was made several nths ago by a state highway pa-man, who posed as a newspaper orter while conducting his inves-ations, Lyle C. Stovall, American gion leader here, revealed Satur-.

Who ordered the investigation is parently a mystery, as responsibil-for it was bandied back and forth ong former state officials.

The investigation was reportedly de by a Capt. Jack Scanlan, who o longer connected with the pa-.

Stovall said he saw a copy of the ort and he named these charges ich he said the report made against school:

1. There has been immorality here.

2. Some drunkenness has been reported.

3. The "Internationale" (the communist song) is used to open meetings.

4. The school is not a school, but is used as an instrument of fomenting class consciousness and teaching strike techniques.

SOUGHT FEDERAL FUNDS.

The "investigation" of the institu-, according to Stovall, was mpted by an application by the ool for $7,000 in federal funds.

Actual purpose of the "report," ac-ding to belief of labor delegates, revealed in the effort to reflect on teachers' union there and all chers' unions in general. Accord-to the News' interpretation of an rview with Mr. Stovall, he said:

This school has been injecting it-into Chattanooga in many ways, I merely like to make facts avail-e to those who want them. Those ple up there are members of the chers' federation, although they not teachers."

Further indignant expressions were sented by Central Body because of inference that delegates in Cen-Body were seated "by hook or ok." According to the published rview, it was said that "Since that teacher union) an affiliate of the erican Federation of Labor, and e they by some hook or crook got egates seated in the Central Labor on here, I thought it best to let facts be known. The legion com-ee of which I am head knows hing about it."

Forum Is Needed By Working People

The Chattanooga-Hamilton County Public Forum to Reopen Feb. 22.

Although the Chattanooga-Hamil-ton County Public Forum meetings have completed their first term, and have been attended by many working people, it is still believed that work-ing people have not realized fully the great benefit that can be derived from this particular type of group discussion of matters of community interest.

A labor leader attended public forum meetings in Morgantown, W. Va. He was asked what he thought about them. He said: "The forums are needed by the working classes. They give the working men a chance to size up arguments pro and con, and thus avoid being taken in by those who can afford to print and distrib-ute the side they are interested in."

The Chattanooga-Hamilton County Public Forum completed the first part of its program last week. It will re-open the week of Feb. 22, and will continue for a period of twelve weeks.

This forum center is one of nine-teen experimental centers that have been planned by the United States department of education during the past year. They are being sponsored by local departments ofeducation as a basis for a national program of adult civic education.

The forums are needed for the working people. Every one has felt the need of more knowledge and a better understanding of some of the problems that pertain to city, county, state and national affairs. Many have wished for a way to acquire such knowledge and understanding that would not require too much trouble and expense. The forum offers this opportunity at no expense, and with only the trouble of attending neigh-borhood forum meetings.

A Chattanooga labor leader said recently, "The matters discussed at forum meetings are vital to organ-ized labor and to the ideals of the A. F. of L."

NEW YORK MACHINISTS.

In a new agreement negotiated by the Machinists' Union of New York City with the Neo-Gravure company maintenance machinists who were re-ceiving $52 for a 40-hour week were granted $55 for a 36-hour week.

EMPLOYERS ASK HIGH COURT TO KILL LABOR ACT

Three Attacks on Law Made in Briefs Attacking Stat-ute as Unconstitutional—Hours of Argument to Follow.

Washington.—Three attacks on the national labor relations act were made in briefs filed in the supreme court in a single day. The plaintiffs are the American Newspaper Publishers' association, the Friedman-Harry Marks Clothing company and the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc.

The court has allocated 13½ hours to arguments on the constitutionality of the act. One day will be devoted to the unique case between the Vir-ginia Railway and the Shop Crafts.

An election was held in the Vir-ginian shops to determine the agency for collective bargaining. The shop crafts, affiliates of the A. F. of L., won, hands down. The Virginian management refused to treat with the shop crafts. The crafts went into court to compel the Virginian to deal with the duly elected representatives of the men, and won. The Virginian has appealed to the supreme court, and arguments on that matter pre-cede the formal attack on the national

CO-OP PLAN IS APPROVED BY CENTRAL BODY

Resolution Monday Night Calls on Labor Members to Participate in Lo-cal Project.

Grocery Store to Be Opened in Market House Within Very Few Days—Not Price-Cutting Affair.

Following approval of co-operative associations given by the recent Tampa convention of the American Federation of Labor, the Chattanooga Central Labor union last Monday night gave its okeh to a grocery co-operative venture which will be launched in a few days.

Space has been secured in the city market house, and plans are about perfected which will allow citizens to purchase their foodstuffs on a share-the-profit basis. It is said by spon-sors of the project that other mer-chants in Chattanooga should be re-assured by the fact that it is not the purpose of the co-operative store to disarrange price structure in food-stuffs, but that reasonable margins of profit will be placed on all sales.

The resolution adopted by Central Body says:

"Whereas, there has been estab-lished in this city a consumers' as-sociation known as the Chattanooga Co-operative association; and,

"Whereas, such an association is in line with the principles of organized labor; and,

"Whereas, labeled goods will be stocked when obtainable and non-union goods will be investigated to ascertain whether working conditions are fair; and,

"Whereas, a fair scale of wages will be paid to employes of the co-operative association; and,

"Whereas, organized labor and the Central Labor union are well repre-sented on the board of directors and in the membership of the association, thus guaranteeing that the principles of organized labor will be carried out as fully as possible; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Central Labor union, duly assembled in regular ses-sion, Feb. 8, 1937, go on record as in-dorsing the Chattanooga Co-operative association; be it further

"Resolved, That all members of or-ganized labor be encouraged to par-ticipate in this co-operative enter-prise, and to buy their groceries, etc., insofar, as possible, in this store which will be located in the market house and ready for business within the next few days."

Passage of Child Labor Amendment Is Urged by Legislative Group

Urging the early ratification of the child labor amendment to the consti-tution of the United States, the mem-bers of the legislative committee of the Tennessee Federation and the Railroad Brotherhoods Wednesday placed on the desk of each member of the legislature a letter setting forth the plea of organized labor and more than thirty other groups who have officially indorsed the measure.

Members of organized labor and those who are in sympathy with the bill are urged to write, wire or see their representatives in the legisla-ture and urge the passage of the bill, which will be introduced within a few days.

Kite Tournament Another of Ingenious Projects in Department of Play-ground Program.

Commissioner Cooke Overlooks No Age Group in His Leader-ship of Recreational Adventures.

Plans are now under way for the first kite tournament ever held in this city, for boys and girls, the date hav-ing been set for March 20. It is be-ing sponsored by the city department of recreation, under Commissioner R. M. Cooke and Director Ed Hargraves, jointly with the WPA recreational project, supervised by Clayton B. Hunter. The co-operation of the de-partment of education has been as-sured by Supt. W. T. Robinson.

Although a new recreational activ-ity in this area, kite tournaments are held annually in many cities of the country — Birmingham, Jacksonville, Little Rock, Washington, Morgan-town, Toledo, Los Angeles and others. Information has been obtained from these cities by local tournament of-ficials for the purpose of successfully planning the event here next month. Only a few types of kites are in use in this city, and it is hoped that en-trants will be encouraged to experi-ment and build many of the models of novel design which are available.

White Collar Man In Labor Movement Subject Wednesday

Dr. Holmes, L. I. D. Lecturer, Will Show That Group Has Left the "Owning Class" for "Worker Class."

Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, Swarthmore college professor for over thirty years and noted religious liberal, will speak on "The White Collar Worker En-ters the Labor Movement" on Wednes-day, Feb. 17, at 8 p.m., when the next in the series of League for In-dustrial Democracy discussion lec-tures will be given at Memorial au-ditorium by the Workers' Cultural society.

"Dr. Holmes has carried his social philosophy into the everyday world, serving actively in progressive po-litical movements and in the unioni-zation drive among teachers," Miss Ina Greene, chairman of the local committee, stated today. She also added that teachers, professional peo-ple, stenographers, writers and other so-called white collar workers were particularly invited to this lecture. She announced that Dr. T. B. Cowan will introduce the veteran philoso-pher.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska, Prof. Holmes received his doctorate in philosophy from Johns Hopkins university. For years he has been active as a lecturer and plat-form superintendent for the Chatau-qua Association of Pennsylvania. At one time he served as president of the National Federation of Religious Liberals. An active Quaker, he was appointed commissioner for American Friends relief work in Europe in 1920. He has also played an active role in the American Federation of Teachers which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Dr. Holmes has lectured and writ-ten extensively on social and religious topics. He has prepared courses of study on the Bible, church history and other subjects in religious education. His fame both in the pulpit and on the lecture platform has steadily grown.

In his talk here he will outline the development of the middle class, showing that modern industry has brought this group into the working class, rather than into the owning class. Workers and salaried em-ployes alike, he believes, should or-ganize increasingly in order to se-cure their just share of the growing national wealth.

LABEL LEAGUE MEETS THIS FRIDAY NIGHT

Miss Ina Greene, president of Chat-tanooga Label league, has sent no-tices to all delegates to the league that there will be a regular session Friday evening, Feb. 12, at the labor hall.

Miss Greene particularly requests a large attendance so that final ar-rangements may be made for the dance which the union label "spark plugs" will sponsor this month.

Proposal Seeks Quicker Justice, Modern Thinking

President Asks Stop to Obstruc-tive Delay of Government Ac-tivities and Speedier Rulings on Constitutional Questions.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington. — President Roose-velt's proposals for reform of the federal judiciary system have raised such a roar from economic royalists and their ever-vocal attorneys and newspapers that the public may well be deafened by the clamor. The first step in telling the story, therefore, is to state just what President Roose-velt did propose.

He asked that congress authorize the president to appoint not more than fifty federal judges, of whom:

Not more than 6 should be ap-pointed to the supreme court;

Not more than 20 to the cir-cuit courts of appeals—2 to each of 10 circuits;

Not more than 6—two each to three special courts, the court of claims, customs court and court of customs and patent ap-peals;

The remaining 18 might be appointed to the federal district courts, including that of the Dis-trict of Columbia.

In all cases, these judges are to be appointed to assist judges who are 70 years or more of age, and have served at least ten years on that par-ticular court. Any court increased in numbers that way would remain at the higher number unless congress chose to reduce it afterwards.

Speedy Rulings Sought.

President Roosevelt asked congress to provide that no inferior federal court shall pass upon the constitu-tionality of an act of congress with-out giving sufficient notice to the de-partment of justice; and to provide further that any decision in a lower court invalidating an act of congress shall be appealed immediately to the supreme court.

He asked that the chief justice be given authority to send circuit and district judges, "hereafter appointed," to any place where they are needed to prevent delay in administering jus-tice.

He asked that the supreme court be authorized to appoint a special of-ficer, called a proctor, to keep track of litigation and investigate the need of judges in districts or circuits, and to make recommendations on this matter to the chief justice.

Two Gains in View.

There you have it. President Roose-velt has proposed thorough going re-forms of the federal courts to secure two gains:

1. To bring those courts up to date in their work.

2. To bring them up to date in their thinking and practice.

On the first point, there can be no intelligent dispute. Most federal courts are behind in their work, ex-cept the supreme court—and that, as President Roosevelt well says, keeps up with its job by refusing 87 per cent of the cases presented to it by all litigants except the U. S. govern-ment. In the inferior federal courts, cases are delayed one, two, even three years and sometimes more.

"Delay Results in Injustice."

Nobody ever has stated the case better than the president does in his message:

"Delay in any court results in in-justice. It makes lawsuits a luxury available only to the few who can af-ford them, or who have property in-terests to protect which are suffi-ciently large to pay the cost. Poorer litigants are compelled to abandon valuable or to accept inadequate and unjust settlements because of sheer inability to finance or to wait the end of a long litigation. Only by speed-ing up the processes of the law, and thereby reducing their cost, can we eradicate the growing impression that

Mr. Roosevelt "Carries On"

Proposal of President Roosevelt, the ultimate effect of which would possibly be to increase the membership of the United States supreme court from nine to fifteen, is causing the expected furore among the old stand-patters and reactionaries. Some are crying to the housetops, howling calamity, bolshevism, Hitlerism, or what have you, should the congress accept the president's plan. It is interesting, however, to note that the cry of calamity comes from the same old gang of reactionaries which has raved at every suggestion of anything progressive since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. It would seem that these holier-than-thou "defenders of the constitution" would surely after so long a time learn the very obvious truth that the day of the autocrat and privileged has waned and the masses are having their inning.

The proposal, of course, is a change, but is regarded by the national administration as a necessary change. Many things which this administration has done have been inveighed against by the same crew. We have heard the cry of "wolf, wolf," ever since Mr. Roosevelt had a new lock put on the White House door (with one key) and notified Wall Street and the money-changers that their reign had been superseded by the people of the United States of America. In the congress, in the newspapers, in public life, the alignments are identical. Just why these defenders of privilege will persist in spreading their propaganda and whining anarchy is beyond the ken of the average citizen. In what more substantial, effective way could they have learned the lesson than that which was given by the vote of the people last November 4?

There are those, of course, who see in the proposal an effort on the part of the administration to stop the continual blocking of progressive legislation advocated for years by the masses, and more recently by a vast majority of the congress of the United States as well as the administration. Party lines, we are told, are split asunder on this momentous question. Surely. Party lines are split now, party lines have been split, and party lines will be split on any question which affects the welfare of the people against the House of Have. If there were anything needed to demonstrate that a party label means nothing to Mr. Average Citizen, our recent elections certainly should have ended that foolish idea. It would seem that history indicates the majority political faith for the republican party, but the results of the recent national election have certainly demonstrated that the old-time foolishly partisan political game by which the working people in particular were lulled to sleep by insincere mouthings, childish platitudes and hypocritical promises, backed by the billions controlled by those in high places, belongs to a past age and fortunately for America its people are today thinking for themselves, and we conscientiously believe crying for honesty, decency, truth in its political councils, regardless of any partisan label by whatever pretty term it might be designated.

With due respect to the august members of the supreme court of the United States, most of these very excellent gentlemen, perhaps, are former corporation attorneys, and are wealthy men. Their entire environment has been such as to preclude a sympathetic interest in the needs and desires of the people as a whole. All of them are old men, beyond the possibility of progress in their ideas and opinions, and it could not be expected that they would fall into line with the vast changes necessary in the present day ideas for economic necessities of the people. The same may be said of many federal district judges, appointed for life by reactionary former presidents, unquestionably under the domination of the Morgans, Mellons, Rockefellers, and others who have ridden high and handsome over the people of the United States in the past years because of their vast wealth and power.

Wealth may rave, self-appointed "patriots" may whine, the kept press may inveigh and the reactionaries may sulk in their tents, but the die is cast, the tide has turned, and the people are in the saddle. We predict that the president's program, so overwhelmingly indorsed by the masses of the people, will be carried out in its entirety, and that the man who had intestinal stamina enough to stand before a New York audience in Madison Square Garden the night before election and issue an open challenge to all the forces of wealth and reaction, will see his ideas, mandated by the people, carried out to full fruition, and that the present cry of radicalism, bolshevism, dictatorship and what not will meet its just fate in the thorough disgust of the people now and recently so apparent.

The issue must not be confused. It is not the constitution, but rather an interpretation of that ancient and honorable document, and labor believes the people want this bulwark of their liberties to mean what it was intended by its makers to mean.

Take It or Leave It!

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Families—so-called great families. Look:

Morgan — Rockefeller — duPont—Mellon.

Dynasties of wealth, power, pride, arrogance.

Their main interests:

Morgan: Steel; railroads.

Mellon: Aluminum; oil.

Rockefeller: Oil; "philanthrophy."

Dupont: Munitions; cellulose; automobiles.

All have their pivotal banks, too. And they interlock into hundreds of enterprises.

There is no such amazing picture in any other nation. These men have been accustomed to being above government.

An army of errand boys run around and carry out the policies of these four industrial kings. Emperors is a better word.

There are the Morgan partners. Morgan makes and unmakes partners at will. They are the voice of Morgan.

Alfred P. Sloan heads General Motors and Knudsen does a great deal of talking. But the voice of du Pont is the final voice of authority.

So it is with Mellon and Rockefeller. And all of them have their publicity and public relations men, looking to see how the four emperors can be made to look righteous in the public eye.

Nobody knows how much these men talk in private, what they really think, or what they tell their wives over the dinner table.

Their policies and determinations affect millions. Sometimes it seems as if even the might of a nation's government is insufficient to overcome their anti-social operations.

Of course there are other big names. There are other men who control great wealth and who have great power. Ford, for example. But there are no other men who are so greatly and so truly the masters of domains that affect the currents of national life.

These four—they are the monarchs of money and industry who do not seem to know how to live without putting their backs against the tide of progress.

These four men typify and personify the thing that America is trying to put away, the thing America is trying to escape and overcome and get away from.

The policies supported by these four men are the reason we had to have a new deal. And it will take all the strength and force and ingenuity of the new deal to ride in victory over the reaction of the Four Horsemen of Reaction.

If you take the Hindenburg line of anti-unionism you can see built into it the will and the determination of these four men. They are its architects. There is here something for America to think about.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt denounced economic royalists he named no names—but here are the emperors of all that regiment of royalists who would have in America an industrial and financial despotism, without any of the impulse of democracy in its structure.

Just four families of human beings. Four out of millions. But THE four that ride over the millions.

Democracy must overcome despotism or become submerged by it.

Follettee Committee Compels Bosses' Espionage Organization To Make Public Names of Spies

...shington.—"When once you ...t this damnable business of spy... you never can stop." It was ...tor Elbert Thomas, of Utah, who made this remark at the hearing of the civil liberties committee on labor espionage. Thomas is gentle-voiced, mild-mannered, and his face would fit the benevolent priest in Les Miserables; but there was no lack of emphasis when he spoke.

It was generally a lively session that day. Senator La Follette was sick, Thomas was in charge, and the Corporations Auxiliary company bunch tried to get contrary. They had been told the day before to bring the names of some of their labor spies to this session, and had promised to do it. Now, they tried to reneg. Buckley, attorney for Dan G. Ross, general manager of the CAC, said they did not think the names pertinent to the subject.

"You can leave that question to the committee," replied Thomas. Buckley explained that to publish these names might hurt the spies.

Record Contradict Witnesses.

"Why," said Senator Thomas, "we have heard two experts in espionage, Mr. Ross and Mr. Smith, tell us that spying is a laudable occupation and that it doesn't hurt anybody. I'm sure you wouldn't like to contradict their authority on that subject."

Ross at first tried to say that he didn't say it. Thomas' memory was too good to allow that, and besides, there was the record. Ross gulped and hedged and finally was taken with a bright idea; you could see him perk up when he thought of it.

"I meant that spying didn't hurt the man spied upon," he said. "Of course, disclosure that a man is a spy harms him socially, makes him an outcast."

It was here that Thomas spoke of the "damnable business."

Forced to Tell Names.

The CAC bunch begged, pleaded, argued, consulted; but Senator Thomas continued to demand the names, and he got them. Then Charles Rigsby, grievance man of the union at the Auto-Lite company in Toledo, took the stand; and told how Bartley Furey, a paid spy, came into the works as a longshoreman seeking another job; and almost wrecked the whole union movement. Rigby pointed out one of the spies in the hearing room, Burnside, who formerly was called Bronson. Burnside was put on the stand and protested his perfect friendship for Rigby.

Senator Thomas brought out that Pinkerton records on contracts with Owen-Illinois Glass company at Toledo had the names of undercover men blacked out.

Union Man Scores Spies.

At an earlier hearing, Richard T. Frankensteen, member of the executive board of the United Auto Workers, told his experience with spies in the Chrysler plants, and how he had been fooled by one of them. Labor spies had interfered with the organization of the workers and kept down wages. Then, turning suddenly to Herman L. Weckler, general manager of the De Soto subsidiary of Chrysler, and K. T. Keller, also a Chrysler official and active in the National Metal Trades association, Frankensteen said:

"I think men of the type of Mr. Weckler and K. T. Keller are worse than a dope peddler who sells narcotics to addicts. They go on and pretend to be decent citizens and hire men for spy jobs—the lowest criminals in the world. Weckler and Keller say they are decent citizens. I say they are not.

"I want to say to Mr. Weckler and the Chrysler company that we won't work in plants with these spies. They must get out or our men will. I represent a majority of Chrysler employes and the officials know it."

MORE ABOUT EMPLOYERS ASK

labor relations act by an embattled squad of corporations.

Law Heatedly Assailed.

The briefs just filed get very "heavy" in their denunciation of the law. The American Newspaper Publishers' association declares that the labor relations act "clearly violates the fundamental right of freedom of the press." Just why freedom of the press is immune to organizations of printers, but will fold up and die if writers are allowed to organize has never been made clear.

The Friedman-Harry Marks Clothing company declares that all employers were "completely hamstrung and rendered impotent and subservient to nomination of labor organizations" by the law.

The Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Iic., denounce the act as "arbitrary, oppressive and unreasonable," and says it is "nothing more than an incident or part of a legislative policy aimed at regimentation of the industry of the country as a whole, with the centralization of control in the national government."

A. P. Case First Up.

Taking them by and large, these tirades seem to be appropriately explained by two lines of poetry two hundred or more years old:

"No rogue ere felt the halter draw
With good opinion of the law."

The American newspaper publishers get their innings first in the marathon race of arguments, in what is known as the Associated Press case. Morris Watson, an editorial employe of the A. P., was fired for his activity in the Newspaper Guild, and the NLRB certified to that fact after all hearing, and ordered him reinstated. And theA. N. P. A. is bellowing like all the bulls of Basham in consequence.

the courts are chiefly a haven for the well-to-do."

The increased number of circuit, district and special judges, the ability of the chief justice to move them back and forth over the map as they are needed—remember, they are administering the same law in Oregon as in Florida, and the creation of a legal traffic manager called a proctor to keep the chief justice informed as to where and how badly the law trains are behind time—all these are devices and apparently sound ones to speed up the administration of the law.

Courts Held Usurping Powers.

The proposal that no inferior federal court shall consider a constitutional question without notifying the department of justice and that all findings of unconstitutionality in such courts shall be appealed at once to the supreme court, is partly designed to get quick action, and partly for an even more important purpose. The injunction issued by Judge John J. Gore, haltering the TVA for a period that may stretch to two or three years, is a case in point. President Roosevelt says of such dirty work:

"Thus the judiciary, by postponing the effective date of acts of the congress, is assuming an additional function and is coming more and more to constitute a scattered, loosely organized and slowly operating third house of the national legislature."

True to the letter, and the remedy is mild. Proposals are well formulated in congress to forbid any federal court except the supreme court to hear or consider any plea that an act of congress is unconstitutional. That, according to plans now in existence, would be reserved for a direct suit in the supreme court by a state; and the court would have to be unanimous to make its verdict stick.

"Packed Court" Cry Raised.

The whole outcry centers on the six new justices which the Roosevelt plan would permit to be named to the supreme court. The economic royalists of big business and its satellites don't want President Roosevelt to appoint six justices to that court. They don't want him to appoint anyone. Big business is entrenched behind the five die-hards—Vandevanter, Sutherland, McReynolds, Roberts and Butler; the five court Bourbons who, in the case of the New York minimum wage law, officially certified that they hadn't learned a thing since Adkins vs. Children's Hospital, thirteen years ago.

Herbert Hoover was first to raise the cry that Roosevelt was "packing the court;" and all the monied folk who fit, bled campaign contributions, and almost died to beat Roosevelt in the last campaign took up the cry.

Record Answers Cry.

The Philadelphia Record makes the proper answer to that:

"The president proposes to do just the reverse—to unpack the court. The supreme court has been packed for years with safe, conservative majorities, which have stood in the path of every major piece of social legislation enacted by the elected representatives of the American people. . . . President Roosevelt has witnessed four years of wholesale, systematic and unparalleled destruction of a broad program of national construction."

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

SPECIAL COMMITTEES DO GOOD WORK

The last general meeting was a very full one, indeed, principally because of the work of the following special committees: statewide salary law, consolidation, 20 per cent law and academic freedom. The reports of the chairmen were intensely interesting, so much so that the publicity committee was ordered to incorporate the substance of them in the forthcoming federation bulletins.

J Steger Hunt gave the statewide salary law report. He presented the population groupings of the counties with a bar graph. He showed that a law is feasible which would set up four different salary scales for the four groups of counties with approximately equal populations.

Mrs. Ethel Stroud gave the report of the committee on consolidation. This committee did not offer a plan for consolidation, but merely outlined and recommended procedure to protect the teachers involved should consolidation come to pass. Recommendations included appointment of a committee to study all proposed consolidation ills, formulation of a retirement plan which would protect both city and county teachers, protection of tenure law, and establishment of a single salary scale.

C. H. Winder presented a very interesting set of figures on city finances showing the good days resulting from the operation of the 20 per cent law and the evil days that followed its demise.

Josephine Hamilton presented a very thorough-going report on the loyalty oath question. Concurring in the report of the academic freedom committee the federation went on record as opposing loyalty oaths.

PHILADELPHIA PRESIDENT HERE

One of the leading figures in the American Federation of Teachers will speak in Chattanooga next Wednesday evening in the third of the League for Industrial Democracy series at the Memorial auditorium. The speaker is Dr. Jesse Holmes, president of the Philadelphia Teachers' union. His subject will be "The White Collar Worker Enters the Labor Movement." A large number of teachers is expected to hear this discussion of the relation of professional groups to the organized labor movement.

reveal who ordered the investigation or to whom the report went after it left his hands.

"McMillin said the investigation was made by his 'man'—he did not reveal the name—who came over from Nashville for the purpose. Its purpose was 'just to see what was going on over there,' he said. Although the probe was made eighteen months ago, McMillin said, nothing concerning it was made public.

"Asked whether any other institutions in the state were similarly investigated by his patrolmen, and whether it is customary for the patrolmen to make investigations posing as newspaper men, he replied, 'I know nothing about it.'"

Although no one knows a thing about the "investigation", various delegates expressed the opinion that proper authorities might be called upon to institute a course of monthly training in an effort to learn who is responsible for possibly libelous and malicious statements.

A resolution was adopted which condemned "key-hole snoopers," and requested the American Federation of Labor and the American Federation of Teachers to immediately "conduct an impartial and thorough investigation of the charges referred to above, so that the school and the local of the A. F. of T. may be given full opportunity to clear themselves of these charges, of whose falseness we are convinced."

The resolution herein is in full:

"Whereas, a mysterious investigation of the Highlander Folk school is reported to have been made by a member of the state highway patrol; and,

"Whereas, the report of this investigation has been used recently as the basis for an attack on the school by so-called patriots of the local Americanization committee of the American Legion; and,

"Whereas, the statement that the delegates from Highlander Folk school, Local No. 261, A. F. of T., were seated by 'hook or crook' is a malicious falsehood; and,

"Whereas, organized labor has no need of volunteer keyhole snoopers from outside its ranks to investigate the integrity of its members; and,

"Whereas, many of our members have visited the school on numerous occasions, know the members of the faculty personally, and know the work of the school for the past three years; and,

"Whereas, these members, in whom we have the highest confidence, report that the school is conducted according to the highest standards of scholarship and ethics; and,

"Whereas, the school is doing a commendable piece of work in the interest of the labor movement in this section; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Chattanooga Central Labor union in regular meeting, Feb. 8, 1937, goes on record as condemning such attacks on the Highlander Folk school as indirect attacks upon the Chattanooga labor movement and the organized labor movement in general; and be it further

"Resolved, That we express confidence in the conduct of the school and in the quality of its work; and be it further

"Resolved, That we suggest a more fruitful field for investigation of drunkenness and profanity, to-wit, any convention of the American Legion; and be it further

"Resolved, That we call upon the officials of the American Federation of Teachers and of the American Federation of Labor to conduct an impartial investigation of the charges referred to above, so that the school and the local of the A. F. of T. may be given full opportunity to clear themselves of these charges of whose falseness we are convinced; and be it further

"Resolved, That this resolution be published in The Labor World and that copies be given the daily press."

WYANDOTTE NEWSPAPER PRINTERS.

Following a seven weeks' strike of printers employed by the Wyandotte Daily News, Wyandotte, Mich., an agreement was negotoated by the Detroit Typographical union, No. 18, providing for the reinstatement of the strikers without discrimination and a new wage scale for a 40-hour week of five days and eight hours, with time and a half for overtime and double time for Sundays and holidays. From Jan. 1 to June 30 the contract fixed wages at 90 cents per hour for day work and 95 cents per hour for night work. From July 1 to Dec. 31 the wages will be 95 cents per hour for day work and $1 for night work. Union officials said this was an increase of 30 to 35 cents per hour over wages paid before the men were organized.

PORT HURON PAPER MILL WORKERS.

Local unions of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and the International Brotherhood of Papermakers recently negotiated an agreement with mill owners in Port Huron, Mich., granting wage increases totaling approximately $40,000 a year.

When retailers demand the union label the manufacturers will begin to find out how they can unionize.

MORE ABOUT KITE CONTEST

missioner Cooke, in discussing the tournament. "It requires thought, mathematical skill, accuracy and patience, for the more complicated kites must be constructed with precision. It is of great advantage to a child to learn to use his hands skillfully, for actually he is an amateur craftsman in kite making. His inventive genius is encouraged. Furthermore, competing in a tournament with an instrument of his own creation is a test of his sportsmanship. It develops an appreciation and consideration for his competitors, all of which a boy or girl is greatly in need of during their maturing years."

"Kite tournaments have been held in Los Angeles since 1907, from which city the idea has spread over the country," added Mr. Cooke. "There are many Orientals in California, and as kite flying is a national pastime in several of the eastern countries, it was an immediate success. It is related that kites as high as 36 feet have been flown, lifting a man from the ground. Also, some have been made as small as a postage stamp, perfect in detail, and flown with a fine thread of silk. There is no limit to the originality that may be displayed in kite making, whether it be modeling or coloring."

Complete details regarding the coming tournament will be released in a short time. The plan calls for an exhibit of a number of novel designs as a preliminary; also, a member of the staff wiul appear at a number of the grammar and junior high schools and discuss kite construction, giving a practical demonstration of the better methods. A separate event will be held for colored children on the day of the tournament. Several locations are under consideration, it being necessary to utilize a rather expansive area.

CLEVELAND BAKERY DRIVERS.

Bakery Drivers' Union No. 52, of Cleveland, Ohio, has secured a union shop agreement with five companies providing a 10 per cent wage increase, a five-day 48-hour week, no deliveries on Saturday, a week's vacation with pay, seniority rights and free uniforms. Wages are now $33.60 a week instead of the former $30.

SAN FRANCISCO OPTICAL WORKERS.

Forty members of the San Francisco, Calif., Optical Workers' union won a long strike for higher wages and better working conditions. Under the settlement terms a minimum wage of $35 a week was fixed in place of an average wage of $27.50 before the strike. Plants where the 40-hour week was already in effect will continue to work that minimum number of hours while other shops where lesser hours have been in effect will continue at their minimum.

WHO OPPOSES IT?

(Editorial from Nashville Labor Advocate)

Very shortly there will be introduced in the Tennessee legislature a bill for the ratification of the Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The amendment is as follows:

"Section 1. The congress shall have the power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age.

"Section 2. The power of the several states is unimpaired by this article except that the operation of state laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by the congress."

Now, can you or anyone else find anything in the proposed legislation that will keep little Johnnie from milking the cow or helping pa do the chores around the farm, or anything that forbids little Mary or Susie from helping ma with the dishes or from feeding the chickens? We answer for you. You do not, cannot, and will not.

Next, who is indorsing the amendment? More than thirty-five prominent organizations, representing men and women from every station in life.

Finally, who is opposing the amendment? We answer again: Those who are profiting and would continue to profit at the expense of the life-blood of our children.

Twenty-five states have voted favorably for the ratification of the child labor amendment. Our legislators, we are certain, are men of intelligence. If they are not, they have no business in the legislature. They are too sensible to be fooled by the smoke screen that is costing the exploiters of child life countless thousands of dollars. The issue is clear, and cannot be fogged. Do you, members of the Tennessee legislature, want your children, and our children, to be used as machine fodder, or do you want them to remain in school, enjoy the happiness of childhood that God intended they should, have the opportunity of developing their young bodies and brains, and finally, when they become older, be able to take their stations in life and carry on where you leave off? Again we answer. We believe that an intelligent body of men will place Tennessee in the column of progressive states, where the bodies and lives of our youngsters mean more than the coining of money for blood-suckers.

FRISCO WAREHOUSEMEN.

An improvement in wages and hours was reported in the settlement of the strike, lasting 67 days, called by the Warehousemen's Union of San Francisco, Cal. It was said that under an agreement 500 men returned to work at a wage scale providing 75 cents an hour for straight time in the public warehouses and a minimum of 70 cents an hour in grain, feed and milling warehouses. The agreement also provided a 40-hour week.

Pay Increases Won By Organized Labor

United Action in Collective Bargaining Raises Living Standards for Many Working Men and Women.

The following interesting items regarding the achievements of American ederation of Labor unions in improving the economic conditions of the workers are compiled from labor papers and other authoritative sources:

CALIFORNIA BAKERY DRIVERS.

A strike lasting four hours by nineteen members of the Bakery Wagon Drivers' union in Marin, Napa and Sonoma counties, California, resulted in an agreement between the union and the Langendorf-United Bakeries under which the drivers will receive the same scale of $48 per week paid union drivers in San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

OMAHA NEWSPAPER PRINTERS.

A 6 per cent wage increase for all employes of the composing rooms of the World-Herald and the Bee-News of Omaha, Neb., who are members of the Omaha Typographical union, was secured in a new agreement complying with the award announced by Dr. Frederick W. Clayton, pastor of [illegible] Saints Episcopal church of [illegible] who acted as arbitrator. Day employes formerly receiving $1 per [illegible] are paid $1.06 under the new [illegible] and those employed at night now [illegible] $1.12½ per hour.

PENNSYLVANIA BARBERS.

A uniform price scale for barbers in the central and northern sections of Cambria county, Pa., was adopted by the Journeymen Barbers' International union, Local No. 804, Johnstown, at a meeting attended by practically every barber in that area. The meeting decided to adopt the new scale effective in Patton, Pa., which is 50 cents for a hair cut and 25 cents for a shave. It was agreed to close all shops at 7 o'clock at night throughout the week and 9 o'clock on Saturday night and to close the year around on Thursday afternoons.

ST. LOUIS MACHINISTS.

Officials of the Machinists union in St. Louis, Mo., announced that hereafter machinists employed on outside construction or erection work will be paid $1.50 per hour in place of the former rate of $1.25 and that foremen will be paid $1.65 an hour instead of $1.37½.

LABEL LEAGUE 'HOP' BOOSTED BY COMMISSIONER BOB COOKE

Anniversary of 2nd Birthday to Take Place at Alhambra Mosque on Friday, Feb. 26, to Tune of Ellis Goodloe's Crack Orchestra.

Label Boosters Have Become Increasingly Active in Union Labor Ranks by Rallying Wives, Daughters and Friends of Members to Organization's Need.

"Even though I am not as good as Fred Astaire, I would not miss our Label League dance next week for anything," said Commissioner R. M. Cooke as he purchased his ducat to the birthday party which will take place on Friday, Feb. 26. Mrs. Paul Reynolds, chairman of the dance committee, is shown selling Bob's ticket to him, and from the expression on their faces it appears that prospects are bright for a lot of fun at the Alhambra Mosque.

It should be a success! Every party gotten up by this group of label live wires has been one to talk about for a long while afterwards. Last year they gave a banquet at the Patten, and the hundred or more who crowded into the grill room had one more time.

Ellis Goodloe's orchestra — well, those who have danced to his tunes know that the old feet will not stay still while his rhythms are going 'round and 'round. Goodloe will have his crew all ready. The floor committee has done its job well, and the decorations will be plentiful. All that is necessary now is for young and old to form in line with one dollar in hand for two people.

Come to the Mosque Feb. 26 and meet your union friends. Get better acquainted with the league and the valuable work it is doing. We will be seein' ya.

TEACHER SECRETARY ILL AT HER HOME

Mrs. M. Stewart Rogers, secretary for Chattanooga-Hamilton County Teachers' union, has been "under the weather" at her home, and has been receiving the sympathy of hundreds of unionists who know her for the valuable work she has done for her union. It has been her task to keep the financial records of Local 246 in good shape. From apparent results it is evident that her work has been well done.

The Labor World hopes for Mrs. Rogers a speedy recovery.

L. I. D. Lecturer Next Wednesday Tells About Mobs

"Without Due Process of Law" will be discussed by Frank McCallister, southern secretary of the Workers' Defense league, Wednesday, Feb. 24, at Memorial auditorium at 8 p.m., when the fourth in the League for Industrial Democracy discussion lecture series will be presented by the Workers' Cultural society.

"Personal experience with vigilante terrorism in Florida gives Mr. McCallister an intimate understanding of fascist-like movements in our own country," Miss Ina Greene, chairman of the local committee, stated today. She also said that Joe G. Dobbs will introduce the lecturer.

When in November, 1935, after three organizers of the unemployed in Tampa, Fla., were kidnaped and flogged and one of them, Joseph Shoemaker, murdered, Mr. McCallister helped to prepare evidence and push prosecution of those who had committed this outrage. It was Mr. McCallister's investigation of peonage conditions in the turpentine camps of Florida that led the recent American Federation of Labor convention at Tampa to ask for an official inquiry.

After taking pre-legal work at the University of Illinois, Mr. McCallister studied sociology at the Rand School of Science in New York City. Later he acted as an assistant secretary for the League for Independent Political Action which was founded by Prof. John Dewey and others.

Now Mr. McCallister is executive secretary of the local groups of the national committee for the defense of civil rights in Tampa. His position is the Workers' Defense league, a national non-partisan labor defense organization, has carried him to the forefront of the defense of constitutional rights among oppressed groups.

Mr. McCallister formerly wrote for "The World Tomorrow," which later merged with the "Christian Century." He now contributes to many labor periodicals. He is serving as chairman on the legislative committee of the Workers' Alliance in Florida, as well as working with the Workers' Defense league. He also assists the American Newspaper Guild in its Florida organization work.

Bill Held Sound Method to Bring Economic Justice

A. F. of L. Head Declares Corporation Licensing Proposal Will Guard Interests of Investors, Consumers, Workers.

Washington.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, gave a sweeping approval, for himself and for organized labor, of the bill introduced by Senator O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, providing for federal licenses for all corporations engaged in interstate commerce. Appearing before a sub-committee of the senate judiciary committee, Mr. Green said, in part:

"In the eyes of organized labor in the United States this proposal is one of the most fundamental in purpose and far-reaching in importance ever considered by congress.

"It is important because it is based upon a correct diagnosis of our economic ailment; because it prescribes a treatment which is sound, which does not threaten our economic growth, our democratic institutions, and which does not contravene or contradict a single requirement of our constitution.

Proposal Declared Timely.

"Today this proposal takes on added significance because of its timeliness. Our country has barely begun its emergence from the tragic collapse of recent years when it already finds itself faced with the self-same forces of destruction which brought about the depression. These are the forces of economic unbalance and inequality, of unbridled and irresponsible economic power of giant corporate aggregates wielded by few who are accountable to none. They are the forces of speculation of momentary profiteering in which the masses of our people are periodically deprived of their earning power or

EMPLOYERS BUY $450,000 WORTH OF GAS FOR USE IN WAR ON STRIKING WORKERS

Vast Extent of Private Munitions Purchased by Anti-Union Concerns to Attack Organized Toilers in Labor Disputes Uncovered by Senate Civil Liberties Committee.

Washington.—The existence of a definite and continuous war waged against organized labor by many anti-union employers with the use of modern munitions from gas bombs to machine guns, in addition to labor spies and strikebreakers detailed by detective agincies, is one of the outstanding revelations made by the La Follette subcommittee of the senate committee on education and labor, which is probing the scope and methods of interference with civil liberties and with the right of the workers to organize in effective labor unions.

In a report to the senate summarizing some of the information acquired so far in its investigation the committee said:

Stored in All Industrial Centers.

"The volume of gas sold to industry in the years 1933 to 1936 is over $450,000. Known locations of machine gun and known destinations of shipments of gas establish the facts that these two kinds of garrisons coincide on the map and that warfare

BILL WERGIN ON SICK LIST

"Laid Up"

W. L. WERGIN

W. L. Wergin, one of the "old timers" in the Chattanooga labor movement, is in bad health and is confined to his home at 115 Forest avenue. "Bill" is a member of the Machinist No. 56 local, coming to Chattanooga in 1912 from Wisconsin. Since that time he has served in his local union and Central Body in practically every office to be held.

Brother Wergin was severely injured about two years ago when he was struck down by an automobile at Eighth and Broad, and has not fully recovered from the effects of the mishap.

He was one of the members of the old Knights of Labor group which was in existence before the American Federation of Labor ascended to its present position. At present he is serving as treasurer of Local 56.

Brother Wergin would be pleased to receive some of his old friends at his home.

It was election night. The new slate for the next year will be M. W. Rodgers, president; J. W. Hyer, vice-president; C. R. Chandler, secretary-treasurer. Recorder is George Haley, and the business agent is none other than Mack E. Ball. J. J. Mason is sergeant-at-arms, S. C. Smith is guard, Fred Roth guide, and George Haley is press agent (bless his soul).

One of the most important boards in any union is the board of trustees, which in this case will be composed of Frank Roth, Richard Scholtz and Clarence Lawrence.

O'Mahoney Bill One of Strongest Plans Ever Put Before Congress To Curb Power of Corporations

Wyoming Senator Makes Effective Presentation of Facts Supporting His Licensing Measure for Compelling Corporate Bodies to Play Fair with Labor and Public.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, has introduced a bill, S. 10, which is one of the most important and far-reaching measures ever brought before congress. It provides, among other things, that all corporations engaged in interstate commerce must take out a federal license; and they can get such a license only by complying with labor and other conditions which most corporations have been fighting for years.

The bill contains four separate titles, but only Title I need be dealt with here. This title begins with a finding of facts and declaration of policy, as follows:

That congress has authority to regulate any commerce which affects more than one state;

That corporations, holding their franchises, powers and privileges derived from the people and granted only for the public good, have a dominating control of most commerce;

That such corporations employ a substantial percentage of labor;

"That the growth of such corporations and such concentration of wealth in corporate hands has effectively impaired the economic bargaining power of labor employed by such corporations;

"That it has become and is necessary to regulate the terms and conditions on which corporations may produce and distribute commodities for the purposes of interstate commerce."

F. T. C. Would Issue Licenses.

Senator O'Mahoney in his bill poposes to enlarge the federal trade commission from five members to nine, and give it charge of issuing licenses. These licenses:

Prohibit discrimination against women in wages or anything else;

Prohibit the labor of children under 16 years;

Safeguard the right of employes to collective bargaining;

Prohibit interference with employes in this right, or discrimination against employes for exercising this right;

Require the holder of the license to comply with all provisions of the national labor relations act.

All these things are given in far more detail than can be repeated here.

Bill Ably Advocated.

The bill is before the senate judiciary committee, and Senator O'Mahoney made a most striking and effective presentation of his case. He showed a remarkable series of maps. One group portrayed the growth of railroads from 1840, when there were 2,818 miles of track in the nation to the present time, with 253,000. He pointed out that many of these railroads were built with federal assistance. He showed highway maps and airway maps, again pointing to federal help. He showed two maps from the power commission, one showing generating stations and transmission lines and the other marking off the territory held by different companies.

Then he showed the map on which the Curtis Publishing company—Saturday Evening Post—has marked the buying power of every county in the United States by colors; red for the highest, running through yellow and green to blue, the lowest. He quoted the Post's statement:

"Red and yellow counties account for 92.6 per cent of the nation's retail sales; 97 per cent of U. S. income tax returns; 90.2 per cent of all passenger car sales; 95.4 per cent of all domestic electric customers, 76.1 per cent of the value of all farm property, and 72.2 per cent of the value of all farm products."

U. S. Commercial Unity Shown.

"I do not know of anything," said Senator O'Mahoney, when explaining the four-colored map, "that could more clearly show the essential commercial unity of the United States than this map."

He added another map, taken from the Magazine Fortune—"The United States of Anaconda"—showing the interstate activities of the copper trust.

No, It Is Not Legal

Editors of daily papers in the past several weeks have been hysterically beating their breasts over the "sit-down" form of strike as confiscation of property, or at least, prohibiting the use of such property. One particular editorial said that the real test to such practices could be solved by the answer to the question, "Is it legal?"

In order to ease the mind of such upholders of law, we admit definitely that the sit-down strike today is not particularly legal in that it does prevent the use of property by the owner thereof. This is illegal today because society has not yet officially declared that a worker has property rights to his job as well as the owner having property rights in machinery.

Having admitted this "vital" question, we call attention to the fact that from the beginning of organization of workers, many of the advances they have made have been effected through means which at that time were illegal.

Time was, it was illegal for two workers to meet to discuss their welfare. They broke the law secretly and flagrantly, and today society has ruled that it is advantageous for workers to meet together. At first it was illegal to picket, as well as to strike. Today those inherent rights have been so insistently assertd that legal objections to them have been removed and we have congressional acts which clothe them with legality.

It might be well for our pious legal pharisees to recall that Christ himself enunciated the principle that when it became necessary to break man-made laws for human needs, the necessity justified the violation. He husked grain on the Sabbath because He was hungry.

Hysterical super-Americans who pride themselves in the fact that they were descended from some American revolutionist should recall that their ancestors painted their faces like Indians, climbed aboard a ship owned by THEIR government, and not only deprived the legal owners of the cargo from using their property, but went so far as to dump it overboard. They staged a "sit-down" strike against taxes lawfully imposed by the existing law-makers, and refused to pay said taxes. Those law-breakers of nearly 200 years ago saw that it was necessary to do what they did do, and this great form of government is a result of the then illegal acts which were necessary to accomplish great benefits for the majority of the colonies.

Andrew Jackson, who is considered an outstanding American, certainly was not squeamish when it became necessary to accomplish reforms.

In the last five years we have seen capitalists "sit-down" on the law of the land. Through the use of injunctions and delays, existing laws of the land were kept from being put into operation, and through a method of preventing the worker from using his property (the law of the land) the worker was forced to capitulate because of hunger and despair. Right here at home some of the industrialists boldly and publicly defied the federal government and told it to "Go to . . ."

There is much to be said in favor of the "sit-down." If such measures had been employed in the Richmond Hosiery mill strike, the expectant mother, who had come OUT of the mill, could not have been knocked down by the illegally employed tin hat soldier who had been sent in by the mill owner's puppet governor to beat his employes into subjection through an illegal means.

Of course, the industrialists do not like the "sit-down" strike! When the worker comes OUT of the plant he can be gassed, shot, dynamited and beaten without the least bit of danger of damaging the sacred property of the owner. While the worker stays INSIDE the plant the owner realizes that his usual terroristic methods might result in some of his precious property being scarred up in the melee.

We shall see the day when citizens of this great country will write into our statutes the principle that the worker in the plant has a vested interest in his job in the plant as well as the owner has in the use of his property. The "sit-down" is not violence. It is peaceful. It has to be.

TEACHER TALK

LOCAL 246, A. F. of T.

TEN-YEAR TERM OR LIFE?

Gossip in Marion county has it that the teachers there have gone and got a law passed so that they cannot be fired for ten years—you know, a tenure law. Far from denying that they did this these inconceivably bold teachers answer the gossips by saying, "The law we got passed doesn't merely elect us for ten years—it's for life."

Marion county has an excellent local and is doing things. After all, achieving the passage of a tenure law less than a year after organization is no mean accomplishment. Last Thursday night President Stanton E. Smith carried greetings and congratulations to the Jasper teachers from our local and from A. F. of T. Vice-President Nancy Lea Smith.

The industrialist dare not be otherwise than peaceful!

We hope that we shall not see the day when more drastically illegal means are forced on the working man in order to wrest from a minute minority rights which are inherently his, regardless of cold words written into a law book.

The Russian czars did not have enough sense or foresight to anticipate natural results of oppressing an overwhelming mass of human beings for too long a time.

American industrialists do have the advantage of the Russian rulers in that they have the opportunity of profiting by mistakes made by others. We say that if virtuous upholders of legal tyranny believe "sit-downs" are now illegal, for their own safety they should hasten to make them legal, or eliminate the necessity for such methods.

More Wage Boosts Won by Union Men

Organized Labor Increases Purchasing Power and Raises Living Standards for Members.

Organized labor continues its victories in securing higher living standards by the negotiation of agreements with employers. The following news items recording a few of these achievements are compiled from labor newspapers.

PENSION LAW PASSES

Teachers will rejoice in the passage of the pension bill in the legislature. This measure, as amended to protect the tenure law, is a step in the right direction and will likely provide immediate aid to deserving city teachers.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

The publicity committee is arranging conferences with the heads of standing committees for the purpose of condensing some the recent excellent reports so that they may go out in the next two or three Federation News issues.

LECTURE AUDIENCE CHARMED

Teachers who missed Dr. Jesse Holmes at the Memorial auditorium last night missed one of the most entertaining and most pertinent addresses this town has ever heard. The charming white-haired president of the Philadelphia teachers carried his audience with him as he traced with alternate fire and tolerant wit the circumstances that have made the "white collar" workers need organization and affiliation with labor. He demolished red-baiters, witch-hnters and suppressionists in the discussion period with his pungent bits of irony while the audience laughed and applauded.

MOLDERS

Officials of the International Molders' Union of North America recently announced that an agreement had been reached with the Manufacturers' Protective and Development association providing an eight and twenty-one hundredths per cent increase for 1937 in the molding price in shops of the association. The agreement also fixed the ratio of apprentices at one apprentice to each eight journeymen and one to the shop.

DETROIT PAINTERS

Painters' District Council No. 22, Detroit, Mich., announces an increased wage scale for union members of a number of house painters' local unions. The new rate will be $1.25 an hour, effective April 1.

MIAMI PAINTERS

Painters' and Decorators' Local Union No. 365, Miami, Fla., has negotiated an agreement with a number of painting contractors providing an increase in wages of $1 per day. Under the new rates journeymen will be paid a minimum wage of $9 per day, or $1.12½ an hour, for a 40-hour week, until Jan. 7, 1938, and $10 a day, or $1.25 an hour, from Jan. 7 until June, 1938. The old wage agreement called for $8 per day for a 40-hour week.

SEATTLE CRACKER BAKERS

The Cracker Bakers' Union of Seattle, Wash., has signed an agreement with the Superior Biscuit company providing an average wage increase of 27½ per cent for the 25 union members employed by the concern, which is now a 100 per cent union shop. The American Cracker company's plant is also 100 per cent organized. It is reported that strikes are still in effect against the National Biscuit company and the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, both of which refused to recognize the union as the bargaining agency of the workers.

GALESBURG PAINTERS

Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, Local No. 29, Galesburg, Ill., announce that the union's wage rate will be $1 per hour after the 1st of April.

BATTLE CREEK MACHINISTS

Lodge No. 46, International Association of Machinists, has negotiated a new agreement with the Duplex Printing Press company of that city carrying a substantial wage increase and better working conditions, among which is a daily smoking period for the men. The pact calls for a union shop. Three hundred and sixty-six union machinists are employed by the company. Union officials hope that within a short time the machinists' label will appear on all Duplex printing presses.

PORTLAND TAILORS

A new agreement negotiated by the Journeymen Tailors' Union of Portland, Ore., with more than twenty retail clothing dealers, is reported by union officials as providing increase in pay and better working conditions for the tailors employed by these concerns.

SAN FRANCISCO BARTENDERS

A new wage scale agreement negotiated by the organized bartenders in San Francisco fixes the daily minimum pay at $7 for a 5-day 40-hour week. The old scale was $5 a day plus meals. Night club and service bar workers will receive up to $8 a shift.

DETROIT NEWSPAPER PRINTERS

According to a new contract negotiated by the Detroit Typographical union with the Detroit Daily newspaper publishers, recently accepted by a referendum vote of the union members, the scale for day work is $10.40 for 7½ hours; five days, $52.01. Night work, $11.02 for 7½ hours; five days, $55.08. Third shift, $1.55 for 7½ hours; five days, $57.74. The pay increase totals $3.50 per week and calls for time and a half for overtime.

DETROIT BRICKLAYERS

The Detroit Bricklayers' union announces an increase in their wage scale of 25 cents per hour, raising the former rate of $1.25 to $1.50 per hour.

BAKERSFIELD LAUNDRY WORKERS

Members of the Laundry Workers' union of Bakersfield, Calif., recently secured a new agreement providing for an increase in wages of from 2 to 3 cents per hour.

DANVILLE BUILDING TRADES

The Vermillion County Building Trades council, Danville, Ill., has negotiated a new agreement with the Allied Builders association, composed of the principle contractors, providing increases of from 4 to 25 cents an hour for common laborers, carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers, lathers, painters and plumbers. Following are the increases: Carpenters, painters and cement finishers, from $1 an hour to $1.25; bricklayers and plasterers, $1.25 to $1.50; lathers, $1.20 to $1.37½; common laborers, 60 cents to 65 cents. Hodcarriers' wages will remain at 80 cents an hour. It is reported that wages for electrical and sheet metal workers and chauffeurs were not included in the agreement, which covers about 1,000 men.

PEORIA STREET CAR EMPLOYES

A wage increase of 5 cents an hour covering all platform men, bus men, shop men and garage men has been secured by the Peoria, Ill., division of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America for their members employed by the Illinois Power and Light corporation.

AKRON RETAIL CLERKS

An increase in wages ranging from 10 to 20 per cent was won from the management of the Hardware & Supply company of Akron, Ohio, following a 17-day strike declared by the General Retail Store Employes' union. Officials of the union said picketing during the strike was so effective that the hardware concern was closed tight.

PEORIA NEWSPAPER TYPOS

A new agreement between Typographical Union No. 29 of Peoria, Ill., and the Peoria Journal, Peoria Transcript and the Peoria Star grants a wage increase of 7½ cents an hour, with the night force receiving an additional amount of 50 cents over the day rate of $1.12½.

Barber Shop Regulation Before Michigan Solons

Plans to secure the enactment of the barbers' bill now before the Michigan legislature were mapped at a recent meeting of the journeymen barbers unions and the master barbers in Detroit. The purpose of the bill is to establish sanitary conditions, fair prices and reasonable hours for those engaged in the business. It is claimed that these objectives have hitherto been impossible due to the refusal of vicious and ruthless elements in the industry to co-operate in such a program, thus emphasizing the necessity of state control.

Don't shift the responsibility of buying union-made products on the other brother.

No. 2, of the "Did you know" series . . . Did you know that Carpenters' Local Union No. 74 (and that's one of our own Chattanooga local unions) has the largest membership of any carpenters' local in the state? There are eight carpenters' union in the state that are affiliated with the State Federation of Labor. And there are two carpenters' unions right here in Chattanooga. The other local here is called the Woodworkers' local — its number is 1882, and it is an up and coming young union itself. Of course, we aren't being conceited about our local labor movement—BUT . . .

And, in connection with the above somebody told me that one night [illegible] week there were so many meetings to be held in the labor hall that they were forced to hold two meetings in one meeting room. One local met in the front and the other convened in the back of the room. Just suppose that in the confusion one [illegible] started voting on the other unions' motions. It looks like we just must have that labor temple. Everybody in favor? The motion is carried unanimously.

The new series of Forum meetings starts next week. The first [illegible] should be of paramount interest to all unionists and their families. The subject under discussion will be, "Can Strikes Be Averted? Dates and places for the meetings will be found elsewhere in this paper.

Labor Spies' Criminal Records Are Revealed

La Follette Committee Also Charges Pinkerton Detective Agency With Having Spent $240,000 in Six Months in Trying to Bribe Men "to Sell Out Their Fellow Workers."

Washington.—In a partial report presented to the senate in support of its request for an additional $50,000 appropriation the senate subcommittee of the committee on education and labor investigating labor espionage emphasized the wide use of spies by detective agencies and pointed out that strikebreakers frequently have criminal records.

Spies Are Double Dealers.

"Pinkerton's," said the report in referring to the Pinkerton Detective agency, "who for the first seven months of 1936 spent something like $240,000 of employers' money for corrupting men to sell out their fellow workers, and who assert that their company does no work on divorce matters, tells in the ironical words of its general manager what they require for character in their informants: 'We make inquiries in the neighborhood in which they live, to learn what their standing in the community is, whether they are considered honest, trustworthy, law-abiding people.' In striking contrast to this character reference is a hooked man's description of his work: 'I have known Ferguson for twenty years and Kepler for ten years (both of them union men), and now I am selling them out, as they tell me most anything.'

Chowderhead's Slimy Career.

"Drawn from the underworld, a large number of strikebreakers have criminal records. An interesting example is Sam Cohen, alias Sam Goldberg, alias Chowderhead Cohen, alias Charles Harris, who testified before the committee.

"His preparatory work in industrial relations included a term in Atlanta for conspiracy, four years in state's prison and four years in Sing Sing for burglaries, and detention as material witness in a notorious murder case. Out of thirteen strikebreakers furnished by Railway Audit and Inspection for the general materials strike in St. Louis in 1932, seven were wanted by the police of other cities on charges including burglary, forgery, larceny, inciting to rioting and assault."

Terms of Auto Strike Settlement Summarized

The strike of the United Automobile Workers of America against [illegible] General Motors corporation ended on Feb. 11 in an agreement signed in Detroit by representatives of the union and the corporation after a week of conferences participated in by Gov. Frank Murphy and James F. Dewey, conciliator of the U. S. department of labor.

According to the Associated Press the following are the aerms of the agreement:

1—The corporation recognizes the union as the collective bargaining agency for those employes belonging to the union, and agrees not to negotiate with any employe representative group in the twenty strike-closed plants other than the U. A. W. A. for six months, without sanction of the governor.

2—The corporation and the union agree to commence collective bargaining negotiations on Feb. 16 with regard to the issues set forth in the union's letter of Jan. 4 to the corporation.

3—The union agrees to end the present strike and evacuate all plants now occupied by strikers.

4—The corporation promises to resume operations in all strike-bound and idle plants "as rapidly as possible."

5—All employes are to return to work and there is to be no discrimination against strikers.

6—The union agrees that pending negotiations there will be no [illegible] strikes or interference with production.

7—During the existence of the collective bargaining agreement contemplated all opportunities to negotiate shall be exhausted before any other strikes or production interference is attempted by the union.

8—After evacuation of plants the corporation agrees to dismiss the injunction proceedings started by the corporation against the union or its members in Flint, Mich.

Organized labor's welfare depends upon how "fair" the merchants are in your community.

Plant a few union label seeds and you'll be surprised at the return in better wages.

RAILROAD FARES ARE LOW

For the sake of economy, many people all over the country are riding the trains instead of their automobiles. The coach fares are on a basis of one and one-half cents per mile. Example:

Distance	One Way	Round Trip
10 miles	$ .15	$ .30
20 miles	.30	.60
30 miles	.45	.90
40 miles	.60	1.20
50 miles	.75	1.50
60 miles	.90	1.80
70 miles	1.05	2.10
80 miles	1.20	2.40
90 miles	1.35	2.70
100 miles	1.50	3.00

In addition to being more economical the railroads are safer than the highways.

TWO OF TOBACCO BIG FOUR REPORT FAT PROFIT GAINS LAST YEAR BUT TAKE NO STEPS TO INCREASE WAGES

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—Two of the Big Four tobacco companies have ssued financial reports for 1936. Both show profits that make e treasury of Croesus look like a family ginger jar. Both show creasing profits. Neither has said a word about increasing ges.

Liggett & Myers show net income 1936 of $24,207,632; after interest, deral income taxes, federal taxes undistributed profits, and many her items are charged off. This is ughly $7,500,000 greater than the t income of the same company in 1935. It is equal to $7.25 a share on the 3,136,939 shares of combined common and common B stock, whose par value is $25 a share.

How much actual investment is behind each share of Liggett & Myers cannot be told; probably not 20 per cent of the par rating. Taking it at par, however, when a $25 stock earns $7.25 in one year, the corporation whose stock scores such gains ought to be able to pay wages big enough that its workers will not have to go on the relief rolls. But if Liggett & Myers have raised the pay of their stemmers, the matter has been kept a dark secret.

Reynolds Gain Also Big.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company cleared $29,253,135 net profits in 1936, a gain of about $5,500,000 over the profits of 1935. The sum earned is $2.92 on each of the 10,000,000 shares outstanding; 9,000,000 of which, so far as can be discovered, represents no outside investment whatever. Reynolds has paid $3 a share for many years. It got the habit during the depression, when farmers were paid prices for their tobacco that scarcely covered their cost of fertilizer, when wages were ground to the lowest notch—and when the Reynolds cleared around $34,000,000 a year, or more.

But is the Reynolds company putting up decent living quarters to take the place of the wooden shacks in which so many of their workers are housed at Winston-Salem? Not that any one has heard of it.

Big Four Always Prosper.

There may have been in the world's long history, a crowd somewhere, sometime, that got as much and gave as little for as the Big Four. But nobody has told of it yet.

The Big Four prosper when the country has good times; and prosper more when the country is bogged in the mire of depression. They beat down the cost of raw materials by every trick known to sharp dealing. Their labor policy varies between bad and worse—a considerable percentage of their employes are on relief, even while at work, because their earnings are too low to live on.

Its social policy is transplanted from the dark ages; its magnates live in palaces and its workers in shacks and hovels; the public schools in the towns which it dominates get barely half the sums raised for schools in other industrial communities.

And—to complete the picture—in each of the Big Four, a fat share of profits is diverted to the special benefit of insiders, variously defined.

Why should any worker buy cigarettes from the Big Four, when he can get better cigarettes from firms which employ union labor, deal with unions in their plants, and pay union wages?

Insurance Concerns Order Older Workers Discharged

Insurance companies of Illinois were held to be responsible for the discharge of workers in industry liable to compensation under the newly enacted state occupational diseases act by Anton Johannsen, labor member of the state industrial commission, in a talk before the Central Trades and Labor council of Joliet. He declared that in some instances insurance carriers of compensation had insisted that employers dismiss certain employes to make way for the employment of "fresher and younger employes."

Mr. Johannsen said that "such tactics are impossible where there are strong organizations of labor," and called upon union delegates to strengthen the trade union movement. He also stressed the importance of welding the forces of organized labor to assist in upholding labor laws passed for the protection of the worker.

materials are concentrated in every center of industrial population in the country. Lists of the buyers of these goods read much like the lists of those who own corporations and rule.

Private Arsenals Condemned.

"That private persons or interests should be allowed to maintain armies or arsenals is dangerous. That munitions should be permitted to arm unemployed men under the control of agencies over which neither the legislative nor judiciary has any control is unthinkable.

"Why cannot these lowly people who are driven to desperation by their grievances or organize for economic betterment, they may not even express opinions on politics or religion as long as the machinery of oppression pervades their daily life. Nor can industry itself be angry but military vengeance and distrust. Industry from fear pays millions a year to live in those fears.

"What legislative means can be adopted by congress to curb these anti-American practices will not be answered until the records of this committee are published in full. Its ramifications."

Attempt to Curb Activities.

A resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Wagner of New York, chairman of the senate committee which investigated the munitions industry, to curb the activities of industrial espionage systems, was reported favorably by the senate committee on education and labor.

The resolution, which has been passed by the house, would prohibit the shipment in interstate commerce of any firearms, munitions of war or tear gas unless the shipper has a license from the secretary of commerce.

Violators of the act would be subject to a fine of not more than $2,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years, or both.

Persons convicted of violating the act would be prohibited from receiving a license for two years after the expiration of their sentence.

RAGON BLUNTLY REJECTS LABOR'S PLEA

NTRAL BODY GRINDS OUT RESOLUTIONS MONDAY NIGHT FOR HOSPITAL, AGAINST TAX

press Confidence rant for Hospital Will Be Secured

ttanooga Central Labor union day night reiterated its pleas for w and adequate hospital for Hamcounty. Several months ago it ared likely that a federal grant d be secured for such crying need, something happened and all hopes dashed to the ground. Last , however, word came from Sen- Bachman and Congressman Mcnolds that the matter had been ened and that sufficient pressure t get results.

xpressing confidence that our two esentatives in Washington had it takes to get for their city grant, formal resolution was sent ese two gentlemen as follows:

Whereas, the city of Chattanooga great need of adequate hospital ities; and,

Whereas, efforts in the past to se- federal assistance in the erection new hospital here through the A have proved of no avail; and,

Whereas, recent reports indicate a possibility of securing such fedassistance; and,

Whereas, we are confident of the e-mindedness of Senator Nathan hman and of Representative S. D. Reynolds and their ability to push ugh such a project; therefore, it esolved, that the Chattanooga Cen- Labor union, in regular meeting, 22, 1937, hereby records its sup- of the hospital project for Chatnooga and instructs the secretary send copies of this resolution to ator Nathan Bachman and Repentative S. D. McReynolds and grams to President Roosevelt and retary Harold Ickes urging their port of this project.

Proposed Drink Tax, Movie Levy, Danger To Trade Employes

Declaring that the proposed revenue bill in the state legislature would so destroy the sale of bottled drinks and the attendance of movie theaters as to throw members of the Brewery Workers and Movie Operators out of employment, Central Body petitioned Gov. Browning to ease up on these two taxes. The resolution said:

Whereas, certain gross sales taxes and a tax of one cent per bottle on beer and soft drinks and a footage tax on motion picture films have been proposed in this session of the legislature; and,

Whereas, the soft drink industry is already subject to numerous taxes, amounting to probably 50 per cent of the cost of the product, and this tax will tend to destroy the industry simply because sales of such products will be seriously crippled, thereby throwing members of Brewery Workers No. 79 and Movie Operators No. 259 out of work; and,

Whereas, a footage tax on motion picture films places a disproportionate burden on small theaters; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Chattanooga Central Labor union requests Gov. Browning to refrain from this phase of his tax program.

"I do solemnly swear that I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal rights to the poor and to the rich." This is a part of the oath which every justice of the supreme court must take—and five of them, after taking it, combined to knock out the minimum wage law.

An Open Letter to Restaurant Owners

For the past year restaurant employes have been beseeching Chattanooga Central Labor union to assist them in perfecting an organization in order to stabilize wages and working conditions. In addition to requests from employes, several owners have made similar requests.

The past week an application for a charter was sent to the headquarters of restaurant employes' labor union. As soon as the charter is granted, several hundred additional workers will be given an opportunity to come into the union if they so desire.

It is the intent and purpose of Central Body to avoid strikes if at all possible. If restaurant employers will not become excited and will make no attempt to discourage the new organization, they will find that great benefits will result to the industry. If, however, attempts are made to discharge workers for joining the union, such offenders will be called before the federal courts and other measures taken to acquaint the public of such discriminatory attitudes.

Organized labor sincerely hopes that unpleasantness will not be precipitated by employers. Organized labor asks that it will not be forced into a fight and that calm judgment will be used.

ORGANIZED LABOR TO HELP COOKS, WAITERS IMPROVE THEIR WORKING CONDITIONS

Condemns Attitude of Few Cafe Owners That Are Trying to Prevent Organization of Their Mistreated Employes.

Declaring that activities of a few restaurant owners in Chattanooga, who have discovered that their employes are endeavoring to form a union so that a decent living might be wrested from them, and who are telling such employes that only one or two are agitating, Central Body pledged its support to the new group of unionists, charter for which has arrived in Chattanooga.

While it is hoped that serious breaches will not occur, the labor movement stands ready to go to war to protect these workers, many of whom receive the grand sum of two dollars per week. Central Body said:

Whereas, there has been organized a local union of hotel and restaurant employes in this city; and,

Whereas, the organizing committee of the Central Labor union feels that the attitude of a few of the restaurant owners is very unsatisfactory; and,

Whereas, reports are being circulated that the labor movement is not interested in this organization and that only one or two individuals are taking an active part; therefore, be it

British Woman Will Reveal Dark Moves of War and Conquest

Jenny Lea, Member of Parliament, to Speak at L. I. D. Lecture Wednesday.

Jennie Lee, former member of the British parliament engaged by the League for Industrial Democracy and the emergency peace campaign for a national speaking tour this winter, has just arrived in America after spending a dramatic two-week period in war-torn Spain.

Previous to her Spanish observation work she was engaged in newspaper correspondent activity for various British newspapers. Early last year she was sent by the London Daily Express to Russia to write a series of articles. Later she was dispatched to France by the London Star and by Reynolds, a Sunday paper connected with the British consumers' co-operative movement. While in France she reported the spring elections and interviewed leaders in the popular front government. During the summer she visited and wrote articles about the industrial conditions in Wales, Lanarkshire, Fifeshire and other cities.

Study of international relations and extensive experience in foreign countries have equipped Miss Lee with an unusual understanding of the causes and effect of war. In her talks before scores of audiences she will analyze the role of imperialism in creating world conflict. In cities which are conducting the League for Industrial Democracy discussion lecture courses she will lecture on "Empire Building and War," one of the six topics dealing with the general subject, "Democracy in Action."

Her own people, the impoverished miners of Southern Scotland, elected her to parliament in the middle of the last decade. She gained the distinction of being the youngest person ever to be elected to the house of commons. In this region she spent her early years observing the struggle of the coal workers against low wages and constnt danger. Her own father helped in the organization of a miners' union.

This background, coupled with a brilliant scholastic record as a student in the University of Edinburgh, led to her becoming one of the leading parliament advocates for legislation concerned with the improvement of industrial conditions for women and miners. She was re-elected in 1929 by her Lanarck constituency on the independent labor party ticket.

Coleman, Mahoney, Live Up to Pledge to Support Poll Tax Bill Blocked By Rep. Ragon

Who Says, "I Want a Good Fight Anyway" and That "It Is Not Good for the People."

The Honorable J. B. Ragon, the only successful candidate in November that was supported by the political machines of Hamilton county, in an abrupt manner prevented Representatives Coleman and Mahoney from introducing labor's bill in the house Wednesday which would eliminate the poll tax as a requisite for voting in city elections.

The bill was sent to Nashville by Labor's Political Conference Tuesday and given to the three lower house legislators with the request that it be enacted. Representatives Coleman and Mahony were most courteous and sympathetic, but Mr. Ragon was hard to find, and in fact, was not actually found except at a distance.

When approached by Mr. Mahoney with the bill in hand, and a statement that both he and Coleman wanted the bill favorably acted on, Mr. Ragon broke forth, without further glance, with an explosive condemnation to the fact that the measure was not "to the welfare of the people of Chattanooga" and that he "wanted a good fight anyhow."

Since local measures, by long recognized custom, require unanimous consent of local delegations for passage, the bill died before birth.

It has been generally believed that Mr. Ragon is the direct representative in the lower house of the political alignments of the city and county. Therefore his stand on the matter is not surprising, because it is thought by many that elimination of a poll tax receipt or possession of two dollars for the privilege of franchise would allow many thousands of citizens to vote and is a result the erstwhile unbreakable grip on the part of political bosses would be crippled.

Although most of Mr. Ragon's platform before election and his actions during the sessions of the legislature have been vague and at times ludicrous, there was absolutely no doubt Wednesday where his sympathies resided.

Mr. Ragon had only the day before assisted in killing a similar measure on a state-wide basis. That bill had been in committee for some time, and when an attempt was made to call it out of committee onto the floor of the house, legislators voted to take it out of committee by a vote of 57 for and 37 against, lacking a bare two-thirds majority to succeed.

4 LOCAL FIRMS PAID LABOR SPY FEES, IS SHOWN

Senate Committee Uncovers Facts That Foundries Here Employed Espionage Agents.

And, of Course, Those Four Are Strictly Non-Union Concerns, Who Have Ruthlessly Throttled Unionization.

Additional confirmation of previous knowledge that Chattanooga industrialists are no different from those in other parts of the United States was given last week when a letter to the International Moulders' Union from the Senate sub-committee on Education and Labor showed that hundreds of dollars have been spent and are possibly being spent now in this city to prevent employes from organizing into unions.

It was shown that the Columbian Iron Works employed the services of Corporations Auxiliary company from 1934 to 1936. The Mascot Stove company, which successfully destroyed the Moulders' Union in its foundry, has also employed the same insidious spy agency for the same length of time.

During the two-year period Ross-Meehan foundries and the Tennessee Stove Works paid out good money for labor spies, and they did their dirty work in fine shape.

It has been recalled that in the last three years several paid detectives have been discovered by local unionists in their own ranks, some of whom actually held executive positions in the local.

NOTICE

There will be a meeting of Cooks and Waitresses at the labor hall next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. All persons interested in such an organization are urged to attend this meeting.

AFOLLETTE STRIKERS WIN SMASHING VICTORY WHEN CONTRACT ENDS BIG STRIKE

arlie Handy Leads Strikers of Atlas Shirt Company to Big Victory—Celebration Gains Attention of Townspeople — Negotiations with Reade Company May Have Similar Ending—A. C. W. of A. Leader Lauded.

Lafollette.—With a union contract between the Amalgamated thing Workers and the Atlas Shirt company signed, Alex Cohn, h official of the ACWA, continued negotiations with the Reade nufacturing company with definite hopes for an early settlent of this phase of the LaFollette shirt workers' strike.

While these negotiations went forward, workers in the Atlas nt celebrated wildly and cheered on their fellow workers in the ade plant. Townspeople of this city lined the streets and ered the marching workers as the victorious strikers celebrated ir great victory.

Charles Handy, brilliant and dynic young leader of the strike, o. with his wife, Elaine Wright, the confidence of the workers by ir untiring labors, grinned happ as he received the congratulas of the business people and work for the masterful campaign he ed in behalf of union organiza. On every hand, an air of celetion and joy was in evidence. The ning of the contract between the as plant and the ACWA was the al for release of the pent-up tions of workers and their lead, and the townspeople joined leheartedly in the great celebran which marked what is predicted be a historic event for the south. ut with all the air of joy and tory there was no let-up in the rts of workers and leaders to plete the strike by gaining union gnition from the Reade plant. e Atlas workers, remembering that a few weeks ago when the Reade kers crowded to the windows to er them as they paraded and pledge their strength and brotherhood for the common cause of unionism, are determined that the victory gained for themselves shall not lull them any degree of indifference regarding the Reade workers.

The contract between the Atlas Shirt company and the ACWA provides for 100 per cent union recognition. No workers shall be employed unless they are members of the Amalgamated. The workers have won shorter hours and increased wages. They have demonstrated their ability to respond to honest leadership and work together to victory. They have won the right to be represented in every condition that affects their welfare in the plant.

RUBBBER WORKERS GET HIGHER PAY

Akron, O.—Wage increases and new minimum wages for 35,000 workers in four big tire companies were announced on Feb. 12 in this rubber capital. Firestone, first to lead with a pay boost announcement, was followed quickly by Goodyear, Goodrich and General.

The increases came as the rubber manufactories, with General Motors orders on their books, prepared to step up production one day a week when GMC begins building automobiles in its reopened plants.

The pay increases range from 4 to 8 cents an hour.

Why Politicians Want Poll Tax Requisite

Political machines in Hamilton county are very much determined that citizens shall not vote unless they possess a certain amount of money to exercise their inalienable right. The reason for this position is apparent after a bit of analysis.

With the poll tax as a requisite about one citizen out of a possible five ever goes to the polls, either through neglect in paying the tax, or because of sheer inability to raise the necessary two dollars. As a result, three or four political bosses are able to combine their resources and see to it that poll taxes are paid for a small group of henchmen, hangers-on, and plain boodlers. This small bloc, costing the politicians maybe a few thousand dollars, voting according to the ticket sent out a few hours before the polls open, can always swing an election auy way desired.

This method is only successful as long as the votes cast are held down to a figure around ten or twelve thousand. Two thousand bought and distributed poll tax receipts, pooled from the war chests of four political bosses, do the job.

If the poll tax is abolished as a requisite, about 20,000 people would vote. More important, about 5,000 working people who have been disfranchised due to lack of money, would be voting. To control an election where 20,000 voted would be too expensive, and the increased personnel of the machine would be unwieldy.

Therefore, the vote must be kept small. Therefore, the poll tax must be required. Therefore, Mr. Ragon must kill the bill.

Be Consistent, Buy Union

On the front page of The Labor World this week a new feature called "Let's be Real Trades Unionists" appears. The Chattanooga Label league is compiling lists of all firms in Chattanooga which use union workmen. One or more of these lists will appear each week.

Clip these features out each week and put them where they will be easily found when you want some work done, or want to buy something and are not sure whether or not it is union. And then, just to "check and double-check," when you buy the article, look for the union label. Or if you have some work to be done, ask the workman to show you his union card.

The Label League is serving a very real need in the local labor movement and The Labor World extends congratulations to the league on its second anniversary.

Henry Ford, so they say, last week advised his employes to have nothing to do with the union. The patriarch likes to give advice, especially when it helps his pocketbook. He realized that Roosevelt was bad for his fat bank balance last November and told his employes to "lay off" of Roosevelt. We believe that they will "lay off" the union just like they "laid off" of Roosevelt in the election. Watch the landslide!

It is reported that ten voting machines (mechanical) will be purchased by the county as a starter. We wonder if these voting machines will be placed in the slot machine wards?

It is worth remembering that of all the committees in the labor movement, there has not been the need for an American committee.

Speaking of a new labor temple, if labor here would take a leaf from the records of other organizations we could secure the money for a real temple in a short time. Just organize a bonus march and picket the federal treasury, or claim compensation for injuries sustained from a hangnail while serving in the recruiting office.

LABOR QUERIES

Plans for the Label League's second anniversary dance, to be held at the Mosque, were announced and all members were urged to attend.

The organization committee reported that a charter has been received and installed for the new Roofers union. Meetings are also being held with two groups of truck drivers and work is going forward in organizing the Cooks and Waiters. The Bakery Salesmen have reorganized and plan an active organization.

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Oh, Jeremiah, come over to our house and see what we got! If congress should pass a quarter of the bills now stewing in the brew pot of legislation, everybody's be saying that. For a fine mess of bills is on the fire. Mark this down: SOMETHING is coming out, cooked—and probably it will be hot.

Watch that O'Mahoney bill—and don't pronounce that man's name with the accent in the middle on the "ho." That's where it isn't. It's on the "Ma," pronounced pretty much as in "map."

Big business guessed right last fall, but there were too many on the winning side and it's no good to guess right if you haven't any money on the horse that romps home with the bacon, or whatever it is that's being ridden home with.

There'll be legislation to regulate—and with teeth.

"What big teeth you have, grandma."

"Yes, my child, the better to bite the hide of you with."

And maybe that's why big business is so confounded sore and touchy and so seemingly determined to put up the block signals for the whole train of progress.

Well, we shall see, as has been said many himes before, what we shall see. And probably we won't need glasses.

But turning from that to other things, what does anybody suppose corporations were thinking of when they paid so much money to spy agencies?

The American employer can be wise as sin in selling and he can be clever as anything in manufacturing, but he can be the stupidest, cussedest darned fool in human relations. He can be the world's prize sap. We have the evidence.

It never seemed to occur to the employers who hired these prize gyp artists that a crook is a crook and that a crook who is enough of a crook to sell out his fellow workers would also be crook enough to sell out his grandmother and his grandmother's little grandson.

John Lewis called the Flint Alliance a love child, which was sweet to him. The labor spy is no love child, but neither is he entitled to any legitimate appellation, or any suspicion of honorable antecedents.

Millions of dollars in good sound money have been spilled into the pockets of the tribe that has hired and herded these provokers and thugs who are best known because they are so given to meeting themselves on the street, because of not being accustomed to going straight in anything.

If Senator La Follette should quit right now and never do onther thing he would have done enough for one man in putting the bee on these birds of foul odor—buzzards of the factories.

And so, here we go again, boys; hold your hats. Congress made a law that to ship these thugs in interstate traffic is unlawful. Unlike the Schechter chickens, these birds don't come to rest and cease to be interstate commerce after they cross the line. They just don't come to rest. Some of them have to keep on the jump because they're afraid of the timekeeper and some of them don't rest because they're afraid of dreaming an honest dream if they don't keep on the hop.

The work on the Chickamauga dam has been extended for two years. That's why you see so many of the electricians with the big smile.

After telling about my bees some time ago and having been reading up on them a little about their habits, I have found out how they sing and dance, and, after a person has been stung (by bees) 500,000 times it doesn't hurt.

Owing to the crowded conditions at the Labor Hall and the fact the Electricians needed larger quarters our new meeting place will be Wheland Hall at the auditorium. The next regular meeting will be March 3.

There will be things of special interest for the new members next meeting and also for the old members, so please try and attend.

Just found out that out of all the men who took the TVA examination for a job at the Chickamauga dam, there was only one person who made a 100 per cent. grade—and that man was an electrician. Hats off, brothers!

EMPLOYMENT, PAYROLLS UP IN WOOL INDUSTRY

New York City.—The National Association of Wool Manufacturers reports here that both employment and payrolls in the wool industry for December, 1936, were above those of 1929.

Employment increased 10 per cent in December, and payrolls 27 per cent. This payroll gain is due to a pretty general wage increase in the last days of November. The wool manufacturers held off on this raise as long as they could; and even now, employment in that industry is 109 per cent of the 1929 level, and payrolls only 104 per cent.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM REPORT

The resolution adopted by the federation on the loyalty oath has been sent out in the Federation News. This resolution constitutes a brief summary of the splendid report of the academic freedom committee. The complete report is on file in the office. Those who are interested in studying the loyalty oath question would do well to come in to the office to read the report. Excerpts and quotations from it will be published in Teacher Talk from time to time.

CIVIL LIBERTY GAINS

Liberal state legislatures and the U. S. congress have administered some hefty blows to red-baiting reaction by repealing or failing to pass suppressive laws considered during the last two weeks. The state of Washington repealed its criminal syndicalism law. This law had previously come out badly in a U. S. supreme court test in the Dirk DeJonge case. The red rider on an appropriation bill for Washington, D. C., has been repealed. Arkansas—of all states—has just defeated a law curtailing academic freedom and aimed at the labor school, Commonwealth college. On the whole, liberalism seems to be on the upgrade just now.

LABEL LEADERS

Mr. Stilson, who came here from Philadelphia to be manager of the Co-operative Grocery, says that he is already liking Chattanooga because the people here are so friendly.

By the way, have you been by the new Co-op Grocery let? It opened last week, you know, and is located in the market house. It is handling our union-labeled, Rich-Maid coffee and baking powder, also, union-labeled breads, cakes and even union-labeled razor blades. And, don't forget, that this new project carries the okeh of the Central Body.

Remember, that Time and Life magazines are non-union, since they do not use the label of the Allied Printing Trades.

Nevertheless, the Printers' label is "flying high" these days. "Bing" Crosby is spending all his time, so I hear, flying kites. He says it is because he has run across some [illegible] with the Printers' label on [illegible]. Maybe so—anyway, that is [illegible] an excuse as anybody could ask. These kites are called "Hi-Wing," if anybody else wants to buy one his little boy, Bing says they are found around town.

Reports have come in that [illegible] Vic Hallmark was such a success in a play over in North Chattanooga last week that offers are pouring in from Hollywood. You'd better start rehearsing, Vic, or you'll be known simply as the "husband of that famous stage and screen star." Oh, were you in the play, too?

All these years this columnist has complained that one thing women could not do well is to make a public speech. But Nancy Smith says that if I want to hear Jenny Lee next Wednesday night at the Community hall auditorium, I won't be able to repeat that statement again. Well, Nancy has heard Miss Lea and has an advantage. Nevertheless, the challenge is accepted—let's all go down and hear one really good woman speak.

LABOR QUERIES

Q.—Is labor represented on teh Council for Industrial Progress?

A.—Yes. William Green is co-chairman, acting for labor. The council was established by George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial co-operation and president of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America.

Q.—What union states its object as "For the amelioration and final emancipation of labor?"

A.—Cigar Makers' International union.

Q.—What stand has organized labor taken on the organization of so-called "vigilantes?"

A.—Declaring that "vigilantism is becoming more and more prevalent each year and more vicious in its attacks on organized labor with the aims of destroying trade unions and subjecting labor to the will of the employers," the last A. F. of L. convention adopted a resolution denouncing "terroristic organizations that take the law into their own hands."

Wisdom

Laws and institutions are constantly tending to gravitate. Like clocks, they must be occasionally cleansed, and wound up, and set to true time. —Henry Ward Beecher.

Overgrown military establishments are under any form of government inauspicious to liberty, and are to be regarded as particularly hostile to republican liberty.—George Washington.

TVA engineers are fond of showing a horrible example of erosion. A man owning a hillside farm got cross at trespassing cattle six or seven years ago, and swore that he would build a fence on his boundary that cattle wouldn't cross. He took his plow and ran a furrow straight down a fairly deep hill for perhaps 200 yards.

Three years later, the gully which grew from that furrow was from 6 to 20 feet deep, nowhere less than 10 feet wide, and in some places 50 feet or more. On each side, several tributary gullies ran into it. Red clay subsoil had been washed down to cover acres of the bottom land once rich with grass.

"Rugged individualism?" Perhaps. Destructive imbecility? Sure.

A.—December 18, 1936.

3—Q. What is the aim of the Tennessee Unemployment compensation act?

A.—To build up a large reserve fund for the payment of weekly cash benefits to involuntary unemployed workers who are otherwise eligible; to stabilize employment; and to stabilize business by maintaining the purchasing power of the workers of America.

4—Q. How is the unemployment compensation built up?

A.—By contribution from employers.

5—Q. How much does the Tennessee employer contribute?

A.—Nine-tenths (9/10) of one (1%) per cent of his payroll in 1936 to the state fund. 1.8% of his payroll in 1937.

6—Q. Which employers are required to pay contributions?

A.—All employers who have eight or more employes in twenty or more weeks a year, except that exceptions are made for the following employments:

Agricultural labor. Domestic service in private homes. Governmental employment. Services for eleemosnary institutions. Employment within immediate family. Insurance "field work."

7—Q. Why do we need unemployment compensation?

A.—Because most men and women cannot at once find other employment when they lose their jobs. Unemployment compensation provides the worker with at least a portion of his former wage for a time ordinarily sufficient to permit him to find a new job. During the time the worker has been regularly employed he will have built up a reserve fund so that when the jobless days come he can draw upon his reserve fund for a sufficiency until he has had reasonable time to find other employment.

8—Q. Is unemployment compensation a form of relief?

A.—No. Each worker will have a separate account with the Tennessee unemployment division. He will have legitimate credit in a manner similar to insurance reserves from which he will draw weekly benefits when he becomes eligible. The Tennessee administration of the unemployment compensation law will follow the principles of insurance banking. It will be strictly on a business basis.

9—Q. Has unemployment insurance been tried before?

A.—Yes. Trade unions have had a fund from which they have paid out-of-work benefits for many years. Many European countries have unemployment compensation laws. It was first tried on a voluntary basis. In 1911 Great Britain passed her first compulsory law, and it is now recognized as a permanent governmental policy of England.

10—Q. Why was the United States so slow in passing the unemployment compensation legislation?

A.—The fear that the burden of contribution payments would subject the employers of one state to unfair competition unless all other states passed similar laws kept the states from acting.

11—Q. Will Tennessee employers be required to pay more than employers of other states?

A.—No. The federal law requires the same contribution from all employers over the nation. Some states, however, require a larger contribution than is levied by the federal social security act, Title IX, but the Tennessee act requires a minimum contribution as compared with all other states. The program is nationwide and therefore Tennessee will in no way suffer from discrimination.

12—Q. What is the Federal levy on the 1936 payroll unemployment compensation?

A.—One (1%) per cent of the payroll of employers of eight or more employes.

13—Q. Are Tennessee employers required to pay one (1%) per cent to the federal government and nine-tenths (9/10) of one (1%) per cent to the Tennessee compensation division?

A.—Employers will be given credit by the federal government for payments to the Tennessee fund. The Tennessee commissioner of labor will certify to the federal internal revenue collector the employers who have paid nine-tenths (9/10) of one (1%) per cent to the Tennessee unemployment compensation division and they will be given credit for this amount on the federal return provided payment is made to the Tennessee compensation division in proper time.

14—Q. When is the last date before which Tennessee employers may get credit on payment to the state fund in making their federal returns?

A.—The deadline for credit on state contributions was originally set for Jan. 31, but because many states, as was the case in Tennessee, did not enact an unemployment compensation law until very late in 1936 the United States' secretary of the treasury has granted a sixty (60) day extention.

15—Q. When are the 1936 contributions to the Tennessee unemployment compensation division due?

A.—Contributions for 1936 will be due and payable on or before March 1, 1937.

16—Q. Who has the authority to fix due dates for contributions?

A.—Under Section VII of the act the commissioner of labor fixes the date upon which contributions should become due and payable by each employer.

17—Q. Who has the authority to issue rules and regulations for the proper administering of the act?

A.—Section XI of the act gives the commissioner the power and authority to make such rules and regulations as are required to administer the act.

18—Q. What does the worker or employe contribute?

A.—Nothing.

19—Q. Is the employer allowed to deduct from the employe's wages for payment?

A.—No. To do so is a misdemeanor in each case.

20—Q. May a worker agree to pay any part of the employer's contribution?

A.—No. Such an agreement is illegal and void.

21—Q. Does the Tennessee act require employers to keep records?

A.—All employers will be required to keep complete and accurate records of employment and payrolls.

22—Q. What reports will the employer be required to make to the Tennessee unemployment compensation division?

A.—All employers are required to make a report on their employment (Form No. 1) to enable the commissioner to determine whether or not they are subject to the act.

All employers subject to the act will be required to make a report (Form No. 2) at the time of contribution payment.

23—Q. If an employer is doubtful as to his liability to pay contribution what should he do?

A.—Pay contribution for 1936 in the same manner as an employer who knows he is subject to the act and make claim for exemption and refund.

24—Q. If an employer gives room and board or other emoluments as part payment for employment is he required to pay on such as wages?

A.—Yes. All remuneration payable for the workers' services, including commissions, bonuses, and the cash value of payments in kind are classed as wages.

25—Q. Is the Tennessee unemployment compensation division ready to receive contributions?

A.—Yes. The organization is functioning and receiving contributions daily.

RAILROAD FARES ARE LOW

For the sake of economy, many people all over the country are riding the trains instead of their automobiles. The coach fares are on a basis of one and one-half cents per mile. Example:

Distance	One Way	Round Trip
10 miles	$ .15	$ .30
20 miles	.30	.60
30 miles	.45	.90
40 miles	.60	1.20
50 miles	.75	1.50
60 miles	.90	1.80
70 miles	1.05	2.10
80 miles	1.20	2.40
90 miles	1.35	2.70
100 miles	1.50	3.00

In addition to being more economical the railroads are safer than the highways.

NEVADA FOR CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

Washington.—Nevada became the twenty-sixth state to ratify the child labor amendment to the federal constitution when the assembly passed a senate joint resolution of approval by a 30 to 8 vote.

As a result of the action by Nevada, supporters of the child labor amendment are hoping that a new wave of state ratifications is underway which will place the amendment in the constitution this year.

In addition to Nevada, Kentucky has approved the amendment since Jan. 1. Concurrence by ten more states is necessary to place the provision, pending since 1924, in the constitution. A total of twenty-six states have approved the amendment.

The United States attorney's bureau, headed by Katherine F. Lenroot, which has long urged enactment of the amendment, pointed out that approval of the provision would give congress specific authority to deal with one of the four major labor problems covered by the invalidated NRA. The others are minimum wages, maximum hours and collective bargaining.

"The sinking ship is deserting the rats." That is Senator Barkley's version of the General Motors crisis in that they have dismissed the Pinkerton agency.

G. M. Shown Using Six Spy Agencies Last Four Years

Industrial Espionage, Revealed as Corporation Habit by Senate Investigators, Is Sharply Denounced by La Follette and Thomas.

Washington.—Senator La Follette denounced industrial spying as the ruin of collective bargaining at a hearing of the senate civil liberties committee productive of startling facts. Senator Thomas delivered a talk on fear which the audience understood and approved, but of which the General Motors witness then on the stand did not seem to understand a word. Six different spy agencies have been employed by General Motors in the last four years, and some of the time, one agency was spying on another. Alfred Marshall, a G. M. personnel manager, laid the growth of spying to "agitators," and showed in spite of weasel words his feeling that spying is right and necessary. And another G. M. witness told how the personnel men from the twelve biggest corporations in the land meet each month in New York to discuss labor questions.

"Do you discuss industrial spying?" asked La Follette; and when the witness answered in the negative, the senator said:

"You're not quite intimate enough for that, are you?"

Senators Score Espionage.

"The use of this labor espionage," La Follette went on, "has proved to be one of the most effective weapons in destroying collective bargaining. The evidence is overwhelming that the injection of these labor spies into unions, the fact that some of them get to be officers of unions and cart reports back and forth to the agency offices has proved beyond any doubt that they destroy collective bargaining."

Senator Thomas was gentler, but just as effective. "This spy business has become a habit, a growing habit," he said; "and all you get out of it is fear. You have fear to begin with; then you spend good money—more than $800,000 of it, to buy more fear.

"The fair dealing and equal rights which make democracy have worked very well in government. Why don't you try them in industry?"

Marshall Blames "Agitators."

But Marshall, then on the stand, could do little more than glame agitators and say that the company had a right to know what the men were thinking.

The twelve corporations whose personnel managers meet monthly in New York include General Motors, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Rubber, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, International Harvester, American Telephone and Telegraph, Goodyear Tire and Rubber, Irving Trust company, du Pont and Westinghouse.

The six spy agencies were Pinkertons, Corporations Auxiliary, Railway Audit & Inspection, Charles L. Watkins Service, O'Neil Industrial Service and W. J. Burns. At one time, ten agents of the Pinkerton gang were spying on the Corporations Auxiliary and sending the bills to General Motors.

SPEED-UP CAUSES STRIKE OF CABOT MILL WEAVERS

Brunswick, Me.—Weavers in the rayon department of the large Cabot mill here recently voted to come out on strike, rather than accept a proposed set-up, generally termed "speed-up" by workers, from twenty looms to forty for each weaver.

Observing labor officials contend that the return of "good times" and prosperity for mill owners is not being shared with the workers. Instead, it is stated the employers seek to speed up production, without proportionate increases in wages to workers. The Cabot mill employs from 600 to 1,000 people, of whom over 200 are weavers. Although the entire plant was closed down by the strikers, picketing was carried on peacefully and no disturbance was anticipated.

Over 250 Steel Union Lodges Reported Formed Since June

Pittsburgh.—More than 250 lodges of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers have been organized since the unionization campaign was started last June, the steel workers' organizing committee announced here as it speeded plans for a national convention of steel workers. Date of the convention at which wage and bargaining demands will be formulated for presentation to the industry probably will be set following the coal negotiations now in progress at New York.

LABOR SUPPORTS PRESIDENT OF COURT REFORM PROPOSAL

A. F. of L. Executive Council Declares for Plan and Announces Purpose to Call on Workers Throughout Nation to Rally Behind Chief Executive's Recommendations.

Washington, D. C.—The American Federation of Labor has officially approved President Roosevelt's plan for reforming the federal judiciary. The executive council of the A. F. of L., composed of the heads of seventeen international A. F. of L. unions, at its quarterly meeting in this city, issued the following statement:

"The executive council of the American Federation of Labor officially approved the recommendation of the president of the United States contained in the message he transmitted to congress under date of Feb. 5 providing for a reorganization of the federal judiciary. The council arrived at its decision to support the president's recommendation after painstaking investigation and most careful thought and study.

Labor Believed For Plan

"It was the opinion of the executive council that the sincere and earnest desire of labor for judiciary reform and for the realization of social and economic advancement, could be promoted better through the acceptance and application of the president's recommendation, rather than through the slow, tedious process of a constitutional amendment.

"The council fully believes that labor throughout the United States, as represented by the American Federation of Labor, will rally to the support of the president in the recommendation which he made.

"It is the purpose of the executive council to call upon labor throughout the entire country to give to the president's plan for judicial reform a full measure of support.

Union Help To Be Asked

"National and international unions, state federations of labor and city central bodies, all chartered by the American Federation of Labor, will be called upon to rally to the support of the president and to acquaint the members of congress with the desire of labor and labor's friends for favorable action upon the president's recommendation at the earliest possible date."

Shortly before the A. F. of L. executive council announced its stand on the president's plan, Labor's Non-Partisan League took similar action.

At a joint press conference held by George L. Berry, John L. Lewis and Sidney Hillman, directors of the league, it was announced that a national convention of league representatives would be held here in the near future to arouse support for the program.

At the same time, Berry announced that a series of mass meetings would be conducted in many of the principal cities of the country.

A campaign to circularize league members and affiliated groups "calling to their attention the absolute necessity from labor's standpoint of adopting the president's program," was also planned.

Closing Indiana Labor-Dispute Plants When Militia Is Called Out Is Required by Barry Bill

The joint legislative committee of the Indiana State Federation of Labor and the Railroad Brotherhoods believe they will be successful in having the Indiana legislature enact the Barry bill requiring the state militia to close properties involved in labor disputes when the militia is called out in such controversies.

Representative Edward P. Barry, author of the bill, is a veteran legislator and a retired member of Indianapolis Typographical Union No. 1. It is claimed the bill reflects the public conception of the use of state troops in labor disputes.

The measure would require the closing of the plant or property involved in a labor controversy to every one below the rank of superintendent. Labor officials assert there would be no attempt on the employer to operate the plant or property with strikebreakers, thus avoiding one of the principal issues usually involved in labor controversies.

LABOR PAPER SUSPENDED.

The Stroudsburg Central Labor Union, Stroudsburg, Pa., ordered the temporary suspension of the Monroe County Labor News. Lack of adequate financial support was assigned as the reason for the action.

HIGHER STEEL PAY ASKED.

Pittsburgh.—Representatives of 12,000 Jones & McLaughlin steel workers at Aliquippa have asked the management for a wage increase of $1 a day for all employes. The request for higher pay was approved unanimously by the thirty-six members of the J. & L. general committee of employe representatives, the company union. Laborers at the company's Aliquippa plant now receive $4.20 a day.

In 1913, Miami, Ohio, had a flood which looked for a time as if it would put the city clear off the map. The destruction was very heavy, the loss of life not at all negligible; and the whole country tried to help; Uncle Sam sending not only soldiers but tents.

The thoughtful people of Miami started in to find out what they could do about it. They got a plan from engineers; a plan compounded of reservoirs, dams and spillways, which promised future safety. A law was drawn and passed by the legislature creating the Miami "conservancy district;" and the work began.

And Miami hasn't had a destructive flood since, and isn't having one now. It can be done.

Labor Fights Exemption of Steel Under Rules of Walsh-Healy Act

Concessions to Steel Industry on Naval Building Orders Would Mean Complete Breakdown of Law, John P. Frey and Others Point Out at Conference With Government Officials.

Washington.—Strong opposition to any suspension of the requirements of the Walsh-Healy act in favor of the steel industry as a condition to manufacture of orders for naval building was expressed by John P. Frey, on behalf of organized labor, at a conference here with government officials.

Senator David I. Walsh, senate national affairs committee chairman and co-author of the law, in a prepared statement in effect called upon the secretary of labor to adjust the differences with the steel industry or congress would be compelled to remove or modify operations of the statute so far as purchasing supplies for national defense are concerned.

Criticizes Administration

The Massachusetts senator said that the trouble was not with the provisions of the law, but in its administration by the labor department. He said that the steel industry is operating under a 44-hour week and claims to be unable to readjust itself to a 40-hour week.

"The real difficulty, therefore," he contended, "is not the terms of the statute but its administration. The labor department is in conflict with the steel industry as to the working hours per week. The law gives ample discretionary power to the department of labor in regard to the fixing of hours of labor in the various industries."

McGrady Arranges Meeting

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady had arranged for a discussion of the situation with Assistant Secretary of Navy Edison, who is in charge of the building program, but who was unable to be present. He was represented by his assistant, Louis Compton.

The labor group consisted of John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, and A. D. Lewis, brother of John L. Lewis.

Mr. McGrady said that Compton had suggested suspension of the law that the navy might obtain bids for the supply of needed steel, but this did not fit in with the views of representatives of organized labor.

Frey Opposes Concession.

"If an exemption is made for steel," contended Frey, "it could be argued with propriety that every manufacturer providing the needs for government vessel building should have the same sort of concession.

"That might mean the making of turbines, dynamos, the building of motors, machinery for the hoists and many other things for the navy manufacturers, but little in the way of machinery and confines itself largely to assembly and installation.

"It is readily seen that if an exemption is given to steel, the question would not be of steel alone, but would extend to everything else that the government has to buy and that means a very large part of the equipment of a ship."

Having granted such an exemption, he declared, it would be a very difficult matter for the government to insist that other private manufacturers for the government abide by the law.

Lewis Suggests Inquiry.

Lewis pointed out that the steel industry is not now operating on a forty-hour week schedule, adding that it would be a very simple matter to employ additional men and stagger shifts so as not to disrupt plant programs.

During the two-hour conference, the representatives of labor confined themselves to discussing the Walsh-Healey act and the situation of steel, without going into any other matters that might have an influence thereon. However, Lewis said that the suggestion had been made to Assistant Secretary McGrady that "from the information given us there is evidence of collusion on the part of steel companies and in our opinion an investigation should be made either by the department of labor, the department of justice, or both."

Gigantic Employer Campaign Is On To Bar Labor Right to Organize, Senate Committee Report Asserts

Industry in Drive to Neutralize American Labor Law and Policy, Scathing Denunciation of Espionage Declares —Spy Tells Committee of Trailing Edward F. McGrady.

Washington.—There were several high lights at the La Follette spy hearing this week. One came when an ex-Pinkerton told how he had been put to watch and follow Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, and how he "got hell" for failing in the job. Another came when Senator Thomas analyzed the mental caliber of the "Big business men" who buy so-called information from spy agencies; and a third—and by no means the least—was the report of the committee to the senate on the investigation as far as it has gone.

An ex-spy named Martin told the McGrady story. It happened in Toledo, Ohio, last year. McGrady was down there on his usual mission of conciliation, and he was pointed out to Martin and a fellow fink who were ordered to follow McGrady everywhere, and take note of everyone to whom he spoke. Martin stopped his narrative abruptly.

"Did you obey orders?" asked Senator Thomas.

"No, sir."

"We couldn't find a taxicab till McGrady was out of sight. I got hell for that!"

Seek Vainly to "Listen In."

The Pinkerton's got a room next to the one that McGrady occupied at the hotel, and tried to listen in on his conferences. They got next to nothing.

Told of the spy story, McGrady said:

"I think it is a terrible thing for private detectives to spy on federal officials on government business. But, we expect it. We know or suspect that we are being watched. We have been told our wires have been tapped.

"We are careful what we do or what we say. Every labor department conciliator has been ordered to conduct himself so that no one can get anything on him. They are ordered to remain neutral—and they always are."

Witness Admits Lying.

S. H. Brady, head of the Cincinnati branch of the Pinkerton, tried to say that the Pinkerton agency didn't do any industrial spying. Senator La Follette reminded him that he was on oath, and repeated the question. Brady then admitted that he had come from Cincinnati to Alexandria to discuss labor matters and particularly the C. I. O. with Mayor Davidson, secretary of the Machinists.

"Did you tell Davidson that Pinkerton is no longer engaged in labor espionage?" demanded La Follette.

"Yes."

"It was a lie, wasn't it?" said Thomas, mildly as usual.

"Yes, sir."

Hired Riff Raff.

For nearly an hour that Brady was on the stand, he was occupied in telling how he hired men who proved to have neither character nor brains, men whom he could not trust, and yet sold to the big corporations the "information" which these riff raff brought him.

"Do you realize?" asked Thomas, "that you are showing up the big business men of this country as the greatest suckers on earth, when they pay you money for the reports of such men as you have described?"

Report Scores Spying.

"It is clear that espionage has become the habit of American management. Until it is stamped out, the rights of labor to organize, freedom of speech, freedom of assembly will be meaningless phrases. Men cannot meet freely to discuss their grievances or organize for economic betterment; they may not even express opinions on politics or religion so long as the machinery of espionage pervades their daily life. Nor can industry itself do aught but multiply suspicion and distrust. Industry, from fear, pays millions a year to live in more fear.

"Your committee has discovered so far * * * the basis of a colossal, daily drive in every part of the country to frustrate enunciated labor policy and to neutralize American labor laws. Determined anti-labor forces quickly divert themselves around each new obstacle put in their way."

The Amazing Report on Steel

The University of Pittsburgh has just finished a piece of labor research which should leave the labor world gasping in glad surprise. This institution, located in the very capital of industrial reaction, endowed by wealth largely gathered by steel's exploitation of its workers 12 hours a day and 84 hours a week, has written a report that might have come from a labor organization.

That report was written by Dr. Ralph J. Watkins, who headed the research. It calls for the organization of steel workers, without coercion by employers. It calls for collective bargaining on a national scale. The key paragraphs of this report cannot be summarized; they must be quoted:

"First, steel workers should be organized. Effective administration of personnel relations in plans employing hundreds and even thousands of workers and in companies employing tens of thousands of workers is dependent on organization that extends to the lower reaches; moreover, only through organization can the workers protect their interests.

"Second, the logic of the industry's operation is such that vertical rather than craft organization is called for. Integrated operation extending from blast furnace to the finished rolled steel product constitute the economic unit. And a form of organization that would encourage jurisdictional disputes would be socially inefficient. Furthermore, since management is organized on a vertical basis, any approach to equality of bargaining power would require a similar vertical organization of the workers.

"Third, collective bargaining should be on a national basis and not on a plant basis. The plant is little more than a cell in the iron and steel industry, and the economic factors bearing on wage rates and hours proceed from and in turn affect the national market—wages constitute a significant part of costs, and managel ment must consider them in a national setting. In short, management will bring to a wage discussion a national point of view backed by the industry's united front, formed on the advice of both 'inside' and 'outside' experts. Should not the workers do likewise?

"Fourth, organization of steel workers should be in accord with the principles of industrial democracy, under which the workers are accorded the unrestrained exercise of the liberties of self-expression and participation in measures affecting their welfare. Anything short of these liberties, whether by employer coercion or by autocratic union methods and leadership, would be contrary to the ideals attained in a democratic society."

Will steel heed these wise words? Dr. Watkins, who made the speech containing these paragraphs at a banquet attended by many steel magnates, doesn't believe it will. But the report of Dr. Watkins, properly circulated, would bring public opinion to bear on the issue in a way that even steel would find very hard to resist.

Organized labor is the greatest factor in raising working standards. Therefore, by patronizing firms that display the union label, all workers help to maintain American standards.

CLOTHING WORKERS PACT IS COMMENDED BY GREEN

Washington.—The agreement reported as negotiated by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America with a committee of men's clothing manufacturers, said to represent 85 per cent of the national industry, providing a 12 jer cent wage increase and continuing the 36-hour week, was commended by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, at a press conference here. Mr. Green said that so far as he could understand by press reports it was a "very commendable settlement."

The contract was reported to run for three years, with the wage increase amounting to about $30,000,000 annually.

Wages of Men's Clothing Workers Increased by New Union Agreement

New York City.—Wages of 135,000 clothing workers have been raised 12 per cent by a contract just signed by a committee of men's clothing manufacturers and representatives of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. The contract takes effect May 15, and continues for three years.

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated, said that the union emphatically rejected the thesis that wages should be determined by the cost of living.

"An increase of wages was asked and gained," he said, "on the basis that the workers in the industry are entitled to a larger share in the fruits of their industry, a share that will enable them to live on a higher standard of life.

"In other words, the Amalgamated demanded for its members a real increase in the purchasing power of each worker. Unless all industry does the same, the improvement in business cannot continue. The employers with whom we are in contractural relations have shown the economic intelligence to recognize this."

The increased expenditures of the world for military purposes are largely due to the unveiled aggressiveness of arbitrary rulers; the military clique in Japan; and the fascists and nazis in Europe.

Did anybody suppose that President Roosevelt, with his policies approved at the last election by the biggest majority in American history, would go on through his second term patiently letting his work be destroyed by the reactionary squad of the supreme court?

Consider, most merciful emperor, how I can pay dues and taxes."

DETROIT STRIKES BRING MORE PAY FOR THOUSANDS

Detroit. — A nine-hour sit-down strike in the Briggs Manufacturing company's main plant ended with pay increases for approximately 500 workers. Employes, engaged in building bodies for Ford and Chrysler, were reported to have received a 40-hour week and 5 cents an hour wage raise in the strike settlement terms.

Budd Wheel company increased its annual payroll by approximately $350,000 in raising the pay of 3,600 Detroit workers.

Settlement terms in the strike at Nash-Kelvinator's two Detroit plants included wage increases of 5 to 7½ cents an hour for employes.

All General Motors Spy Memoranda Destroyed in Fear of Damaging Disclosures by Senate Committee

Witnesses Admit Notes and Letters Bearing on Espionage Were Taken from Corporation Officials' Files Before Inquiry Befun — Spy Activities Failed, Investigators Told.

Washington.—The senate civil liberties committee hearings for the last few days have been a picture of stupid and untruthful evasion struggling against determined inquiry. For as much as an hour together, Senator La Follette would not get a single prompt and candid answer; but by sheer persistence, he always got the answer at last. General Motors officials were on the stand; and the total of General Motors admissions was startling.

They admitted that they hired the Pinkertons in 1934 on account of the attempt of the A. F. of L. to organize the automobile industry. Merle C. Hale, of General Motors, must have given a dozen evasive answers before this one came out—but it came.

They admitted that the Pinkertons established an office in the Hoffman house in Detroit so as to take note of men going to and coming from the United Automobile Workers headquarters in the same building and on the same floor.

All Spy Notes Destroyed.

They admitted that they knew that much of the "information" they received from the Pinks came from stool pigeons and "rats" in the G. M. working force. They admitted that they destroyed all notes, letters and memoranda relating to the spy business to keep the senate committee from getting hold off the stuff. They admitted that even the bills, while showing G. M. expenditures of more than $800,000 in two and a half years on spying, still were not complete and not honest.

For instance, General Motors paid a bill for "professional services" to one J. R. Smith of $2,850 in a single month. Travel and telephone expenses in the same month came to $900. And J. R. Smith was just a clerk in the Pinkerton office, who never saw a nickel of the money.

Failure of Spies Admitted.

And to cap the climax of admissions, Harry W. Anderson, labor relations director for the G. M. corporation, admitted that the Pinkerton service had not produced good results, and also that it was not dropped until the senate investigation came along.

The house cleaning which General Motors indulged in when the investigation turned its way was thorough. Hale, Anderson and other "labor experts" swore that they never kept any memoranda for more than a day or at most a week. Also, they testified that they stripped their files when they heard the senate was likely to investigate. Both statements can scarcely be true.

Went Through Files.

Anderson testified that without permission, he went through Manager Knudsen's files and threw in the waste basket everything relating to the spy business; and H. M. Hogan said that he told President Sloan's secretary to do the same.

There is a grave doubt in the minds of the committee whether General Motors did this house cleaning before the committee's subpoenas arrived—or after. On the face of things, it is almost incredible that some of the things told—such as Anderson going through a superior officer's files—would happen except under pressure caused by a direct demand for the evidence.

General Motors expenses for spying were shown to be $839,764 in the two and a half years from Jan. 1, 1934, to June 30, 1936.

The spy account keeps on growing, and no one feels certain that its full size has been revealed even yet. Last week, the detailed figures were $419,850 to the Pinkerton agency alone during the two and one-half years in question; though it was figured that payments to other spy agencies probably would raise it above the half million more. Now we know that the Pinkerton costs first given are barely half the spying outlay of General Motors.

Senator La Follette showed that the G. M. paid the Pinks $203,333 in a certain period, but had turned in only $165,000. Harry Anderson, "director of labor relations of the General Motors corporation," explained the discrepancy by saying:

"We deducted expenses when making the report."

"Explains Hiring of Pinkertons.

How many other items were "deducted before making the report" can only be guessed.

Merle C. Hale qualified for what Huckleberry Finn would call the "ignorantest person" in captivity. He said the Pinkertons were hired because General Motors wanted to know "WHAT CONDITIONS IN THE PLANT BROUGHT ON THE NEED FOR OUTSIDE ORGANIZATION."

That is the prize boner—to date—of the investigation. For a man posing as director of labor relations for a corporation with nearly a quarter of a million employes not to know why his workers want to belong to a nationwide organization is bad enough—but to hire a bunch of finks to tell him why—that is really the worst yet.

Strike Prevention Is Forum Subject

"Can Strikes be Avoided?" "Crime: A Growing Menace"; "America Self-Contained." These are the subjects that are being discussed at the Chattanooga-Hamilton County Public Forum meetings. They are of vital interest to all working people.

There has been much misunderstanding about this Public Forum. Some people have believed it was propaganda of some sort; others have had the idea that a considerable amount of education was necessary for one to be able to be benefited by these meetings, and others have stayed away because they did not wish to take part in public discussions.

As the people understand that the purpose of the forum is adult civic education and not propaganda; that anyone can learn at the meetings regardless of what educational advantages he may have had, and that no one is expected to take part in the discussions unless he wishes to do so, there will be an increased interest in, and attendance at, forum meetings.

Schedule of meetings:

Monday, March 1 (Lookout Junior High School) — Alden G. Alley, "America Self-contained."

Tuesday, March 2 (Dickinson Junior High School)—H. D. Hopkins, "Can Strikes be Avoided?"

Thursday, March 4 (North Chattanooga Junior High School)—Edwin T. Thayer, "Crime: A Growing Menace." Red Bank Junior High School—H. D. Hopkins, "Can Strikes be Avoided?"

McGrady Answers Attacks on Child Labor Amendment

Proposed U. S. Ban Gives Congress No Power Over Children's Education, as Charged, Legislative Hearing Told.

Boston.—Appearing before a legislative committee to urge that Massachusetts ratify the child labor amendment, Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, blew up the farfetched obpection that the amendment would give congress power to control the education and home life of children.

"The amendment," said McGrady, "gives to congress power to 'limit, regulate and prohibit' the labor of children under 18. It has nothing to do with education. Let that be clear. If it were intended that congress by this amendment could affect the education of children in any way, it would have said so.

Only One Issue.

"The issue is to regulate and prohibit the trade in children's bodies in industry," declared McGrady. "The rottenest profits in the world are the profits made from the sweat and toil and dead bodies of children."

"I am a Roman Catholic," he said, "but the church in this country never has taken a stand against the child labor amendment."

Individual Catholics, as McGrady admitted, have taken part against the amendment. Mgr. Ahern, speaking for Cardinal O'Connell, opposed the amendment as "an unqualified grant of power" to congress.

The most preposterous objection, however, was made to the amendment by A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard.

Lowell "Seeing Things."

"There is some question," said Dr. Lowell, "as to what labor means. Does it include military training? I can't say. Does it include school? Most children think that schooling is labor.

"This is not a child labor amendment," said Dr. Lowell. "It is a great deal more. The protagonists (of the amendment) wish to get control over the children of this country, and the treatment of these children."

Robert J. Watt, secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, described Lowell's speech as "Gibberish;" and a good many agreed with him.

Social Workers Meet To Discuss Security

Sessions Here March 14-17 to Be Attended by 500 People and Numerous Speakers.

Leaders of state and national welfare and social security agencies will head the list of speakers at the annual four-day convention of the Tennessee Conference of Social Work, which will be held at the Patten hotel here March 14, 15, 16 and 17.

Dr. Walter L. Stone, Nashville, conference president, says that he expects an attendance of more than 500 social workers, state, county and city officials, members of civic and women's clubs, health authorities, and others.

The convention will be climaxed March 17 with the announcement by Commissioner George H. Cate of the setup for the new state department of welfare and institutions, which has been perfected with the assistance of the federal social security board and the American Public Welfare association.

General theme of the convention will be "Social Planning," which at present occupies the attention of national, state and local governments.

Cooks and Waiters to Meet Sunday at Labor Hall

There will be another session Sunday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock, at the Labor Hall, 114 West Seventh street, for Cooks and Waiters. Just as soon as cooks and waiters in Chattanooga realize that organized labor is ready and willing to fight for their right to organize and benefit themselves if such is desired, the time will come that decent living wages and conditions will be secured.

5 Big Steel Companies Raise Wages to $5 Daily Minimum and 40-Hour Working Week

Similar Concessions Forecast by U. S. Steel, as Corporation's Biggest Subsidiary Negotiates With CIO—Acceptance of Union Wages and Hours Mark Great Change in Steel Policy.

Washington.—The steelmasters at last have read the election returns. Five steel companies, employing close to 180,000 men, have accepted the 40-hour week and the minimum wage of $5. Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, biggest subsidiary of United States Steel, met with representatives of the committee for industrial organization in negotiations which were considered practically certain to bring the same result; for the 40-hour week and the $5 day are the things which the CIO has been preaching since it started to organize steel.

The boost in wages involved is estimated at $125,000,000 a year.

The whole industrial outlook is changed overnight by these developments. For months, it has looked as if a strike in steel were almost certain. Now, it looks as if the steel workers had won their strike without calling it.

New Law Factor in Decision.

Undoubtedly the Walsh-Healy act, specifying wage, hour and other conditions for work done under government contract, was a big factor in the decision of the steel companies to establish the 40-hour working week. Under the Walsh-Healy act, setting a 40-hour week, the steel companies were debarred from making steel for naval vessels. Now that they have accepted the 40-hour week, they can bid for naval contracts, which have been held up by their refusal to bid for all but a small portion of steel sought for naval building.

Steel Firms Agree on Plan.

The five steel firms which have come into line and the number of their employes are as follows:

Bethlehem Steel	65,000 men
Youngstown Sheet & Tube	23,000 men
National Steel	20,000 men
Inland Steel	13,000 men
Republic Steel	52,000 men
Total	173,000 men

Some figures put Bethlehem Steel employes at the present time at from 80,000 to 85,000. It is certain that the figures given above are minimum.

The five companies made their announcements only a few minutes apart. Obviously, they had agreed on their plan and set the time. Apparently, National Steel made its speech first; but Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet & Tube both beat National in getting on the wires.

News Marks Big Change.

It is hard to realize the tremendous change marked by this news. Steel has been a long-hour, long-week, and, for the gruelling character of the work, a low-wage industry from the beginning.

Steel has been a bitterly anti-union industry. Morgan emphasized this when he forged the United States Steel corporation; and the strike of 1919 ended in union disaster.

Steel's anti-union policy has been ruthless and savage. Steel has bought more guns, more tear gas, more spies than any other American industry;

Convention Call Sets Jackson, Tenn., Site For 40th Conclave

Officials of Federation Issue Formal Notice, Fixing Dates at May 3, 4, 5—Local Labor Bodies Will Begin Important Conclave.

Official call for convening the 40th annual session of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, to be held at Jackson, commencing May 3, was issued this week, and as a consequence it is anticipated that more than usual activity will be manifest in locals and Central Labor union circles annually attending the election of delegates.

The convention sessions are to be held at the New Southern hotel in the West Tennessee city, and due to the importance of labor legislation in state and national circles may continue for three days.

Local unions, where affiliated, are entitled to one delegate in the state federation meet while the central bodies of the state may send three delegates if all dues are paid in full.

The call, signed by R. S. McCann (Memphis), president, and T. R. Cuthbert (Chattanooga), secretary-treasurer, quotes the basis of representation, above referred to and which is further restricted to the extent that no delegate will be seated whose organization is in arrears for dues or assessments to the state federation. It goes further to show that no delegate may be seated whose organization is not affiliated with the City Central body (if one exists) of his residence.

It is urged by the federation officials that all central bodies and local unions send delegates, in view of the importance of the business to be transacted. It is recalled to union organizations, not affiliated, that the initiation fee is $5 as to central bodies and local unions having more than twenty-five members. A section of the federation by-laws is quoted to show that only those local unions whose dues and assessments are fully paid will be entitled to representation and in the case of organizations who are delinquent for one year or more shall pay the initiation fee and six months dues prior to the seating of their delegate or delegates.

Copies of the convention call, it is anticipated, will be received by the Central Labor union in time to be presented to the delegates Monday evening when a date will be named for the election of three delegates, and by all other affiliated local unions so that they may take the proper steps to elect delegates or square up arrearages with the secretary-treasurer in order that they may be entitled to representation.

CEMENT CO. SETS EXAMPLE BY SIGNING PACT

Union Agreement With Cement Workers' Local 18269 Hailed for Fine Spirit.

WORKERS TO RECEIVE 7½ PER CENT PAY BOOST

Open Meeting Between Employers and Union Held Tuesday Afternoon for Final Signature and Reading of Contract.

Employers and employes at the Signal Mountain Cement company of Chattanooga are receiving congratulations for the splendid demonstration of sensible negotiation which can be achieved between capital and labor which resulted in a signed agreement last Tuesday.

The contract is for one year from March 1, 1937, and recognizes Local 18269, Cement Workers, as the sole bargaining agency in the plant. Every employe in this large industry is a paid-up member of the union.

Under the terms every worker, with the exception of foremen and superintendent, will receive an immediate hike in his pay envelope of 7½ per cent.

Seniority standings have been agreed upon. All overtime will be paid at the rate of price and one-half.

At the open meeting called by the union at their "labor temple" across the highway from the plant last Tuesday afternoon the contract was read clause by clause by Attorney H. G. B. King, who acted as legal advisor for the union through the negotiations which extended for several months.

T. R. Cuthbert, editor of The Labor World, made a short talk at the opening of the meeting in which he pointed out to the union members that a bright future had been opened up to the workers in the Signal Mountain company by the signing of the contract. "During the coming year of this agreement you will be on trial. You have negotiated collectively with your employer. You have made certain agreements with your employer. Whether you have made a good or bad bargain does not enter into discussion now. You must live up to the letter of what you have agreed with them to do. See that the sanctity of your word put into writing is adhered to strictly."

Present at the meeting were the plant superintendent, Mr. Cabaniss, and foremen of the different departments in the plant. Each expressed gratification of prospects for future relations with employes.

The meeting was presided over by Past President T. J. Adams, serving in the absence of President Fred Sullivan. Secretary of the local is V. O. Cunningham.

The labor movement is proud of the steady and sensible leadership in the Cement Workers' union, and congratulates both the company and its employes on this latest development.

Labor Going Places

Reports coming in from all over this nation during the past month have been encouraging to all classes of working people. From press reports it appears that finally steel barons are getting some sense. It has been expected that before steel workers would be successful in organizing into unions a bitter, long and bloody fight would have to be endured.

On the contrary, more than one million workers in steel the past week were recognized by various powerful steel corporations. This is as it should be. We congratulate the steel workers and their employers. Let us hope that this is the beginning of organization of at least ten million workers who in the past have been prevented from joining labor unions.

A.—Yes. The Switchmen's Union of North America, for example, was incorporated in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1902.

TVA Workers Go On Five-Day Week

Knoxville, Tenn.—The Tennessee Valley Authority has set an example to private industry by announcing that all its office and field employes here would go on the five-day, 40-hour week, effective March 1.

All offices will be closed Saturdays. Employes have been working five seven-hour days and four hours on Saturday, a total of 39 hours a week.

TASMANIA LABOR PARTY MAKES ELECTION SWEEP

New York City.—A wireless dispatch to the Times states that the labor party in Tasmania has won a smashing victory in the elections, winning twenty out of the thirty seats in the Tasmanian parliament. The fact that Tasmania has proportional representation emphasizes the labor triumph. It is also a personal victory for Premier Albert G. Ogilvie, who has held office since 1934 by a bare majority of one, and that due to a coalition.

COMPANY RECOGNIZES UNION.

New Orleans.—Settlement of the dispute between the Celotex company and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local No. 130, through the company's agreement to recognize union electricians in all construction work was announced recently by Charles H. NEW WAGNER HOUSING BILL PUTS U. S. BEHIND BIG SCALE PROGRAM TO PROVIDE LOW COST DWELLINGS Measure, Which Provides Prevailing Wage and Good Labor Standards, Is Aimed to Spur Lagging Building Industry and Remedy Nationwide Lack of Decent Homes.

BY GEORGE L. KNAPP

WASHINGTON.—The Federal Housing bill, written chiefly by Senator Wagner, of New York, who introduced it in the Senate while Congressman Steagal, of Alabama, introduced it in the House, will be a new departure in Federal legislation. It puts the national government behind low cost housing, with credits, subsidies, and, perhaps as potent as anything else, the power of eminent domain—that is, the right to take over private land for public use on reasonable payment.

The bill has a triple interest for labor. In the first place, it is designed to make a start at recovery in a branch of industry that has lagged up to date, the building industry. In the second place, it is careful to provide the prevailing wage; and in the third place, no large group of Americans, always excepting tenant farmers and migratory farm workers, is more bitterly in need of "safe and sanitary" dwellings at low cost than the labor group.

The bill—S. 1685 in the senate—begins with a recital of findings and policy.

Bad Housing Held Cause of Much Evil.

"Section 1. There exist in urban and rural communities throughout the United States slums, blighted areas, or unsafe insanitary and overcrowded dwellings, or a combination of these conditions, accompanied and aggravated by an acute shortage of decent, safe and sanitar dwellings within the financial reach of families of low income."

The section goes on to say that such housing conditions encourage the spread of disease, damage health, increase fire hazards, starve decent ambition and foster crime; all of which, by the way, can be proved from the records of health offices and juvenile courts all over the country. Also, "the failure to remedy the acute dwelling shortage has produced stagnation of business activity in the construction, durable goods, and allied industries, thus resulting in widespread prolonged and recurring unemployment with its injurious effects upon the general welfare of the nation."

New Building Policy of Nation Set Forth.

Private industry has failed to meet the need of "decent, safe and sanitary" low cost housing; states and cities cannot take it up without assistance. Therefore:

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to promote the general welfare of the nation by employing its funds and credit, as provided in this act, to assist the several states and their political subdivisions to alleviate present and recurring unemployment and to remedy the unsafe and insanitary housing conditions and the acute shortage of decent, safe and sanitary dwellings for families of low income."

To carry out this policy, the bill creates a United States housing authority, on the models already working splendidly in the New York port authority and the Tennessee Valley Authority. The housing authority is to be managed by a board of three members, appointed by the president, confirmed by the senate, drawing $10,000 a year with five year terms, and debarred from any other occupation while serving on the authority.

Grants or Loans Authorized in Bill.

The housing authority may make grants or loans to public housing agencies to assist the building, purchase or management of low rent housing.

A public agency is the agency of any state or municipality. Grants are subsidies paid each year for not more than 60 years; and must be no more and run no longer than is necessary to insure low rents. The authority must not, in any one year, make contracts to pay grants running above $10,000,000 a year. Loans define themselves. The rate of interest is that which Uncle Sam has to pay at the same time, and the loan must he repaid in not more than 60 years.

Power to Authorize Demonstration Projects.

The housing authority may make loans to limited profit housing agencies; that is, to corporations organized to provide low-rent housing, and strictly limited to say 5 or 6 per cent return on their investment. These agencies must open their books to the authority; the loan must not be more than 85 per cent of the cost, the interest and payments are as with public housing agencies. The authority may not lend more than $25,000,000 in any one year for this purpose.

"The authority may develop and administer low-rent-housing and slum-clearance demonstration projects, in order to demonstrate to localities the benefits to be derived therefrom." It must get the consent of the local government before starting such a work—but as a matter of fact, it is probable that ten or twenty communities will beg the authority to get busy in their neighborhood to every one that resents its coming. Here again applies the limit of $25,000,000 a year.

Labor Section Protects Workers.

Section 12 gives the housing authority power to "acquire real or personal property, eminent domain, gift, devise, lease or otherwise." In other sections it is given power to see that low-rent housing is kept to that purpose.

Section 16 is the labor section of the act; and itt is pretty thorough. It prescribes the prevailing wage. It limits hours. It provides compensation in case of accidents. It requires reports from contractors that will enable the housing authority to prevent the chiseling which pays the worker the prevailing wage—and makes him "kick back" a sizable part of it to the boss if he wishes to keep his job. Senator Wagner has had a world of experience in writing labor laws, and he used it all here.

Of course the bill contains many provisions not mentioned here; and some of them are extremely interesting. Thus, the property held by the Housing authority is exempt from taxation—but the authority is empowered to make an agreement to pay the local taxing body an amount equal to what its taxes normally would be.

Measure Defines Basis of Rentals.

The measure of rents to be charged is reached in this way:

"The dwellings in low-rent housing as defined in this act shall be available solely for families whose net income at the time of admission does not extend five times the rental (including the value or cost to them of heat, light, water and cooking fuel) of the dwellings to be furnished such families, except that in case of families with three or more minor dependents, such ratio shall not exceed six to one."

It remains to be seen whether on that basis, even federal aid can get "decent, safe and sanitary housing" for such underpaid folks as cotton textile workers.

Also it is the wise crack that knows its own father.

Label Leaguers Have Big Time At Annual Party

Dance at Mosque Well Attended—Local Unionists Very Graceful on Dance Floor.

The Label League dance, held last Friday evening at Alhambra Mosque, was a big success, according to those who finally left the floor at a late hour after the musicians folded up and went home.

Sweet strains were furnished by Ellis Goodloe's orchestra, supplemented by a vocal number of "Boo-boo-a-doop" Hallmark, who moaned and sobbed into the microphone "It's a Sin to Tell a Lie." "Vic," no doubt stung by the stage success recently gained by his better half, demonstrated to the dancers that his wife did not possess all of the talent in the Hallmark family.

Graceful Joe Dobbs, president of Central Body, swings a mean hip. Poor old Arch Underwood and M. M. Beavers were "done dirt" the whole evening. They had to stay on the floor to collect tickets. However, no one objected except the victims themselves, because Mesdames Underwood and Beavers had plenty of partners every dance.

President of the league, Miss Ina Greene, protested that she "just couldn't dance," but it was noticed that she was very much in demand all evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Mahoney, who have just celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary (married four months now) were seen having a good time with the other unionists. Johnny is a member of the Musicians' union as well as being one of labor's ace legislators in Tennessee's legislative halls.

Miss Edna Brown missed for the first time a Label League party. The day previous a miscreant tooth started a campaign of torture which drove all thoughts of fun from Edna's mind.

All of the Reynolds clan was there. Miss Lena Edmonds and escort were there as usual (page Walter Winchell).

It was a swell affair. Already the league is looking forward to another one like it.

L. I. D. Lecturer Talks on Future Next Wednesday Eve

Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, vice-president of the National Public Housing conference, will conclude the 1937 League for Industrial Democracy discussion lecture series on Wednesday, March 10, when he will speak on "America Faces the Future" at Memorial auditorium at 8 p.m. under the auspices of the Workers' Cultural society.

"Rabbi Israel has been described as 'the outstanding Jewish spokesman of Jewish social ideals.' Our committee is pleased to present such a notable clergyman as the last speaker in the series," Ina Green, chairman, said today. She announced that Rabbi Feinstein will introduce the Baltimore lecturer.

Born in Cincinnati he received his education at the University of Cincinnati and at Harvard university. After serving as acting chaplain of the Jewish welfare board in France he was ordained at Hebrew Union college in 1919. He has been rabbi of the Har Sinai congregation since 1923.

He has been president of the Baltimore branch of the American Jewish congress since 1934. In addition to work with the National Conference of Jews and Christians he has done active work in the Zionist movement. As editor of the "Bulletin" of the committee on social justice of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, as an officer of the American Association for Social Security and as a former officer of the League for Industrial Democracy, he has become well-known as a student of social and economic problems. He is chairman of the Baltimore committee on employment stabilization, and has acted as a member of the regional national labor relations board. He has also served on the arbitration committee of the men's clothing industry.

Rabbi Israel is a frequent contributor to the current periodicals. He is one of the authors of "The Western Maryland Railway Strike" (1927) and "The Centralia Tragedy" (1930). In an article last month in the "New York Post" Rabbi Israel wrote: ". . . the worker has certain rights in his job. If he feels that collective bargaining through a national labor union is necessary for the preservation of those rights, he is definitely entitled to pursue such orderly methods as may force the employer to meet with his representatives in collective bargaining."

Hosiery Unions Back President On Court Plan

On behalf of the membership of Branches 5399 and 102 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers we wish through your columns to appeal to the citizens of this county to poin with us in concerted effort to secure immediate passage of the president's proposal for increasing the number of justices on the United States bench.

Every ordinary alert person must realize that we cannot pass any needed measure of social legislation at this session of congress unless we first see to it that there is a liberal majority on the supreme court bench. The average citizen is today fully convinced of the imperative necessity for the adoption of federal regulations providing for maximum hours of work and minimum wages in industry. We need other types of social legislation which the courts now deny us. It is essential also that legislative action making it possible to enforce the national labor relations act or a similar measure.

The American wage-earners are more sincerely devoted to the underlying principles of the constitution than are smooth talkers like Walter Lippman and the various self-proclaimed liberals who are knifing the president's proposals in congress. The organized labor movement has been fighting for the constitutional rights of workers and against the purely unconstitutional and essentially feudalistic attitude of employers and the "interests" which have been resisting the right of workers to organize and to exercise ordinary civil liberties.

The constitution is in no danger whatever because the president seeks to increase the size of the supreme court bench. But democracy is in danger in this country if the great majority of people are unable to secure the passage of laws which are clearly needed to promote the general welfare and to enable the country to avoid a serious economic crisis.

"Straw votes" now being taken by professional testers of public sentiment are, we assert, as unreliable indications of the true feelings of the masses as were the predictions that President Roosevelt would not be re-elected. We are in the closest touch with a representative body of workers, probably the largest organized group in the city. This group is overwhelmingly in favor of doing something about the supreme court now. This group is organizing to bring pressure to bear upon congress to secure prompt passage of the president's plans for the reform of the court.

There must inevitably be some confused thinking on the supreme court question because of the widespread newspaper campaign to mislead the public on the question. But the underlying population is for the president's plan. The congressman or senator who votes against the president on this question is unlikely to hold his seat at the next election.

The American Federation of Hosiery Workers is on record in favor of amending the federal constitution so as to finally clarify the question of what authority congress has to enact social and labor legislation. But until we increase the number of liberals on the supreme court bench we cannot even take the necessary legislative action to submit a constitutional amendment to the people in any reasonable fashion.

DRIVE ON TO ORGANIZE CARPET PLANT WORKERS

Yonkers, N. Y.—Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers of America, made the opening speech here of a drive to organize 5,000 or more workers of the Smith Carpet works. He was assisted by Alfred Whittle, chairman of the Westchester county conference of the Typographical union.

The carpet and rug industry has long been reported by the United States bureau of labor statistics as one of the low wage industries, and one with poor working conditions as well. The union hopes to improve both matters.

Last week's snow reminded me of the time, way back in about 1919, when we had a real winter over in good old West Tennessee. At that time I was young enough to wear my hair in long curls and every morning as part of the getting ready for school ritual my mother dampened my hair and curled it around my fingers. One particularly cold morning I waded through the snow and ice to school and discovered when I got in the schoolroom that my curls were a lot of frozen icicles.

The snow stayed on the ground for more than a month that winter and all the kids had a lot of fun. It was so cold that the schools couldn't be heated so everybody got a vacation. Which reminds me that the biggest little boy is hoping for just such weather now, maintaining that he can't see what good schools do us anyhow. Having progressed way up to the third grade, he should know.

Didn't know that there was any difference in overalls, but according to the latest information Painters and Carpenters wear two different kinds of work clothes. Sears Roebuck is advertising both kinds this week—union-made, of course. I'm gonna ask Mr. Cordell or Mr. Weidner or some of the men who belong to those two organizations to tell me the difference. Sears also has union-made work pants and caps. Better get set for the spring work rush.

Have to apologize for saying the ladies could not make good public speeches—Miss Jenny Lee was most interesting and gave a sincere and enlightening discussion of the situation in Europe—it seems that it is not such an easy thing to keep the world out of war. One wonders if Miss Lee speaks so frankly about Great Britain's mistakes when she is in her own country.

MORE ABOUT SOCIAL WORKERS

Speakers will elaborate on this theme and its subdivisions.

The eight minor themes to be discussed at the convention are: "Dealing With Disadvantaged Groups," "Medical Care," "The Problem Child," "Health and Social Problems," "Problems of State Planning," "Community Organization," "Public Assistance" and "Social Action."

A speaker's list has been arranged which includes such nationally known authorities as Robert S. Wilson, New York City, staff associate, National Association of Travelers Aid;" Dr. Charles E. Johnson, Nashville, director social science for Fisk university; Dr. Michael Davis, Chicago, chairman advisory council, American Hospital association; Dr. R .E. Dunford, Knoxville, professor of psychology, University of Tennessee; Mrs. Percy Madeira, Philadelphia, vice-president Public Charities association; and Miss Jane Hoey, Washington, director public assistance bureau, federal aid security board.

An important innovation at the Chattanooga convention will be the institute on family case work open for a limited number, and conducted under direction of leaders in the profession.

The directors will be Miss Leah Feder, St. Louis, Mo., and Miss Corn Rouzee, regional field secretary, Family Welfare association, New York City.

The annual banquet will be held Tuesday night, when Miss Hoey will speak on "Social Security."

More Indorsements

Two more local unions formally voiced approval yesterday of the president's plan to retire members of the United States supreme court at 70 when, in regular meetings, the Pressmen's local and the Cement workers gave full indorsement to the president's proposed court change.

SENATORS' PRAISE OF NON-UNION CIGARETTE BRINGS SHARP REPROOF FROM TOBACCO WORKERS' OFFICIALS

Washington. — Indorsement by a number of United States senators of a non-union cigarette, at $1,000 per indorsement, has stirred a storm of protest in labor circles.

Protest is made that the indorsements are in poor taste and may lead to the suspicion that the great tobacco companies, which have been among the most determined opponents of organized labor and of progressive legislation, are seeking to influence the votes of senate members on pending or future legislation.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, and Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, are bearing the brunt of criticism for the endorsements, which have appeared in display advertisements in hundreds of newspapers all over the nation. Senator Nye attempted to excuse his indorsements by telling reporters that the money he received for his kind words on a certain cigarette was turned over to charity. Moreover, Nye said thirteen other senators are to follow with indorsements, some over the radio. It is all for sweet charity, Nye explained.

Practice Vicious, Says Evans.

Sharp criticism of the senators came from E. Lewis Evans, president of the Tobacco Workers' International union, and O. R. Strackbein, economic adviser of the same union.

"When senators and members of congress lend their names for the advertising of private brands of goods, the practice on the face of it, is highly questionable," said Mr. Evans.

"When the product covered is manufactured by a corporation which is constantly interested in federal legislation, the practice becomes vicious and indefensible."

"Privileged Portion Sought."

Mr. Strackbein said:

"The tobacco trust has ridden high through Washington for years. But I know of no instance when a member of the trust has so openly flouted the ethical principle that legislators are to receive no money from a source which has legislation pending before the legislative body.

"The American Tobacco company has been and is now interested in legislation before congress. One of the enactments sought is a reduction in cigarette taxes. Another is the extension of the reciprocal trade program whereby the tobacco trust was made an outright gift of about $600,000 per year.

"If gift of money to public officials by persons interested in important issues before such officials, is bribery, then what is this?

"Probably the tobacco trust, long a notorious oppressor of labor and farmer, which has net profits three or four times its total annual wage bill, again seeks a privileged position in anticipated social legislation.

Union Names Mayor Agent To Negotiate Wage Scale

Philadelphia.—The Battery Workers Federal union has signed an unusual agreement with the Electric Storage Battery company which will end, for a time at least, the sit-down strike that has been going on for 40 days. The agreement constitutes Mayor E. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, the sole and complete agent of the union in negotiations on wages. These negotiations have already begun.

The 1,800 workers involved have asked an increase from the present average of 67 cents an hour to 82 cents. They report themselves perfectly ready to sit down again if there is any stalling on the part of the company.

Collective buying is the best method to retain collective bargaining agreements.

Hosiery Workers Win Union Shop

Reading, Pa.—The first union shop and arbitration contract in the full-fashioned hosiery industry in Berks county was signed here between President Emil Reeve, of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, and George C. Giles, of the Traymore Hosiery company, of this city.

The signing of this agreement was regarded as particularly significant here in view of the fact that the Reading branch of the hosiery federation has called a general strike for March 1 to obtain collective bargaining contracts in all local hosiery plants.

The Traymore agreement provides for 100 per cent unionization of the plant, for the union scale of wages and for union conditions of work. An arbitrator will be named to whom all disputes will be referred. There can be no lockouts of stoppages for any cause as long as the agreement remains in effect.

Members of the Japanese parliament charge that Japanese police torture prisoners. Probably they do. But what is our American police "third degree" but a crude and utterly illegal form of torture?

Marshal Field, Al Capone's favorite department store, reports net earnings increased more than 1,300 per cent in 1936 over those of the previous year. But why aren't we told how much the wage payments of Marshal Field increased in the same time?

Steel men are saying of their refusal to bid on steel for the navy, "We don't want the business if we have to conform to the Walsh-Healy act." Government yards build warships much cheaper than private yards under contract. Why not try out the same plan for some steel mills?

If you desire to do something for a worthwhile cause, spread the gospel about the union label!

Advocacy of the union label is a practical way to increase wages and shorten hours.

There is a revival of the old labor motto: spent and the cause of the union label must go with it.

The Golden Rule of labor unionism is to buy the goods of others as you would have them buy yours.

The union label, shop card and button are the emblems that designate workers' progress.

But when it came to marriage that was a different tune,
And he who favored peaches fell for a little prune.

Edward Nockels, Veteran Leader Of Labor, Dead

End Comes Suddenly to WCFL Manager and Secretary of Chicago Federation of Labor, Which He Served 36 Years.

Chicago.—Edward N. Nockels, veteran union leader and fighter for better conditions for wage earners, dropped dead in a restaurant here on Feb. 27. Death was due to heart failure. A doctor who was at once summoned could do nothing for him.

The body lay in state in the great hall of the Street Carmen's union from 2 o'clock on March 1 until 2 the next day, when the funeral service was held. A guard of honor of 150 trade union members was appointed to serve in watches while the body was lying in state. Funeral addresses were made by Father John W. R. Maguire, of St. Viator college, and Frank P. Walsh, noted attorney. Both of these men were close friends of Nockels.

Long Federation Official.

Mr. Nockels, who was 67 years old, had been secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor for 36 years and had participated in almost every major labor struggle in the midwest, in his capacity as secretary of the Federation. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

A fighter despite his age, Nockels recently had been engaged in a battle to extend the scope of radio station WCFL, "The Voice of Labor," which he founded and to which he devoted the last years of his life. He believed enthusiastically in the value of radio to labor and was tireless in his efforts to extend the usefulness of WCFL. Much of his time in recent years had been spent in Washington, where he worked for legislation to give WCFL better broadcasting facilities.

Born in Iowa.

Nockels was born at Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 21, 1869. Like many of the old-school labor leaders he was self-educated, having attended school in Prairie, Du Chien, Wis., and St. Paul, Minn., only through the fifth grade.

After serving an apprenticeship as an electrician he came to Chicago in 1895 and immediately took active part in the infant labor movement. By 1903 he had become so popular with the crafts in Chicago that he was elected secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Three years later he married Edna C. Caldwell, who survives him. She has been an invalid for several years at the Nockels home, 367 Woodlawn avenue, Chicago.

MORE ABOUT STEEL DRIVE

though of late years, automobiles have run a close second. And now—five companies accept union wages and hours without formally recognizing the union, and the biggest branch of the biggest steel corporation sits down with the steel workers' committee to talk it over.

What Brought Results.

Many factors have had a part in this result. The New York Times prints a report that President Roosevelt has been moving toward this end behind the scenes. Disregarding that until confirmed, here are some of the events which forced steel's hand:

1. The election. Not only the election of Roosevelt, but the smashing of the regime dominated by steel, aluminum and a few other industries which for nearly a hundred years has ruled Pennsylvania with a rod of iron. When the Pennsylvania state police last summer guarded the union organizers holding a celebration at Homestead, the handwriting on the wall began to grow plain.

2. The settlement of the General Motors strike.

3. The degree of success of the movement to organize steel.

4. The practical migration of several company unions to the real union camp, that of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, one of the oldest unions in America.

5. The labor relations bill pending in the Pennsylvania state legislature, prescribing criminal penalties for collusion in thwarting collective bargaining.

6. The prosperity, coming after many lean years.

President Roosevelt's farm tenancy message is a splendid modern exposition of a truth stated in two lines written in 1770—

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates, and men decay."

Labor Backs President In High Court Plan

Sit-Down' Method Used in Hotel Where Labor's Non-Partisanites Are Holding Annual Convention

3 Cooks, Waitresses, Fold Arms, Lock Doors at 6 O'Clock Monday Evening in Effective Manner.

ny Unionists Check Out of Hotel in Spite of George Berry's Public Statement That the Strike Is "Silly" —John L. Lewis Refused to Pass Picket Line.

STATEMENT BY THE EDITOR

Although the strike called by the restaurant employes in the Willard hotel involved comparatively few, it is being given prominence in The Labor World because of the fact that I had my first experience with this new form of industrial struggle. I can state that in this instance it was completely effective. It was quietly carried out. No heads were broken. Order prevailed. And no scabs tried to take other people's jobs. They could not get in simply because the rightful owners of the jobs were not out. Although the "sit-down" has not been used locally YET, I prefer this method to the old method of leaving a job to face bayonets, clubs and strikebreakers on the streets.

elegates to Labor's Non-Partisan ue convention, being held in the ard hotel at Washington, D. C., astounded last Monday evening o'clock in seeing the cooks and tresses in that establishment "sit- down" on their jobs in protest inst the discharge Sunday of two heir union leaders. About twenty ets were flung around the hotel, wn as the "Residence of Presi- ts."

ohn L. Lewis, president of the ted Mine Workers of America, scheduled to make an address at o'clock that evening. When he e up to the hotel to fill his ap- tment, and seeing the pickets, he sed to pass the picket line and ed back. Many of the delegates checked out of the hotel and re- d to re-enter.

Peoria, Ill.—It should not be difficult to purchase beverages served by union men in Peoria. The Bartenders' union here publishes in the Peoria Labor Gazette a list of over 160 beverage dispensing places which are described as fair to organized labor.

MIXED HIS CURRICULA

Don't be too harsh in blaming the new policeman who beat up the 19-year-old taxi driver for committing lese majeste against the new minion of the law. It must be remembered that the new cop had just graduated from the stiff course of training in the "police school" and he most likely got his courses mixed. He must have "majored" in strike-breaking, and being an intense student, thought that he was on a picket line instead of playing the role of a private citizen.

"SIT-DOWN" AWFUL?

The Hon. Harper Sibley, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said in Nashville that bargaining "is reasonable and proper for employer and employe alike, but the sit-down must go."

Well, well! Say it's not so. He says it is not legal. And it is "injurious to employes." The Honorable Sibley blandly forgets the sit-downs his group have been staging in this land of ours by refusing to obey laws through the use of expert lawyers who take the worker through innumerable courts of appeal in order to make his workers "fall down" from exhaustion and hunger.

Workers have finally gotten enough sense to come in out of the rain. Instead of going out into the rain of bullets and gas, they come in out of the rain by remaining in the plant and thereby save their heads from being broken by Bergoff's brutes and paid deputies.

We saw the sit-down in operation in Washington this week, and believe us, it is effective. Therefore the loud wail from the Honorable Mr. Sibley.

"Sit-Downers" Get Written Orders From Leaders

Politeness to Be Practiced and No Resistance to Police Emphasized.

"Sit-downers" in the Willard hotel evidently are well schooled in their union. Prior to the zero hour, every striker was given detailed instructions as to future conduct. They were as follows:

1. When strike order is given all waiters, waitresses and kitchen employes stop working.
2. All waiters and waitresses "sit down."
3. All kitchen employes sit down at your posts and refuse to work.
4. During the strike all waiters and waitresses may sit down in the lobby or lobbies of the hotel, like any other member of the public.
5. Also, all waiters and waitresses may sit down in the dining room, like any other members of the public and order. Of course, what is ordered (such as coffee, milk, etc.) must be paid for, like other members of the public.
6. All waiters and waitresses should sit down in their uniforms.
7. All kitchen employes should sit down in their uniform and working clothes.
8. All waiters and waitresses must be polite to the public and to the other non-interested persons. Waiters and waitresses must not talk to the public or to the guests of the hotel, unless spoken to, and then they should speak quietly and courteously in response and answer to the questions of the public and guests.
9. No profanity of any kind shall be used. No swearing of any kind.

Building Trades Sign Union Contract for Viaduct Job

"Closed Shop" Agreement Secured from Atlanta Contractor.

Labor history was written this week when Chattanooga building tradesmen secured an agreement from J. E. Milam, of Atlanta, to build the new $250,000 Ninth street viaduct with all union labor. This is the first time in the south that this particular type of construction work has been done 100 per cent union, according to those who know.

Tuesday, preliminary work was under way, and union carpenters had replaced the nonunion men who began work on the shack which is to serve as the construction office building.

Joe G. Dobbs, president of the Central Labor union and a leader in the Building Trades council, was present for the conference. Others present included E. E. McDaniel, international representative of common labor; A. V. Cordell, of the carpenters; A. T. Johnson, of the electrical workers; C. F. Weidner, of the painters; C. R. Raynesford, of the operating engineers, and Erskine Mabee, of the sheet metal workers.

Other unions which will have a part in the project are cement finishers and iron workers.

New Molder Local Has One-Day Strike for Test Strength

After Display All But Two Who Had Not Joined Sign Up.

Local 8, Molders, employed in the Somerville Iron works, in North Chattanooga, have been organizing for the past several months. Out of the large number of employes all but twenty had joined up. These twenty evidently did not believe that the union was as strong as claimed and would not "take a chance."

Thereupon last Monday all the union molders declared a one-day strike, which was so effective that eighteen of the twenty decided to get union-minded.

It is believed that in a short time the plant will be 100 per cent union.

LABOR'S NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE DELEGATES, 700 STRONG, PERSONALLY TELL SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN MUST KEEP DEMOCRACY.

Hear Senator La Follette Monday Morning Brand Aged Justices as "Lame Ducks"—Intensive Drive in Labor Ranks to Assist President Roosevelt in Judiciary Program.

Labor's Non-Partisan league, with delegates from every state in the union, met in Washington Monday to formulate plans to support President Roosevelt in his judiciary reform program. That labor is solidly behind the president was evidenced by an enthusiastic "aye" which was roared in approval of a resolution adopted and personally given to the president in the White House.

The delegates heard Senator Robert M. La Follette (progressive), of Wisconsin, denounce the "lame ducks" of the supreme court "whose thinking belongs to another generation and has been repudiated by the American people."

In addition to labor's support, the president received in the course of the day a delegation of sixteen representing farm organizations, who discussed the court proposal with him and then issued this statement:

"Farmers, as well as other citizens, should properly assume that President Roosevelt—re-elected by the greatest majority in history—is generally better informed relative to the affairs and needs of this nation than any other person.

"President Roosevelt has staunchly supported and advocated all farm legislation upon which agriculture could come in common agreement. Agriculture's greatest progress has been thwarted by the supreme court and

LABOR LOSES "BILL" WERGIN TO DEATH ANGEL

Respected Machinist Passed Away Last Saturday After Long Illness.

W. L. WERGIN

W. L. ("Bill") Wergin is gone! Respected, loved and followed by young and old in the labor movement because of his fine character and loyalty to his people, it is a bit hard to realize the sad truth that he has been relieved of the sufferings of a long illness and finally passed to his reward last Saturday at his home on Forest avenue.

Since 1912 Brother Wergin had been an active and valuable member of Local 56, Machinists, serving in practically every post of duty in that lodge, as well as having served in Central Body for a long period of time.

He leaves his wife and two daughters. He was 69 years of age. Burial was at Forest Hills.

The formal draft of resolutions adopted by Lodge 56 says:

"We, the officers and members of Success Lodge No. 56, I. A. of M., express our heartfelt sympathy for you, Mrs. W. L. Wergin, and we regret to lose one of our most efficient members.

"We have enjoyed association with him for many years and his memory will ever carry on in Lodge No. 56, I. A. of M.

A. & P. Stores Handle Non-Union Crackers Made by Labor-Hater

Curtis Sims, business agent of Bakery and Confectionery Workers, Local 25, reports that several months ago the A. & P. grocery chain in Chattanooga promised to cease handling products of the American Baking company. However, he says, these stores are still retailing crackers made by Merita.

It will be recalled that the Merita bakery locked out its union employes, and rather than deal with the union they closed their plant and left the city.

Trades unionists are urged to take note that Merita products are non-union.

Mr. Elmer Murphy, one of our union painter contractors, was stricken by a heart attack and taken to Erlanger hospital last Friday evening. He is resting fairly well. His many friends in the labor movement are wishing for him a speedy recovery.

FEDERATION PROGRESS

Enemies of labor—and of teachers as a part of labor—have attempted to spread the rumor that the federation is diminishing in size and prestige. This is by no means true. Paid-up memberships have steadily increased for the past five months. The union is recognized as the bargaining agency for the teachers by no less persons than members of the Hamilton county delegation of the state assembly. Participation in both the board meetings and the general meetings is on the increase and the level of discussion is more mature in both bodies. In sum we are growing in size, influence and in inner quality.

SUPPORT THE FORUMS

Teachers have been perhaps the most faithful of the patrons of the public forums. This worthy form of adult education has been a great force for light and tolerance during the past few months. However, the excellent forum programs have not received the support from the public in general that they deserve. Teachers are already doing their part by attending. Now, in order to save the forums for Chattanooga, it may be necessary for teachers to go further: to constitute themselves as attendance committees to see that the public takes advantage of the opportunities offered. There is a grave danger that the forums will be transferred from Chattanooga if attendance does not improve. Such an occurrence would be a setback for educational progress here, and we should make every effort to prevent it.

UNION OBLIGATIONS

When we joined the federation we incurred certain obligations not only to our fellow federation members but to all members of organized labor. In order to fulfill our obligations we must patronize union services and union-made goods so far as possible. Several teachers are planning to build or repair this spring. These teachers should consult with the representatives of the building trades in order to see that the job is right with labor.

Looks like some of the brothers forget the meetings are now held at Wheland hall on the first floor of the auditorium. Business Manager A. T. Johnston requests that every member be present next Wednesday at the regular meeting.

Robert Duncan is the electrician about town, now installing the new signal lights.

I understand that W. B. Dyche has started grooming up some baby chicks so he can enter them in the county fair this fall.

Ralph Harris is taking an eight-weeks' course in neon lighting and tube bending at the University of Florida, 30 miles from Ocala, and is living at Camp Roosevelt.

Perry Howard was looking for a minnow bucket last Saturday; said he wanted to go fishing this week even if he had to break the ice.

Alfred Cofer and his family have moved out near Red Bank.

Vaugh and Tipton are going to be more sure they carry their working cards from now on. As they were ready to start a job the other day the madam of the house asked where they were going to work; had to see their cards before they could start the job.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Well now, things do seem to be moving. United States Steel, biggest customer of the dumhead machine gun and gas business, comes across and sits down to talk turkey with union labr. Altogether, there is a lot doing around the United States in various places. The labor movement, split wide open, is making progress with and through both wings. Flint steel opposition to dealing with unions is passing out. In a year there may be chalked up more recognition of the rights of labor than in any other ten years. Common sense is getting a break. Reaction is backing down.

So, what. So there will be a lot of peace where there might have been a lot of war. A heap of money will go into pay envelopes that never went there before. But the main thing is that a new kind of freedom is recognized—new, that is, in a great area of industry. It's the freedom, the recognition of rights, that counts most. The money counts plenty, and the shorter hours, but the rights mean an open road for the whole future. That is above any price. A feudal system has passed out—a system of freedom has come in. A great many wars and revolutions have been fought and brought the people less than has been brought in America in the past three months by the peaceful organization of unions.

Is it all over now? By no means. Plenty is to come. There will be, whenever unions come into the picture, the business of learning what to do with unions, how to run them, how to establish and maintain discipline, how to operate a new kind of democracy. To unions that have been in existence through many years that is an old story.

When miners sat down in a mine in violation of their union agreement, they were ordered, by constituted authority, to come up out of the mine and abide by their contract. No monkey business.

There is no freedom unless there are laws and obedience to law. Breaking of laws—made by the state or by the union—throws freedom aside and menaces every other person whom the law is there to protect.

So, there's plenty of road to go. Where new unions spring up, there is just a beginning. Ask the unions that have been running for twenty years, yes and fifty years. They are stable as the state itself. They are not excited by any passing flurry. know the road. But, tremendous progress has been made here lately. More is to come. There is a whale of a lot of territory for all unions yet. There is so much work to do that it is a wonder anyone thinks about anything else. A long road to go, some of it even without any pavement or any grading. Cheers for what's been done, but no time out from the rest of the job.

The best "maiden speech" we ever listened to was this: "You'll have to ask my papa."

Comment on World Events

A wireless dispatch brings word of how patiently Mussolini is taking up the white man's burden in Ethiopia. Bombs were thrown at Marshal Graziani, the Italian viceroy, on Feb. 19. The marshal was only wounded, and it is not known that anyone was killed.

But a cordon of Italian troops was thrown around the area where the bombing took place, and the wireless dispatch mentioned tells that every Ethiopian within that circle was killed. Nor did the matter stop there. For three days after the attempted assassination, according to the dispatch, Italians went through the native quarters, killing every native they found. The number of victims is given at 6,000; and this is made plausible by the official news that 2,000 natives were arrested, and that most of them were shot.

A partial confirmation is given by the Associated Press news that Italians set fire to the dwellings of the servants of the French consulate.

Thus does fascism spread civilization. The story reminds one of the savagery with which the Duke of Alva sought to cow the Netherlanders into submission to Spain in the sixteenth century. When weary of butchering the men of Harlem whom he had pledged to spare, he had 300 of them tied back to back and tossed into the lake. But savagery didn't work then; and the odds are that it won't work now.

Senator La Follette, at a hearing of the senate civil liberties committee, brought out the fact that the American Bridge company, a subsidiary of United States Steel, paid out $289,462 for "labor trouble" when putting through its $2,250,000 contract on the Pulaski skyway in New Jersey. The labor trouble was due chiefly to wages; the company paid $1.75 an hour for expert steel men, when the union scale at that place was $2 an hour.

"Wouldn't it have cost less to pay the union scale?" asked La Follette. The witness didn't know. Then La Follette showed from the company's own books that the union scale would have added only $51,849 to the cost of construction, a saving of $237,613 over the amount spent in fighting the union.

"Remember, O stranger, that arithmetic is the oldest of the sciences and the mother of safety."

The Securities and Exchange commission has thought it necessary to warn American investors that nazi Germany has a big short-term debt which she never mentions when telling her financial story. Two years ago, according to information reaching the SEC, that "unrecorded debt" was over 5,000,000,000 marks, which means about $2,000,000,000. It is probably larger now.

This is official confirmation of a statement which has been made many times of late. It is all the more significant when we know that Germany is putting out $69,000,000 of 3 per cent bonds in this country, to take up some of her defaulted interest with these bonds instead of with cash. Naziism may yet fall because of bankruptcy, rather than because of revolution.

Aluminum and Saw Workers Are Granted Pay Increases

Washington.—The Aluminum Company of America has granted a 10 per cent increase, effective March 1, to the 20,000 employes in its fourteen plants, scattered from Pennsylvania to California. Company spokesmen estimate that the action will add $3,000,000 to the annual payroll, and say that it is the third wage boost in sixteen months.

D. T. Cravatt, president of the Aluminum Workers' union at New Kensington, Pa., says that the employes voted to demand a flat 20 per cent increase.

"The company got wind of it and beat us to it," he said. "We feel that perhaps the raise approximates what we would have gained through negotiations."

Henry Disston & Sons, makers of the saws which old-fashioned carpenters prefer to all others, granted a 10 per cent raise to its 2,000 men at Tacony, Pa. This also was an attempt of the management to beat the men to the punch; but not quite so successful as that of the Aluminum company.

Workers in the Disston plant, members of Lodge 1073 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, notified the company earlier the same day that their union represented a majority of the workers in the plant, and asked for the opening of collective bargaining. The union intends to press this demand, to ask for a 25 per cent boost in wages, formal recognition of the union, 40-hour week, time and a half for overtime, seniority rights and an increase of safety provisions.

Remember that back of every union label are higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions.

N. Y. Dress Manufacturer Violates Union Agreement—Pays $20,000 F

New York.—Collection of $20,000 from the Kaplan and Elias Dress company, in settlement of union claims for under-payment of workers and other violations of a collecitve agreement was announced here by Julius Hochman, general manager of the joint board of the Dressmakers' union. The latest payment by Kaplan and Elias brings the total paid by the firm for violations of its agreement with the union to $54,100.

The present case grew out of investigations showing that Kaplan and Ellis had been underpaying its workers and violating the agree in shops at Woonsocket, R. I., Harrisburg, Pa. There were tional charges that a number of tractors producing garments Kaplan and Ellis had been underp ing their workers.

And, speaking of quick change iste, the steel companies now fall over their feet for pay boosts shorter work weeks were hiring and buying tear gas not two mo ago.

1,000 Chicago Machinists Win Wage Boost Agreements

Chicago.—A substantial raise in wages is announced by the Machinists and Millwrights' Local No. 126, Chicago, Ill. The new agreements, covering about 1,000 members engaged in handling and erecting machinery, raise the wages from $1.37½ an hour to $1.50 an hour. The work week is 40 hours, with overtime before 8 a.m. and after 4:30 p.m., and on Saturdays, Sundays and all holidays.

Now that the president of the greatest union in the world has been inaugurated, let's inaugurate a union label campaign.

NEWSPAPER GUILD LANDS TWO WAGE BOOST PACTS

Akron Beacon Journal and Lynn Telegram News Grant Union Terms to News Writers.

The Newspaper Guild of Lynn, Mass., has negotiated an agreement with the Lynn Telegram News providing 50 per cent increases for a majority of the editorial and news writers, the preferential shop and unqualified union recognition. Under the new scale staff men who were receiving $25 a week will be paid a minimum of $40 a week, with a dismissal indemnity of eight weeks' pay after three years' employment. The staff formerly worked a seven-day week, which was cut to a six-day week.

Extension of the 40-hour week to every one except the managing editor, a 7½ per cent pay raise, and a number of departmental increases in minimum rates have been won for the editorial and news writers of the Akron Beacon Journal, Akron, Ohio, by the Newspaper Guild of that city. The 40-hour week extension is reported to bring fourteen "key position" subexecutives into the shortened week area which was previously limited to non-"key position."

GIRL SHIRT MAKERS STRIKE FOR MORE PAY

Lebanon, Pa.—The Warren Shirt company plant stopped operations when 150 girl operators sat down; the second shirt factory to close in this town in a very short time. The Kantor was the first.

Both strikes have been for higher wages. The Warren girls say that they get only $1 for an 11-hour day. They work from 6 in the morning to 5:30 in the afternoon, with only 30 minutes off for lunch. They have taken three pay cuts in the past two years.

Anton Rakow, general manager and part owner, refuses to negotiate "until the issues are crystallized."

Labor Victories Electrify Nation; Carnegie Agreement Followed by Five Independents Employing 200,000 Men

Forty-Hour Week With Minimum Wage of $5 Per Day Adds Millions of Spending Power to Steel Workers; New Labor Policy Being Adopted by Chrysler and General Electric.

Washington. — The breath-taking pace at which labor news of the first importance poured out over the country through the early part of this week has slackened only a little; but that little is enough to allow a fairly general survey of the ground which labor has gained.

First, of course, comes the agreement between Carnegie-Illinois and the CIO. It seems wise at this point to put in the first article of that agreement, as follows:

"1. The corporation recognizes the Steel Workers' organizing committee or its successors as the collective bargaining agent for those employes of the corporation who are members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America, hereinafter referred to as the union. The corporation recognizes and will not interfere with the right of its employes to become members of the union or its successors. There shall be no discrimination, interference, restraint or coercion by the corporation or any of its agents against any member because of membership in the union or its successors. The Steel Workers' organizing committee or its successors agree not to intimidate or coerce employes into membership or to solicit membership on corporation time or plant property.

A New Magna Charta.

"No discrimination, interference, restraint or coercion, by the corporation or any of its agents, against any member because of membership in the union or its successors." That is the heart, the Magna Charta of this agreement. With that granted, any development of the union becomes possible; indeed, is put squarely up to the union itself.

Second only to the Carnegie-Illinois agreement is the way in which lesser steel companies, both independents and subsidiaries, have tumbled over themselves in falling in with the $5 day and the 40-hour week. Five independents led off the first day—Bethlehem, Republic, National and Inland Steel corporations, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube company. These concerns employ at least 173,000 men. Since that day, Jones & Laughlin, Columbia Steel, Pittsburgh Steel, Sharon Steel, T. C. & I., Otis Steel, Wheeling Steel and National Tube have taken the plunge. Figures for employment are not available for all of them, but the ones for which data can be had employ around 45,000 men, and Jones & Laughlin would raise this at least a third. No up to date figures for Carnegie-Illinois are available, but common report puts their employment figures not much below 200,000.

The total steel employment at present is given as 550,000. A. J. Hain, editor of the magazine "Steel," estimates that at least 40,000 more will get jobs on account of the shortening of hours.

Chrysler "Work Councils" Resign.

Steel, though the largest part of the picture, is only a part. The negotiations between Chrysler corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America are in progress, and seem to be going forward quite amicably. Only one big piece of news from this quarter is absolutely certain, but that is big indeed.

Chrysler, like all other big employers, established "work councils" of company unions in 1933. In the Detroit area, there were 120 employe members of works councils. The resignations of 103 of them were presented to the conference by the U. A. W. A. representatives, and in each case, the resigning member stated that the great majority of his constituents favored the U. A. W. A. as the sole bargaining agency for workers.

It would be difficult to imagine a harder wallop to the company union than that.

Sloan Blasts Sour Note.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., has issued an ill-natured statement telling General Motors employes that negotiations with the union had nothing to do with their 5 per cent increase in wages. As the London bobby said about the soap-box orator who was slamming Queen Victoria, "it seems to 'elp 'im, an' it don't 'urt 'er."

Representatives of the General Electric Company and of the United Electric and Radio Workers of America will meet in New York March 15 to discuss the demands of the union for the company's 60,000 employes. These demands include a blanket increase of 10 cents an hour for all employes, increased compensation for certain shifts, and complete elimination of the speed-up system.

The Steel Workers' organizing committee is going ahead with its work. The first objective is to secure agreements with all the subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation. Now that the biggest of all, Carnegie-Illinois, has led the way, this does not seem likely to be over difficult. However, the American Bridge company, American Steel and Wire company, Tennessee Coal and Iron and Columbia Steel, all subsidiaries of U. S. Steel, all have records of hard-boiled anti-unionism; and the Bridge company, in particular, is a busy employer of spies.

The baby that cries in the theater should be named "Good Idea," because good ideas should be carried out.

HENRY FORD

By George L. Knapp

Henry Ford is a most remarkable man. A man who combines in himself many excellencies and superiorities hitherto found only in separate individuals.

As a manufacturer, starting with a capital investment of $28,000—and not putting up any appreciable percentage of that himself in cash—he built up in a little over 20 years a business for which he was twice offered $1,000,000,000 in cold cash.

As an employer, he accepted Jim Couzens' idea of a $5 minimum daily wage; and then, when the story brought thousands to his factory gates in the dead of winter, he turned the hose on them.

As an autocrat, he followed the Turkish example—"the Turk allows no brother near the throne." When his business had been built to a sufficient pitch of power, he got rid of those who had helped him most in building it; Couzens, and Knudsen, and the Dodge brother, for example; and many others.

Unloaded Money Troubles on Others.

As a salesman, he was cunning enough to see that Ford jokes sold Ford cars; and every editorial office in the country was pelted with these jokes from Dearborn.

As an economist, he unloaded his financial troubles on his dealers, his workers, his parts makers and his community. He shipped scores of thousands of unordered cars to his dealers, and drew sight drafts against them for the amount. All of them had to borrow to meet the demand, and many of them went broke. When driven to change his model, he cut off his orders for parts without adequate notice, adding further to the bankruptcy list. Then he shut down his plants, and left his workers to starve or be supported by charity and by taxes levied for relief.

"I know," he told Paul U. Kellogg, of the Survey, "I know it's doing them a lot of good."

Without Peer as Damphool.

As a damphool, he is utterly without a peer; without even a close rival. In fact, this is his greatest excellence and superiority.

He understood so little of the roots of the World war that he expected to "get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas" merely by furnishing a free trip to Europe for a bunch of theorists, none of whom, of course, were quite as ignorant as himself, but none of whom knew anything worth mentioning about international affairs.

He swallowed, hook, line and sinker, an anti-Jewish propaganda as vicious and as stupid as that on which Hitler rode to power. Week after week for years, he printed the poisonous lies about the "international Jewish alliance" which already had been used to promote pogroms in western Russia, and already had been twenty times refuted and exposed.

Latest Pipe Dream Sets Record.

And now, he soberly puts forth the pipe dream that labor unions are just part of the work of a conspiracy of international financiers, and warns all workers to stay out of them.

"International financiers are behind the labor unions," he said, "because they want to control industry and kill competition. They are the cause of all these strikes.

"A man loses his independence when he joins a labor group of any kind, and he suffers as a result.

"Competition in industry will guarantee workers a fair wage, but labor unions destroy this competition.

"It is organizations of this type that lead up to war."

Can you beat it? You cannot.

As a manufacturer, Ford has many rivals, some of whom probably were fully equal to him in everything but luck. As an employer, he is no more vicious than the steel masters and the textile barons, though he has been rather more effective. As a Jew baiter, Hitler can give him cards and spades—though it is only fair to add that Henry hasn't had Hitler's opportunities.

But as a damphool, he stands alone and unapproachable.

MORE ABOUT D. C. SIT-DOWN

that trouble began just before the new year when the waitresses were organized. Officials of the hotel, this spokesman said, gave orders to dispense with the ring leaders in the union movement.

Maj. George L. Berry, president of Labor's Nonpartisan league, anxious to pave the way for Lewis' appearance for a speech, appointed a committee of prominent labor leaders to mediate the strike with the waiters' union and the hotel management. After an hour or so of talk, it was announced that the negotiations had been postponed.

The committee appointed by Berry was headed by Frank Martel, of Detroit, and includes A. D. Lewis, of this city, brother of John L.; Joseph Obergfeld, of Cincinnati, and Dennis Lane, of Chicago.

Berry declared that last April the league had contracted with the hotel for both office space for the league and halls for meetings, and added that "no one deserves leadership in America unless he keeps his contracts." Then discussing the hotel by name, he declared:

"But I don't intend to be stampeded by a fixed-up situation that contemplates the embarrassment of this convention."

Picket Is Silent.

A picket was asked by a reporter whether the strike had been called at this time because the league was directed by so many of the C. I. O. leaders, but replied, "I have nothing to say."

It was pointed out, however, that numerous A. F. of L. unions are members of the league.

Despite the absence of Lewis, Berry went ahead with the evening session, calling for the report of the resolutions committee and then summoning to the platform various leaders of the league from other cities and states.

Berry said he did not plan to change the league's meeting place, since the Willard quarters had been contracted for months ago, and delegates were not using services affected by the strike. The league did plan, it was stated, to attempt mediation.

Berry Tuesday morning characterized the controversy as "silly."

"Neither side has a monopoly of the responsibility," he added.

"No Feeling.."

Asked how he felt about sleeping behind a picket line, Berry said he had no feeling whatsoever. He has lived in the Willard for some months.

Tuesday morning Berry said the picket line would not interfere with a Nonpartisan league executive committee meeting, which was to be held in the hotel Tuesday, but it was noted that many of the delegates were absent.

"To move all our documents and equipment at 6 p.m. Monday night would obviously have been impossible," he said.

Some guests checked out, however, saying they didn't want to sleep behind picket lines. The Women's Press club, which was scheduled to hold its weekly luncheon Tuesday with Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian minister to the United States, and Lady Marler as guests, moved in a body to the National Press club.

Int. Labor Press Representative Pays Call at Labor World

Warren Irvin, American press representative with the International Labor Office in Geneva, Switzerland, stopped by The Labor World Monday. Mr. Irvin stopped in Chattanooga overnight on a swing through the south, in which he is contacting newspapers in an effort to stimulate publicity and attendance for a world-wide textile conference in Washington, D. C., on April 2.

All textile-producing countries have been invited to send delegations of employers, employees and government representatives to this meeting, and its backers are hoping to get standardized agreements for the textile industry.

The International Labor Office came into being in 1919 by a provision of the Treaty of Versailles and is financed by that body, although it is an autonomous body with no political connections. Its sole purpose, as Mr. Irvin pointed out, is to bring employers, employes and governments together and help them work out agreements. One of its chief aims is to standardize labor laws throughout the world.

Germany is the only major country in the world which is not a member of the I. L. O., having withdrawn when Hitler quit the League of Nations.

COSTS BRIDGE FIRM $289,000 TO COMBAT "LABOR TROUBLES"

Washington. — Backing brilliant cross-examination by perfect familiarity with the subject, Senator La Follette at the spy hearings this week made the spokesman of the American Bridge company admit that his company paid out $289,462 in combatting "labor troubles" that could have been avoided by an increase of $51,249 in union wages.

It was one of the most telling pieces of arithmetic in the long history of senate investigations. Curtis S. Garner was on the stand, a sort of field manager for the American Bridge company; anti-union, anti-labor from the top of his neatly brushed gray hair to the soles of his polished shoes.

The subject was the building of the Pulaski skyway in 1931 across the Hackensack marshes in New Jersey, on which the American Bridge company had a contract for $2,250,000. They had difficulty with labor from the first, because the union scale in that neighborhood for steel work was $2 per hour. The bridge company refused to pay more than $1.75. The company went to all manner of expenses, including feeding a large number of policemen and maintaining private guards, until their full cost on this matter had reached $289,462.

"Wouldn't it have cost less if the company had met the union wage scale?" asked La Follette. Garner couldn't say, but he didn't think so.

"According to your record of hours worked," said La Follette, "it would have cost only $51,849 for the company to meet the union scale. You would have saved more than $237,000 by keeping out of that fight."

Garner was rather flabbergasted; but he stood his ground. More was involved, he said, than just the money. It was a question of "labor racketeering." "We never had paid such tribute," he declared, "and we didn't start it then."

Apparently, Mr. Garner's maxim is "millions for cops, but not a cent for higher wages."

La Follette asked if the American Bridge company, the McClintock-Marshal company and the Phoenix Bridge company, all of which were on the Pulaski job, were not competitors. Garner said they were.

"Yet you belonged to the Erectors' association?"

"Yes."

"You formed a united front against labor on this job?"

"Yes."

"Then how do you justify your refusal to let labor join together?" asked La Follette. Garner talked for some time, but he did not answer the question.

Bergen, victim of shooting on that job, was on the stand and told of his crippling and impoverishment; but the fellow who shot him could not be found.

Robert Wohlforth, committee expert, testified that since the committee adjourned last September, $139,000 worth of tear gas and sickening gas had been sold for "industrial purposes."

MORE ABOUT SIT-DOWN ORDER

10. All union members shall resist any unreasonable efforts or methods on the part of the hotel management, or other employes of the hotel, to eject or put out union members from the premises.

11. However, if the police department, or other agencies of the law, such as may be ordered by the court, come in, all union members should not resist them, but should leave the premises, if such demand is made upon them by display of court warrant or order, and not otherwise.

12. No union member shall engage in any physical combat, or violence with the management or with other employes of the hotel, if such can be avoided. However, all union members shall reasonably resist any unreasonable methods used by the management or other hotel employes to eject them or put them out.

13. Pickets should keep moving on the outside sidewalks.

14. Pickets should not permit a crowd to gather around any one of them.

15. If any members of the public want to talk to a picket, he should put his sign down and talk quietly, or keep moving slowly and let the member of the public move with him while talking.

16. Even if the hotel management says to all union members, "You are fired," all union members should quietly remain at their posts and say nothing, and there they should continue to stay.

17. Union members should sit down all day and night, making relay changes with each other if necessary.

MORE ABOUT BACK PRESIDENT

we have found no effective substitute for that lost legislation.

"We believe in the president's ability and determination to preserve our democracy and, at the same time, improve the welfare of the masses. We reaffairm our faith in his leadership and will give him our full support."

League Statement.

A statement by the league delegation that visited President Roosevelt, issued at the White House, said the league was the first great national organization to come to the president's support "when he was under bitter attack from many groups" in the campaign. "Again we assume the same role," it continued, "and again our promise will be fulfilled.

"Labor is rallying throughout the United States in support of the president's program to give us a federal judiciary that will expedite instead of block the will of the people and the needs of the people.

"Our delegates will go back into every congressional district to see to it that members of congress are told what the great masses of the people want. It is the business of congress, we feel, to enact the wishes and the will of the people into law."

The court resolution adopted at the convention declared that a majority of the supreme court "in decisions clearly indicated by predispositions of its individual judges, has so interpreted the constitution of the United States as to throw out legislation already enacted and to make practically impossible future legislation of the character required for progressive and peaceful solution of our labor, agricultural and other social problems."

Calls Plan Practicable.

It called Mr. Roosevelt's plan not only "practicable, just and constitutional," but "the one way to insure the prompt action necessary for rescuing the nation from the danger of relapse into another depression."

On Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning the labor delegates visited their congressmen and senators in person and told them that the common people of the nation wanted protection from nullification of laws which benefited the masses.

Conference Petitions Mr. Roosevelt For Adequate Hospital

Wants New One Rather Than a Patched-Up Affair.

Also Sends Clipping of Alper Story Which Shows Congested Condition of Erlanger—Requirement Shown for 500 Beds.

Labor's Political Conference formally requested President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes, Senator Bachman, Congressman McReynolds, Judge Cummings and Mayor Bass to increase their efforts to give Hamilton County a brand new hospital which would provide a minimum of 500 beds. It was brought out that Erlanger, about fifty years old, only takes care of 225 patients now, and as a result sick people are being almost stacked one on the other for lack of space.

A clipping from a Chattanooga daily paper was enclosed with each resolution. The newspaper story gave a personal account of a citizen of Chattanooga who had the misfortune to go to Erlanger for medical treatment but, being unfortunte enough to escape with his life, he told the public what was going on because of lack of facilities.

For some months there has been a hue and cry for a new hospital. Certain groups have contended that Erlanger should be patched up, spending almost as much money to do so that it would be required to build a modern and larger hospital.

The political conference adopted the resolution at its regular meeting on Monday, March 15.

NOTICE

Chattanooga Central Labor Union will meet Monday night in regular session, Central Labor Hall, West Seventh Street, at 7:30 p.m. All delegates are requested and expected to be present.

President.

Seattle Dairy Drivers Win Higher Wage Pact

New Scale Ranges from $6.75 to $7.50 Per Day With Six Days Rest Per Month.

A new scale approximating a 5 per cent increase in wages has been negotiated by Teamsters' Local No. 66, Seattle, Wash., covering dairy helpers, drivers and route men employed by all dairies in the Seattle area. The standard eight-hour day is continued, with a minimum of four days off for every sixteen worked, which amounts to about six rest days a month.

Under the new wage scale, effective April 1, dairy helpers will be paid $6.75 per day, drivers $7 and route men $7.50. Time and one-half is to be paid for overtime.

The agreement also includes certain improvements in work conditions, among them the installation of time clocks in all dairies and a rule requiring all dairy trucks to be off the streets by 4:30 p.m. and the retention of a 7:00 o'clock starting time.

Labor Should Demand Green-Lewis Agreement

Union Wins Washington Hotel Sit-Down Strike

Washington.—A one-day sit-down strike against the Willard Hotel declared by the Washington Local No. 781 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America, resulted in a victory for the union, according to Miguel Garriga, international representative of the union and chief spokesman for the strikers.

The strike, which included waiters, waitresses, cooks and kitchen help, practically paralyzed the food and beverage activities of the hotel. It was called in protest against the alleged action of the hotel management who, union officials claimed, had "intimidated and coerced" employes belonging to the union.

Following conferences with both sides by Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, the strike was terminated on terms which included return of all strikers to their positions without discrimination and a pledge by the hotel management to discuss wages, hours, arbitration and any other employment question with the duly constituted representatives of the union, with the proviso that the union agrees not to press for the closed shop.

"We got union recognition," declared Mr. Garriga in commenting on the strike settlement terms. "We are the only agents for employes in the hotel and on our terms of hours and wages. We believe that at present it would not be fair to insist on a strictly closed shop."

Southern Iron Workers Win Union Recognition

Birmingham, Ala.—Settlement of a month-old strike at the Birmingham Stove and Range company plant, with the 400 workers involved being granted wage increases, a shorter week and union recognition, was announced by State Labor Conciliator M. C. Hughes.

The agreement grants wage increases ranging from 10 to 50 per cent for common labor, a 5 per cent increase for skilled labor, reduction of the work week from 56 to 45 hours and recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, affiliate of the John L. Lewis C. I. O.

An intensive campaign for the union label will increase the size of pay envelopes.

UNITY NEEDED TO MAINTAIN UNION GAINS

Rank and File Should Use Power to Bring Lewis-Green Together.

SHOULD NOT PERMIT MOVEMENT TO BE ARENA

It Is Rank and File Who Suffer Most From Division.

(From Minneapolis Labor Review.)

Do the rank and file of organized labor want the movement split in two? That is a foolish question and the answer is "NO!" But unless the rank and file act and act speedily and determinedly there is every indication that a split will occur that will spell tragedy and disaster for workers who join trade unions not to build arenas for leaders but that by uniting with their fellow workers they may obtain more of the wealth which they produce.

This is not written in criticism of William Green or John L. Lewis. They both have their good points and they both have their faults.

Unless they get together and adjust and settle their differences it will be a miracle if the rank and file of the workers do not suffer from their failure to do so.

This is written to urge every union and every member of organized labor to write to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to render a great service to the workers of this country by getting together and setting their differences.

We regret that we have not the compelling ability of the greatest writers of all times to make this appeal [illegible] would act upon the suggestion.

Quietly the rank and file have watched the fight between Green and Lewis develop. It seemed as though they were hypnotized by these actions [illegible] should have been stopped long [illegible]

Postal Telegraph Signs Agreement With Wire Men

Contract With Commercial Telegraphers' Union Covers Three Large Districts and Includes All Employes But Linemen—Praised by Green.

Washington. — Frank B. Powers, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, announced that the management of the Postal Telegraph company had signed an agreement recognizing the union as the collective bargaining agency for the three districts of Pennsylvania, Michigan and the District of Columbia, following presentation of data showing that a majority of the company's employes in those areas are members of the union.

The agreement also provides for recognition of and agreements with the union in other districts as rapidly as a majority of the employes take out union cards. Under this provision negotiation of union agreements in six other districts in which the union claims it has enrolled a majority of the employes will begin immediately.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, Mr. Powers said the agreement was the first one ever negotiated with any commercial telegraph company in the United States, adding: "This achievement is in accord with the labor objectives of your administration and may be counted a leaf in the great book of progress now being written by our nation."

The jurisdiction of the Commercial Telegraphers' union covers all employes except linemen, including messengers, clerks and machine operators. It is described as an industrial union so far as the telegraph offices are concerned.

Agreement Is Praised by Green.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was present when the pact was signed. He congratulated the representatives of the union and the company for the successful outcome of their negotiations and said the agreement was a definite recognition of the fundamental value of joint relations between the representatives of management and labor and once more visualized the harmonious settlement of labor problems around the conference [illegible] inasmuch as the Postal Telegraph company was now fair to organized labor, union working men and women [illegible] would undoubtedly [illegible]

Lewis Committee Acts to Charter Own Labor Bodies

Officers Authorized to Issue Certificates of Affiliation Where Deemed Desirable—Move Proves A. F. of L. Charge, Green Says.

Washington.—The CIO has taken the first step toward setting up state, city and local federations of unions, where CIO unions have been expelled from A. F. of L. central organizations. A conference in Washington of representatives of the thirteen CIO unions unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"The executive officers of the committee for industrial organization are authorized to issue certificates of affiliation to national, international, state, regional, city central bodies and local groups whenever it is deemed such action is desirable."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, stated that he had predicted such action by the CIO a year ago, when he and the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. declared that the Lewis committee industrial organization aimed to set itself up as a rival of the federation.

CIO Objective Plain, Says Green.

"It was clearly evident from the beginning that this objective would be reached," said Mr. Green. "By that I mean that the CIO would reach the point where they desired to function as a rival to the American Federation of Labor. You recall that the Executive Council (of the A. F. of L.) classified the CIO as a rival organization a year ago."

The resolution passed by the CIO union representatives is the latest of recent moves all tending to sharpen

Dissension Must Stop

On the first page of this issue is a reprint from the Minneapolis Labor Review which we believe is timely. We assume at least patently obvious that the rank and file of Labor must become active and vocal if the interests that fight them at every turn are to be defeated.

It is apparent that the open shop employers of Chattanooga pay particular heed to the activities of labor unions. They know that unless Labor keeps its ranks solid and militant they can more easily defeat the purposes of unionism. They know that unless Labor is alert and vigilant they can more easily put over their anti-labor schemes. They know that unless Labor is on the job at all times they can more easily defeat the efforts of Labor to improve its economic status. They know that unless Labor is ever watchful of its rights they can more easily destroy the unions.

We have been fortunate in the history of Chattanooga labor organizations in that there has been little dissension in the ranks of labor. At times, perhaps, misunderstandings between the various labor bodies have arisen, but, generally speaking, the differences have been adjusted in an amicable manner before the public was aware that there was any difference of opinion. This is as it should be. Labor is composed of individuals who, on the attainment of their objectives, differ on methods. We do have differences. They are confined to our ranks. Out of our many differences of opinion as to methods because of personal disagreements.

Workers must and must learn to get together. There is no other course. Dissension in the ranks of labor is encouraging the cause of the open shop. The employers of unorganized labor in Chattanooga are glad to see labor divided. Every time labor is divided it is weakened. Every time labor is weakened it is defeated.

We must not be defeated. We must not allow petty differences to defeat us. We must not allow the employers of unorganized labor to defeat us. We must not allow the employers of organized labor to defeat us. We must not allow the public to defeat us. We must not allow labor to be defeated. This is a call to unity. This movement is composed of individuals with all the attendant individual temperaments and frailties. We do have differences. They are confined to our ranks. Out of our many differences of opinion as to methods because of personal disagreements.

Workers must and must learn to get together. There is no other course. Dissension in the ranks of labor is encouraging the cause of the open shop. The employers of unorganized labor in Chattanooga are glad to see labor divided. Every time labor is divided it is weakened. Every time labor is weakened it is defeated.

Nashville unionists are working to secure for a cooperative dairy in that city. Sometime ago the Dairy Workers were on strike in Nashville but made no gain to overcome all the obstacles they had to face.

Perhaps they will be cheered by the way the bakers in Chattanooga handled a similar situation a few years back. When Merita left town rather than have a union in the plant. Our boys started their own bakery with the co-operation and support of the union.

The bakers and unionized union men. Today the Union Baking company is an up-and-coming concern. Not only that but there are eight other 100 per cent union bakery shops in town.

It is an authoritative book on the food and drug question, taken primarily from court records and told in an interesting and readable manner. After reading about how some of the food we buy is prepared, one is inclined not to feel like eating for awhile. Am personally I was quite chagrined to learn just how easily the purchaser is gypped—in the buying of patent medicines, cosmetics, et cetera. I recommend the book to you.

Labor Relations Board Excoriates Remington-Rand in Ordering Firm To Reemploy 4,000 Striking Workers

Decision Charges Company, With "Cold, Deliberate Ruthlessness" and "Grim Determination" to Settle Issue by Force, Fought Strike With Violence, Threats, Lying Propaganda.

Washington, D. C.—The National Labor Relations Board has found that Remington-Rand, Inc., is responsible for the strike which has prevailed in its plants since last May. The board ordered Remington-Rand to "cease and desist" from its refusal to bargain collectively with the A. F. of L. unions which represent its workers, and to withdraw recognition from the hand-made company unions formed as part of its efforts to break the strike.

[illegible] as the employer's refusal to bargain collectively are obscured. Concurrently with these moves by exerting economic pressure through threats to move the plant, align the influential members of the community into a cohesive group opposed to the strike and usually designated a Citizens' Committee.

"Law and Order" Banner Raised.

"Second: When the strike is called raise high the banner of 'law and order.'

"Third: Call a 'mass meeting' of the citizens to coordinate public sentiment against the strike and to strengthen the power of the citizens' committee.

"Fourth: Bring about the formation of a large armed police force to intimidate the strikers and to exert a psychological effect upon the citizens.

"Fifth: And perhaps most important, heighten the demoralizing effect of the above measures—all designed to convince the strikers that their cause is hopeless—by a 'back to work' movement, operated by a puppet association of so-called 'loyal employees' secretly organized by the employer.

Fake Movement for "Back to Work."

"Sixth: When a sufficient number of applications for jobs are on hand, fix a date for an opening of the plant through the device of having such opening requested by the 'back to work' association.

"Seventh: Stage the 'opening,' theatrically throwing open the gates at the propitious moment and having the employes march into the plant grounds in a massed group protected by squads of armed police, so as to give to the opening a dramatic and exaggerated quality and thus heighten its demoralizing effect."

Thugs Gathered to Break Walkout.

James M. Rand, Jr., however, did not stop with labeling the union leaders agitators. He fired large groups of them in every plant, and did this before the strike began. As for the source of his "armed forces," the board says in its findings of fact:

"The events transpiring in the New York office of the respondent (the Remington-Rand company) in the week before the strike point to the respondent's grim determination not to bargain collectively with its employes, but to settle the issue by force. Rand gathered about him in that week a group whose past activities testify eloquently to that resolve.

"There was Pearl L. Bergoff, who in his testimony described his business simply as that of 'strikebreaking.' There was Capt. Robert J. Foster, head of Foster's Industrial and Detective bureau, which has been operating 18 years. A third member was Raymond J. Burns, president of the Burns Detective agency.

Men Were Experts at Fighting Strikes

"These men are experts at their trade. They know how to operate propaganda factories; the technique of securing a labor injunction by framed acts of violence. . . . How to get to the chief of police, the sheriff, maybe the mayor. They have at their command the forces necessary for all three purposes—guards whose prime records are not without significance whatever men, mercenaries, ordinary strikebreakers.

At one time they had the town of Linc. N. Y. where a Remington-Rand plant is located, absolutely closed to entry by anyone without a 'pass.'

Board Flays Company Attitude.

Concluding its findings, the board stated:

"From the thousands of pages of testimony in this proceeding there may be distilled two very plain facts: the unwavering refusal of the respondent to bargain collectively with its employes and the cold, deliberate ruthlessness with which it fought the strike which its refusal to bargain had precipitated. If the provisions of the national labor relations act ever required justification, one need go no further than the facts of this case.

"Over 6,000 employes, with their families and dependents, are subjected to the miseries of a prolonged strike, the people of six communities experience the economic hardships that inevitably result when an accustomed source of income is suddenly withdrawn, those same communities are turned into warring camps and unreasoning hatreds are created that lead to abuses alien to a sane civilization—all because the respondent refused to recognize the rights of six thousand employes."

Human Value Put on Human Life.

In the [illegible] of these findings, the board uses the respondent's estimate of the human value it placed on human life, for with even-handedness it found willing to combine the unfair practices as well as those of the strikers. [illegible] in having its strong-arm men [illegible] of violence to break a [illegible] grant of the strikers' [illegible] for the protection of property of the employer, it was [illegible] by the knowledge that [illegible] men would be arrested and [illegible] that a [illegible] would [illegible] through the respondent's [illegible] planning as to [illegible] and occupation, would inflict [illegible] punishment upon their [illegible] during [illegible] demonstration. Nor did the respondent stop at making [illegible] of the [illegible] as at [illegible], so that they would [illegible] to the job for the respondent."

And the board proves this grim summary to the hilt.

Board Reveals Company Tactics.

The NLRB shows that Hand has devised and proudly boasts as his own a "Mohawk Valley Method" of dealing with workers. The board summarizes the Rand plan as follows:

"First: When a strike threatened, the union leaders as 'agitators' to discredit them with the public and their own followers. In the plant, conduct a forced balloting under the direction of foremen in an attempt to ascertain the strength of the union and to make possible misrepresentation of the strikers as a small minority imposing their will upon the majority.

"At the same time, disseminate propaganda, by means of press releases, advertisements and the activities of 'missionaries,' such propaganda falsely stating the issues involved in the strike so that the strikes appear to be making arbitrary demands, and the real issues,

Union Home-Made Bread Urged by Racine Bakers

Racine, Wis.—Considerable progress is reported by the Bakery Workers' union here in its campaign for home-made bread produced under union labor standards.

The drive includes advertising, prize contests, and a broad educational program extending beyond the organized workers to civic groups.

Union officials estimate that 90 per cent of the out-of-town bread imported for Racine citizens is manufactured under unfair labor conditions and at wages approximately half of union wages paid locally. Recently the sale of this foreign sweat-shop bread compelled two Racine bakeries to close and others were forced to operate on short shifts thus jeopardizing a weekly payroll of more than $5,000.

FIVE DANVILLE FIRMS SIGN TEAMSTERS PACT

The local union of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America in Danville, Ill., is making rapid strides in organization work, five trucking companies and the Clabaugh Ice company having recently signed union agreements.

TAXI MEN SEEK TO JOIN CIO

Chicago.—Striking Chicago taxi drivers have petitioned the CIO to accept their newly formed Midwest Taxicab Drivers union. They have also asked the La Follette senate committee to investigate the use of spies and "company-owned toughs" in attempts to break their strike.

The union label is a lighthouse in the fog of foreign-made goods. It will guide our nation to the port of prosperity.

The highest test of labor union loyalty is the buying of union label products.

arbitrating disputes. The representatives of the employes and the employers were unable to agree on terms of settlement, but both groups agreed on selecting Rev. McGinnis as the final arbitrator, who promptly rendered a decision according to the written agreement. The result was that the employers made payments in line with the settlement.

In referring to the point under which the dispute was adjusted, Vice-President Dahlager of the Furniture Workers' union, said: "We have been criticized for our blanket agreements affecting all unions and all employers, but the fact is that this system provides the proper and most suitable way of adjusting such matters and continuing work without interruption."

Employers and Labor Join to Push Union Made Upholstered Furniture

Philadelphia.—Continuance of good labor standards in Philadelphia's upholstered furniture industry is assured by renewal of the agreement between employers and organized workers. The agreement, which affects approximately 1,000 workers in fifty-four factories, was made public by Sol B. Hoffman, manager of the Upholsterers and Frame Workers' union, and Morris Wessman, counsel for the Upholstered Furniture Manufacturers association.

The union agreement, considered in the industry a model for the country, maintains the 40-hour week and machinery for the arbitration of all disputes. A clause also sets up standards of sanitation to be observed in all factories.

The efforts of the employers' association and the union will not only be aimed at maintaining industrial peace but also at continuing, through public support, the stability of the industry here. A clause deemed remarkable in labor contracts establishes a cooperative committee comprised of an equal number of representatives of the union and the association, entrusted with the task of publicizing the benefits of a peacefully-conducted industry and enlisting the public in the drive to increase sales of the Philadelphia products as against sweated furniture manufactured under unsanitary sub-standard conditions.

tory cannot be preserved by division. Only by unity can they be maintained.

It is true that William Green offers to meet with Lewis. It may be that Lewis thinks he has some good reason why he should not do so. There can be no better reason than the welfare of the toilers who give the money and compose the power that carries both Green and Lewis. And the welfare of the workers demands that Lewis and Green meet and settle their differences.

This is to urge you to thunder a call to both these leaders that they realize the necessity of unity. That in this time when the workers can make their greatest advances they should not be hampered by division.

It is the time of all times that the rank and file demonstrate their power and their might and demonstrate it for unity. This is an appeal to the rank and file to do that. We trust it will not be in vain.

Rank and file, we urge you to play your part and use your power to bring unity by writing and urging Green and Lewis to confer and settle their differences. Don't wait. Do it now. In doing this you will be serving humanity.

MORE ABOUT

COURT PLAN

"Labor is quite willing to take its chance with the Supreme Court in its determination of Constitutional questions which vitally affect the lives and happiness of the workers if the court is constantly remade and reconstructed with men who come from close association with their fellowmen, as recommended by the President of the United States."

Green Is Questioned

Several Senators questioned Green; but it was noticeable that all were very pointedly polite, and that none tried the heckling which Senator Austin, with lack of success, tried on Attorney-General Cummings at the first hearing of the committee. Austin presented Green with a list of the cases involving labor in which, he said, labor had sought and found "sanctuary" in the Supreme Court. Green was to return the list with comments later.

Records Refute Burns' Assertion He Didn't Try to Disrupt Unions

Letters Read at Senate Spy Hearing Show Notorious Detective Agency Sought by Various Means to Break Strikes and Balk Organization of the Workers.

Washington.—Sunset Cox divided people who take liberties with the truth into three classes, "liars, damned liars and experts." The La Follette senate committee spy hearings are showing that the managers of detective agencies belong in the middle class. They are much too persistent prevaricators to be classed as mere liars; and no one who heard Senator La Follette tripping the Burns' managers time after time over their own statements could call them experts.

W. Sherman Burns and Raymond J. Burns, sons of the founder of the agency, and J. W. Erb, one of their superintendents, occupied the witness stand most of the week. They—and the documents copied by the committee's investigators in the Burns offices—showed that the W. J. Burns International Detective agency made a profit of $45,861 on a gross business of $93,491 in furnishing guards in the elevator operators' strike last year. They soaked the Remington-Rand $28,327. Their income from industrial spying and guard furnishing jumped from $85,651 for the entire year of 1935 to $129,194 for the first six months of 1936. La Follette read off these figures; and they were not challenged.

Record Refutes Burns.

"You say you never furnish strikebreakers?" asked La Follette. Raymond J. Burns answered that they never did.

"How do you define a strikebreaker?" asked La Follette.

"One who takes the place of a striker and does ris work."

"Did you furnish strikebreakers to the Tubize Chatillon concern?"

"No, sir."

La Follette quietly read a letter from one of the Burns brothers to the chief spy on the Tubize job, telling him to explain to the company that the ten men they had furnished to handle the silk would have to be charged at a higher rate than the mere guards.

More Denials from Witness.

Charge the company $8 a day per man, and pay them $4.50 was the gist of the order. Burns explained that there was some sort of agreement between lawyers on that, and it wasn't really strikebreaking.

Other like cases were brought up, Burns denying strikebreaking and La Follette reading him his own letters. Burns declared, almost with hand on heart, that his agency never disrupted unions, and would not take a retainer from an employer who wanted such a thing. Step by step, La Follette backed him up till he admitted that the Burns bang puts men in a factory who go into a union, report to union leaders on the spy bosses, and give out information to the company, unless they join the union "tactics." But still he insisted that they wouldn't disrupt a union.

Intimidation Denied.

"Ever resort to intimidation?" queried La Follette. Burns denied ever doing such a wicked thing. La Follette read from a report of Burns operatives on the surveillance of Harry F. Meyers:

"During our surveillance, we kept very close to him and let him see that we were watching him. He was badly worried."

La Follette piled up the evidence on this point as on the others. Burns was invariably caught in false witness, and invariably tried to dodge or brazen it out. The last time he insisted that he wouldn't "disrupt a labor union," the audience joined in giving him the horse laugh.

It was brought out that the Burns people destroyed papers which the senate committee subpoenaed; but that most of them were pieced together again.

Q.—What unions elect by referendum vote general officers nominated at conventions?

A.—Unions in which this is the practice include the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, the International Union of Operating Engineers, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the Amalgamated Lithographers and the International Union of Brewery Workers.

Q.—When was the earliest organization of American coal miners?

A.—Records of local organizations of miners have been found as far back as 1849, when Pennsylvania anthracite miners formed a union.

Q.—Has organized labor taken a stand on the reorganization plan for the government departments and agencies submitted to congress?

A—.A subcommittee of the A. F. of L. Civil Service Legislative conference recently discussed the matter with Speaker Bankhead, of the house. Secretary Gilbert E. Hyatt, as spokesman, set forth the wholehearted support of the civil service employes for any move in the interest of more efficient and economical public service. He explained that a repetition of previous experience was feared if the entire gigantic job was done in one omnibus bill. The special interest in compensation, retirement, etc., of the civil service group and of the railway and other groups in wage issues, conciliation boards, etc., was set forth.

LEWIS CHARTERS

the conflict between the unions headed by John L. Lewis and the unions headed by William Green.

First, the Maryland State Federation of Labor, acting on a letter received from Green, announced that local unions affiliated with the ten suspended CIO unions were not eligible for membership in the state federation. Mr. Green's letter had stated that the A. F. of L. would not tolerate support of dual or rival organizations.

A. F. of L. Pushes Organization.

Second, Mr. Green, after an all day conference with fifty organizers of A. F. of L. unions from all parts of the country, announced that organization drives in several industries would be intensified. He stated that the federation had ruled that workers in steel fabrication plants came under the jurisdiction o fthe International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers. The CIO has been enrolling them in the ranks of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Third, the meeting of CIO representatives and the passage of the resolution quoted earlier.

CIO Drives Planned.

The expectation in labor circles is that the first state federation of CIO affiliates will be formed in Maryland, on account of the action ruling these affiliates out of the A. F. of L. City central labor bodies are likely to come first in Cleveland and Columbus, O. In Cleveland, the city central labor organization has ruled the CIO unions out of affiliation, and the A. F. of L. has canceled the charter of the central body of Columbus.

Lewis stated in giving out the resolution of the CIO unions that his organization will take action only in cases where the A. F. of L. has acted first.

Two special committees have been created by the CIO to make organization drives in two industries.

Textiles and Oil on List.

The Textile Workers' organizing committee, aiming to bring into the United Textile Workers a CIO union, at least a majority of the more than a million workers in the textile industry, is headed by Sidney Hillman. It is planning to send organizers into the field to enroll in twenty-four states workers in cotton, silk, rayon, wool, hosiery, dyeing, rugs and upholstery.

The oil and refinery workers campaign will be carried on by a petroleum organizing committee, composed of Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical union; Philip Murray, vice-president of the United Mine Workers, and Harvey C. Fremming, president of the Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America.

The CIO will also give moral and financial support to the Industrial Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, a union classified by the A. F. of L. as the rival of its Metal Trades Department. There are said to be 100,000 eligible shipyard workers, only a fraction of whom are organized.

Labor Voices Its Demand for Court Program

People's Voice Rising in United Support of Plan

Labor's Non-Partisan League Is Rapidly Mobilizing Public Opinion to Insist Congress Approve President's Proposal.

Washington, D. C. — Labor's Non-Partisan League headquarters here is mobilizing a tremendous stream of demand on Congress for enactment of the President's federal court reform bill.

The recent national conference, attended by delegates from every state in the Union, began the mobilization. Return of the delegates to their home states marked the expression of opinion throughout the congressional districts.

The voice now being heard in Washington is not the voice of isolated individuals, but of great organized bodies, united behind a single purpose for a common reason.

Miners for Plan.

From Senator Wheeler's home state comes a powerful denunciation of his opposition to the president, with the Miners' Voice of Butte asking "has the Senator forgotten last November?"

"Unanimous support of the president's plan is an outstanding feature of the action taken by many organizations. The Baltimore Federation of Labor and the Baltimore Allied Printing Trades council both indorsed the plan with no dissenting vote. Other labor bodies unanimously supporting the president include the Florida Typographical conference, Providence Central Federated Union

ALL INCUMBENTS ARE NOMINATED IN CENTRAL BODY

At its regular meeting last Monday evening, Chattanooga Central Labor union went into its annual nomination of officers. Although the nominations were held open until its next regular session, in which election will be held, all the old officers were renominated without exception.

So far the field for the race as delegates to the convention of the Tennessee Federation of Labor which will be held in Jackson, Tenn., on May 3, 4 and 5, is very small. Those nominated so far are Joe Dobbs, J. T. Burkes, T. R. Cuthbert and Erskine Mabee.

4 Sheetmetal Shops Overlooked in List Printed Last Week

Last week The Labor World printed a list of contractors and sub-contractors doing sheet metal work under union conditions. Through an error four contractors were overlooked. The four are J. R. Tallent Tin Shop, Minors Furnace company, Acme Tin Shop and Central Electric company.

These firms are 100 per cent union and deserve the patronage and support of all organized labor and friends.

Label League Meets

The Chattanooga Label league will meet Friday night, March 26, at the labor hall. All delegates and members are urged to be present.

Fight chiselers and wage-cutters by spending your union-earned money for union-made products.

New Contract Signed By Grant-Patten Co. With Wage Increases

Officials of Dairy Workers' union announced last week that the Grant-Patten Milk company has just renewed its closed shop agreement for another year. After very friendly negotiations, this friendly union company granted substantial wage increases.

As agreements expire with the other dairy companies in Chattanooga similar agreements will be negotiated.

Local Glazier Workers Join Up in a Body With Painter Local

Seventeen out of a possible eighteen glaziers in Chattanooga last Monday evening found a vacant corner in the labor temple and took necessary steps to come into the Painters' and Decorators' Local 226. This is just one more indication that all workers in this district are becoming conscious of the value of organization.

It is freely predicted that within the next twelve months practically every worker in Chattanooga will be affiliated with some labor union.

Back of the union label are shorter hours, higher wages and better working conditions.

Central Body High Lights

Central Body met Monday night, March 22, with a good attendance. Brother Lonnie Carpenter was the only officer not present.

Dalton, Local 1898, had a good representation to "sit in" on the meeting.

The following new delegates were obligated: Meatcutters, No. 323, John Perry; Machinists, No. 56, N. F. Wilson, W. N. Roper, E. O. Gruley, R. H. Cry and George Thomas; Cooks and Waiters, L. G. Alley and Edna Brown; Molders, No. 8, J. C. Burns; Stage Employes, No. 140, W. T. Lee and Frank Ryder.

Under the legislative committee report the federal aid program for education was indorsed in principal and certain defects were pointed out that should be remedied.

A resolution was passed condemning Congressman S. D. McReynolds for recent statements in newspapers.

In the Label League report plans were announced for a skating party to be held at Warner park on Monday night, April 19.

The bakers reported that the Mercer Pie company, Johnny's Pie Shop, Manhattan bakery and Eaves' bakery had recently signed a union contract. Brother Sims also reported that union-labeled macaroni and crackers could be obtained soon.

The executive committee reported that plans for a labor temple were still being worked on; also, that a charter for a truck drivers' union has been sent for.

The organizing committee will meet Thursday at 6 o'clock at The Labor World.

The Cooks and Waiters asked that Harry's Place, Bob Green, Steak House and Maypole cafeteria be placed on the council's "unfair" list.

The Sheet Metal Workers asked that the Holland Furnace company be placed on the council's "unfair" list. These requests took the usual course.

Brother Mike Pietzak, international representative of the Butcher Workers of America, was present and made a short talk to the delegates.

The union label is the tie that binds collective buying with collective bargaining.

"MENE, MENE, TEKEL UPHARSIN!"

Recent newspaper reports from our neighboring city of Cleveland, Tennessee, indicate that the Hardwick clan still maintains its relentless grip on the affairs of that community, and continues to "run the town," in the words of one illustrious representative of the great Hardwick family.

According to the press stories, the city council met and "tightened" laws which prohibit meetings, parades, etc. This, of course, is a direct result of the most recent flare-up among workers in the boss-ridden community. It matters not a whit to the Hardwicks or to their satellites and puppets in political and other positions at Cleveland whether they violate constitutional rights of the wage slaves who have, through force of circumstances, been under complete domination of the industrial barons for many, many years. Hardwick methods and the Hardwick theory of master-and-man relationship in industry, it may be said without fear of contradiction, are passing, and such people, who have ruled with an iron hand and ridden high and handsome over their helpless employees, taking fabulous salaries, bonuses and profits out of the sweat and toil of their victims, are facing their long-delayed but well-deserved finish, just as surely as the sun rises in the east.

Through many decades workers, particularly in the south, have struggled, sometimes almost hopelessly, for their freedom, and progress against the well-entrenched forces of unscrupulous captains of industry, who were fortified by millions with which to purchase politicians, legislators and other people susceptible to the lure of gold, has been slow and difficult. Determination of southern workers in recent years to deliver themselves from bondage has come to be greater, until today it has reached a point where not even the great Hardwicks will be able to stop it.

The present situation at Cleveland recalls an incident of several years ago during a strike of molders, as we recall it, at a Hardwick plant in that city. It was related at that time and published by The Labor World that a committee of strikers waited on Hardwick in an attempt to adjust the matter, and when they appeared in his office he rose to his feet and arrogantly said, in effect:

"DO YOU SEE THAT PICTURE ON THE WALL OVER THERE? THAT IS A PICTURE OF MY FATHER. HE RAN THIS TOWN AND WHEN HE DIED I STEPPED INTO HIS SHOES. GET OUT."

Previous and subsequent events have borne out the statement of this industrial king, but in spite of the fact that the Cleveland city council has just now passed laws which, on the face of them as reported in the newspapers, certainly violate a constitutional, legal and moral right of working people to gather and talk over their many problems and in other ways demonstrate their solidarity, the long and undisturbed reign of the southern feudal baron is doomed.

The Belshazzar feast is at its height, but heralding the approaching ground swell of discontent and resentment, the winds are whispering, ever louder:

"MENE, MENE, TEKEL UPHARSIN."

RESTAURANT OWNERS COMBINE IN AN EFFORT TO PROTECT AND KEEP BEGGARLY "WAGE SCALE"

Twelve Firms Apply for Union House Cards, Which Have Been Ordered—Three and Four Dollar Per Week Food Barons Squealing Mightily.

Chattanooga Steak House, Leader of Greek Combination, Refuses to Allow Employes to Join Union—First Girl to Join Fired, Rehired, and Then "Laid Off."

Open war broke out in Chattanooga this week after a meeting of restaurant employers, chiefly the Greek owners, issued an ultimatum to their employes that they will not tolerate a union in their hash joints. The girls and waiters, working from nine to fourteen hours a day, seven days a week, must continue to enrich their employers by receiving all the way from two to ten dollars per week, if plans made by the "starve-while-you-serve" overlords are carried through.

The gage was taken up by the newly formed Cooks and Waiters' union when pickets were placed in front of the Chattanooga Steak House, operated by Mr. Spiro Vezdoon. The "steak house" has long been headquarters for visiting wrestlers who perform at the Memorial auditorium each Thursday, and many have remarked that Mr. Vezdoon has become so imbued with the fancy throat-holds and body slams of his sporting patrons that he wants them tried out on his weak and hungry employes.

There is not much of an organization in the "steak house" now. A few weeks ago one of his girls took her life in her hands and joined the union. Chief Vezdoon found it out and fired her. A committee visited him and protested, whereupon he rehired her and several days later "laid off" the lady. She is still "laid off."

Fear of other "lay-offs" overshadowed the other employes' desire for better things in life, and outside of one or two who have joined and are laying low in fear and trembling, the others are at present depending on the generosity of customers who, in addition to paying a good price for their meals, take pity on the plight of the girls and leave a piece of change under their plates to augment their "salaries."

It has been suggested by some that these restaurant owners be required by the city to buy a beggars' license.

In a few days, however, it is expected that the union shop cards which have been ordered will arrive in Chattanooga, to be placed in the twelve or more better restaurants who have signed with the union.

All the union is asking at present is that they be recognized, with a provision that on June 1 the owners meet with them to discuss wages and working conditions. Provision for wages were left out of the original demand because the owners requested that they be given until June 1 to consider the matter. After this request was granted, they got together and agreed among themselves to recognize the union. Penalty for "kicking out" of the agreement is said to be a "throat-cutting" of the offending party.

Noticeable falling off of the trade of the Steak House seems to call for a change in the name to the Misteak House. Pickets report that since the fight started every Greek relative visits the place several times a day to fill the tables and act prosperous, but the old cash register is getting cobwebs about the usual busily ringing keys.

SUPPORT URGED FOR EDUCATION BILL MADE LAW

Congressman McReynolds Is Chided for Statement Regarding Right of Petition.

Central Body Asserts Federal Employes Are American Citizens With Same Interest in Legislation as Others.

At its regular meeting Monday night Central Body sent letters to Senators Bachman and McKellar and Congressman McReynolds asking them to support the federal education bill introduced by Congressman O'Day and sponsored by the American Federation of Teachers or to support the Harrison-Fletcher bill with the following amendments:

1. Repair inadequacies in appropriations.

2. Adjust the degree of aid to the degree of need.

3. Insert guarantee against racial discrimination.

Another letter was sent to Congressman McReynolds which took issue with him on his recent denunciation of employes in the social security department. Some of the employes criticized the congressman's neutrality bill, whereupon Mr. McReynolds, on the floor of the house, severely castigated any federal employe who dared to voice opinion in legislation. He said that such employes should be fired.

Central Body defended the right of federal employes to petition congress the same as any other citizen is guaranteed in the constitution.

Dalton Strikers Show Fine Spirit Sunday In Splendid Gathering

That the strikers in the American Thread company mill at Dalton, Ga., are in good morale was demonstrated last Sunday when a splendid rally was conducted around the picket headquarters across from the mill. Several hundred strikers were present, as well as representatives from mills close by.

The strike has been in progress for several weeks. It is believed that negotiations now being carried on with the management will result in gaining of recognition and elimination of many of the complaints which caused the walkout.

So far there has not been a single defection in the ranks of the unionists, and the support given them by citizens and merchants of Dalton indicate that success will crown the controversy.

SPIRIT OF GOMPERS CANNOT DIE

During the past week or so editorial writings in a local daily paper seems much concerned that the A. F. of L. craft unions are in danger of being destroyed, and that on a larger scale the American Federation of Labor itself will totter and fall.

Although we might believe that the wish is father to the thought, it will take more than "misunderstandings" of high officials in the American labor movement to tumble the A. F. of L., which has been builded up on firm principles and guided through its early days by Samuel Gompers.

Here in Chattanooga there is no danger of a "split." Always a militant and sensible congress of local unions since the days of the Knights of Labor, our Central Body owes its very being to the true-blue loyalty of craft organizations like the building trades unions, the machinists, printing crafts and other skilled workers.

While we are all hopeful for the organization of textile and hosiery, and other mass production industry here, let no one, not even the "viewers with alarm," believe that this labor movement will allow old-time, tried and proven unions to be "raided" by newcomers. When and if, however, such a movement for a mass organization is found practicable—may God speed the day—citizenship of Chattanooga and surrounding territory will find our labor movement, by whatever term they might designate, a compact, solid and energetic body, standing as a unit and as we have always stood, ready and willing to throw our whole force and power into any possible resulting conflict on the side of workers who are seeking and who deserve a better break from society as a whole.

No Need for "Jitters"

It cannot be denied nor ignored that business men as well as workers of Chattanooga are in a state of "jitters" concerning future peace and harmony in industry here at home. While we recognize that such conditions exist, we do not believe, after a careful survey of cause and effect, that such fears are well grounded.

Many people, uninformed, are speaking of "the big textile strike" which they are awaiting with bowed heads, prepared for the worst, as they see it.

In addition to asserting that there should be no necessity for a repetition of the 1934 trouble, we go further in asserting that it would be wise for capital and labor, so-called for want of better terms, to take steps to avoid the necessity of workers going into another strike.

It is true that a campaign is contemplated for the immediate future which will result in complete organization of textile and hosiery employes, as well as organization of other industries here. Locally, it is believed, the campaign will be waged for six months, a year, or six years, according to the time it will take for employers to accept the union.

That employers in Chattanooga are fast becoming cognizant of their foolishness of 1934 is being admitted by such employers themselves. They have seen the example set them by the steel industry in meeting their employes' representatives for the first time. Not even the most optimistic union man, two months ago, had the faintest hope that steel workers' union would have been recognized by their employers before a long, bitter, and perhaps bloody, fight was engaged in. Everyone was pleasantly surprised to discover that there had been a change of policy in steel. Steel agreed to meet with their workers in legitimate trade unions rather than through company union subterfuges. Signed agreements were effected. There has been no general strikes in steel. Peace and prosperity prevails to a great degree.

What has happened in steel can happen here. We believe that it will happen here. We do not want strikes any more than the employer or business man wants them. The 1934 strike was no picnic for either side. It could have been avoided.

How could it have been avoided? By management agreeing to accept the offer of peace made by labor at that time. Offers made by labor in 1934 were ignored. Only fools fail to profit from experience. We do not consider ourselves fools and we believe that in Chattanooga industry there are plenty of "industrialists" who have plenty of sense, who are honest in their beliefs, and who are big enough in moral stature to admit past mistakes in social philosophy.

While industry in some sections of this nation is committing suicide by bull-headed, unconciliatory tactics, why shouldn't it be possible, sensible and practicable to prevent industrial conflagrations rather than spend all our time putting them out after the roaring blaze lights the skies?

We may be too idealistic. Maybe our fingers have not been burned often enough by dictatorial, stubborn and rule-or-ruin employers. Maybe our personal experience in dozens of industrial disputes has not been enough to curdle our faith in common sense. Even at this hour, we still contend this:

If and when the time can be made to come when honest, calm, sane and business-like representatives from labor and capital can be prevailed upon to go into a room before threatened fights break out and sincerely discuss questions involved, justice and peace will inevitably be forthcoming.

A campaign being instituted by the Chattanooga Bar association contemplates eliminating "ambulance chasing" by certain attorneys. If this is accomplished, it might create work for our carpenters who will be called upon by possibly several political officials to erect boaverboard partitions in their private law offices so that technically they cannot appear to be "piking" cases.

The Chattanooga Co-op Grocery is growing bigger and better every day. Each time I go by I notice some new line of merchandise that has come in. And they just can't keep enough of the RICH MAID union-made coffee. Somebody is always having to get "Bing" Crosby to order more of it for the store.

I still think that the funniest excuse for giving employes a raise was made by a certain Chattanooga employer about three years ago. It was during that summer when Chattanooga was really sweltering—it was just too hot for anything.

This particular employer was not having any labor troubles, but the factory close to his was on strike and he got worried. In fact, he got jittery—his men were too interested in the activities of the neighboring plant.

Then the bright idea came—he would give them a raise. But what excuse could he use? It certainly would not do to let them know he thought they might strike. After much hard thinking he hit on a good excuse and the following notice was posted in his plant:

"Due to the hot weather, all employes will receive ——— cents an hour increase in wages."

And don't forget—Friday night is Label League night. Come to the meeting.

In the past week Bakers' union No. 25 signed union agreements with M. B. Eaves & Bros., who make a fine line of rolls and pastries, and Mercer Pie company, making a complete line of pies, and Johnnies Doughnuts, making cake, whole wheat and yeast raised doughnuts.

The second week of May we will have a bakers' school through the courtesy of the American Dry Milk institute. Let's all make preparations to attend this school and educate ourselves on baking. We hope to have other schools during the year.

What kind of crackers are you eating and where are you buying them? MERITA is still trying to establish themselves in Chattanooga. The A. & P. stores are handling Merita, and a few of the independent merchants are stocking them. All Merita products are UNFAIR.

Are you interested in making jobs for more bakers in Chattanooga and turning a $10,000 payroll loose here? Then buy cakes made in Chattanooga under union conditions by union men and in clean sanitary shops.

The Dixie bakery has secured the service of Mr. White as sales manager.

The stork has been busy the past week. Brother Jordan, of Turner Baking company, and Brother Nolan, of Cameron & Barr Baking company, announce with a big smile the arrival of large healthy boys. Congratulations—we hope they follow their fathers in being bakers and carry Local 25 forward.

Do you eat union-labeled candy? The Carter Candy company makes a complete line of candy and peanuts that carry the union label.

Let's all demand the union label.

Don't forget we have a meeting Saturday at 2 p.m.

Somerville Iron Works Employes Have Every Worker in Union Now.

Several weeks ago the labor movement heard of a one-day strike demonstration by the newly organized molders' union in the Somerville Iron works plant to demonstrate to the few who had not joined up that they really had an organization. It was reported after the "demonstration" that all but two signed up with the union.

The Labor World is informed this week that Molders' Local No. 8 now have every eligible employe in their organization. Officers of the new and lively unionists are feeling happy over the long, hard pull over the hill to organization, and they are predicting better times for their fellow-workers.

Two eminent lawyers, Leon Green, dean of Northwestern University Law school, and Henry T. Hunt, former mayor of Cincinnati, have told the senate judiciary committee that the sit-down strike is not illegal.

Another eminent lawyer, Ferdinand Pecora, says that investment bankers staged a sit-down strike against the original securities and exchange bill; that utilities did the same on the holding company law, and that most corporations are doing another sit-down on the labor relations act.

And a federal judge, George A. Welsh, of the district court of Philadelphia, granted a temporary injunction to stop the eviction of sit-down strikers from a Reading hosiery plant, and will hold hearings on the claim of workers to a property right in their jobs. The world do move.

"SIT-DOWN" CLOSES REO MOTOR COMPANY PLANT

Lansing, Mich.—Officials of Reo Motor Car company refused to confer with the United Automobile Workers in an effort to settle a sit-down strike which closed the Reo plant to 2,000 workers.

In a formal statement the company indicated the plant will remain closed until strikers make some concessions in their demands, and said the company would not grant sole collective bargaining rights to the U. A. W.

The strike was pronounced 100 per cent effective by Lester E. Washburn, president of the Lansing local of the U. A. W., and head of the Reo employes' bargaining committee.

Demands of the strikers, Washburn said, include recognition in collective bargaining, a 40-hour week and an 8-hour day, straight seniority, minimum wages of 70 cents an hour, with time and a half for overtime, and adjustments in working conditions.

Seattle Garage Employes Win Wage Increase Pact

Garage Employes' Local No. 44, Seattle, Wash., affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, announced an agreement with the Seattle Automobile Service association providing higher wage scales and improved working conditions. The minimum wage is $4 per day for the first three months of the agreement, $4.50 per day for the second three months and $5 per day thereafter with provisions for higher rates for specialized work. An exception is made in the case of parking lots and storage garage floormen, where a scale of $21.60 per week is established for a period of not to exceed six months, when the matter will be opened to negotiations. The wage increases are said to be substantial in almost every case, many of the men employed in this line of work having been paid at the rate of from $12 to $15 for a week of from 63 to70 hours.

The Automotive Service association includes in its membership service stations, super-service stations, auto laundries, tire and battery service and sales companies, parking lots, storage and service garages and similar lines of business.

Residence construction took the lead, with a gain of 86.6 per cent over that of 1935 in number of buildings; 98.8 per cent in the number of families it will house, and 112.8 per cent in cost. Dwellings erected last year will house 153,237 families, and their cost is put at $624,170,000.

Cleveland Meat Packers Secure County-Wide Pact

Cleveland, O.—A notable agreement has been negotiated by Cleveland Meat Cutters and Butchers' Union No. 427 with the Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers under which all meat markets throughout Cuyahoga county, in which Cleveland is situated, will close at 6 p.m. on Saturdays. The terms cover about 900 employes and 600 dealers, according to union officials. This is said to be the first county-wide agreement in the retail meat trade.

The wage provisions provide a minimum of $28 for a six-day week, with less than a week being paid for at 50 cents an hour.

Apprentices, the number of which is limited to one per shop or one for every three journeymen, are to be paid $12 for the first six months, $15 for the second, $20 for the third, $22 for the fourth, $25 for the fifth, and $26 for the sixth six months' period.

All employes must be residents of the county for one month and are required to become members of the union within three days after employment begins. Three days' notice must be given for dismissals and quitting. Employes who are not in good standing with the union are to be discharged.

There is also a provision in the agreement requiring five days' notice for strikes, picketing and lockouts.

The picture shown above is an artist conception of what the kidnaper murderer of 10-year-old Charles Lindbergh Mattson looks like. A reward of $10,000 is offered by the United States government for the person who furnishes information leading to his arrest.

It will be recalled that similar pictures were drawn from descriptions given of the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby. Before Bruno Hauptmann was ever arrested, similar drawings were made, and after actual photographs were made of him, and placed side by side with the drawings of the artist's conception, there was practically no difference apparent.

The Labor World is glad to co-operate with the department of justice in apprehending the distardly criminal, and is reprinting a description of the person described as follows:

Age, about 30 years.

Height, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches.

Weight, 145 to 165 pounds.

Complexion, swarthy.

Speech, slightly foreign accent; spoke brokenly; appeared to be of Southern European extraction.

Peculiarities: Did not stand erect; dimple in chin; high cheek bones; nose appeared to be broken a little below center; had hairy hands.

TERMS NAMED FOR ENDING REMINGTON RAND STRIKE

Tentative Agreement Reached in Conference Convened by Secretary of Labor Perkins Will Be Submitted to Company Directors and Employes.

Washington.—At a conference here convened by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and participated in by James H. Rand, Jr., president of Remington Rand, Inc.; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and A. O. Wharton, president of the International Association of Machinists, and John Frey, president of the A. F. of L. Metal Trades Department, a tentative agreement was drawn to end the strike in operation since last May involving 6,000 employes of the company in various plants in New York state, Connecticut and Ohio.

The conference was held four days after the national labor relations board had found the company guilty of violating the labor relations act and twenty-four hours after the board had petitioned the U. S. circuit court of appeals in New York City for a court order requiring the company to rehire 4,000 strikers whom the board found had been illegally deprived of their rights under the act.

In announcing the results of the conferences Secretary Perkins said she was "extremely well pleased" with the tentative settlement plan. President Green said he hoped the arrangement would result in a settlement which would be of advantage to all concerned.

The statement on the agreement said:

"The terms of the adjustment between certain employes of Remington Rand, Inc., and Remington Rand, Inc., have been mutually agreed to.

"President William Green, American Federation of Labor; President A. O. Wharton, International Association of Machinists, and John Frey, Metal Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, have agreed to recommend acceptance of the provisions of the adjustment to the employes involved and accepted them contingent upon their approval by all the employes, and Mr. Rand has agreed to recommend the terms of the acceptance to his board of directors.

"It was mutually agreed that the terms of the adjustment would be first presented to the employes and to the directors of the company before being made public."

Hamilton Fish Urges G. O. P. To Back Ban on Child Labor

Washington.—Representative Hamilton Fish told the house that the child labor amendment should be adopted by the states.

"Let the republicans in the New York assembly stand with the wage-earners for this humanitarian measure and for social progress and thereby restore the confidence of the people in our party," said Fish.

"Any other course is suicidal and plays into the hands of President Roosevelt in his efforts to pack and control the supreme court, due to the delay in adopting the child labor amendment."

San Francisco.—An agreement regarding wages and hours in the Bay district of California has been reached between the members of Local Union No. 164, San Francisco, of the International Molders' Union of North America, and the East Bay foundrymen's association. The agreement provides for a 40-hour work week, from Monday to Friday inclusive, and wage increases on the minimum scales of from 8 to 15 per cent. The effective date of the agreement was March 1.

This affects two thousand members of the Molders' union in the Bay district, both journeymen and non-journeymen. This is the first agreement between the members of the union and the foundrymen in that district in nearly sixteen years.

COURT PLAN

and Avondale Estates Local 1843, United Textile Workers of America.

South Strongly for Plan.

Strong indorsements of the president's program come from southern cities. The Charleston, S. C., Typographical Union No. 45 reports that it has overwhelmingly indorsed the program, while a similar report comes from Greensboro, N. C., Machinists' Lodge 488.

Locals of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers are taking a leading part in the fight for approval of the court plan. Charging that the supreme court has failed to keep pace with the nation's rapidly changing economic problems, Indianapolis, Ind., Local 145 of the ACW urges support of the president. Similar action was taken by Pittsburgh Local 86 of the same union, which declared the enactment of the court reform proposal "absolutely necessary to carry into effect our mandate in the last election to secure adequate legislation promised by the president.

Fur Workers Back Program.

Fur workers are strongly for the president, four New York City locals of the International Fur Workers' union with 18,000 members having pledged wholehearted support to the proposed court reform.

Many unions are insisting that their senators and representatives support the president's plan. Typical is the Long Island Local 8. Slate, Tile and Composition Roofers, which has asked Senators Copeland and Wagner to get behind the president in his "effort to reform the supreme court to the extent that it will be a benefit instead of a hindrance to the working men and women and the country in general."

Other organizations asking support of the plan include Philadelphia Newspaper Printing Pressmen's Union No. 16; Arkansas City, Kan., Local 39, Kansas Allied Workers' auxiliary; Bangor, Pa., Branch 11, Workers' Alliance, and the Maritime Federation of the Gulf Coast, Beaumont, Tex.

Retail Store Clerks Get Shorter Week, Minimum Wage

Omaha.—The management of forty leading retail stores signed a voluntary agreement shortening the work week of approximately 4,000 employes and fixing a minimum weekly wage. It was believed the first agreement of its kind in the country.

Allen T. Hupp, executive secretary of the Associated Retailers, said the agreement reduced the work week from 48 to 43½ hours and fixed a minimum wage at $14. It is effective March 15.

Closing hours of the stores will remain at 5:30 p.m., but the opening hour was moved up to 9:30 a.m. Lunch periods increased from a half hour to 45 minutes. Workers on the payrolls for more than a year will receive a minimum of a week's paid vacation annually.

Retail store workers are unorganized and there have been no threats of strikes. Union organizers, however, have been in the field.

Compromise Settlement Ends Furniture Workers' Walkout

The demands included the 44-hour week, a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour, and a uniform wage scale throughout the industry.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, find they benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated.

Cardui, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

TERMS AGREED ON AT STEAK HOUSE

PICKETS PATROL HOME PLATE, HARRY'S PLACE, BOB GREEN AND ELLIS' RESTAURANTS

Several Additional Eating Houses Sign Union Agreements and Display Cooks and Waiter Shop Cards.

The picket that had been placed in front of the Chattanooga Steak House by Cooks and Waiters Union 574 was taken off after one week's time after satisfactory peace terms were arranged with the proprietor, Mr. Spiro Vezdoon. According to Mr. Erskine Mabee, Mr. Spiro Vezdoon. Accordhave come to a satisfactory understanding, and 'hostilities' have been terminated."

Immediately after removal of the fight on the Steak House, Bob Green's restaurant at Ninth and Chestnut streets was "taken on" last Wednesday, as well as Ellis' restaurant and Harry's place. Later in the afternoon of the same day a banner saying that the Home Plate was a non-union restaurant was placed in front of the formerly popular eating house at Seventh and Cherry streets.

According to Mr. Mabee, some weeks ago an employe named Smith, working in the Home Plate, made application to join the union and deposited his initiation fee. The next day the waiter was discharged, and as a result, it is believed, every other waiter in the Home Plate has decided that it would be best not to join the union. Hundreds of unionists expressed surprise and regret that Mr. Clarence Hudlow has taken the stand against the union that he seems to hold now. Unionists have for many years made the Home Plate a sort of headquarters because of Mr. Hudlow's apparent friendship toward organized labor.

It is being recalled that a little less than two years ago most of the waiters in the Home Plate staged a walkout on Mr. Hudlow at the noon hour because he would not grant a wage increase to them. Officials of Central Body advised the hasty strikers that they had not treated Mr. Hudlow fairly in not giving him due notice, and that they had not acted as legitimate trade unionists, and therefore would not be supported in their walkout by the Central Body. As a re-

Curtis R. Sims, business agent for Bakery Workers' Local 25, has been named by that union as a delegate to the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention in Jackson.

Battle Creek Machinists Win Higher-Wages Strike

Refusal of the management of the Union Steam Pump company, of Battle Creek, Mich., to come to an understanding with representatives of the Local Union No. 46 of the International Association of Machinists regarding recognition of the union and collateral matters caused a strike of between 150 and 200 men.

After the strike had run for seven weeks a settlement was negotiated in an agreement which is reported to grant the union's demand for higher wages, the new rates providing 80 cents per hour for class A machinists and 70 cents for class B machinists. Nine hours a day was fixed as the working basis for March and April, after which the factory will go on a 40-hour week, eight hours a day, five days a week.

The machinists' local was made the bargaining agency for its members. If an employe is adjudged to have been unjustly discharged, he will be reinstated with pay for lost time.

Big Mid-West Industries Announce Wage Increases

Chicago.—Big business in the middle west is falling into line in the matter of wage increases, and hoping and privately admitting that this will help to stave off drives to unionize its workers.

The Big Four packers—Swift, Armour, Cudahy and Wilson—have raised the basic wage scale 9 cents an hour. Piece rates have been raised an equivalent amount; and the average boost is reported to be about 13 per cent. It is claimed that 200,000 persons will share in this increase, and that it will add $22,000,000 a year to the nation's annual payroll.

Some smaller but important independent packers, such as George A. Hormel & Co., of Austin, Minn., and Morrell & Co., of Sioux Falls, S. D., have joined in the rise. This increase is the second in the packing industry in four months, and the fifth since the low-water mark was reached in 1932.

The International Harvester company has announced wage increases which will mean $5,500,000 a year increase, according to the company figuring. They put into effect an increase of 5 cents an hour on Nov. 30, 1936. The presenth raise is largest in the principal plants.

All the packing arrangements were made with the company unions, and there is nothing to show that the International Harvester consulted even them.

Charter Member Elevator Union Died This Week

C. D. Millirons Passes Away at Erlanger After Illness of Several Weeks.

Local 77, International Union of Elevator Constructors, suffered the loss of one of their charter members last Friday when C. D. Millirons, age 57, died at Erlanger hospital. Bro. Millirons had been employed at the Smith Elevator company for over a quarter of a century.

He was interred in Dalton, Ga., on Sunday.

As an expression of its esteem of this valued member of organized labor Local 77 drew up the following resolution:

"To the memory and in condolence to those left behind, we pause in silent respect. On March 26, immediately after the dawn of a new day, it did please Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to call from this earth our faithful and beloved Brother C. D. Williams.

"Whereas, the departure of our beloved brother has brought grief and sorrow to the members of Local No. 77, we herewith extend our sincere sympathy to his relatives and many friends in their bereavement; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days in memory of our departed brother and these resolutions spread upon our local minutes and be published in our Labor World and the Elevator Constructors' Journal.

"V. W. HALLMARK,
"Recording Secretary Local No. 77, Chattanooga, Tenn."

The Labor World joins in with the relatives and friends of Brother Millirons in its sympathy.

The average sign may not mean much to a union man, but a union ship card should have a meaning all its own.

Printers Express Sympathy for Two of Their Brothers

Typographical Union No. 89 extended to Brother C. M. Williams its sympathy and condolence in the death of Mrs. J. R. Williams, his mother, and the grandmother of J. R. Williams.

The resolution, in full, says:

"Whereas, the Angel of Death has visited the home of Brother C. M. Williams and taken therefrom his mother, Mrs. J. R. Williams, who is also the grandmother of Brother J. R. Williams; and,

"Whereas, Mrs. Williams was an exemplary wife and grandmother in all that the term implies; therefore be it

"Resolved by Chattanooga Typographical Union No. 89, in regular session assembled, that we extend to Brothers Williams and families our heartfelt sympathy in their hour of bereavement; and be it further

"Resolved, that copies of this resolution be spread on our minutes and sent to Brothers Williams, and also furnished the Labor World for publication.

HOUSE APPROVES NEW COAL MEASURE

Washington.—The house on March 11 passed the Guffey-Vinson coal bill to regulate the bituminous industry through price fixing provisions designed indirectly to permit improved labor conditions for 500,000 miners.

No record vote was taken on final passage.

Shortly before the bill was passed democrats successfully defeated a republican attempt to put the majority on record on the question of placing all employes of the federal coal commission under civil service.

The strategy was figured out ahead of time. By forcing a quorum call democrats brought 378 members into the house chamber and the republicans were unable to get the required 76 votes to force a roll call.

High Court Reverses Self In Wage Act

State Act Fixing Wages of Women Is Ruled Valid

Justice Roberts' Switch Decides Case — Railroad Labor and Frazier-Lemke Mortgage Acts Upheld by Unanimous Vote.

BY GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington, D. C. — The supreme court declared constitutional the law of the state of Washington fixing minimum wages for women; and in doing this, the court has reversed its own decisions in the Adkins case of 1923 and the New York minimum wage case in 1936.

The change of a single vote in the Supreme Court changed the Constitution of the United States. That when was unconstitutional Saturday became constitutional Monday. The mantle of infallibility which the court has been wearing came away with a resounding rip; so badly torn that a generation must pass before it can be donned again.

"The Constitution," said Chief Justice Hughes thirty years ago when he wasn't Chief Justice, "the Constitution is what the judges say it is." And now the whole country knows that Hughes spoke the truth.

Roberts Changes Vote

Mr. Justice Owen J. Roberts is the one whose vote was changed. Last June, Justice Roberts voted with the other reactionaries of the Court to destroy the New York minimum wage law. The chiselling wage of exploiters of women was just as rotten then as it is now. Chief Justice Hughes denounced it as vigorously then as he could now. Nothing has happened between last June and this March to change the rights and wrongs of the case—nothing, except the election, and President Roosevelt's proposals for court reform.

"The Constitution may not follow the flag, Hennessey, but the Supreme Court follows the election returns." Mr. Dooley's words have come true—by one vote.

Hughes Gives Opinion

Chief Justice Hughes delivered the opinion; and it will be acclaimed by labor as a magnificent one. Only a few bits can be given here:

"We think . . . that the decision in the Adkins case was a departure from the true application of the principles governing the regulation by the state of the relation between employer and employee * * *"

The Adkins case is one in which, in 1923, the Supreme Court knocked out a minimum wage law passed by Congress for the District of Columbia.

"What can be closer to the public interest than the health of women, and their protection from unscrupulous and overreaching employers?" Chief Justice Hughes goes on: "And if the protection of women is a legitimate end of the exercise of state power, how can it be said that the requirement of the payment of a minimum wage fairly fixed in order to

RUNAWAY MILL ABOUT TO LAND IN MISSISSIPPI

Meridian, Miss., Municipality to "Train" Low-Wage Employes for Scab Owners, as Well as Buy Plant for Them.

Workers in the Meridian Hosiery Mills of Meridian, Mississippi?

This question has puzzled the hosiery trade for the past couple of months.

It appears now that the Ajax mills, of Phoenixville, Pa., is back of the Meridian, Miss., enterprise. Mr. Stanton Samson, whose plant in Phoenixville was closed as a result of a long and bitter strike, has frequently stated that he was moving his business south.

When he first "ran away" from Philadelphia about twelve years ago to escape the union, Samson was able to train help in Phoenixville with the aid of federal and state vocational training funds.

The series of nation-wide scandals which occurred in recent years regarding the misuse of vocational funds arose out of the probe into the plant training system of the Ajax mill and in several plants in Mississippi. The United States office of education and the U. S. department of labor conducted a probe of the training scheme at Phoenixville, Pa., in 1934.

BANKERS BEGAN SIT-DOWN STRIKES, PECORA CLAIMS

Washington. — Justice Ferdinand Pecora, of the supreme court of New York, in his testimony at the senate judiciary committee hearings on President Roosevelt's plan for reorganizing the federal judiciary, charged that the real originators of the "sit-down" strike were the bankers of the United States in their conspiracy to violate the laws passed by congress to regulate utility holding companies.

Sensing the alarm of senators over the prevalence of "sit-down" strikes by the workers in various parts of the country, Mr. Pecora told the committee that it should "never forget the sit-down strikes in defiance of law originated in the lofty seats of high finance before the technique was merely copied by working men and women."

From his experience as counsel for the senate banking and currency committee in 1933 in the investigation of banking and stock promotion rackets which led congress to pass the securities act of 1933 and the securities exchange act of 1934, Mr. Pecora was able to support his claim with indisputable facts.

In strong language he charged the investment bankers with staging a sit-down strike until they won from congress the modification of the securities act and described as another example of the sit-down strike against statute law the nationwide refusal of utility holding companies to register their companies under the terms of the utility holding act.

Turning to the workers and the prevailing industrial unrest throughout the United States, Mr. Pecora said that the present wave of labor disputes was the result of "a sit-down strike by employers against the Wagner labor relations act," which was passed by congress for the express purpose of prohibiting employers from interfering with the right of their employes to organize in labor unions and carry on usual trade union activities without discrimination in employment.

Brotherhood Week

Special services are to be held in various churches of Chattanooga on Sunday, April 4, to usher in "Brotherhood week." Catholic, Protestant and Jewish congregations will cooperate in observing this laudable spirit.

Organized labor is composed of all religious beliefs, and has for the length of its existence advocated brotherhood among men. If "Brotherhood week" could only be observed every week of the year, every year, the strife and misery in the world would disappear.

If a brotherly feeling existed in our restaurants today, girls would not now be picketing to inform the public of the terribly selfish attitude they are now meeting.

We hail "Brotherhood week" and express a hope that it will so impress its effect on the minds of Chattanooga that a kindlier feeling will spring up and continue throughout the year.

What Next!

By use of a system of treating freshly poured concrete by a vacuum process, which eliminates surplus moisture and causes the concrete to harden in less than 20 minutes, a house was recently built in a day near Washington, D. C. Federal officials witnessed the demonstration of the quick construction of the house, complete with the exception of the plumbing and other jobs the contractor did not undertake.

Green Supports Newspaper Guild On Scripps Units

Washington.—Complete agreement with the demand of the American Newspaper Guild for the establishment of the "Guild shop" in the newspapers published by the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance was announced by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to Jonathan Eddy, secretary of the Newspaper Guild, in New York City.

"Please be assured," Mr. Green said, "that the American Federation of Labor is deeply interested in the negotiations which the representatives of the Newspaper Guild are carrying on with the management of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance. I earnestly hope success will attend your efforts to secure a collective bargaining agreement with the management of these publications.

"The American Federation of Labor is in thorough accord with the proposal which you and your associates representing the Newspaper Guild made to the management of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance for the recognition and establishment of the Guild Shop. Because of the position which the editors of the Scripps-Howard newspapers have assumed in favor of collective bargaining and in support of the establishment of contractural relationships between employers and employes, it seems inconceivable that the management of these publications would resist the efforts of the representatives of the Newspaper Guild to establish the Guild shop.

"I extend to you and to the Newspaper Guild full and complete assurance of the support of the American Federation of Labor in all efforts you may put forth to require the management of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance to agree to your reasonable demand.

"I will gladly call upon city central bodies and state federations of labor to rally to your support and to give to your Newspaper Guild a full measure of cooperation and assistance. These city central bodies and state federations of labor will be instructed to stand by you and to render all help possible.

"I am pleased to make this reply in response to inquiries submitted as to the attitude of the American Federation of Labor toward your Newspaper Guild in a conflict which might occur between it and the management of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance."

By increasing their purchasing power, the purchase of union label products will better the conditions of all workers.

Big Gains Through Negotiation

All the publicity on recent strikes may be giving the general public the impression that the workers are winning nothing except through striking. On the contrary, labor, that is, organized labor, is constantly winning better pay, fewer hours, improvements in working conditions, through negotiation with employers, conducted without fanfare and first page headlines.

Reports received at national and international union headquarters in Washington and elsewhere tell the story of these gains through organization and peaceful bargaining. Representatives of the workers sit down with the employers, state their case, listen to the employers' objections. Thorough discussion follows, often at a series of meetings. The end is usually a substantial gain for the workers, without stoppage of work.

An Object Lesson on the President's Plan

In spite of repeated pleas by Governor Lehman and President Roosevelt, the assembly of the New York legislature has turned down the resolution approving the child labor amendment to the national constitution. It was beaten by a vote of 102 to 42. Party lines vanished; and 41 democrats joined with 61 republicans in the wreck.

It is a mournful spectacle for those who know how much national action on this question is needed, and remember that the supreme court declared the federal child labor law unconstitutional. But as an argument for President Roosevelt's plan to revitalize the federal courts and particularly the supreme court, it could hardly be rivaled.

For the child labor amendment has been before the country for the last 13 years; and is not adopted yet. The resolution for this amendment passed the house of representatives on April 26, 1924, by a vote of 297 to 69. It passed the senate June 2 of the same year by a vote of 61 to 23. In 13 years, it has been ratified by 28 states; and four of the ratifications have come since January 1 of this year.

This shows what an organized and well financed minortiy can do in holding up a constitutional amendment. The minority which would fight a constitutional amendment giving congress the powers always held by every other national legislature would be fought by a much more tightly organized and better financed minority than that which has blocked the child labor amendment.

And the set-up for blocking an amendment is almost perfect. An amendment, to become effective, must be ratified by 36 states. Thirteen states can defeat it. At the census of 1930, the nation contained 122,775,000 inhabitants, in round numbers; and the 13 states of Arizona, Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Utah, Vermont and Wyoming had together 4,500,000 inhabitants—3.4 per cent of the total.

In other words, a majority of this 3.4 per cent of the American people, rightly distributed, can defeat an amendment to the constitution demanded by any kind of majority in the other 96.6 per cent.

The president's court plan is a necessity, to be put in effect at this session of congress. A constitutional amendment is a safeguard to be considered later.

Take It or Leave It!

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Nothing has so completely and convincingly shown the utter stupidity of big employers as the expose of the La Follette committee of the labor spy business, or, shall we say racket.

There are thousand examples, but take one: RCA pays $6,000 a year as salary and more than $20,000 a year as expenses, to a man whose influence in labor is a complete zero and whose advice apparently was worth something less than a thin dime.

There is nothing at all new in the fact that men have contrived to be seen in the company of union officials and who have, by such slight optical evidence, created for themselves a market value of sizable proportions.

Up to now nobody ever knew the price of this kind of tripe per pound.

Well, as the saying has it, now it comes out. The La Follette committee record is full of it—and full of a number of interesting salary figures, such as that just given.

The queer thing about employers of that type is that they are willing to pay fancy amounts for advice that must be bad. It couldn't be otherwise. These fellows seem to like bad advice and to pay a high price for it. They could get free, gratis and for nothing all the good advice there is. But do they take the free good advice? No, not they. They go around the corner where some smoothie whispers hokum to them from the southwest corner of a crooked or deceitful or silly mouth—and down into their cash pocket they go.

The same kind of suckers used to hang around medicine tent shows thirty years ago. They didn't wear as good clothes, but at heart they were brothers of the current big business crop.

Nothing much can be done about it. While employers of a certain type can escape unionism they will pay quacks in the hope that their dictatorial hides can be saved. After unionism comes they seem to conclude that the inevitable wasn't so bad after all.

It is always a question whether the dicks and finks and punks who carry blackjacks, who scab and rat and sneak, are any worse than the white collar, soft shoe gang that peddles expert "industrial advice," like this $25,000 beauty paid by RCA. It is a question, a moot question. Except that the fink on the job has to more or less stand out in the open. Now and then he serves as a brick stopper, which leaves him with a hangover headache. He does, in a way, take a chance.

Well, it takes all kind of queer fish to make this a halfway human world—only it is so hard at times to find out just what is human about the queerest of the queer fish. Their resemblance to one of the more repulsive members of the quadruped family is so much more obvious.

The world moves on and, moving on, washes out quite a few of the stains placed upon it by some of the trespassers on this terrestrial ball.

And freedom does gain ground. Which is as it should be. But now and then, as we move along in the march toward better things, there are spots which we pass with muffled noses.

DON'T COMPLAIN ABOUT THE WEATHER . . .

All products made by the Bennett-Hubbard Candy company are unfair to organized labor. The strike still continues. Check up on your grocer and see if he handles these products, and help the candy workers win fair wages and working conditions.

Bakers Union No. 25 extends its sympathy to Brothers J. E. and C. M. Wilkey, of Cameron & Barr Baking company, in the illness and death of their mother.

The sit down strike has spread to the bake shops. The bakers at the Stone Baking company, in Atlanta, Ga., sat down Monday evening because the management fired five bakers for joining the union. The management in turn locked the shop up and posted a sign saying they had shut down temporarily. It seems that there was nothing else to do with the men in the plant.

We regret the transfer of Mr. Hightower, the local Fleischman Yeast representative, to New Orleans. We wish you the best of luck, Bill.

It looks like the American Bakeries will have to close more of its plants and move on where there are no unions. Their employees in Birmingham and Atlanta are organizing.

Why not buy bread and cakes made in Chattanooga? All cakes and bread shipped in here are made in low-wage shops. Help the bakers get better wages.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS RAILWAY LABOR ACT

Nation's Supreme Judicial Tribunal Decides Case Involving Company Union in Favor of A. F. of L. Unit.

Washington.—In a unanimous decision the supreme court of the United States affirmed the constitutionality of the railway labor act of 1926 as amended in 1934, which declares that railroad employes "shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing," and that "the majority of any craft of employes shall have the right to determine who shall be the representative of the craft or class for the purpose of this act."

The law also prohibited railway carriers from denying their employes the right to organize and from interfering with that right, and in addition prohibited carriers from establishing company unions.

GREEN DISAVOWS SIT-DOWN STRIKE

A. F. of L. President Declares It Is Perilous to Labor and Will Inevitably Result in Repressive Legislation Depriving Workers of Hard-Won Fundamental Rights.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A statement disavowing sit-down strikes as "illegal seizure of property" and as a weapon which will array public opinion against the workers was made here by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

In addition, Mr. Green said, it is a weapon whose use will cause legislation of the compulsory arbitration type to deprive working men and women of the right to organize and carry on those trade union activities under which the workers have made great progress in improving their economic conditions.

"Both personally and officially," he declared, "I disavow the sit-down strike as a part of the economic and organization policy of the American Federation of Labor."

Green's Statement

The full text of Mr. Green's statement follows:

"The sit-down strike has never been approved or supported by the American Federation of Labor. Because there is involved in its application grave implications detrimental to labor's interests, it must be disavowed by the thinking men and women of labor.

"First, public opinion will not support sit-down strikes. That means labor loses public support when any part of it engages in sit-down strikes.

"Without such support organized labor cannot win strikes or establish and maintain itself as a vital force in the economic and industrial life of the nation. Labor cannot afford to lose the support of public opinion.

"Second, temporary advantages gained through sit-down strikes will inevitably lead to permanent injury.

"The public generally will not long tolerate the illegal seizure of property. If persisted in it will through state and federal law-making bodies force the enactment of legislation providing for compulsory arbitration, the incorporation of unions and other repressive forms of legislation which will deprive organized labor of freedom of association and liberty of action within the limitations of both moral and statutory law.

"Such action would be a severe blow to labor.

"Labor should refrain from engaging in sit-down strikes and maintain its freedom of action and association rather than experiment with it and as a result be subjected to oppressive legal regulation and compulsory arbitration.

"Labor therefore runs the risk of losing more than can be gained by engaging in sit-down strikes.

"It must be free to strike against injustice and oppression and for higher wages and better living standards.

"It must be permitted to picket when strikes occur. It may be greatly restricted and perhaps denied the exercise of these elemental rights if it persists in engaging in sit-down strikes.

"I therefore publicly warn labor against this illegal procedure. Both personally and officially I disavow the sit-down strike as a part of the economic and organization policy of the American Federation of Labor."

A. F. L. HITS INDUSTRY FOR TYING PRICE HIKING TO INCREASE IN WAGES

Insists That Pay Boosts Must Be Met by Reduced Production Costs—Prosperity Hinges on Workers Getting Larger Share of National Income.

Washington.—The current issue of the American Federation of Labor's Monthly Survey of Business predicts that the United States is headed straight for another depression of the 1929 type unless industry adopts the policy of raising wages and keeping prices down in place of the present policy of boosting prices on the plainly unwarranted claim that such action is necessary following wage rises to absorb increased wages costs of production.

Consumers' Cooperation Recommended.

Labor is strongly opposed to industry's policy of raising prices when wage increases could be absorbed by reduced costs," the Federation Survey continued. "Labor is consumer as well as producer. What is given workers in wage increases is taken away by price increases, preventing the lifting of living standards and expansion of the mass market.

"Can private business with its thirst for profits be counted on to keep prices at the lowest level while increasing wages? Experience in other countries indicate that consumers' cooperation alone gives wage-earners a sure way of reducing living costs and getting value in the goods they buy."

Large Wage Increase Urged.

Pointing out that the wage increases granted by employers early in 1936 and again just before Christmas "were on the whole no more than enough to offset the rise in living costs," the survey said that under the present general scheme of price boosting "it is likely that early next year the worker's living cost will be higher by about 8 per cent than it is today," adding:

"Since cost of living will probably rise by about 8 per cent during the coming twelve months, wages must increase by that amount this year to keep pace with living costs. But this is not enough. Workers' buying power must be lifted to substantially higher levels if our present prosperity is to last. This means that wages throughout industry must increase this year by 10 per cent or more."

Larger Share of National Income for Labor.

Presenting undisputed figures to show that "consumer buying is not keeping pace with production," and that, with the depression shortage of capital goods nearly made up, "unless consumer buying expands enough to make new plants necessary, prosperity cannot continue," the survey concludes:

"To accomplish this, labor's share in the national income must increase yearly. This alone can bring sufficient expansion in our mass production industries. The wealth created by increasing production should expand the mass market, raise living standards, lift production to higher levels, create work for the unemployed. The decision as to its use, however, although it affects all our population, is left to a relatively small number of business men who control leading corporations and banks. It has been their policy to pay it to stockholders, in bonuses to officers or use it to extend control.

"Is it not time for a new conception of rights in wealth created by common enterprise? Unless workers share equitably in the wealth they create, we cannot hope for continued prosperity."

SUPREME COURT

meet the very necessities of existence is not an admissible means to that end?

Low Wages Burden Taxpayers

"The exploitation of a class of workers who are in an unequal position with respect to bargaining power and are thus relatively defenseless against the denial of a living wage is not only detrimental to their health and well being, but casts a direct burden for their support upon the community.

"What these workers lose in wages, the taxpayers are called upon to pay. The bare cost of living must be met."

To abolish any vestige of doubt on the matter, the Chief Justice ends his opinion with these words:

"Our conclusion is that the case of Adkins vs. Children's Hospital, should be, and it is, overruled. The judgment of the Supreme Court of the State of Washington is affirmed."

Four Die-hards Dissent

The four die-hards of the Supreme Court—Vandevanter, McReynolds, Butler and Sutherland wrote a long dissenting opinion to prove that it is contrary to the Constitution and violates a woman's natural liberty to keep her from working for starvation wages. Justice Sutherland wrote the opinion of the court in the Adkins case.

The Senate was in session when news of the court's decision came; and the discussion was warm and drastic.

"In 1913, we passed a minimum wage law for women," said Senator Schwellenbach, of Washington. "That law . . . was for ten years constitutional, for thirteen years, unconstitutional, and now is constitutional again, without congress ever passing upon it, and without state legislatures or state conventions ever passing upon it.

Other Important Decisions.

"Yet there are many persons in this country who raise their hands in holy horror when we talk about amending the constitution in any other manner than by having two-thirds of the congress present the question for action by at least three-fourths of the states."

The court on the same day delivered other important decisions; but none with the overwhelming public interest of the Washington case.

It upheld by unanimous decision the constitutionality of the railroad labor act, which has kept almost complete peace on the railroads for more than ten years, while every other industry has been rocked by strife. The wondering resentment is that such a law could be challenged, especially after such a time. Mr. Justice Stone delivered this opinion.

Farm Bankruptcy Law Upheld.

The revised Frazier-Lemke farm bankruptcy law was held constitutional by an unanimous vote, in an opinion of the court written by Mr. Justice Brandeis. The justice remarks in his opinion that in several places, the law is not entirely clear; but that it is the duty of the court to construe these passages, if possible, in a way to make them conform to the constitution.

The Virginia milk and cream act, under which milk dealers are licensed and the price of their goods fixed, was upheld in a 5 to 4 decision written by Justice Cardozo.

The court agreed to take jurisdiction in a suit against the Alabama state unemployment insurance law, which complies with the federal social security act; but the court refused to enjoin the collection of payroll taxes while the law was being tested.

When passing round the haloes for the Supreme Court's upholding of the Washington minimum wage law, don't forget that Mr. Justice Roberts voted to kill the New York minimum wage law less than a year ago.

In the matter of minimum wages for women, the Constitution is what one judge says it is; and when that one judge changed his mind, he amended the Constitution.

* * *

Did the makers of the Constitution ever intend to inflict on the country such a Judgeocracy as that? They did not. They flatly rejected the vastly milder proposal to give the Supreme Court a suspensory veto, which would hold up a law unless and until Congress repassed it by a two-thirds majority. The court's power over legislation is just a piece of squatter sovereignty, nothing else.

MORE ABOUT RUNAWRY MILL

tion is now being undertaken by the United States office of education and the American Federation of Hosiery Workers into the training scheme being set up there to break in workers for the hosiery plant that is shortly to start operations.

It now appears that the instructor who conducted the school in Phoenixville in the Ajax mill is to direct the school in Meridian, Miss.

According to preliminary reports received from Attorney H. G. B. King, Organizer Matt Lynch, of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, and George Googe, representing the American Federation of Labor, who are investigating the Meridian set-up, the plan is to use local and state school funds to train workers for the new Ajax mill which is to begin operations this summer.

According to the reports from Lynch and King, Meridian is floating a bond issue to erect a plant for the hosiery company. If the manufacturer is able to pay out a total of a million dollars in wages in a five-year period the company will get full title to the property.

Mr. Sanson, according to the Meridian Chamber of Commerce, is making some initial investment in the enterprise.

The wages that are to be paid to skilled full-fashioned workers in Meridian, according to local business people, will be $100 a month for the men and $60 a month for the girls.

If this wage scale is established in Meridian for full fashioned employes it will set a new low in the hosiery industry.

The training plan, it appears, is to install full fashioned machines in a unused school building and to have the school board pay, out of local and state funds, salaries to instructors to train local high school boys and girls to operate the machinery. It is not absolutely clear that full fashioned machines will be put in the school or whether only seaming and looping equipment will be installed in the "class rooms."

The school authorities in Meridian are apparently considerably in the dark on the details of the whole enterprise. One thing is clear. A wage of $25 a week appears to be a large sum, according to Meridian standards. The local school authorities say they are fearful all their teachers will attempt to get jobs as full fashioned knitters and quit teaching if such wages are paid.

Newspapers in Jackson, Miss., have printed stories stating that the Meridian plan has been given a clean bill of health by someone.

Officers of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers state emphatically that they are not satisfied with the information received on this set-up and wish further information.

It would seem that no federal funds are now being used by the Meridian schools to subsidize the plant training program for a notorious employer. However, the citizens of Meridian made no secret of the fact that they feel entitled to some federal money and hoped to obtain grants of some kind later to help subsidize manufacturers. The American Federation of Hosiery Workers is taking up the whole matter with the office of education once more and is also bringing the Mississippi matter to the attention of the president's committee on vocational training.

Hosiery union officials have vigorously contended that all grants to Mississippi from the federal government for vocational training should be discontinued until such time as the authorities in that state can show that extremely questionable ventures such as those now being undertaken in Meridian will be permanently discontinued.

In Phoenixville, Pa., the Ajax company exploited "students" and not until obliged to do so by the code authority, was one cent of compensation paid to helpers.

The "student" under this plan was actually a productive employe who worked for no pay but continued in "school" in the hope of getting a job later on.

Meridian authorities were unable to give the details of their plan, but it is quite evident that this same system will be worked in that town. The school people will pay the wages of a foreman who is to be called an "instructor" and the helpers or apprentices are to be called "students" and are to make stockings for which they will not be paid but which the employer will sell at market rates.

MORE ABOUT WAITERS

sult Mr. Hudlow took back all but two of the ringleaders of the walkout.

In conferences held with Mr. Hudlow during the past two weeks he voiced objection to the fact that the presented agreement did not provide for a wage scale and number of hours to be worked. When asked if he would sign a contract calling for the SAME WAGES AND HOURS THAT HE WAS OPERATING UNDER AT PRESENT, he flatly refused to sign.

Regardless of whether the dispute has been caused because Mr. Hudlow himself refuses to sign or because his employes do not want to join the union, it has been expressed by union patrons that they could not patronize a restaurant that served food by employes who were unfriendly to them.

The Home Plate has long been recognized as a meeting place for political leaders of the city and county, and from them have already been received by the newly formed union pledges of support.

Harry's Place, on Tenth and Market, has for a long time been recognized as a cheap wage affair, his girls depending for the most part on the generosity of the customers for a living. As soon as the proprietor discovered a union was being formed, and as fast as he discovered who had joined, they were replaced by new help.

Bob Green, along with the Home Plate, Harry's Place and Ellis', is a part of the combine of restaurant owners who have pledged each other financial support to break the union and thereby insure to themselves the continued privilege of working their employes for two to six dollars per week, consisting of anywhere from 52 to 77 hours per week.

Ellis' cafe, on Market street across from the Terminal station, has also been "famous" for its "economical" way of paying its employes.

"The fight is really on," the Cooks' and Waiters' union is telling the world. "We do not believe that the public will support these inhuman practices that prevail in Chattanooga restaurants after they have been informed of them. We contend that a girl cannot be expected to live decently on such miserly wages. We know that heads of families cannot support their children on tips. We are on starvation pay already, and we had just as well starve fighting as to starve working for our bosses' enrichment."

That the public is giving full support is borne out in the fact that already some eighteen resaturants in the business district are displaying cards showing that they have recognized the union.

42 Strikebreakers Fined $12,652 in Reading, Pa.

Reading, Pa. — Police Magistrate Stanley J. Mehosky imposed fines totaling $12,652 on forty-two strikebreakers brought here from Philadelphia to assist hosiery manufacturers in breaking a strike of their employes.

The motley array of gangsters were arrested and arraigned under a municipal ordinance which bars vagrancy, unlawful assembly and similar offenses.

Under questioning all of the men gave their addresses as Philadelphia, but several policemen said the addresses in many cases were fictitious. The suspects were rounded up the day before the arraignment by order of Detective Captain Charles Dennith shortly after they arrived from the Quaker City.

All of the men said they were unable to pay their fines. They were therefore sent to the Berks county jail for ninety days in lieu of payment.

Police authorities said similar roundups would be made if more strikebreakers were imported.

HUDLOW APPARENTLY GOING AFTER UNIONS ON STATEWIDE SCALE

The following letter on the letterhead of the Knoxville Restaurant association indicates that Mr. Clarence Hudlow, operator of the Chattanooga Home Plate, wants to not only stop organization of cafe employes in Chattanooga, but is sounding a warning in issuing a call for help to the state restaurant owners.

IMPORTANT MEETING!

"Dear Restaurant Operator:

"We are calling an important meeting in your city on Thursday, April 8. For further information concerning this meeting, as to the time and place, call Mr. W. C. Hudlow, of the Home Plate Lunch.

"The purpose of this meeting is to discuss matters of vital importance to every restaurant operator. Please plan to meet with us.

"Very sincerely yours,

DEMOCRAT CLUB STAND BY UNIONS AS PICKETS WALK

Maypole Management Misleads Junior Rooseveltians in Banquet Plans.

MEETING CALLED OFF WHEN PICKETS SEEN

"We Will Not Hurt Organized Labor Under Any Circumstances" Officers Declare as They Plead With "Union-Busters" to Recognize Underpaid Employes.

The Young Men's Democratic Club showed its friendship with organized labor last Tuesday evening when they called off their banquet to be held in the Maypole dining room after pickets appeared before the non-union member of the Greek combine of restaurant owners.

Although plans for the rally of youthful Democrats had been arranged for a week or more, it had been the understanding of officials of the club that the proprietor had assured them that he would see to it that the rapidly spreading cafe fight would not affect his restaurant for that evening.

In fact, the treasurer of the club inquired of union officers the status of the Maypole. He was told that an active picketing campaign was likely to break out any day at the Maypole, and he was warned that before final arrangements were made that he should get definite assurance from the management that the culinary workers' union would be appeased.

However, because of the settlement of several other cafes to union agreements the day previous, pickets were placed before the Maypole early Tuesday afternoon. As soon as the young democrats became aware of the turn of events, they contacted Mr. Silas, proprietor of the non-union place, but were bluntly told that he had nothing to say.

Whereupon, Mr. Frank Chamlee, president of the club, called the meeting off. "We will not go past any picket lines," he said.

Labor of Chattanooga the next day unanimously applauded the attitude taken by Mr. Chamlee, but at the same time regretted the position which the Maypole management had deliberately forced upon the democrats.

While recognizing the inconvenience caused by the refusal of the management of the cafe to deal with the union, it is the opinion of most trades unionists that the Young Men's Democratic Club will not lose in the long run by the attitude they have shown toward organized labor.

Non-Union Home Plate Business Dwindles as Scared Waiters Peer Through Windows.

Although original proposals to restaurant owners contained wage proposals and hours of work, but were left out at their request, definite wages were put back in after it became apparent that the absence of a wage scale was being used as a smoke screen behind which to operate in an effort to refuse to recognize the union.

The scale, already signed by some dozen or more cafes, provides minimum of $9 per week, ranging on up to a top of $18, with a $25 scale for the one or two very expert cooks

SUPREME COURT RULING SPURS DRIVE FOR MINIMUM WAGE ACTS

Moves Begun to Strengthen State Legislation and Pass New Laws Where Needed—Six Million Women Declared Affected by Highest Court's Decision.

Washington, D. C.—The repercussions from the action of the supreme court in reversing its policy of the past 14 years on minimum wage legislation have come thicker and faster than anyone seemed to foresee.

President Roosevelt has asked Attorney General Cummings for an opinion as to whether the law enacted in 1918 on minimum wages for women in the District of Columbia, and knocked out by the court in the Adkins case in 1923, is revived in full force by the Easter Monday decision of the court; or whether that law will have to be repassed. Views on this point are so far conflicting, so the probable course, unless the Attorney General's opinion settles all doubts, will be to play safe by re-enacting the law—with amendments drawn from experience.

Governors Take Action.

Governor Curley, of Massachusetts, has already sent to the legislature a request for a strengthening of the Massachusetts minimum wage law, which was amended in 1934 in hope of making it supreme court proof. But caution is no longer needed. Massachusetts had the first of all such laws, passed in 1912.

Governor Lehman, of New York, has said that he will call a conference of experts before sending to the legislature any recommendations on the law. It was the New York law that was slaughtered by the court in the Tipaldo case.

All told, 17 states now have minimum wage laws for women, for the governor of Nevada signed the bill in that state the day after the court decision. The other states are California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin.

New Laws Planned.

The State Labor Commissioner of Arkansas believes that the law of that state, passed in 1915 and dropped because of being held unconstitutional under the Adkins decision, is revived by the court's reversal in the Hotel Co. v. Ernest Parrish case.

Miss Louise Stitt, minimum wage supervisor of the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, says that about 6,000,000 women were aected, directly or indirectly, by the new decision; and that minimum wage laws are projected in Maryland, Michigan, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Texas. "As a general rule, said Miss Stitt, "women's wages are about 50 per cent below men's. Minimum wage legislation generally has the effect of raising the minimum 20 to 30 per cent."

ACROSS PICKET LINES

A member of the pressmen's union bought a 5-cent Coca-Cola at the Home Plate. His union the next night added five dollars to the bill. Get a drink!

Charles R. Chamberlain, a candidate for city commission in last year's election, enjoys Home Plate cooking.

Tom Weatherford, prominent republican and Dun & Bradstreet agent, refuses to cross the picket line with his favorite black cigar. In odd moments he encourages others to "come across."

People are wondering what a certain union musician means by patronizing picketed restaurants.

Dennie Cash, of Cash & Schoolfield, prominent political henchman in the Fourth ward, prominent young democratic clubman, is also prominent at picketed restaurants.

And other legal lights in the legal fraternity, such as H. B. Mack, Hugh Sewell, W. J. Troutt, Elmer Sloan, republican election commissioner, W. T. Robinson, Dixie Smith.

Kamin Celebrates

A. C. Kamin has real cause to celebrate this week. On last Monday he had a birthday—no, Brother Kamin didn't say what birthday it was. But not only that. The same day Brother Kamin celebrated his "silver anniversary" in the labor movement, for on that day he had held a card in the Movie Operators' Union exactly 25 years—and for a young man like "A. C.," that's a record to be proud of.

Killen Has Relapse

Word comes from Knoxville that Clair Killen, TVA Labor Relations man, is seriously ill. Brother Killen has been in bad health for almost a year now, and the labor movement regrets to learn that he is not improving. Mr. Killen is popular in labor circles and we wish for him a speedy recovery.

Business Agent Witt

Brother "Zeke" Witt, long an active worker in the Painters' organization, was elected business agent of that organization at the meeting last Thursday night. Brother Witt is a "live wire" and should keep things moving in Local 226.

Labor League Plans Nation-Wide Rallies On Supreme Court

Meetings to Be Held in 25 Large Cities to Boost Reform.

Washington, D. C.—Labor's Non-Partisan League is planning to stage a series of nation-wide mass meetings to arouse interest and support in behalf of President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization program. The meetings, which were arranged for at a national conference of L. N. P. L. leaders held in Washington recently, will be conducted in 25 large cities and many smaller towns on April 19, Major George L. Berry, president of the league, has announced.

Cities in which rallies have been scheduled include Chicago, Indianapolis, Des Moines, Kansas City, St. Louis, New Orleans, Minneapolis, Denver, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Butte, Omaha, Seattle, Houston, Birmingham, Atlanta, Nashville, Baltimore, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Detroit, New Haven, Rochester and Boston.

Local committees comprising representatives of farm organizations, civic groups and various political organizations will co-opearte with the Labor League in arranging the meetings.

To Form Local Committees.

A call has been issued to 700 local central labor bodies to organize meetings on the occasion and to form committees of leaders in various phases of the community life to arrange for speakers and promote attendance and public interest.

In states where larger meetings are to be held, governors have been invited to participate in the program.

"Every citizen who believes that the President so recently returned to office by the magnificent majority of ten million votes deserves the continued support of those who elected him is welcome and urged to take part in the meetings," Major Berry said.

SECURITY HEAD TO TALK HERE MONDAY NIGHT

Ramifications of Social Secial Security Will Be Explained by W. E. Jacobs.

Will Broadcast Over Radio Stations Monday and Tuesday as Well as Visiting Central Body.

W. E. Jacobs, formerly commissioner of labor for Tennessee, but now the field representative of the National social security board, will renew acquaintances in Chattanooga next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

He hopes to meet groups of unionists in round-table discussions concerning the social security program where all interested citizens will be free to ask questions.

He will broadcast over WDOD at 10:15 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, and over WAPO between 5:30 and 6 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

While here Mr. Jacobs will undoubtedly visit Central Body while it is in session and mingle with old-time friends here.

Label League Skating Party

The Chattanooga Label league is sponsoring a new type party for its friends on Monday night, April 19. The affair is a skating party to be held at the Warner park skating rink from 7 until 9 o'clock. The admission price is 25 cents for men and 15 cents for the ladies and children.

Everybody is urged to secure his ticket early so the league will have something definite to go on. Don't say you can't skate—it will be worth the money just to watch the falls the other fellow makes. Tickets can be secured from members of the league, and they will be present at the Central Body meeting Monday night, so come prepared to buy a ticket.

BUTCHERS PLAN FOR MORE TIME WITH FAMILIES

Employers Notified Shops Must Close by 6:30 P.M.

Local 600 Meeting Tuesday Packed by Members in Enthusiastic Session.

Local 600, Butcher Workmen, enjoyed another one of their customary overflow meetings last Tuesday evening, when with few exceptions, practically every member was present, according to Mack Ball, business agent.

The main item of business was the proposition of stopping the practice of a few of the meatshops in remaining open after 6:30 in the evenings. Members of the meatcutters' union say that for shops to stay open later than this hour is not at all necessary and that keeping open such late hours prohibits them from enjoying the company of their families.

"We are growing tired of only seeing our children on Sundays," one of the speakers said with feeling. "Most of the proprietors close up at 6:30, and we intend to see to it that all meat shops close at that hour."

Later hours will be permitted on Saturdays, it is said. Officers of the union state that the new ruling will become effective on Monday, April 12.

Union shop cards are on display in practically all of the better class meat markets, and with a blanket closing hour set late enough for late shoppers to be accommodated, it is anticipated that there will be no inconvenience to the public.

Prompt Return Of Credentials Urged on Locals

Will Facilitate Appointment of Convention Committee If Sent to Secretary at Once.

The secretary of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, T. R. Cuthbert, sent a call this week through Tennessee labor papers, for all local unions to send to his office the credentials for their delegates promptly after they are elected.

Frequently delegates wait until they arrive in the convention city to present credentials. Because of this practice the president of the Federation finds himself hampered in arranging his list of committee appointments because he has no way of knowing who will be in attendance until the afternoon of the first day's session.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

The executive committee, following the instructions of the last regular session, inserted in the local's by-laws the provision that it shall negotiate a contract for collective bargaining with the superintendent of education and the city commission. A form has been drawn up with the help of Brothers Bennett, Hamlin and Mabry. This form has been approved by the board of directors.

Collective bargaining is the primary purpose of any union. The individual teacher can do little more than make an offer to work in the schools with an administration. COURT CONTROVERSY DECLARED NO REASON FOR DELAYING BILL

Organized Building Workers Condemn Failure of Congress to Act as "Unnecessary" and Warn Worst Housing Crisis in Nation's History Is Close at Hand.

Washington, D. C.—The Wagner-Steagall housing bill should be passed immediately and the controversy over federal judiciary reform is no excuse for delaying action on the measure, a meeting of representatives of building trades labor declared here in a resolution emphatically protesting against further delay.

The meeting was called jointly by the American Federation of Labor Housing Committee, of which Harry C. Bates, president of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' I. U. is chairman, and John Coefield, president of the U. A. Plumbers and Steamfitters, and Michael J. Colleran, president of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers' I. A. are members; and the Building Trades Department of the A. F. of L., of which J. W. Williams is president and Michael J. McDonough is secretary.

Among those present, in addition to the sponsors, were John P. Coyne, International Union of Operating Engineers; John W. Garvey, International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union; William J. Gallagher, Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators; Michael F. Garrett, U. A. Plumbers and Steamfitters; Joseph McDonagh, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; James M. Myles, Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers I. A.; C. W. Sickles, Asbestos Workers' International Association; Fred A. Tobin, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers; Warren Jay Vinton and Catherine Bauer, Labor Housing Conference.

Strong Protest Recorded.

"We protest strongly the unnecessary delay in action on the Wagner-Steagall housing bill," a statement issued by the conferees began. It went on to declare that although the housing bill had been introduced on February 24 it was still "in committee," that there had been no hearings and no date set for them, and "no definite public statement from the administration, except occasional criticism from the secretary of the treasury, whose remarks, as interpreted in the newspapers, have seemed rather vague, partially misinformed and even contradictory."

"The fact that there is a controversy raging over the supreme court and other matters is no excuse for delaying the housing bill," it was declared. "Whether we have nine or fifteen justices will not in any way affect the situation which necessitates this bill. The supreme court cannot relieve the housing shortage nor employ building workers. And the constitutionality of the Wagner-Steagall bill has never been questioned."

After pointing out that the bill was indorsed last year by a large number of organizations, the statement said that the changes made in the bill had made it clearer and simpler.

Only Two Alternatives.

"Throughout the country the alternatives are clear," the statement added. "Those who really want to do something about housing are for the Wagner bill. And, vice versa, only those who are against housing reform of any kind, who want a bad housing shortage in order to bolster up their paper values, are against the United States housing bill of 1937.

"On which side in the administration? Why does not the President publicly and whole-heartedly indorse this bill? Ever since 1933 this administration has been firmly committed to a long-term federal program to improve workers' housing conditions. It was part of the democratic platform last fall.

"In no uncertain terms the President recognized the nation-wide housing problem and promised to take systematic and immediate measures to relieve it, in his annual message to congress on January 6, and in his second inaugural address on January 20.

Big Danger Looms.

"The general housing shortage which labor has predicted as inevitable, is now upon us. Before long it will be the worst housing shortage ever faced by this country. According to the most reliable estimates, we need to build between twelve and sixteen million new homes before 1950, that is, in the next 13 years. Our immediate needs are proportionately larger, since we must make up for the seven long years of idleness and for a century's accumulation of obsolete and unlivable homes."

BOSTON PRINTERS WIN PAY INCREASE

BOSTON.—The members of Boston Typographical Union No. 13 went on a five-day week on April 1, with an increase in hourly wages of 9 1-3 cents, as provided in an agreement signed with the Publishers' Association of Boston. The agreement also carries the stipulation that time and one-half shall be paid for overtime. The work week is now 37½ hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were returning home one moonlight night after a strenuous day's shopping.

Wife—Oh, John, what a lovely moon!

Hubby (absent mindedly)—Yes, how much is it?

SHORTS

The federal reserve board is taking measures which it hopes will end the sit-down strike of the big banks and insurance companies which are demanding higher interest rates.

* * *

The utilities' sit-down strike against the Wheeler holding company act shows signs of disintegrating. Quite a number of the companies have abandoned the strike, and registered with the SEC for employment. Another discouragement to these sit-downers is that the supreme court has refused them an injunction against the TVA speed-up.

A. F. of L. Gains Cited by Morrison

Membership Is 1,604,664 Larger Than in 1933 — Affiliated Unions Have Enrolled Over 300,000 New Members During the Last Seven Months—Many Charters Issued.

Washington, D. C.—The successful organization activities of the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated national and international unions since July, 1933, and especially since September 1, 1936, were revealed in the following statement by Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the federation:

"The A. F. of L. membership paid and reported for March 1937, is 3,731,460, which shows an increase of 1,604,604 over the membership for the year ending August 31 1933.

"The affiliated unions, including the state, trade and federal labor unions, and not including the ten national and international unions that stand automatically suspended since September 5, 1936, show an increase since September 1, 1936, of 308,967 paid and reported members over the average membership for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1936.

"The sentiment for organization is running high and we have been receiving applications and issuing during the past four months a greater number of charters than has been received since the month of June, 1934.

"The local unions directly affiliated with the A. F. of L. are securing increases in wages and more satisfactory working conditions.

Five National and International Unions Chartered.

"In 1936 charters were issued to the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and the American Newspaper Guild.

"Since September, 1936, charters have been issued to the International Ladies Handbag, Pocketbook and Novelty Workers' Union, with 10,000 members, with their headquarters in New York City; the International Association of Cleaning and Dye House Workers, with a potential membership of many thousands, with their headquarters at Cleveland, Ohio; and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, with their headquarters at Madison, Wis.

"We have seven national and international unions in the making. They will be formed from local unions directly affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, namely: Cement Workers, Aluminm Workers, Filling Station Employes, Agricultural and Fruit Workers; Flour, Feed and Cereal Workers; Optical Workers and Distillery Workers.

"Each of these seven groups has a national council, with a chairman, and they meet at intervals to discuss matters affecting the membership of the local unions of each group."

MARYLAND AGAIN DEFEATS CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

Annapolis, Md.—Hope for ratification of the child labor amendment by Maryland this year disappeared after the Maryland house of delegates rejected ratification by a vote of 76 to 62. The vote represented a slight gain for ratification forces as the house turned down the proposal by a vote of 91 to 12 in 1935.

Workers' Delegates Urge 40-Hour Week at World Textile Conference

Uniform Shortened Working Periods Are Held Necessary on Social, Moral and Economic Grounds—Secretary Perkins Asks Higher Purchasing Power to Solve Textile Problems.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With a message of good-will from President Roosevelt and speeches by Secretary of Labor Perkins and Secretary of Commerce Roper, the Conference of Textile Producing Nations called by the International Labor Office to examine social and economic problems of the textile industry opened in the Government Auditorium in Washington on April 2. Early in the conference, workers' delegates urged a world-wide 40-hour week in the textile industry.

Twnty-four countries are represented at the conference. They are: Belgium, Canada, Cuba, China, Czecho-Slovakia, Ecuador, Finland, Germany, France, Great Britain, Guatemala, India, Japan, Latvia, Mexico, the Netherlands, Poland, Rumania, Sweden, Turkey, the United States, Uruguay, Jugoslavia, and the U. R. S. R.

The United States delegation comprises: John G. Winant, former chairman of the Social Security Board, for the government; former Governor O. Max Gardner, of North Carolina, for the employers, and Emil Rieve, president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, for the workers. They are assisted by a staff of 47 experts or advisers.

Winant Elected Chairman

At the suggestion of Lt. Col. Anthony J. Muirhead, British Government representative, Winant was chosen chairman of the Conference. Other officers chosen were: Juitsu Kitaoka, of Japan, government vice chairman; Hans C. Oersted, Danish employers' representative on the governing body of the ILO, employers' vice chairman; and Arthur Shaw, of Great Britain, workers' vice chairman.

Alphonce Segier, member of the Belgian workers delegation, told the conference that a world-wid 40-hour week in the textile industry is both necessary and possible.

Sieger, who is secretary of the central organization of textile workers at Ghent, said that during the past 10 years each textile worker had been working twice as many looms and three times as many cotton spindles.

Protection of Women Urged

Anton Posener, workers' delegate from Czecho-Slovakia, favored the 40-hour week on what he termed "social moral and economic grounds."

He said two-thirds of the workers of this country were women and that it was the duty of the state to protect them. He asked that mechanization of the industry be supervised by men "with a new morality and new social ideas."

Emil Rieve, representative of the American employee's group, told the convention "labor is prepared to oppose those . . . who expect to use the word 'technical' as the mantle for wide wanderings. This is a technical conference, but we hope it is not to be a conference of technicalities," he said.

Rieve said the industry was "subject to a stultifying industrial tradition."

Labor Looks to Conference

Miss Perkins in her address told the conference that labor, the world over, was looking to it to point the way to a program of balanced development in the textile industries.

"Our objective," she declared, "must be to develop a world program so that the industry may better support the people dependent upon it and so that the people of the world may be more adequately clothed. Fruitful as conferences of the employers of various producing countries at times have proved, fruitful as discussions between governments may be, it is to be hoped that this conference of workers, employers and governments may point the way to even larger accomplishments.

"The presence of the workers assures that the lines of approach will not lead to attempts at monopoly. The presence of the employers' delegates, and the purpose of the International Labor Organization as expressed in its constitution, assures that our goal shall be to devise ways and means by which the workers of the textile industry may enjoy in larger measure the plenty which invention has put within our reach in this country."

Buying Power Stressed

Miss Perkins revealed that while, in the ten years from 1935 to 1936, world consumption of cotton averaged 26,000,000 bales per year, or less than 5½ pounds per capita, consumption in the United States is in the neighborhood of 30 pounds per capita. To meet the needs of the people of the world no more adequately than they are being met in the United States, she estimated, would require 5½ times as much cotton as is now being used.

"The solution of the problems of the textile industry," she declared, "must be found in part through increases in the purchasing power of the underlying populations throughout the world. Hundreds of millions of people are living in countries with a consumption of piece goods less than one-third that found in the Western European countries, less than one-fifth of that in the United States. The ultimate solution of the problems of the industry lies not in restriction and not in exploitation of labor. It can only come through increases in the level of living of the workers of all countries and all industries."

Common Program Advocated

Secretary Roper, in his speech, declared that, in order to stabilize the textile industry and to sustain world-wide prosperity, the textile countries should develop a common program to sustain and expand world production and trade in the interest of all the people.

Other speakers were Jaromir Necas, Minister of Social Welfare of Czecho-Slovakia and chairman of the governing body; Hans C. Oersted, of Denmark, employers' vice chairman of the governing body; and Corneille Mertens, of Belgium, workers' vice chairman of the governing body.

PEORIA BARBERS' UNION SIGNS UP 96 NEW SHOPS

Peoria, Ill.—The Peoria local of the Journeymen Barbers' International union recently held a big meeting to celebrate the end of cut-rate barber shops here.

The local initiated 140 members representing 96 new union shops, bringing the total of union shops in Peoria up to 170. International officials of the barbers union attended the celebration.

MORE ABOUT CAFE CONTRACTS

(known as first-class) who are in the city.

Surprise can be imagined when the negotiating committee found the employers, mostly the Greek restaurants, objecting not so much to the dollars but to the 60-hour week asked. Many of them are working their employes 84 hours per week, and they are bitterly complaining because the contract calls for 60 hours.

How anyone can defend an 84-hour work week is past comprehension, while on the other hand the union is receiving some criticism because they did not ask for less than 60 hours.

Cate's Lunch room on Chestnut street, and Smith's Cafe on West Ninth street were the latest signatures to a union contract. This puts Bob Green's place, now being picketed with telling effect, in an unenviable position. Every restaurant around him proudly displays a union card, and according to Mr. Green, he is growing weary of seeing his patrons leaving his door to enter his competitor's place of business.

The biggest surprise of the entire campaign of the cooks and waiters to gain for themselves a living wage and time to spend with their families has been the attitude taken by Mr. Clarence Hudlow of the Home Plate and his employes.

Whether Mr. Hudlow has "changed" his employes' former eagerness to join the union is not definitely known, but it is apparent that hundreds of patrons of the Home Plate of many years' standing are resenting the fact that the Home Plate is non-union.

Some say that Mr. Hudlow is foolishly allowing himself to be made the spearhead of other restaurant owners in their fight against union recognition. When presented with the scale of wages Mr. Hudlow admitted it would not hurt him a nickel's worth, but he is still bucking union labor.

It is amusing to see the former patrons of the Home Plate stay away while the now idle Home Plate waiters scurry back and forth to the plate glass windows and peer out into the world.

Rumors are that there will be some sort of an application for an injunction against the pickets to prevent them from doing something or other, but to date it has not occurred.

Schoolfield Says Peaceful Pickets Are Not Possible

Attacks Unions as He Sues for Maypole "Damages" in Hamby's Court.

Reaches Oratorical Heights as He Describes Proprietor Silas as Citizen from Athens, Greece.

Enthralling himself only in the justice of the peace court of 'Squire Hamby last Monday, Henson Schoolfield, lawyer, representing Mr. Silas, who "came all the way from Athens, Greece, that metropolis of culture of ancient days," etc. and so forth, made the welkin ring in an earnest effort to show that pickets in front of the Maypole non-union restaurant should pay damages for loss of business.

The "suit" resulted from the alleged cancellation by the Young Men's Democratic club of a meeting which was to be held at the Maypole last week. When pickets appeared before the place Mr. Frank Chamlee notified the members, who failed to attend.

Declaring that "there is no such thing as peaceful picketing," Mr. Schoolfield worked hard for his fee as "legal adviser" to the non-union restaurants.

Squire Hamby, after hearing the rebuttal by H. G. B. King, attorney, announced that he would try to arrive at a decision in the next few days.

Central Body Offers Conciliation Set-Up For Lasting Peace

If Successfully Carried Out Believed Would Nip in the Bud Many Unnecessary Fights Caused by Passion and Stubbornness.

Labor and Management Would Be Equally Represented—Final Arbitration Provided If Desired by All Parties—Enforcement Left to Public Opinion.

That organized labor is anxious to leave no stone unturned in its search for peace and harmony between employer and employe was evidenced last Monday night when Central Body formally addressed a proposition to Mr. George Fort Milton as chairman of a temporary committee to secure industrial peace. The proposal, carefully studied by various trades unionists for several months, and after consulting with a few powerful industrialists to ascertain their viewpoint, calls for a permanent panel of twelve citizens, six to be elected by the Central Body and six by the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' association jointly.

In the event a dispute occurs between an employer and his employes, and a deadlock results which might lead to an open break, the conciliation board would be requested to attempt to get the parties together. It is believed that frequently third parties are able many times to cool tempers and bring forth reason and solutions to vexing problems when the original contestants have blocked themselves through heated arguments.

It is understood at presstime today that already the Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' association have given their assent to such a proposal.

The entire proposition is set forth in another part of this issue of The Labor World.

ANNUAL ELECTION IN CENTRAL BODY IS QUIET AFFAIR

Dobbs, Mabee, Munsey, Crosby Re-elected Executive Board.

CARPENTER DEFEATED BY PAUL REYNOLDS

Delegates to State Convention Named by Acclamation—Sims Succeeds McKenna on Labor World Board.

Succeeds Self

JOE G. DOBBS

Election night at Central Body meeting last Monday was a fairly quiet affair. So quiet was it, in fact, it kept the recording secretary busy casting "unanimous votes" most of the time.

Things started off with some promise of excitement when W. A. (Zeke) Witt, of the Painters, was nominated to oppose Joe Dobbs, incumbent. Votes were cast under the new A. F. of L. ruling, and Dobbs won out over Witt by a comfortable lead.

For vice-president, a "youngster," Paul Reynolds, who is a member of Pressmen's local, opposed J. L. Carpenter, incumbent, who was unable to attend the meeting. Reynolds polled the high vote.

Miss Virginia Munsey, hard-working recording secretary and member of Teachers' union, as usual blocked off any semblance of opposition and was re-elected with a display of enthusiasm that bespoke the wholehearted appreciation of the delegates for her e....cient recordings of the proceedings.

Erskine Mabee had no opposition to the secretary-treasurership.

Elmer E. ("Bing") Crosby, a wire-twister, seems to own the sergeancy-at-arms, which entitles him to membership on the executive board of the council. He was given an acclamation vote.

The three nominees for delegates to the Tennessee Federation of Labor convention to be held in Jackson, Tenn., were V. W. Hallmark, Joe Dobbs and Erskine Mabee, and were, of course, elected.

The five members of The Labor World trustees and directors were re-elected with the exception of W. T. McKenna, who was succeeded by Curtis R. Sims, business agent of Bakers local 25.

All in all, this year's election was one of the quietest in many a moon, according to delegates of long standing, who have in their experience gone through hectic campaigns.

SIT-DOWN PLANS COMPLETED BY LOCAL LEAGUE

Warner Park Skating Rink to Be Scene on Monday, April 19—Sponsored by Label League.

Lot of Fun and Exercise Promised — Everyone Must Bring Own Pillows on Which to Fall.

The "sit-down" will reach Chattanooga next Monday, April 19. The new vogue among trades unionists will take place at the Warner park skating rink, and it will be led by the Chattanooga Label League.

The "sit-downers" will stand up as often as they sit down, however, although the following day, it is predicted, many of them will be "laying down."

The whole idea was originated when a skating party was thought of and arranged by this lively union-label-conscious group of unionists, their wives and relatives. Many of the workers of Chattanooga who usually keep their feet on the ground have promised to come out that night and climb on the little wheels and go 'round and 'round and be sociable, as well as to help out the league.

Admission to the novel affair is 25 cents for men "sit-downers," 15 cents for children and ladies.

There will be no eviction proceedings.

Holland Furnace Co. Signs Union Contract

Home Plate Resorts to New Excuse For Non-Union Policies

"We Don't Want the 'Niggers' Organized in Our Kitchen," Hudlow Gives as Fifth Main Reason.

Mr. Clarence Hudlow, proprietor of the non-union Home Plate restaurant, formerly a popular meeting place for trade-unionists, assumed another position the latter part of this week in his reason for his new policy of "union-busting," according to a prominent citizen. This is the fifth time he has given a new excuse for his MAIN objection to his restaurant recognizing the new union of cooks and waiters.

Reason No. One, adopted at the start of the dispute, was that he could not approve of the "check-off" clause. This clause was promptly removed by the union, and Mr. Hudlow was thought to be left dangling in the air.

Reason No. Two was that he objected to signing a contract without wages and hours provided. He was presented with wage and hour proposals which he admitted would not cost him a dime extra, and he was left high and dry again.

Reason No. Three was that his "loyal" employes who struck on him a year ago with five minutes warning did not want the union. Personal solicitation on the part of practically every waiter in the place to labor officials some months ago to start a union killed the effectiveness of that plea.

Reason No. Four was given to a Central Body delegate that he would not sign a contract with a C. I. O. union. Mr. Hudlow was promptly told that the local asking him to sign was an American Federation union; this caused him to retreat hastily from that position.

Now, here's the best reason of all, as reported by a confidante of Mr. Hudlow. He is quoted: "I just cannot allow the 'nigger' cooks in my kitchen to organize."

It is believed, however, that Mr. Hudlow has not yet given the real reason for his position, which is thought to be as follows:

The genial proprietor is at present chairman of a group of restaurant owners who have pledged support to each other never to recognize the union and thus perpetuate present 84-hour per week schedules and indecent wage scales which exist in a great many restaurants in Chattanooga.

That pickets will walk in front of the Home Plate all the rest of the year, and longer if necessary, seems to be guaranteed by an announcement in Central Body Monday evening that some twenty unionists have pledged to contribute one dollar weekly indefinitely toward picketing expenses of the Home Plate.

"Regardless of how successful we may be in other restaurants," Erskine Mabee, Central Body secretary, says, "the Home Plate, the leader in the fight against the union, will be picketed until each of his non-union employes become beneficiaries of the unemployment insurance fund set up by the federal government."

"Happy Days Are Here Again," Says Busy Bob Green

Restaurant Owner Swamped Tuesday Noon With Old Customers Returning to Eat.

Displays Mammoth Sign in Window to Show His Place Is "O. K. Now"—Everyone Pleased.

Bob Green is happy today. He signed with the Cooks and Waiters' Union last Tuesday, and, bang! The place completely filled up with customary patrons. Picketed for a week or more, Mr. Green's formerly busy eating house began to assume the appearance of the deserted village. Customers stayed away in large droves. In other words, Bob had plenty of time for sober thought.

He soon got tired of playing Mr. Hudlow's game and kicked over the traces. He became lonesome for the empty stomachs of his former patrons. Hudlow or not, he decided to sign, and sign he did.

What a relief, he said.

Anyhow, Bob Green's restaurant on Ninth and Carter streets is a union house now, and boy, does it pay!

CLU Would Have Troubling Dispute Brought to an End

Resolution Calls Influence of President Into Play as Means of Mediating Differences and Once Again Uniting Labor Into One Big Happy Family.

Asserting that a supreme effort must be made to restore unity and peace within the ranks of the American labor movement the Central Labor union Monday evening petitioned President Roosevelt to use his great influence and understanding in calling together leaders of the A. F. of L. and the CIO for the purpose of reaching this goal.

The Chattanooga labor organization's action, by resolution, is companion to a movement that originated in Los Angeles, Cal., a short while ago, where the large labor organizations of that city adopted a similar resolution and subsequently has called upon other city and state federations of labor to do likewise.

The resolution as adopted here, and which is to be forwarded on to the President, says, among other things:

"Whereas, at this time when American labor is making the greatest gains in its history and has before it the unique opportunity of organizing the millions of unorganized workers into labor unions which will establish fair wages, shorter hours and decent working conditions for the entire nation, we are rapidly approaching a crisis that will split the ranks of labor and inevitably divide and destroy the American labor movement, and

"Whereas, labor itself in America is not divided either in its aims, objects or principles, and the local unions throughout the country have no quarrel with each other and have cooperated in the past, and wholeheartedly desire to continue to co-operate in the future, and

"Whereas, it is unthinkable that differences of opinion between the leaders of the American labor movement in questions of tactics and policies should be allowed to divide and destroy the present gains and the future accomplishments of the local unions in this city and in every city and district throughout the United States, and

"Whereas, it is evident that a supreme effort must be made to restore unity within the ranks of the American labor movement, therefore be it

"Resolved, That this council earnestly petition Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, who has the entire confidence of every member of organized labor, to use his great influence and understanding in calling together the leaders of the American Federation of Labor, and the Committee for Industrial Organization, without delay, for the purpose of restoring unity in the American labor movement."

GROUP PICTURE OF LOCAL AT NEXT MEETING OF MEATCUTTERS

Every Member Expected to Be Present to "Look at the Little Birdie" — Membership Reaching Spirit of Old Times.

Local 600, Meatcutters, are looking forward to their next meeting, which will be held Monday, April 19. There will be a photographer with an unbreakable camera to take a group picture of the local to hand down to future generations to show what the meatcutters of 1937 looked like.

Old timers recall the splendid achievements of the butcher workmen in years gone by, and from the looks of the meetings the past two months or more, it is evident that the old fighting spirit is coming back.

Attorney H. G. B. King and an official of the Tennessee Federation of Labor will be present to see a special degree team work on three new members who will receive their initiation.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Several members have requested the publicity committee to send out a resume of President Smith's brilliant annual report on the "State of the Union." President Smith gave the report—believe it or not—from hastily scribbled notes. He has consented to prepare itin brief essay form for the publicity committee, and this will be sent out soon in the Federation News.

Here Is the Proposal

CHATTANOOGA CONCILIATION BOARD

A plan whereby a Board of Conciliation, for labor disputes and controversies, is created to prevent and/or settle labor disputes or controversies which may arise between employers and their employes situated in Chattanooga, Tennessee, and its vicinity.

I.

This board shall be comprised of 12 outstanding civic-minded citizens of the Chattanooga district, six of whom shall be named by the Chattanooga Central Labor Union, six named by the Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce and Chattanooga Manufacturers' Association. These persons should be willing to devote such time as will be needed for the purpose of averting labor difficulties and maintaining peaceful labor relations in this community. At the expiration of each calendar year, substitute members may be chosen, by either electing group.

II.

Members of the board shall thereupon select a chairman who may be chosen from the public at large. If he is selected apart from the original 12, the chairman does not have the right to vote.

III.

Members of the board shall thereupon select a vice-chairman, who may be chosen from the public at large. If he is selected apart from the original 12, the vice-chairman does not have the right to vote. It shall likewise choose a secretary and other staff when needed.

IV.

Whenever there is any threatened labor trouble, it will be the duty of the chairman, upon notification from any member of the board or application from an affected party, to assign one or more board members proportionately from each group as mentioned in Paragraph 1, to investigate. The assigned conciliators will meet with the respective representatives of management and labor involved in the threatened controversy; will separately hear each side of the situation and immediately report back to the chairman or the vice-chairman, who will, if necessary, call both sides together promptly and use all the board's influence to bring about some fair and equitable settlement of the difficulty.

V.

After hearing the conciliators' report, the chairman will then decide whether or not to call in the entire board to help bring about a settlement of the difference. In any event, extreme patience will have to be practiced by all parties to the controversy, in order that every reasonable effort be made.

All parties to any controversy have the right to withdraw from any negotiations with this board at any time that constructive effort, in their opinion, is not being displayed, but the board must be given notice of any such contemplated withdrawal; whereupon a final hearing shall be held; such hearing shall be immediate and mandatory.

VI.

In the event this Conciliation Board shall fail in its efforts to bring about a conciliation adjustment or settlement of any labor dispute or controversy after ninety-six (96) hours after such matter has been brought before it and accepted by it, then, upon the request of representatives of both parties to the dispute, a Board of Arbitration, consisting of three, five or seven members, shall be elected in the following manner: An equal number of arbitrators shall be chosen by the Chamber of Commerce and Chattanooga Manufacturers' association, from the citizenship of the Chattanooga district; an equal number of arbitrators shall be chosen by the Chattanooga Central Labor Union, from the citizenship of the Chattanooga district, and the names of the arbitrators shall be reported to the chairman of the Conciliation Board as soon as possible after they are named. An additional member shall act as chairman of the Special Arbitration Board and shall be chosen by the members already selected. The name of the chairman of the Arbitration Board shall be immediately reported to the chairman of the Board of Conciliation.

Unions already having provisions for handling disputes shall not be affected by this plan.

The action or decision of the majority of the Board of Arbitrators shall be final and binding on all parties whose controversy or dispute is before that board.

In the event a decision is not handed down by the Board of Arbitrators within ten (10) days from the selection of the chairman of the board, either side may thereupon withdraw from the hearing and pursue whatever course it may desire.

Better to enable the plan to function successfully, no publicity shall be given out by any party to a conciliation effort, while that effort is in progress. All public statements concerning the Conciliation Board shall be issued by and through the board.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

Didn't know this column had such a punch. Last week the last line in the second column read, "McCall's is non-union," which it was. And on Monday morning the announcement comes from headquarters that all McCall and Crowell publications have signed a union agreement, so that "McCall's is now union!"

Of course, it is just possible that some other pressure besides this column was brought to bear on the publishers, but there's the record. Just one little line from this paper and sixteen magazines go union. What a column!

* * *

Seriously, though, during the last week the Typographical union has signed agreements with two large non-union publishing houses. Some of the better known magazines which are now union are:

McCall's.
Woman's Home Companion.
Collier's.
Red Book.
American.
Better Homes and Gardens.

Back in my youth, just before I married the boss, he came by one day and discovered me reading an "American" magazine. Says he, "There is one thing I want you never to do, and that is to buy the "American." I knew nothing of all this organized labor business, but I agreed, just to be polite. And, before long, I had learned what the word "union" meant.

* * *

Found another bargain! Miller Bros. has hats with the consumer's label in them for a dollar. They are those "topper" hats on the first floor, just as you enter the door. Don't know whether all the dollar ones have that label or not, but the one I got had it. All of Miller's second floor hats have that consumer's label.

* * *

Understand that the wives of the Carpenters are going to reorganize their auxiliary. That is a splendid move. The Chattanooga labor movement is particularly deficient in that phase of work. There are only a couple of railroad auxiliaries and an auxiliary of the Postal Clerks, No. 192, here. The Label League and the auxiliaries can do a wonderful work for labor.

Wisdom

It is really a strange thing that there should not be room enough in the world for men to live without cutting one another's throats.—George Washington.

MORE ABOUT WAGNER ACT

marizing the Jones & Laughlin history, said:

"The respondent (the company) argues that the act is really not of interstate commerce; that the act can have no application to the respondent's relations with its employes because they are not subject to regulation by the federal government; and that the provisions of the act violate . . . the constitution of the United States."

Concern's Layout Sketched.

Chief Justice Hughes then sketched the layout of the Jones & Laughlin concern, with offices in Pittsburgh, fabricating plants in New York, iron mines in Michigan and Minnesota, limestone quarries in West Virginia, ore boats on the Great Lakes and barges on the Ohio. He quoted with plain approval the summary of the NLRB, which said that the J. & L. company plant in Pennsylvania:

"Might be likened to the heart of a self-contained, highly integrated body. They draw in the raw materials from Michigan, Minnesota, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, in part through arteries and by means controlled by the respondent; and then pump them out to all parts of the nation through the vast mechanism which the respondent has established."

"To carry out its activities, 33,000 men mine ore, 44,000 men mine coal, 4,000 men quarry limestone, 16,000 men manufacture coke, 343,000 men manufacture steel, and 83,000 men transport its product."

Board Findings Supported.

Coming to the meat of the complaint, the chief justice said:

"The evidence supports the findings of the board that respondent discharged these men because of their union activity and for the purpose of discouraging membership in the union. We turn to the questions of law which respondent urges."

Chief Justice Hughes intimates that it might be possible to conjure up unconstitutional possibilities, but—

"We are not at liberty to deny effect to specific provisions, which congress has constitutional power to enact, by superimposing upon them inferences from general legislative declarations. . . . THE CARDINAL PRINCIPLE OF STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION IS TO SAVE AND NOT TO DESTROY. . . .

"It is a familiar principle that acts which directly burden or obstruct interstate and foreign commerce or its free flow, are within reach of the congressional power. ACTS HAVING THAT EFFECT ARE NOT RENDERED IMMUNE BECAUSE THEY GROW OUT OF LABOR DISPUTES."

The chief justice here referred to the Texas & N. O. R. R. Co. v. Railway Clerks, in which, in 1930, he declared for the court that workers have a property right in choosing their own representatives. Then:

"In its present application, the statute goes on further than to safeguard the rights of employes to self-organization and to select representtives of their own choosing for collective bargaining or other mutual protection without restraint or coercion by their employer.

Right to Organize Clear.

"THAT IS A FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT. Employes have as clear a right to organize and select their representatives for lawful purposes as respondent has to organize its business and select its own officers and agents.

"Long ago, we stated the reason for labor organizations. We said that they were organized out of the necessities of the situation; that a single employe was helpless in dealing with an employer; that he was dependent ordinarily on his daily wage for the maintenance of himself and his family; that if the employer refused to pay him the wages that he thought fair, he was nevertheless unable to leave the employ and resist arbitrary and unfair treatment; THAT UNION WAS ESSENTIAL TO GIVE LABORERS THE OPPORTUNITY TO DEAL ON AN EQUALITY WITH THEIR EMPLOYERS."

The chief justice devoted much time and space to showing the right of congress to regulate industry organized on a national scale; but he put the gist of it in one paragraph:

"When industries organize themselves on a national scale, making their relation to interstate commerce the dominant factor in their activities, how can it be maintained that their industrial labor relations constitute a forbidden field into which congress may not enter when it is necessary to protect interstate commerce from the peralyzing consequences of industrial war?"

Minority Blind to Facts.

How, indeed? Only by shutting one's eyes to facts and repeating formulas. Mr. Justice McReynolds does this in his dissent, concurred in by the other three reactionaries, Vandevanter, Sutherland and Butler. He says:

"The constitution does not vest in the federal government the power to regulate the relations as such of employer and employe in production and manufacture. . . . The relation of employer and employe, . . . in all producing occupations, is purely local in character."

At a press conference in the afternoon, the national labor relations board bore its triumph with becoming modesty. "It is hardly necessary to say that we are immensely gratified by these decisions," said Chairman J. Warren Madden.

Four Big Results Seen.

"Now, ask questions." The questions came—and the answers. It was brought out:

That the supreme court has confirmed the NLRB in a jurisdiction almost identicl with that which the board had drawn for itself.

That the decisions should bring an era of industrial peace, if employers will observe the law as laid down by the court, for half the strikes are due to the denial by employers of rights confirmed by that law.

That 14 injunctions still standing against NLRB probably will be dissolved.

That unionizing drives probably will be greatly speeded up by this removal of barriers.

SIT-DOWNS ENDED IN CHRYSLER AND REO AUTO PLANTS

Companies Agree to Bargain With Union as Agency for All Its Members—Ford Next Objective of Organization Drive.

Lansing, Mich.—Walter P. Chrysler and John L. Lewis have signed a peace treaty running to March 31, 1938. This settles the Chrysler sit-down strike. Governor Murphy, a few hours later, announced that the strike at the Reo plant, also a sit-down, which had been in progress 28 days, had been settled in a three-hour conference with the Chrysler agreement as a basis. The elements of this agreement are as follows:

The Chrysler corporation agrees to bargain with the United Automobile Workers of America as the agency for all its members; not to interfere, discriminate or in any way obstruct or discourage any organization or group like a company union.

The union agrees not to solicit membership on the corporation's plant or time, and to use no coercion or intimidation. It will neither cause nor allow any member of the union to take part in any stoppage of work during the term of the agreement.

Court Proceedings Dismissed

Negotiations will be resumed at once on all supplementary matters, and those not covered by the main agreement. All court proceedings are to be dismissed. Men are to be put back at work as fast as possible, with no discrimination against strikers.

Foremen, timekeepers, plant protection men and confidential salaried employes are not included in the agreement.

From 65,000 to 85,000 men are covered by this agreement. The Reo settlement covers about 3,000 more.

The Ford plant is the next objective of the C. I. O. and the United Automobile Workers. Ford has said that he will not recognize "any union." Lewis answers that the Ford plant will be well organized before Ford is asked to confer.

Murphy's Work Praised

A very large part of the credit for the settlement belongs to Governor Frank Murphy, and this is freely acknowledged in a statement by Mr. Chrysler:

"I wish to express my appreciation to the governor for his good offices. He has been tireless, patient and resourceful in his efforts to reconcile different points of view, and I have no hesitancy in saying that he has done a great job.

"I have enjoyed meeting Mr. Lewis. He contributed a great deal to the successful outcome of these negotiations."

V. F. W. Dance Will Be Union

The ladies of the Auxiliary of Post No. 1289 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States are giving a dance at the Alhambra mosque on the night of May 5. Ellis Goodloe will furnish the music and a pleasant evening is promised for those attending.

The aim of the auxiliary is to help in the charitable work of the community and help the needy veteran and his dependents. In order to do the work, moneys must be raised now and then for the treasury, and the dance will help mightily toward this.

The auxiliary wishes to thank those who have helped through the purchase of tickets so far, and to ask the help and indulgence of those who will be called upon in the future for their help. For reservations phone 7-2972, 7-2382, and the tickets will be promptly delivered to you. Do not wait until the evening of the dance for fear of being disappointed. Tickets will be on sale that evening, but make sure you get yours now.

MORE ABOUT DOBBS RESIGNS

ing of the organization at the labor hall.

These developments followed announcement that Dobbs had been offered a position as organizer with the committee for industrial organization.

Both Dobbs and Crawford asserted, however, that the offer did not prompt the change of official personnel in the building trades council. Dobbs' successor, Witt, was a candidate against Dobbs Monday night for the presidency of the Chattanooga Central Labor union.

"Conditions within the organization reached the point where I felt I could not continue to serve in my best capacity as its president," Dobbs said. He would not amplify his statement, other than to explain that he left the presidency of the council "on the most cordial terms with the members."

In appreciation for his work in the organization, the council gave Dobbs a diamond ring and, through Secretary Crawford, stated that "we hold high esteem for Mr. Dobbs and the work he has accomplished for the building trades council."

The resignation was tendered earlier in the week, but was not made public until last night. Dobbs, it was thought, may have decided to resign in order to pave the way for accepting the proffer to organize for the T. W. O. C. He said he had not decided whether he will accept the appointment. The building council is pro-A. F. of L.

"I've got to decide right away," Dobbs asserted. "I'm going to sleep over it tonight."

Secretary Crawford said "he (Dobbs) hasn't made up his mind what he is going to do, but we hope he will decide to stay with us."

Can't Keep Both Positions.

"Under the present set-up, however, it will not be possible for him to hold both positions," Secretary Crawford asserted, adding:

"We have no personal fight with the C. I. O. We are not starting any battles. We are going to work for solidarity in the ranks of organized labor. We hope the public won't get the opinion there is any ill or personal feelings in the labor movement in Chattanooga.

"It was with regret that Mr. Dobbs has resigned. He has done some very splendid work for the building trades council and we appreciate that. We are losing one of the best workers in the labor movement."

Secretary Crawford said that there is a showdown between the C. I. O. and the American Federation of Labor, "of course, the building trades council will remain loyal to the A. F. of L." Last Sunday, he said, the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 917, adopted a resolution pledging the loyalty of the union to the A. F. of L. Crawford is a member of the operating engineers' union.

EWSPAPER GUILD FORMED LAST SUNDAY AFTERNOON WITH NEWS 100 PER CENT

jority of Times Signed Up and No Free Press Newshounds in Fold Yet—Delegates to Central Body Named.

enton Gore, of News, Is President—Travis Hedrick, of Times, Secretary - Treasurer — Complete Organization Predicted Within a Few More Weeks as Enthusiasm Runs High.

Chattanooga newsgatherers de a big scoop this week en they met Sunday afternon in the Patten hotel, and h the assistance of T. R. thbert, secretary of the Tenssee Federation of Labor and nself a member of the Ameri- Newspaper Guild, formed a attanooga chapter of the ild.

n fact, the Chattanooga News ys and girls" could not even wait Sunday. Several days prior to the eduled meeting the News bunch w off all restraint and got their re editorial room "signed up."

The Chattanooga Times, while just enthusiastic for the Guild, is not quite complete, although it was d that the few remaining out of the are expected to make up their ds before the week is out.

In a meeting of newspaper edi- s of the nation, J. Charles Poe, naging editor of the Chattanooga ews, was the only editor to oppose resolution which expressly disapved of their repertorial employes filiating themselves with labor oranizations. The resolution which r. Poe opposed stated that reports should cling to their "professnal dignity."

For some reason or other, the Free ss was not represented, in spite of fact that notice of the meeting was given out to them to be present if they desired to take the step.

At the initial meeting two temporary officers were selected. Quenton Gore, of the News, was selected as president, and Travis Hedrick, Times, was named secretary-treasurer. Formal application for the charter was mailed in Tuesday.

Indicating that the new unionists are eager to step in line with organized labor, two delegates were immediately chosen to represent the new group in Central Body next Monday evening. They are Robert Brown, News, and Rufus Terral, Times. This will be one time when reporters are not barred from Central Body, because the delegate-reporters will hear everything said and done "off the record."

Several of the reporters expressed themselves as being willing to sacrifice a degree of "professional dignity" in exchange for a little more leisure time and cash money to pay for groceries and other necessities of life.

Several events of the last few weeks contributed to the fast action of local newspaper men. Knowledge that Memphis and Knoxville Guilds had successfully negotiated signed contracts, and the big item that the supreme court had declared the Wagner labor disputes bill as being constitutional went far toward organization. In the supreme court decision, an Associated Press reporter by the name of Watson was reinstated because he had been fired for joining a Guild. In addition, Watson was given several hundred dollars in lost pay.

Trades-unionists are greeting reporters now with the query: "Brother, have you joined up yet?"

Prompt Passage of Federal Billion Dollar Housing Bill Urged by Green

F. of L. Head Says Quick Action on Wagner-Steagell Measure Is Required to Provide Dwellings for 5,633,000 Families in Low-Income Groups Whose Wages Are So Small They Cannot Afford Housing Built Under the Profit System.

Washington, D. C.—The importance of the prompt enactment congress of the United States housing bill, introduced jointly the senate and house of representatives by Senator Robert F. agner, of New York, and Representative Henry B. Steagall, of abama, was stressed by William Green, president of the Ameri- Federation of Labor, at the first hearing on the bill held by Senate Committee on Education and Labor, of which Senator go L. Black, of Alabama, is chairman.

The purpose of the Wagner-Steagall measure is to provide housing accommodations for millions of workers and their families in those groups where the wages imposed by employers are so small that the victimized toilers are unable to rent or buy housing accommodations produced and sold under the profit system.

The bill proposes the establishment of a federal housing authority authorized to issue guaranteed government bonds up to $1,000,000,000 over a period of four years to be used for loans to state and local housing authorities for the construction of low-rent housing according to the policy set forth in the housing bill.

There is also included in the bill a provision for grants or subsidies not to exceed $10,000,000 a year for four years to keep rents in the government assisted housing projects down to reasonable levels.

In his statement Mr. Green said he was well aware that both the senate committee on education and the United States senate shared his view that the legislation proposed by Senator Wagner's housing bill "is outstanding in importance, sound in principle, and designed to carry out the legislative intent of the congress of the United States."

Pointing out that a bill containing substantially the same provisions as the measure now before the commit-

Allen-A Signs Union Contract Successfully Crowning 9 Years Effort To Organize the Plant

Kenosha, Wis.—Labor history in the hosiery industry was made this week when the American Federation of Hosiery Workers recorded its most outstanding victory in recent years, signing up the Allen-A company to a sole collective bargaining agreement.

The pact culminated a nine-year campaign by the Federation to unionize its plant.

It was signed in the company's office by Alexander McKeown, vice-president of the union, and Arthur S. Thayer, president of the firm. Participating in the two weeks' negotiations were Carl Linker, organizer for the Federation; James Willingham, president of Branch 6; T. E. Fitzmaurice, general superintendent of the plant, and Harry Bragarnick, of Milwaukee, mediator.

The pact, besides naming the Federation as sole bargaining agent for the workers, establishes equal division of work; abolishes the two-machine system; provides for seniority rights; arbitration of all disputes, and no discrimination against union members. Provision is made for revision of wage rates during the months of January and July. The agreement, operative until April, 1933, automatically renews itself unless terminated by written notice within 30 days.

The union agreed to remove the company from its unfair list and to "use its best efforts to promote the sale and distribution of Allen-A hosiery."

More than 500 workers are covered by the agreement.

Complete organization of the workers, achieved by intensification of the union's nine-year drive, caused opening of negotiations.

The union's struggle for recognition began in 1928, when the firm locked out its entire knitting department, hitting at the newly organized Branch 6 of the Federation. The workers took up the challenge courageously and struck.

For two long years the city seethed with union activity and the mills' counter-activity. It was during this strike that Federal Judge F. A. Geiger issued his notorious anti-picketing injunction, one that has been vigorously condemned by both organized labor and the United States senate.

It also raised a tremendous demand for his impeachment and played a large role in leading to enactment of the federal anti-injunction law and supporting state acts.

Notorious professional strikebreakers, among them the ill-famed MacDonald agency, were employed in the campaign against the union. As a result, gunplay and violence were brought into the situation. Several unionists today carry the scars they received in 1928. Allen Steele, one of the most active union leaders, is an invalid as a result of gunshot wounds in his stomach.

The company, in a statement to the Wisconsin tax commission in June, 1929, claimed an $800,000 loss during the year of 1928 due to the lockout.

The union never slackened its efforts to organize the plant. During the nine years that post-dated the strike, Branch 6 continued its activities and patiently enlisted the workers by ones and twos, finally by the hundreds. The present contract resulted.

Maypole and Ellis' Business "Gone With the Wind" Because Public Resentment Is Effective

Non-union Home Plate Said to Be Planning Picture-Taking of Pickets for Some Strange Reason—Possibly Souvenir.

Harry's Place Employes Say They Did Not Sign Petition That They Were Satisfied, But Their Names Used Without Consent.

Things are just rocking along at the non-union Home Plate, Maypole, Ellis and Harry's Place restaurant. It is really pitiful to see the deserted appearance of the Maypole and Ellis'. Customers who approve of 84 hours per week for waiters certainly can get prompt service in these restaurants now—in fact, each patron can almost have two waiters to each table.

Another development of the week is the statement from some of Harry's Place employes who say that the so-called "petition" which was posted on some wrapping paper in the window of the picketed sandwich shop had their names on it without their knowledge. One of the waiters was not even working when his name was used.

The non-union Home Plate is rumored to be planning taking pictures of the picket in front of the place. Unionists are making many conjectures as to the reason. Some say Mr. Hudlow wants to give Mr. Schoolfield a chance to try for an injunction, a step which has been talked of widely but nothing done about it.

Mr. Hudlow last week promised to allow officials of the union an opportunity to talk to his non-union employes, but to date every appointment made has been canceled for frivolous reasons. Some say that Mr. Hudlow is afraid to allow his employes to learn the facts.

Mr. Hudlow's resentment against colored employes being in the same meeting hall with whites was punctured when he was informed that as soon as organization was completed and the fighting is over, the two races would have their own branches of the local and meet separately.

Local unions of the city are making substantial contributions to the cooks and waiters in order to help them get decent conditions and living wages, and the pickets say they will walk all summer if necessary.

Schoolfield Fails In Suit Against Maypole Pickets

Oratorical Efforts in Hamby's Court Overridden by Legal Defense.

Lawyer Henson Schoolfield, attorney for several non-union restaurants, who described the proprietor of the Maypole cafe as "a native of Athens, Greece, that cultural center of ancient days," evidently depended too much upon eloquence to win his damage suit against Erskine Mabee and two girls who had been picketing his client's establishment.

Squire Hamby, in whose court the case was filed, rendered a decision for the defendants.

Attorney H. G. B. King defended his clients on points of law which impressed the squire.

Mr. Schoolfield was attempting to collect actual and punitive damages against the unionists because pickets in front of the Maypole were respected by the Young Men's Democratic club to such an etxent that a meeting called by the club for that night at the Maypole was canceled.

Industry's Representatives On Conciliation Board

We have hesitated in making any comment upon the selection of the six citizens named by the Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' association to represent those bodies on the conciliation board now being set up for Chattanooga and vicinity.

We feared that we might be presumptious in either approving or criticizing any of the gentlemen named because we recognize the right of any group to select their own representatives without comment from the opposite side of the set-up.

However, we will risk the danger of being presumptious in saying that, in our opinion, all six of the men named are definitely of and from the group that named them, but will, at the same time, be capable of seeing both sides of controversies, and have the courage and integrity which enables them to render honest service.

It is now up to labor to select six of its members who will match the six men with whom they may be called upon to cooperate in an effort to save much grief and misery that is always caused by industrial disputes.

While recognizing that the Central Labor Union is at present engaged in solving a particularly vexing and touchy problem, it is hoped that it will not allow its collective mind to be distracted to such an extent that the six Labor representatives will be selected too hastily.

It is to be hoped that Central Body will be in such a frame of mind next Monday night that the six will be named, but rather than make unwise appointments, it would be far better to take the necessary time for deep thought.

Wisdom

I went into the British army believing that if you want peace you must prepare for war. I believe now that if you prepare thoroughly for war you will get war.—Major-General Sir Frederick Maurice.

When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they will fall one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle.—Edmund Burke.

The best method of maintaining industrial peace is to quietly buy union label products.

PAID TO KILL UNION MINERS, AGENTS OF HARLAN OPERATORS TELL SENATE INVESTIGATORS

Washington, D. C.—Ben Unthank, who might be called the murder supervisor for the Harlan County Coal Operators' association, drew a salary of $1,800 a year; but had an expense account which ran from $7,000 to $9,000. With this fund he hired the actual killers or attempted killers; but three of them have testified before the La Follette Civil Liberties committee that he paid them only from $30 to $100 for the job.

There would seem to be a rake-off somewhere in this neighborhood. But Richard C. Tackett, one of those hired for the job of blowing up a union organizer, testified that Unthank paid him—Tackett—wages for the six months he spent in jail and looked after his family besides.

The man to be blown up—with 15 sticks of dynamite furnished by the chief deputy sheriff—is Lawrence Dwyer, United Mine Workers organizer, 72 years old, and a modest hero if ever there was one. He told the committee, as it resumed its hearings, that he had "a charmed life," and that he had been shot at, dynamited, and attacked by company-paid deputy sheriffs "so many times that I can't remember all of 'em." In the dynamiting under discussion, which occurred in November, 1933, the explosion tore away the wall of his room, "an' slammed me against the ceiling." But he got only a few scratches.

George S. Ward, secretary-treasurer for the coal operators' association, admitted under Senator La Follette's grilling that he had kept a close account of the association's income, but did not put down expenses, because "I have anticipated an investigation for the last three or four years.

The association got its money by an assessment of one-half cent a ton for coal produced, which was doubled when labor troubles were expected. Expenses for fighting unions were several times as great as those for conducting rate cases.

Hudson Plant Settlement Ends Last of Big Automobile Strikes

Detroit.—The last of four automobile strike settlements took place when an agreement was signed between officials of the Hudson Motor company and representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America. Naturally and properly, it was signed in the office of Governor Frank Murphy; whom one newspaper man called the "only living rival of Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward McGrady as an angel of industrial peace."

Like the Reo settlement the day before, the Hudson agreement followed the lines of the Chrysler settlement, which in turn was based largely on the agreement between CIO and General Motors. In all four cases, the union is recognized as bargaining agents for its members.

In all, the company pledges itself not to discriminate against union men, or to foster a company union. In all, the workers pledge themselves not to resort to a stoppage of work before the period named in the agreement expires; and in all, the workers promise not to solicit members on company time and property.

The Hudson company has about 11,000 workers.

Russian Film to be Presented at Auditoriu

"Gypsies," a Soviet talking film, will be presetned at the Memorial auditorium on May 2, at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., under the auspices of the Chattanooga branch of the International Workers Order.

"Gypsies" is the newest Soviet film to be presented in this country. It is lighter and gayer in tone than the usual Russian film.

Gloriously photographed and impressive indeed is the Soviet picturization in present-day Russia. The acting is great, the sound accompaniment notable not only for the gypsy melodies which haunt almost every scene, but for the manner in which melody and dialogue are blended. It is great to see how gypsies are abandoning their nomadic ways for a rich, new life. It is a historic and poetic document that will be long remembered.

This new film will bear comparison with the best that America has produced, it is said.

The film was greeted enthusiastically by the leading film critics of America.

YEAR IN PRISON URGED FOR SIT-DOWN STRIKERS

Sacramento, Calif.—Drastic penalties for sit-down strikers are proposed in a bill introduced in the state legislature by Senator George M. Bigger, of Mendocino county.

The bill declares there will be no sanctioning in California of the form of strike known as "sit-down," with the stipulation that any person who enters upon real property in possession of another, or remains thereto without a claim made in good faith of a legal right to possession, and without permission and against the expressed will of the person or agent of the person entitled to possession of the premises is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Penalty for "sit-downers" would be a fine of $50, or imprisonment in the county jail for one year, or both fine and imprisonment.

It was explained that the bill would write into the law that a sit-down strike is not to be construed as a strike, but an absolute trespass and unlawful seizure of property.

MUEKEGON MACHINISTS CLAIM FIRM FIRED UNION OFFICIAL

Organized machinists in Muskegon Heights, Mich., declared a strike against the Brickner-Kropf plant, following the alleged discriminatory discharge of a union officer. The company, a jobbing concern manufacturing tools and dyes, employs about 50 men, a large majority of whom belong to the Machinists' local union affiliated with the International Association of Machinists. In addition to discriminating against the union officer, it was claimed the company refused to pay overtime for Saturday afternoons and double time for Sundays.

The establishment of regular transatlantic flying schedule draws nearer. In Seattle a half-dozen large flying boats for oversea service are being completed for Pan-American; in Bermuda one of 28 new flying boats which British Imperial Airways built last year is waiting for trial hops to the mainland, and in Washington the postoffice department has asked for $750,000 to be budgeted for ocean mail contracts. The postoffice is hopeful that scheduled flying may begin late this year. Beginning with the Bermuda-U. S. leg, the postoffice plans to call for bids on twice-weekly mail service. The British ships are expected to match the schedule.

The union label is on the "way out" sign of economic depressions.

Every time you go into a non-union store, it is the same as crossing a picket line of workers on strike against unfair conditions.

If consumers will furnish the demand for union label products unionized industries will furnish the supply.

What Next!

The latest in plastic materials, as yet unnamed, is made with potato flour as 85 per cent of its composition. The new plastic is transparent as glass, can be penetrated by ultra-violet rays, is available in many colors, and can be sawed, screwed and bored. It is the product of a Dutch inventor.

Latest evidence of the war fear now pervading Europe was given by exhibition in London of a gas-proof baby carriage. It will soon be made commercially available to protect infants unable to wear gas masks. The device consists of a metal cover that fits over the carriage. A hand-operated bellows draws air through a regular gas mask purifying unit and pressure slightly higher than atmospheric effectively prevents gas from reaching the baby. Glass windows permit the baby to be seen.

London subways are going in for silence in a big way. Welded rail joints, non-rattling windows and soft rubber seats are expected to keep down noise in speeding trains. Special "noise shields," lined with sound absorbing materials and built along both sides of the car tracks, are counted on to eliminate 80 per cent of the noise from train operation.

Make the union label the subject for a prize essay ii your local schools.

Give your pay envelope the union label "tonic" this spring.

MORE PAY FOR BRICKLAYERS.

New Orleans.—Members of the Bricklayers and Masons Union, No. 1, will go on a $1.25 an hour wage scale beginning June 20, J. R. White, president, announced. The present scale is $1 an hour. The pre-depression scale was $1.50 an hour. The union has also decided to demand an eight-hour day and five-day week, effective at the same time.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

Notes on the Skating Party Given by the Label League Monday Night

The youngsters took over the party. There's just no competing with the younger generation when it comes to skating. The way they glide around over the floor leaves me dizzy.

However, a few of the "old folks" stayed right in there. Vic Hallmark tried to keep up with his little girls; A. C. and Clara Kamin whirled a bit; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reynolds held their own; Bing Crosby helped out Elmer, Jr.

Times have changed. It looked mighty good to see, among the trios skating around, Arch Underwood, with Mrs. Underwood on one side and the young daughter on the other. And since Betty Jane is quite as large as her mother, it was hard to tell which was which.

There was one minute I thought an octopus had gotten in and was sitting on all eight legs in the middle of the floor—but it turned out to be Arch pulling a sit-down.

You should have seen the bunch of sissies on the sidelines. Joe Dobbs (just imagine him, backing down) and Roy Reynolds wouldn't put on skates. And Ina Green, Lora Goforth and Mrs. Hallmark preferred to stage their sit-down on the outside.

It was a lot of fun (groan, groan—bring some crutches) and yours truly managed very well without the pillows until they played "Farewell to Thee," and then I took the count.

Apologies Are Due—

Last week some mention was made of ladies' auxiliaries, and it seems that there are more auxiliaries than I knew about. In the railroad brotherhoods there are auxiliaries to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. In the Post Office group there are auxiliaries to the Letter Carriers, the Railway Mail Clerks and the Postal Clerks.

However—and I stick to my ... —the Postal Clerks union is the ... group affiliated with the Central ... bor Union that has an auxiliary.

TRUCK DRIVERS' STRIKE IN WILMINGTON IS ENDED

Wilmington, Del. (ILNS)—The 24-day strike of truck drivers and helpers, which brought a short general strike, was ended in an agreement for a 15-day truce, during which negotiations for contracts will be conducted.

Sixty-nine companies which operate trucks signed the agreement, under which the employers recognize Local 107, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers of America as the bargaining agent for the strikers.

Agreement came when Thomas P. O'Brien, international vice-president of the union, approved elimination of closed-shop demands.

Senate Approves Guffey Coal Bill; Rejects Slap at "Sit-Down" Strike

Byrnes Resolution Condemning New Form of Walkout Beaten by 48 to 36 Votes After Bitter Debate—Coal Measure Drawn to Meet Objections of Supreme Court.

Washington.—The senate passed the Guffey coal bill by a vote of 58 to 36, after first turning down by a vote of 48 to 36 the proposed amendment of Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, to condemn sit-down strikes. The bill went to conference between house and senate, where quick agreement was expected.

The new Guffey bill is substantially the same as a part of the old one. The supreme court knocked out the old bill completely by the usual 5 to 4; but the opinion of the court dealt almost wholly with the labor provisions; and declared that the act could not be separated. Congress had expressly declared that the measure could be separated, and that a constitutional flaw in one title of the measure did not affect the rest. The minority of the court, including Chief Justice Hughes, took congress at its word, and wanted to save at least a part of the bill; but the stand pat five would have none of this.

The present bill was carefully drawn to meet the court's objections.

Heated Debate Rages

Three days of the debate and the most bitter part of it were devoted to the Byrnes amendment, condemning the sit-down strike. Senator Byrnes spoke the last day in favor of his amendment; and Senator Wagner suggested that the amendment be amended to condemn the employers who had refused to obey the national labor relations act. Byrnes could not quite agree, though he did not defend the employers, and went out of his way to declare that he had been astounded at the revelations of the La Follette committee on the spying and coercion by employers.

Wagner Tells of Election

Senator Wagner told a moving story of how, as chairman of the first labor board, he had, with "some persuasion, got coal operators of 15 mines to agree to an employe election. He went on:

"The mayors of the different places asked: 'Do you want policemen? I said: 'No; we regard these workers as respectable, law-abiding men, and I do not want policemen.' We conducted the election in 15 towns, without the aid of a policeman or a state trooper, and there was not a single act of violence. The men voted in secret ballot, and in 13 of the 15 towns they elected the outside union. . . .

"As to the workers, concerning whom I think I am well informed, they are men who went to France to defend our country. Let us think about these men, and not indict them unjustly."

Minton Hits Amendment

Senator Minton, of Indiana, showed in this debate the same vigor that has marked him in other discussions. He declared that the textile industry was vitally interested in this amendment—referring to the swarming cotton mills of South Carolina, and said:

"The textile industry will not force me to vote on a one-sided issue. Furthermore, this amendment is an unwarranted slap at 400,000 coal miners."

Senator Byrnes indicated that he intended to continue the fight for a senate declaration against the sit-down strike and predicted a quick vote in favor of a resolution of condemnation.

VIOLATION OF WAGNER ACT CHARGED TO GAS COMPANY

Fort Worth.—Violation of the Wagner labor act was charged against the Lone Star Gas company by 162 striking workers who are members of the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steam Fitters.

They charged that requests for a conference with company officials had met only with evasion and delay.

Independent Tobacco Companies Are Found Important Influence In Raising Prices Paid Growers

Federal Trade Commission, in Recommending Fairer Tax on 10-Cent Cigarette, Reports Low Priced Smokes Vital Competitive Factor Both to Consuming Public and Tobacco Farmer.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

The report of the federal trade commission on agricultural income is a devastating indictment of the Big Four tobacco companies, and a certificate of merit and good service to the independent companies which make 10-cent and 15-cent cigarettes.

The wheat grower, the commission shows, got about 35 per cent of the consumer's price of flour. The farmer who raised live stock got about 40 per cent of the price the consumer paid for meat. In neither of these products is the farmer's share too large—it is not large enough. But the tobacco grower got only about 12 per cent of the consumer price; and he owes most of that to the activity of the independent companies.

The three biggest of the Big Four bought 46.2 per cent of the American leaf tobacco crop of 1934; or, counting the fact that one-third of the crop was exported, these three bought 70 per cent of that part of the crop used at home. The Big Four have an overwhelming lead in the production of 15 cent or 2 for 25 cent, cigarettes; more than 80 per cent, though the commission does not give figures from which an exact proportion can be determined. Liggett & Myers sold 27.3 per cent of the cigarettes sold in this country.

Big Four Profits Fat.

The tobacco processing companies averaged 15.8 per cent profits. If the Big Four could be separated from the others, their profits would be much higher; since they pay lower wages than the independents, and get very much higher prices than do those independents who make 10-cent smokes. But don't imagine that the common, garden variety of stockholder gets the Big Four profits. Says the commission:

"The highest reported total compensation was $1,051,630 for the president of the American Tobacco company. . . . For the tobacco companies reporting the average compensation per officer was $55,000. This was the highest for any group."

Three companies, U. S. Tobacco company, George W. Helme company, and American Snuff company, do 97 per cent of the domestic snuff business. The commission finds that this concentration, like that of the Big Four, dates back to the days of the tobacco trust, which was dissolved, indeed, but was left in four such large chunks that they had no trouble in keeping up their advantage.

10c Smoke Important Factor.

"One of the most important developments in the tobacco industry in recent years," says the commission, "concerns the 10c cigarette. . . . In June, 1931, sales of 10c cigarettes were approximately one-fourth of one per cent of all cigarette sales. . . . (They now have' a steady volume representing about 11 per cent of the total.

"The maintenance of this new competitive factor in the cigarette industry is believed to be of great importance, both to the consuming public and to tobacco growers."

As to the way to maintain "this new competitive factor," the commission has no doubts whatever. It says:

Fairer Tax Recommended.

"The uniform internal revenue tax of $3 per thousand on small cigarettes has been a factor tending to restrict the competition of the lower priced brands. . . . The use of a different basis of taxation would promote competition within the cigarette industry, and this competition would, in turn, result in increased competition in the purchase of leaf tobacco.

"The commission, therefore, recommends that congress consider the advisability of levying, instead of the present uniform tax, a cigarette tax graduated according to the manufacturer's net selling price."

With the federal trade commission thus following up the testimony of the department of agriculture three years ago on the wisdom of giving the 10c cigarette a fairer break, it ought not to take congress long to get busy on the matter.

No one who really believes in the new deal will consent to trust its fate to so changeful and uncertain a person as Mr. Justice Roberts.

The five new decisions of the supreme court admit the right of congress to regulate practically any business conducted on an interstate scale. This is one thing that the administration has been fighting for—but not the only one.

One man is restored to his job, with back pay, by the supreme court decision in the Associated Press case; 6 by the decision in the Fruehauf Trailer case; 10 in the Jones & Laughlin case; 18 in the Friedman-Harry Marks case; 22 in the bus case. But millions of workers feel a security now which they never felt before.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS OPPOSE 60-HOUR WEEK

Wholesale Evasion of Municipal Ordinance Applied to Retail Stores Is Threatened.

St. Louis, Mo.—Although the work week in excess of 60 hours is believed by many people to be a thing of the past in the United States, the Associated Hardware Dealers of St. Louis are vigorously fighting an ordinance passed by the board of alderment providing maximum business hours of 10 a day or 60 a week for retail stores doing a business of more than $35,000 a year.

In a letter to Mayor Dickman, to whom the ordinance was sent for approval, B. H. Gude, president of the hardware dealers' association, urged that the mayor grant a hearing to retail establishments before signing the measure.

Gude declared that if the ordinance was applied, many merchants would deliberately evade it. One method of evasion, he said, would be the installation of drug departments in retail stores, since drugs are among the articles of "immediate necessity" exempted in the bill. Another method of beating the ordinance, he pointed out, would be for stores operating near the city limits to move across the line into St. Louis county. He also asserted that some stores in the downtown section "may be obliged to move to East St. Louis."

Evidently shorter hours by municipal law requires strong trade union organization and enforcement watchfulness every day in the week to protect the higher work standards sought by statute.

STRIKING UPHOLSTERERS GAIN UNION SHOP TERMS

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Upholsterers' International Union of North America won a well-earned victory here when, following a strike, a union shop agreement was negotiated covering the two plants of the American Hair Felt company.

The settlement was brought about through the efforts of Louis Solomon, national organizer for the union, and Robert E. Mythen, a conciliation commissioner from the United States department of labor.

Formerly the policy of the company was to discharge employes "for just cause" and then place the burden of proof on the employe. Under the union agreement the burden of showing that a discharge is justified is placed on the employer, with provision for a hearing before the plant manager and an appeal to arbitration if either party is dissatisfied.

Under the practice before the strike, after layoffs had taken place, the company could exercise uncontrolled discretion in taking back employes "if they were needed to increase efficiency." According to the union agreement, seniority rights are granted.

Mr. Solomon said the agreement was the first to be negotiated as a result of the enactment of the Wisconsin labor disputes bill.

TWO MILWAUKEE UNIONS WIN CLOSED SHOP PACT

Machinists' and Molders' Locals Made Sole Bargaining Agencies for Cutler-Hammer Employes.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Lodge No. 1061 of the International Association of Machinists and Local No. 125 of the International Molders' Union of North America have negotiated a preferential closed shop agreement with Cutler-Hammer, Inc., one of the largest manufacturers of electrical specialties in the United States, by which the two unions become the sole bargaining agencies for the company's 2,500 employes.

The unions won wage increases of 5 cents an hour, retroactive to March and a further increase of 3 cents an hour effective June 27. Time and one-half rates are to be paid for overtime and double time for holiday work. If employes are asked to report for work and no work is available they are to get four hours' pay.

Seniority rights are recognized. Present vacation arrangements were confirmed as based on length of service, and future vacations will be discussed with committees of the two unions.

N. Y. ASSEMBLY ADOPTS CHILD LABOR GOODS BAN

Albany, N. Y.—The New York state assembly passed and sent to the senate the Moffat bill prohibiting the sale within the state of products made by child labor. The plan was advanced after the assembly refused to ratify the child labor amendment to the federal constitution.

The bill seeks to apply the principle established in the federal prison goods law which bars from a state whose laws prohibit the sale of prison-made goods on the market the convict-manufactured goods of other states.

Governor Lehman, who led the fight for the child labor amendment, is opposed to the measure. He contends that it would be practically impossible to differentiate between goods made by child labor and goods manufactured by adults.

LEWIS PROMISES CONTRACT OBSERVANCE

Pittsburgh (ILNS).—A contract with the C. I. O. is "adequate protection for any employer against strikes," John L. Lewis, said as he promised punctilious observance of contracts. "Our contracts provide a way to discipline workers who violate an agreement," Lewis said in an interview that followed a conference with Philip Murray, leader in organizing steel workers.

OVEN FLASHES

School days are here again. Bakers Local Union No. 25 is sponsoring a bakers' school to be held May 10, 11 and 12. The instructors will be Mr. Harry Broullette, from the Dry Milk Institute of America, Chicago, and Mr. Al Ruff, from the Anheuser-Busch company, of St. Louis.

The classes will be held at the vocational school, Fourth and Chestnut streets. On Monday classes will study milk; on Tuesday, flour, and Wednesday, fermentation.

Make plans to attend these classes. Every person connected with the baking industry is invited to attend. Everything is free. Classes will be at 9 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. each day.

Every member of Local No. 25 is requested to be present at the regular meeting Saturday, April 24. Important business.

Why not eat more baker's bread and cake? The bread consumption is less in the south than anywhere else in the United States.

Union people wonder why organization work has not gone farther than it has. If all union people would spend their money for union-labeled goods it would be a different story.

Union members, why not appoint yourself an organizer, and organize the unorganized, instead of letting some one else do it, and then coming forth with a better way?

Answer to last week's brain twister: Spring wheat flour.

This week's brain twister: "Why is salt used in bread?"

Alibis are not substitutes for union labels.

Millions of dollars in wages are lost to American workers as a result of the purchases of unfair and foreign-made goods.

Court Rules Injury From Over-work Valid Reason to Ask Compensation

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The District Court of Appeals has ruled that over-work is a valid reason to be given by an employe in claiming disability allowance for workmen's compensation.

The case was brought by James Rennie, 51-year-old Baltimore insurance adjuster, who claimed that overwork induced a heart attack which resulted in permanent disability.

Rennie contended that he handled 250 to 300 cases per day, whereas the usual number handled by fellow employes was 75 to 100 per day. This pressure of work, he declared, aggravated a heart condition which was climaxed with an attack on May 5, 1934.

Rennie's employer, the Royal Indemnity company, and another insurance company, the Glove Indemnity company, sought an injunction to restrain the United States Employes Compensation Commission from making a compensation award to Rennie.

The District Federal Court upheld the contention, but the Appeals Court reversed the ruling.

CARPENTERS' UNION BOARD FORBIDS SIT-DOWN STRIKES

Indianapolis.—Sit-down strikes were forbidden among union carpenters, in a statement issued by the general executive board of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

"We will not permit members to take possession of property that does not belong to them through the method of sit-down strikes," the board said.

"The board will not countenance any action on part of our members in departing from the well-tried methods of organizing that have been successful in years gone by."

Q.—Is the Commercial Telegraphers' union an industrial organization?

A.—The union's charter covers every type of employe except linemen, including messengers, telegraph clerks, telephone operators, plant and maintenance men of all classifications, operators, broker, press, radio, racing news and government telegraphers. In short, all except railroad telegraph operators, who are organized in the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

Q.—Where was the first sit-down strike?

A.—This is not known. Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady recently said the sit-down strike was used 400 years ago in France. The sit-down first attracted wide public notice when used extensively in French industries after the Blum government took office in May, 1936.

MORE ABOUT HOUSING BILL

tee "was approved by the senate of the United States during the last session of the congress," Mr. Green said that "this fact, taken together with the emphatic appeal made by President Roosevelt recently to provide housing for that one-third of the people of the United States which is now ill-housed makes me feel confident that the bill will be approved by both houses of congress and by the president of the United States at an early date.

"In view of this, my task is not so much to review the purpose of this measure, not so much to analyze again the significance of the housing problem, as to urge upon you prompt and immediate action.

"The task before us is so great, the ramifications of the problem are so many that it clearly becomes the public duty of congress to act now."

In emphasizing the tremendous housing shortage and the need for government assistance according to the policy of the housing bill to remedy it, Mr. Green said, in part:

Work for Jobless

"One of the basic objectives of this measure is to help alleviate the present and recurring unemployment. Today after more than four years of recovery, 9,700,000 wage-earners are still without normal employment. Despite stimulated activity in the construction industry as a whole, unemployment among unskilled mechanics as well as laborers in the building trades—those whose normal employment would be in the construction industry—is still so heavy as to hold up hope of immediate re-employment unless the activity of the private industry is supplemented by government assistance.

Higher Rents Menace Labor

"At the same time, the housing shortage with which we are confronted represents a real threat to the recovery itself. What are the inevitable consequences of a housing shortage? The most important of all is a drastic increase in rents. In the absence of an adequate remedy, rents are bound to go up faster than wages.

"If we permit this to take place, we will not only accept the enormous housing deficit which we have today, but we will also be bound to accept the future losses to the purchasing power of the wage earners and thereby permit the very basis for our recovery to be wiped out. To safeguard our recovery, to insure its balance, is our foremost, our most pressing problem, a problem which we must not fail to solve.

Shortage Hits Low-Income Groups

"I said a moment ago, and I have repeatedly pointed out before, that we are approaching an acute housing shortage, a shortage of sanitary and decent dwellings for people with small incomes. A year ago in appearing before this committee, I warned that we are rapidly approaching a real crisis in housing. A number of spokesmen representing special interests have since tried to minimize this warning and to distract public attention from irrefutable facts on which my statements were based. These facts are numerous and complex, but let us give serious attention to the most essential of them.

Few Houses Built in Last Six Years

"I want this committee to compare our experience in the construction of new dwellings in the course of two seven-year periods in all of our cities with population of 25,000 or over. The first period extends from 1923 to 1929. In those seven years 3,135,774 families were accommodated in new dwellings. On the other hand, between 1930 and 1936, only 523,380 families were accommodated in new dwellings.

"During the first period 447,968 families were accommodated in new dwellings on the average every year. In the second period only 74,769 families were so accommodated annually.

"I want this committee to consider the full significance of the fact that the number of families accommodated between 1930 and 1936 barely exceeded the average number of familiees we were able to accommodate in one year during 1923-1929. Even in 1936, in which the highest degree of activity in residential construction was achieved since the depression, we were able to produce less than one-third of the average annual production between 1923 and 1929, and this in spite of the aid extended by such lending agencies as the federal housing administration and the home loan bank board.

"Today we must consider not only the actaul housing deficit we have already accumulated, but also our housing needs in the immediate future. This must be done if we are to approach our problem intelligently, and in addition to developing a remedy for the needs of today insure the necessary stability in the years to come.

5,663,000 New Houses Needed Immediately

"On the basis of an estimate carefully and conservatively made, we know that the total additional dwellings needed between now and 1950 to meet the minimum physical standards and maintain family occupancy standards of 1930 will amount to 16,297,000. This figure will include two basic totals. The first is our present immediate housing need to replace the worst slums and to establish standards of family occupancy as of 1930 and calls for construction of 5,663,000 additional dwellings. The second represents our normal needs for additional dwellings both to house additional families and to replace dwellings to take care of obsolescence between 1937 and 1950, and calls for construction of 10,634,000 dwellings.

"Thus we find that in the next 13 years we must construct 16,000,000 additional dwellings, or in other words, make additional dwellings available at the rate of about one million and a quarter a year. We must remember, however, that in the past 17 years we have only constructed about half this number. We must also remember that the largest number of dwellings we have ever constructed in on year was 850,000, or 400,000 dwellings less than we should be constructing every year for the next 13 years. Doubling up and overcrowding is the only alternative to a housing program which will meet these needs.

Wages of Low Income Groups

"The Wagner bill contemplates construction of new housing to take care of the needs of families with incomes of less than $1,500 a year. These are the families that cannot afford new housing at prices that can be offered by private enterprise.

"The real property inventory taken by the federal government in 64 cities in 1933 revealed that two-thirds of the families investigated earned less than $1,327 a year. According to a study made by the Brookings institution, 42 per cent of our total number of families in 1929 received family income of $1,500 or less. This means that out of 27,500,000 families in the United States, 11,500,000 had to live on $1,500 a year or less and that more than one-fifth of all families, or 5,900,000 of them, had to live on less than $1,000 a year.

"Subsidized housing for these income groups cannot and will not interfere in the least with residential construction by priavte enterprise. European experience in low rent and low cost housing furnishes convincing proof of this."

PENNSYLVANIA LABOR HITS OPPONENTS OF "SIT-DOWN"

Harrisburg.—The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor by resolution condemned any labor official or organization opposing sit-down strikes.

The Pennsylvania labor delegates, in annual convention here, passed the condemnation resolution after they heard sit-down strike representatives from Berks county hosiery mills.

The convention later approved unanimously the executive council's recommendation for a "hands-off" policy in the current dispute between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O.

SIX-HOUR DAY FOR RAILWAY WORKERS URGED BY WHITNEY

Cleveland, O. (AFLNS).—Renewed efforts on the part of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to secure shorter hours and higher wages were announced by A. F. Whitney, president of the brotherhood. He stressed the importance of rallying more support among railroad organizations for the six-hour-day bill for railroad employes now pending before congress at Washington.

FOR THE CHILD (OR ADULT) WHO "hates to drink milk"

A DELICIOUS
CHOCOLATE DRINK
rich in bone-building calcium—equal to milk in food energy value
PHYSICIANS say most of us—young or old—need more calcium in our daily diet. Milk is rich in these important elements. But here and there we find children—and grownups—who "hate to drink milk."
Well, here is a happy solution. A sure-fire way to break the "milk strike" in your home. Serve KRIM-KO Chocolate Flavored Drink, fresh from our dairy. It is so delicious—and so good for you!
KRIM-KO is rich in bone-building calcium. A great help in building and maintaining firm, sound teeth. Equal to standard milk in food energy value.
So, when they "refuse" milk, give your family KRIM-KO. Serve it every day for a week. Then try milk. See if KRIM-KO hasn't developed their taste in that direction, too
